Despite all this, the federal government has been described this afternoon as the entity which is attempting to discourage the development of a viable oil industry in Canada. The figures show that the honourable Leader of the Opposition would have the provincial governments get 47 per cent, industry 45 per cent and the federal government only to 8 per cent. Yet his own Leader says that the government must retain a sufficient portion of tax fields in Canada to assist the provinces of this country.

Senator Flynn: Did you need more last year?

Senator Perrault: If we had continued the deductibility of these so-called provincial revenues or provincial royalties—and remember, they now come in a number of new guises—and if we had foolishly abolished all other tax incentives extended to the petroleum industry and had taxed companies at the standard corporate rate, we would still be far short of achieving a fair share of reasonable tax revenue. In these circumstances, leaving royalties deductible but ending all other incentives to industry, the federal share of income earned in Alberta would be only 12 per cent, and in Saskatchewan 3 per cent or 4 per cent.

Is this seriously the kind of thing that eventually we want to occur? No one denies the fact that on April 15, or in early April, there will be a conference held at which there will be differences of opinion between the provinces and the federal government. After all, the people at various levels of government at sessions of this kind meet together to attempt to achieve good solutions. In saying this, no one can seriously argue that the federal government does not have a valid case, in view of what almost constitutes a royalty revenue raiding operation by some provinces on the federal treasury.

Senator Flynn: Because someone acts improperly do you think the federal government should do the same?

Senator Perrault: I would ask the Leader of the Opposition how he can possibly say that the federal government is guilty of unilateral action in disallowing royalties—and I took down his words, delivered with great passion—in view of the unilateral action taken by the provinces to decimate the federal tax base at a time when more and more below-income Canadians urgently require federal programs to bring them up to a decent living level.

Then we heard the words, “a viable oil industry will be made impossible.” A viable oil industry is not being made impossible at all. Indeed, it has been the federal government which has undertaken all of the useful initiatives to this time, although admittedly there has been some counterpart action recently in the province of Alberta.

Senator Flynn: Syncrude?

Senator Perrault: A number of initiatives have been commenced by the federal government to make it possible for the oil industry and mining companies of our nation to be prosperous and viable.

We have been asked by the Leader of the Opposition for a postponement. I want to repeat what I said earlier. This would be a one-way ceasefire by the federal government, with that same government cast as the victim on barbed wire in no-man's land. The provinces have already had in place for some time higher royalty provisions. The provinces have been pulling in that money for several months. The provinces acted unilaterally and without consultation with the federal government, and those of us who serve in Parliament, the national forum in this country, must take responsible action to protect the best interests of the Canadian people. The federal position is not new, not unknown to the Canadian people. Indeed, they had a chance to consider it well before the last election. The federal position regarding non-deductibility was made clear in the Minister of Finance's budget of May 6, 1974, and, encouragingly enough, it was endorsed by the Canadian people in the July federal election.

● (1700)

Senator Flynn: Certainly not by the Western provinces.

Senator Perrault: And the election saw a heartening result.

The provision in this measure before the house is not a surprise to anybody. In addition, there are important revenue considerations. If there were a delay in implementing these provisions for the fiscal year 1974-1975—

Senator Flynn: That is not the case.

Senator Perrault: It is estimated that there would be a $300 million loss in revenue if there were to be a postponement. That revenue loss would be not to the provinces—not to Alberta, British Columbia or Saskatchewan—but to the federal government. That would be a loss to all of the humane programs which parliamentarians here have voted on in recent weeks and months.

Senator Flynn: I deny that.

Senator Lamontagne: Including the oil companies.

Senator Perrault: The Leader of the Opposition says he denies that, but he has not produced any statistics or facts to prove otherwise.

Senator Flynn: If the act comes into force on April 15, what difference will it make?

Senator Prowse: If it makes no difference, why worry about it?

Senator Perrault: As Senator Prowse has asked: If it makes no difference, why is the Leader of the Opposition concerned?

Senator Flynn: Because Senator Prowse is concerned. I was trying to share his concern. If he is not, that is another thing.

Senator Perrault: In the November budget, the Minister of Finance indicated that the federal government's readiness to pull back significantly was a valid, sincere offer to help resource industries in this country. He proposed a two-stage reduction in the federal corporate tax on petroleum companies from 30 per cent to 25 per cent by 1976, and restoration of the 100 per cent write-off for exploration expenditures incurred by mining and petroleum companies from the 30 per cent rate proposed in May.

By comparison with the May budget, honourable senators should recall, these measures would improve the position of the oil and gas companies in 1974 by about $100 million, and that of the mining companies by $15 million. On balance, the resource industries would be about 25 per cent better off in 1974 than would be the case under the May measures.

Over the period from 1974 to 1979, the effect of these November measures would be to reduce the federal share of petroleum production income to 18 per cent, from the 23 per cent share which would have resulted from the May proposals. The industry share of production income would increase from around 24 per cent to 29 per cent, and the provincial share would remain unchanged at around 53 per cent.

That appears, I think, to most of us in this house, to be an eminently fair proposal. Over the six-year period the federal share of revenues would be reduced from the $9.5 billion, that would have resulted from the May measures, to $7.5 billion, a decrease of $2 billion. It should be apparent, therefore, that in both relative and absolute terms the federal government has moved back very substantially. Yet we hear the federal government accused of a "unilateral action" which is "going to destroy", a viable oil industry. Well, those remarks are totally fallacious, and are simply not supported by any evidence at hand.

Honourable senators, I want to conclude by saying that the federal government has undertaken almost all of the initiatives to help the resource industries in this country since the beginning of this dialogue with the provinces about resource taxation. An important meeting is going to be held on April 15—a first ministers' conference. It is impossible and, in my view, indefensible, to have the federal government go into those negotiations with the provinces with both hands tied behind its back. These are fair and equitable tax measures for the good of the people of Canada, and I would ask all members of the Senate—

Senator Asselin: Of your party.

Senator Perrault: —to reject this amendment, because it has no justification in reason or good common sense.

Hon. J. Harper Prowse: Honourable senators, I do not propose to delay you very long, but what we are talking about here is holding up a bill in a way that is just going to gum up everything.

Senator Flynn: We are not holding up a bill.

Senator Prowse: Let us pass it. For how long would we hold it up anyway? Six weeks. There are going to be negotiations; there are going to be continual negotiations. If those negotiations come off well, then when they are finished everybody who took part in them is going to be disappointed. The only way anyone can be satisfied with the negotiations is if he gets everything he asked for. If I go into a series of negotiations and get everything I ask for, then I know I have been a damn fool because I should have asked for more. That is what is going on between the federal government, the provinces and the oil companies, except that the oil companies scream the loudest.

The best example of this was provided by my good friend, Senator Hays, the other afternoon. As reported at page 620 of Hansard, he said, "Today we sold oil in Chicago at $12.65 a barrel." I do not think they sold oil in Chicago at that price, but perhaps they did. They paid the five bucks to the federal government out of it. The same honourable senator went on to say that that left them, when all was finished, with $1.48 per barrel.

What he did not tell us was that over the past 20 years they have been making money by selling oil at less than $3 a barrel. All of a sudden, because the people in the Gulf states got smart and realized it was their oil, and that they had a right to set a price on it instead of the oil companies, the price was bumped up all around the world. This was not just because they were going to need more.

The honourable senator also said that his company had spent $100 million looking for oil, and had done very well. From where did they get the $100 million? They got it from selling Canadian oil at less than $3 a barrel. Every one of the oil companies that are screaming their ears off about being wrung dry is reporting profits that are about 200 per cent more than those in any other year in their history.

When you have had something to do with these oil companies you watch them, you do not pay too much attention to what they tell you; you just write down the figures, go to a good accountant, and check them out, and make up your own mind. Because of the laws of libel you do not say what you think.

Senator Manning told a sad story about what was going on with regard to the poor oil companies. He had nerve enough to stand in this house and say that we have had in Canada an oil price that has been set by free competition in the world market. If you suggested to one of the major oil companies that for one short week they might have to operate under a system of full and free competition, they would all die of heart attacks. They have never competed in their lives. They do not know what the word means.

The price has been manipulated and set by them. With a great respect for them and the reasonableness they have shown, I must say I think it was because they had sense enough to know that if they did not do so someone else would do it for them.

● (1710)

Let us not cry for the oil companies here. They are quite capable of crying for themselves. They have been doing so for years. They have been leading governments around by the nose, who all the time thought they were being taken quietly to a picnic. The oil companies have done fine.

Senator Manning said we must not have politically set prices. Will he tell me what the difference is between the price set by the oil companies in combination, which is permitted and approved by government, and the price which is set by government itself? The difference is that in the second case you have to go back and justify before the people why you have done it, but when the price is set by the companies, with your quiet and under-the-table approval, you can pretend that you do not know a thing about it, that it was set by the market.

So far as Alberta is concerned, I should like to see that province getting a little more, but we have to be fair. Up until this year, as an Albertan I paid the highest rate of income tax in the Dominion of Canada. Our provincial income tax has been the highest of any province in Canada. Next year it is going to be 5 per cent lower—in fact, it will be the lowest in Canada; 10 per cent or even 11 per cent lower than it has been. I am not sure that that is the right use for the money, but I can argue about that somewhere else.

Alberta has $1.5 billion flowing out of its ears from an arrangement under which it says it has been robbed by the federal government. I do not think that that is really so bad. Anyway, the federal government is going to that meeting knowing a lot more than they have in the past—and if they listen to me they will know an awful lot more. The provincial governments are going to go there, and they are going to know what it is all about. I suggest that we should let negotiations take place between the government of Canada and the governments of the provinces, that we get on with our business, and that we pass this bill so that the people who are waiting for their refunds can get them.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, I rise, of course, to support the amendment moved by the Leader of the Opposition. Perhaps I should immediately dispose of one argument against it. I do not know whether it was meant to be a serious argument against it or not, but it is one that holds little water anyway. I am referring now to Senator Prowse's suggestion that if this amendment were passed by the Senate it would hold up the bill. Perhaps he did not read the amendment too closely, but it makes it very clear that if it were passed it would not hold up this bill for one minute.

As I have said, I support the position taken by the Leader of the Opposition, and I support the "phoenix rising from the ashes." I think that if the Leader of the Government looks up that allusion he will perhaps think it was not the most appropriate. The phoenix is up from the ashes, and very much in a hurry. It was only buried in the ashes a few hours ago, and is now up and challenging again.

Senator Perrault: I said the amendment was for the birds.

Senator Grosart: The suggestion of the Leader of the Government that the amendment is "for the birds" is somewhat in line with some of the extravagant language he has been using, some of which will haunt him, particularly one phrase—his satirical reference to the "brave little provinces." I was amazed to hear the Leader of the Government using such a phrase, because it is the kind that has returned to haunt politicians before this. We all remember "supermen" and "not one five-cent piece." Why in this debate the Leader of the Government would choose to take that satirical attitude towards provinces which are trying to increase their revenues is beyond me.

He suggested satirically that this might be a "one-way ceasefire". I would remind him that this is the way many a confrontation has been ended, and if there was ever a time when the federal government would be completely justified in ending this confrontation by proposing a one-way ceasefire, it is in this particular area of federal-provincial relations.

Over the years the provinces have complained, and have been supported by the evidence of commentators, academic and political, that most of the difficulties that have arisen and plagued this country in the matter of federal-provincial relations have been the "take it or leave it" attitude with which the federal government has, year after year, decade after decade, approached the question of federal-provincial relations. Here is another example of exactly that attitude. The federal government says, "We want this act passed as it stands; we want the 'take it or leave it' position of the federal government in respect to these relations on the record, in the law of Canada, before we negotiate." Surely, this makes no sense. Surely, the federal government should resolve this confrontation in the interests of the public, which is all that concerns me. I am not concerned about the revenues—the federal revenues, the provincial revenues or the oil companies. I am concerned about the public interest. That was why I was so impressed by the speech made by Senator Manning on March 11.

If I need a text for my remarks today—and a text is usually a fairly mild appeal often used against exaggerated rhetoric—I would find it in Hansard of March 10, at page 610. It was referred to by Senator Flynn, and I cannot give a better answer to the statements made by the Leader of the Government than these words of Senator Hayden in reporting to the Senate. I think they should be on the record at this time:

It therefore appears that in the interests of preserving a viable oil and gas industry in Canada, as a matter of simple justice and equity, and as a step towards a compromise with the provinces in this area, the proposed legislation might either be changed so as to restrict the add-back to Crown royalties levied in excess of the royalty rates prevailing at December 31, 1973, or suspended in its application until after April 15, 1975, at which time further federal-provincial talks are scheduled.

That was the statement made by a member of this house who, in my judgment at least, is more informed with respect to this whole matter than any other senator. This is the distinguished senator who presented the report of the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce without amendment. I do not say that he did that personally. Obviously, he was reporting for the committee, which I acknowledge, but, as one who before the bill was referred to the committee made it clear that he hoped the committee would not report this bill without amendment, I welcome the amendment moved by the Leader of the Opposition.

I agree entirely with the statements made by Senator Hayden regarding the work done by the Senate in examining this bill and its predecessors, to which it is so closely linked. However, I am somewhat surprised to find, from the information given us today, that apparently the committee decided there were 30 points in which this bill might merit amendment.

• (1720)

Senator Hayden: If my friend would permit a correction, I did not say there were 30 points which required amendment; I said there were 30 points which required consideration.

Senator Grosart: I accept Senator Hayden's statement, but, so far as I am concerned, it amounts almost to the same thing. Of the 30 points, he named five which were substantive, on which I suggest amendments might have been made had there been time, and had the Senate committee considered them at greater length than it was able to do in the circumstances.

Senator Hayden: May I bring my friend to task? When I spoke about five points, I said those points had existed since Bill C-259 was introduced, and they were points which should be considered. I did not speak about amendments.

Senator Grosart: I do not want to stress the fact that in rising Senator Hayden made a slip of the tongue by referring to five "amendments". I refer to them in terms of "amendments" because otherwise there was no point in the committee putting a finger on the 30 points and saying "These should be considered." The only reason for considering them would be to consider whether they might be the subject of amendment.

I say that merely because we went through exactly the same procedure with Bill C-259, where the committee brought forward amendments which they said were priorities, but which were not in the report of the committee. Senator Hayden was not there at the time that decision was taken by the committee, or I think the result might have been different. That is the reason why I say I am disappointed that the committee has reported the bill without amendment. I believe there are amendments which should have been made.

I agree with the Leader of the Government that had there been incorporated in the bill some of the amendments which we on our side of the house might have wished to see, the bill might have been delayed. The amendment proposed by the Leader of the Opposition will not delay the bill. In my view, it will clarify the whole situation. It will certainly make the possibility of success, in the negotiations next week between the federal government and the provinces, much more likely. If the amendment is defeated, it is my fear that it will greatly constrain the possibility of the success of those negotiations.

[Senator Grosart.]

There are other matters which are difficult to understand. I know that explanations have been given. I am sure the provinces are concerned about the fact that not only have the increased royalties been ruled against as deductions from federal income tax, but so have the original royalties that were always there.

There are many such matters. I would like to make the following suggestion. I have spoken often in Parliament of what I call "the Hayden formula." It is a formula invented by Senator Hayden of referring the subject matter of papers and bills in advance to the committee in order that they might receive the thorough consideration traditionally given by the Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, particularly to complex bills of this kind. I suggest, therefore, regardless of the fate of Senator Flynn's amendment, that the government, and Senator Hayden, consider the application of the Hayden formula in reverse. I say to him, "Do not stop now, do not give up. You have suggestions to make. You have those 30 points which, so far as I know, have not yet been disclosed to the Senate. Keep on with the formula." I shall not attempt to describe the procedure, but I think it would be quite possible for a motion to be put before the Senate again referring the subject matter of this bill to the committee de novo. I would then ask just one question: Is it the intention of the committee to disclose the 30 points to the Senate at any time in the immediate future?

With that, I commend Senator Flynn's amendment to the affirmative consideration of the Senate.

Senator Hayden: Honourable senators, my friend Senator Grosart seemed to expend a lot of words to describe a situation about which I may say, with the greatest kindness, he knows nothing. He has not read these 30 points.

Senator Grosart: No, I have not seen them.

Senator Hayden: He can, therefore, talk with more freedom. I can tell my friend that in committee, as I stated earlier tonight—he was here, so he must have heard me say it—all these points were put in the form of questions to the officials who were there, and we got their answers. In addition, at the end of the proceedings today, before we decided on what kind of report we would make, I got the agreement of the committee to incorporate these 30 points in the Hansard report of today's committee proceedings, and also to incorporate in summary form the answers that were made by those officials who were there. So for those who want to read them, they are there.

There is a big difference between points, and material for amendments. The first thing you have to find out is whether what you—you, myself or any member of the committee—think is the interpretation is one that is going to be recognized by the department? If their interpretation and their expression of the intent of a particular clause is not in agreement with the fear that you have as to what it might mean, why do you pursue it further? It is quite unnecessary to do that.

My friend could have taken the time to inform himself as to what these things are. He had the same opportunity as any other senator to attend the committee meetings, although I know he was busy elsewhere. He now criticizes the committee for not making amendments. However, I tell him that so far as the committee was concerned today the only thing they considered was an amendment proposed by Senator Flynn. It was agreed by the committee, by all the members of the committee, that these points which had been discussed, and the answers which were given, were not of a substance that at this time we should deal with by proposing anything in the way of an amendment.

Without that material my friend quite nonchalantly discusses the 30 points, assuming that they are amendments, or the next thing to amendments, and asks why we did not do something about them. All I can tell him is that we did everything that was sensible and reasonable, and we reached a conclusion. We had many lawyers on the committee. While my friend's training is not that of law, I would say that he sometimes ventures a bit into the practice of law in expressing opinions here. However, in this connection I think perhaps the guidance of lawyers would be helpful to him, and he would not get into the position in which he now finds himself.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, I am not rising to speak twice in the debate in contravention of our rules, but I am entitled to rise to correct what, in my view, is a misunderstanding of what I said. In doing so, I first of all welcome Senator Hayden's statement that the 30 points are now to be available to senators generally. I would remind him that in this particular case we have given leave for third reading for a particular purpose—to expedite the passage of this bill. That being so, I think it is a complete misunderstanding of the remarks I made to suggest that I would not have made them had I had today's proceedings of the committee with these 30 points appended.

● (1730)

This is one of the many reasons why on this side from time to time we hesitate to give leave to break our rules. If we had insisted on the rule's being adhered to, I would have been informed about those 30 points.

I congratulate Senator Hayden on the decision now to make these 30 points available. I will not apologize for venturing into the field of law at any time. I am perfectly entitled to do that. Otherwise the discussion of any bill here, where we are dealing with laws, would be left to lawyers and that, in my view, would be a tragedy. I think there are times when it is important to the lawyers themselves to have some laymen venture into the field of law. We had an example of that here only yesterday when we were discussing the Law Reform Commission bill, and there was insistence that there be some on that commission who are not lawyers.

I do not want to argue that particular point with Senator Hayden, but I do want to make it clear that he completely misunderstood me if he thought I was saying that all of these 30 points were amendments. I merely said, if there were 30 points raised by the committee, it was my view, from the information I had in the Senate, that it was most likely that on examination they would lead to some amendments. And I stay with that position.

Senator Hayden: I will just remind my friend of what I said before. They did not lead to amendments because the Senate committee decided that it was not going to proceed with them.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets): Honourable senators, it is moved by the Honourable Senator Hayden, seconded by the Honourable Senator Langlois, that this bill be now read the third time.

In amendment it is moved by the Honourable Senator Flynn, seconded by the Honourable Senator Grosart, that Bill C-49 be not now read the third time but that it be referred back to the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce with instructions—

Senator Langlois: Dispense.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets): Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion in amendment?

Some Hon. Senators: Yes.

Some Hon. Senators: No.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets): As there is uncertainty, will those honourable senators who are in favour of Senator Flynn's motion in amendment please say "yea"?

Some Hon. Senators: Yea.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets): Will those honourable senators who are against Senator Flynn's motion in amendment please say "nay"?

Some Hon. Senators: Nay.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets): In my opinion the "nays" have it.

And more than two honourable senators having risen.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets): Please call in the senators.

Motion in amendment of Senator Flynn negatived on the following division:

YEAS

The Honourable Senators

Choquette	O'Leary
Flynn	Phillips
Grosart	Quart
Macdonald	Yuzyk—8.

NAYS

The Honourable Senators

Benidickson	Fournier (Restigouche-Gloucester)
Burchill	Godfrey
Carter	Graham
Cottreau	Hayden
Eudes	Inman
Everett	Lafond
Forsey	Lamontagne
Fournier (de Lanaudière)

NAYS

Langlois	Norrie
McDonald	Perrault
McElman	Petten
McGrand	Prowse
McIlraith	Robichaud
McNamara	Rowe
Michaud	Smith—30.
Neiman

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets): I declare the motion in amendment lost.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed, on division.

ROYAL ASSENT

NOTICE

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Senator Deschatelets) informed the Senate that the following communication had been received:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
OTTAWA

March 13, 1975

Madam,

I have the honour to inform you that the Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, in his capacity as Deputy Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 13th March, at 5.45 p.m. for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to certain bills.

I have the honour to be,
Madam,
Your obedient servant,
André Garneau
Brigadier General
Administrative Secretary to the
Governor General.

The Honourable

The Speaker of the Senate,

Ottawa.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 5.45 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

ROYAL ASSENT

The Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, having come and being seated at the foot of the Throne, and the House of Commons having been summoned, and being come with their Speaker, the Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to give Royal Assent to the following bills:

An Act to amend the statute law relating to income tax.

An Act to amend the Canadian Wheat Board Act.

An Act to increase the representation of the Northwest Territories in the House of Commons and to establish a commission to readjust the electoral boundaries of the Northwest Territories.

An Act respecting the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act.

An Act respecting the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act.

An Act respecting the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act.

The House of Commons withdrew.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to retire.

The sitting of the Senate was resumed.

● (1820)

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Leave having been given to revert to Notices of Motions:

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Tuesday, March 18, 1975, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Before the question is put, I should like to give the usual outline of the anticipated legislative program for next week.

On Tuesday, the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce will meet at 9:30 a.m. to consider Bill C-29, respecting Canadian business corporations. At the same hour there will be a meeting of the Joint Committee on Regulations and Other Statutory Instruments. At 11 a.m. on Tuesday, the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs will meet to hear witnesses on Bill S-19, to amend the Food and Drugs Act, the Narcotic Control Act and the Criminal Code.

The Foreign Affairs Committee has a meeting scheduled for 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday and the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service will meet at 8 p.m. Also, the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy is planning to meet on Tuesday, but the time has not yet been set.

There will be a meeting of the Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday. Also at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, the National Finance Committee will meet to give further consideration to supplementary estimates (D), at which time the Honourable Donald Macdonald, Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, will appear before the committee.

On Thursday, the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture will hold a meeting at 10 a.m. on Bill C-10, to amend the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act. The National Finance Committee will meet at 9:30 a.m. to continue its study of the Manpower Division of the Department of Manpower and Immigration. The Honourable Robert Andras, Minister of Transport and Immigration, will be in attendance.

The Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service will meet at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday. The Joint Committee on Regulations and Other Statutory Instruments also plans to meet on Thursday but, again, the time has not yet been set.

In addition to the foregoing, we will, of course, continue with the items now on the Order Paper, and it is expected that we will have at least two more bills sent to us by the other place on Tuesday.

It is also expected that a supply bill respecting supplementary estimates (D), as well as an interim supply bill, will come to us from the other place late next week which will, in all probability, make it necessary for the Senate to sit next Friday.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, March 18, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, March 18, 1975

The Senate met at 8 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Langlois tabled:

Report on the administration of the Members of Parliament Retiring Allowances Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to section 35 of the said Act, Chapter 25 (1st Supplement), R.S.C., 1970.

Report of the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce under the Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (Part I, Corporations) for the fiscal periods ended in 1972, pursuant to section 18(1) of the said Act, Chapter C-31, R.S.C., 1970.

Report of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to section 10 of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Act, Chapter C-27, R.S.C., 1970.

Copies of Program of Guideline dates for metric conversion, issued by the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce.

Report on Prairie Farm Rehabilitation and Related Activities for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to section 10 of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, Chapter P-17, R.S.C., 1970.

THE HONOURABLE PAUL MARTIN, P.C.

GREETINGS TO THE SENATE

Hon. Henry D. Hicks: Honourable senators, before the Orders of the Day are called, may I rise for a moment to say that I was absent last week, attending a meeting of UNESCO in Paris. On my way I stopped over in London and attended a reception at which the Prime Minister was the guest of honour. The reason I rise is that our new High Commissioner in London, the Honourable Paul Martin, the former Leader of the Government in the Senate, stopped me at the reception and made me solemnly promise that as soon as I re-appeared in this chamber I would rise on an occasion such as this and extend his greetings to all his colleagues in the chamber. He seemed to be enjoying himself very well, and he wished to identify himself with us once again.

LAW REFORM COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—ORDER STANDS UNTIL LATER THIS DAY

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the motion of the Honourable Senator Benidickson, P.C., seconded by the Honourable Senator Langlois, for the second reading of Bill C-43, intituled: "An Act to amend the Law Reform Commission Act".—(Honourable Senator Smith).

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, I would ask that this order stand until later this day.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

CRIMINAL CODE (COMMUTATION OF DEATH SENTENCE)

BILL TO AMEND—DEBATE CONTINUED

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the motion of the Honourable Senator Robichaud, P.C., seconded by the Honourable Senator Eudes, for the second reading of Bill S-21, intituled: "An Act to amend the Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence)".—(Honourable Senator McElman).

Hon. Paul Desruisseaux: Honourable senators, I understand that Senator McElman will not speak this evening on Bill S-21. I have prepared some notes, and would like to participate in the debate at this time.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

[Translation]

Senator Desruisseaux: Honourable senators, no matter what views I express here on capital punishment, no matter what my personal opinions are on Bill S-11 on capital punishment, which Senator Robichaud introduced, or, if I may say so, no matter what remarks my colleagues make on the subject, they will in no way change our respective positions and philosophies when the vote comes.

Personally, I doubt that any one of us will be influenced in any way by our representations on the various aspects of capital punishment. I will therefore refrain from addressing you in the hope of influencing you.

The sole purpose of Bill S-21 is to restrict the power invested in the Governor in Council to commute the death penalty strictly to those cases where clemency was recommended and those where the jury failed to agree on a recommendation for clemency.

We have heard several senators make excellent contributions to this debate. I agree with Senator Asselin that the subject has just about been exhausted. During his remarks, Senator Asselin dealt first with sections 684 and 686 of the Criminal Code, as well as with the issue of royal prerogative, and then questioned the very constitutionality of Bill S-21.

Senator Sarto Fournier, in support of Senator Asselin, insisted in particular on the dangers of a miscarriage of justice in the case of capital punishment, on the impossibility to correct a miscarriage of justice once the sentence has been carried out, as well as on the obsession of the lawyer who acted as counsel for someone accused of murder.

The arguments put forward on this issue are quite valid. First in 1968, and later in 1972, when the issue of capital punishment was passionately discussed throughout Canada, we were told that our conscience should bring us to refuse our support for capital punishment in any shape and form, since it implies taking the life of a human being, and that such corrective action was a worthless deterrent against murder, not the remedy expected by our society, and certainly unworthy of an informed and civilized society such as ours.

We know that in the last resort, for a number of years, in spite of several death sentences passed against murderers by their equals and by courts—sentences confirmed by the highest appeal courts—there has been no execution, the Canadian cabinet having always under all circumstances commuted the death sentence.

We must not expect today a complete reversal of opinion among our senators who, in 1972, granted under a legislation a five-year respite in all cases liable to the death penalty, except in cases of premeditated murders of police officers and prison guards on duty. Moreover, we know that even in the cases where the death penalty was indicated, the Governor in Council has always decided to commute death sentences.

[English]

Nevertheless, I believe we are now reaching an important crossroad in our thinking. With the constant and rapid increase in crime, including murders, across our nation and particularly in our metropolitan and urban centres, there is, among the Canadian people, a mounting wave of protest against, and evidence of disgust at, our legislative permissiveness. There is a return to basic logic, a demand for just and equitable punishment in cases of premeditated murder. There is a noticeable renewal of pressure on the government to do something urgently to curtail the present trend towards crime, particularly murder, and there is a general public disapproval of the use of only token deterrents.

● (2010)

We in the Parliament of Canada are expected to reflect in what we do here the thoughts, the views and the legislative and executive wishes of the people we represent. That is something which I feel is too often forgotten. It is our obligation to provide the kind of government that can and will assure observance of, and respect for, our criminal and civil laws, and, in any event, give adequate protection to all Canadians. This is the wish and the expectation of Canadians. Theories of laissez faire and permissiveness as deterrents have never in the whole history of the world worked to stop crimes and murders. Their application has generally resulted in chaos.

Should we be concerned with saving the lives of those who commit premeditated murder instead of opting for a just punishment for their crime when it is known, for instance, that those criminals already plan other multiple and wholesale murders and are known to contract, without remorse, a repeat of their murderous acts? Have those murderers a right to life when they are unremorsefully planning other bloodbaths while awaiting their trial and sentence?

I believe our legislative obligation is to provide the fullest protection and the best deterrents possible against crime and murder by providing for equitable and just punishments. What better deterrent to murder can we find than capital punishment? I ask how we, the providers of justice, law and order for all, have come to conclude that we would also be murderers if we provide society with a deterrent commensurate with the act of premeditated murder. The large majority of Canadians find it unfair and unjust in our modern society to balance premeditated murder against a minimal token sentence of a few years' imprisonment.

I do not believe that the provision of strong protection and an effective deterrent against the crime of premeditated murder is sadistic, perverse or moronic. Nor do I believe that defending our nation and its people, or other members of the world society, and going to war to protect them from wholesale and extreme violence, is wrong in the eyes of our Creator and our Judge. We make war against aggressor nations, not to kill but to preserve the lives of the innocents who are attacked, and to protect their property and children. It is the only way that has been found throughout world history to protect and defend the legacy of our God-given liberties and our democracies. Our consciences recognize as heroes, not as murderers, those who expose their lives in war to kill our enemies.

Since 1962, with rehabilitation as the eventual goal, Canada has more or less adopted a system of lessening the punishment for all crimes in our society, including murder. If we were to analyze the available statistics, it would become immediately apparent that that experiment has been a total failure. In fact, if anything, it has resulted in a rapid increase in the number of massacres and mass murders.

I am deeply concerned about the great increase in the number of murders, and in crime generally, in Canada. I am equally concerned about the apparent indifference in our society to its proper curtailment. When criminals take away life, the most treasured of our God-given gifts, and the only punishment we mete out is a mere few years in prison, what can there be but a negative result? Obviously, criminals will attach to life only an insignificant value, and that will be true for all members of our society. As a further consequence, even the slightest provocation may lead to all sorts of degrading retaliations, from mere loss of respect to the total destruction of our most valuable possession—life.

As a nation, we can never hope to see our criminal laws observed unless the criminals who are convicted by our courts are given more severe, or at least more nearly adequate, and just sentences—sentences which can be accepted and respected by our governmental authorities, our legislators and cabinet ministers.

Owing to our historical attitude towards the death penalty, I doubt that Senator Robichaud's bill has much chance of passing. It may even be unconstitutional. Certainly, in my view, it is unsatisfactory and incomplete. As a remedy it will prove ineffectual because it applies only to a special category of murderer. To me, and I believe to many Canadians, Bill S-21 is an unacceptable and weak compromise. It will not halt the epidemic of murders we are now experiencing in Canada. In fact, it does not even provide basic justice because, essentially, it remains utterly unsatisfying as a deterrent. In terms of justice, when we consider the small number of premeditated murders with which this bill deals, we can see that it applies an uneven yardstick.

To put it very simply, it is my opinion that capital punishment should be reinstated for all premeditated murders and for all acts of deliberate violence which result in murder. The premeditated killing of any member of society, be he a police officer, a prison guard or a member of the public at large, should be met with capital punishment. The prerogative of commuting a death sentence should not be used, as it is now, as a constant and indiscriminately applied technique of repealing the death sentence in every case.

• (2020)

In my opinion, the five-year trial, commenced in 1972, of the abolition of the death penalty will be disastrous. I would rather justify my being here by advocating and supporting, without any reservations, an amendment to Senator Robichaud's bill to simply reinstate capital punishment for premeditated murder, since I can find no alternative effective solution that would curb the murders and crime waves we now have in Canada. In my view, we have a duty to correct the permissive legislation that ignores and prevents other equitable corrective measures that would be more apt to discourage the crime of murder.

[Translation]

Hon. Azellus Denis: Honourable senators, I do not have much to add to the interesting speech of my honourable friend, Senator Desruisseaux.

When a proposal for partial abolition of the death penalty was passed by the House of Commons, I spoke on that matter and voted against the bill.

When a proposed amendment seeking the extension of partial abolition was once more brought before the Senate, I spoke again on the matter and also voted against this new bill. That means that I have always remained in favour of capital punishment. I entirely support the suggestion of my honourable colleague, Senator Robichaud, and I think it is regrettable that all murders are no longer punishable by death.

Unfortunately I believe that the bill now before us is unconstitutional and we do not have the power to abolish the prerogative of the Crown. Moreover, I fear that even if it were passed in the Senate, disallowance procedures would prove it to have been a waste of time.

If I have a suggestion to make, it is because I agree with the idea of punishing severely those who are guilty of murder; I agree with maintaining the death penalty. Senator Robichaud was probably thinking of what happened in New Brunswick where two police officers were assassinated.

However, if procedures allow it, and if Senator Robichaud were willing to withdraw his bill and, for instance, to address a request or recommendation to the Cabinet on behalf of the Senate, I believe the latter would support his recommendation that no death penalty be commuted unless there was a plea for clemency on the part of the jurors. I believe that such a recommendation would have the support of the Senate.

[English]

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, if no other senator wishes to take part in the debate at this time, I would move the adjournment in the name of Senator McElman.

On motion of Senator Petten, for Senator McElman, debate adjourned.

LAW REFORM COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from Thursday, March 13, the debate on the motion of Senator Benidickson for second reading of Bill C-43, to amend the Law Reform Commission Act.

Hon. W. M. Benidickson: Honourable senators, if no other honourable senator proposes to contribute to this debate, I would rise to close the debate on the second reading of this bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, I must inform the Senate that if the honourable senator speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading of this bill.

Senator Benidickson: Honourable senators, I anticipate from the most interesting and helpful remarks of Senator Choquette that he expects that this bill will be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs. I, too, would anticipate that it should be referred to that committee. I know how industriously this committee has been working on Bill S-19, to amend the Criminal Code in relation to cannabis, and that during this session it has had a fairly heavy workload. Nevertheless, following discussion with the leaders, I feel that attention of this committee should be directed to this bill.

There are, of course, countless fields for discussion in connection with this, but in particular I think that such an examination as Senator Choquette has suggested might enable us to find the number of study papers that have been made available since the constitution of this committee. Senator Choquette felt that the Minister of Justice perhaps had not acted adequately on the study papers.

When I explained this bill on second reading, honourable senators, I pointed out that while there were working papers, so far there were no firm recommendations. I also attempted to explain that in the course of the next fiscal year it had been reported to me that very definite recommendations in at least four fields would be forthcoming. I feel that the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs might like to have this confirmed by some inquiry of Mr. Justice Patrick Hartt, the distinguished chairman of the commission, and perhaps from other witnesses also.

Since the bill came before us, a couple of interesting events have come to my attention. I was listening to the radio the other evening—probably the only time I listen to the radio is in the early morning for the newscasts or when I am driving my automobile—I think it was last Thursday evening. The discussion to which I listened impressed me greatly in that it dealt with the benefits of the law which are available to the poor. I was persuaded by the discussion that the poor indeed are generally short-changed under our legal process. Whether this is through ignorance, although we do have legal aid in practically every province, or through inability to get appointments with the most effective counsel that should be available to them, I do not know. I think this is a matter that could be inquired into.

[Senator Desruisseaux.]

In addition, since I spoke to you last on this bill I read a most interesting article in the July-August 1974 issue of Canadian Welfare, by Professor Martin L. Friedland, Dean of the Faculty of Law of the University of Toronto. For those of you who may be interested, the article is entitled: "Law for the Layman." One of the interesting things Professor Friedland pointed out was that, in his opinion, the state has an obligation to ensure that its laws are available in an understandable fashion to the layman. He said that very little attention has been given toward making our laws comprehensible even to lawyers. Sometimes lawyers are particularly "learned" only as to where to find the law, and many lawyers are specialists, of course, in a very narrow range of subjects. However, an interesting section related to members of Parliament, who have much responsibility in establishing and making the laws. I would like to quote what the dean of the law school had to say in that respect:

● (2030)

—Members of Parliament look at a bill having had the assistance of the minister's speech on the second reading of the bill as well as explanations and comments on each page opposite the draft of the bill. Even the minister has assistance in understanding the bill: he has a Black Book—

About which we have been making some jest recently.

—prepared for him explaining each section of the bill. But when the bill is passed and becomes an act of Parliament, all these explanations and comments are lost. They do not accompany the act into the statute book. Indeed, the law is that a judge has to interpret the law without using these explanations.

How true that is. The tenor of this most interesting article is: should we not be making law more available for understanding by laymen, and should there not be greater availability to the law for particularly those who are least prepared to take care of themselves in this world when conflicts arise?

In the radio discussion to which I referred, it was stated—and I think it was never adequately denied—that basically our laws are established to protect property. Anyone who has any accusation of interfering with property rights, and so on, has the weaker end of the argument. In that line I think there is a great deal for investigation by this committee, on which there are many distinguished members.

I myself on a couple of occasions, while I have not practised law here, have been implored by members of our staff who were deep in debt to appear without fee on their behalf at something which I suggest would be useful for lawyers and non-lawyers to visit. I refer to the judgment summons day for judgment debtors. I appeared on a couple of occasions, and I found the surroundings to be woeful and unhappy. On one date more than 80 per cent of the items on the judge's agenda came from what I would describe as one money-grubbing doctor. He was not represented by counsel but by a very experienced representative of a collection agency. I suppose that he had been in court frequently at this type of hearing, and the undefended judgment debtors were facing—probably it is not always the case—rather grim and obviously bored judges. I felt they were rather rude to me in my attempt to have outlined to the judgment debtors their opportunities to consolidate their debts for regular payment. There is no court officer available to explain to them the laws which we have recently passed under which poor people can have a poor man's bankruptcy for a relatively small fee. Most of those who get into financial difficulty by accumulating debts have no knowledge that not long ago we made provision that they can have their assets distributed through "bankruptcy" in an orderly fashion for a fee of $50. These are items of interest to the Law Reform Commission itself. Some of their studies which affect the public, particularly the unprotected public, would be high on the list of inquiries which the committee under Senator Goldenberg would, I think, wish to make.

When I have the opportunity I will move that this bill be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

Senator Benidickson moved that the bill referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

Motion agreed to.

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL RELATIONS

DISPUTE OVER RESOURCE REVENUE TAXATION—INQUIRY WITHDRAWN

On the Inquiry of Senator Manning:

That he will call the attention of the Senate to the serious national consequences of the current federal-provincial dispute over resource revenue taxation.

Senator Manning: Honourable senators, with respect to this inquiry, most of the subject matter that I had intended to discuss has been fully covered in the debate that took place in this house on Bill C-49, to amend the statute law relating to income tax. For that reason, with the consent of the Senate, I would ask to withdraw the inquiry.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Inquiry withdrawn.

EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY

CANADA'S CLAIM FOR COMPENSATION—FURTHER QUESTION

Leave having been given to revert to Question Period:

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, the question I direct to the Leader of the Government refers to a question I asked on February 27 about Canada's claim for compensation following the entry of Great Britain and other countries into the European Community. The leader agreed at that time that the question was appropriate, and said he would endeavour to give me an answer within a week. More than a week has elapsed, and I have since read what purports to be an answer in the daily press.

I wonder if the Leader of the Government would let me know if it is his intention to answer my question in the chamber?

Senator Perrault: The Right Honourable the Prime Minister, of course, has been on an extended and productive visit to Europe, and questions relating to Canada's position vis-à-vis the Common Market have been an important subject on all the agenda. I shall undertake to obtain from the Prime Minister's office as accurate a report as possible to deliver to the Senate at the earliest possible opportunity.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, March 19, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS
MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the names of Messrs. Orlikow and Caccia have been substituted for those of Messrs. Brewin and Daudlin on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

CRIMINAL CODE (THE NATIONAL FLAG OF CANADA)

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-223, to amend the Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada).

Bill read first time.

Senator Petten moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Friday next.

Motion agreed to.

CANADIAN SOVEREIGNTY SYMBOL BILL

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-373, to provide for the recognition of the Beaver (Castor canadensis) as a symbol of the sovereignty of Canada.

Bill read first time.

Senator Fergusson moved, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 44(1)(f), that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

COMPETITION POLICY

INTERIM REPORT OF BANKING, TRADE AND COMMERCE
COMMITTEE TABLED AND PRINTED AS AN APPENDIX

Hon. Salter A. Hayden: Honourable senators, I desire to table an interim report of the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce to which was referred, for examination and report, the subject matter of new proposals for competition policy in Canada, and for the consideration of any implementing legislation. I would ask that this interim report be printed as an appendix to the Debates of the Senate and to the Minutes of the Proceedings of the Senate of this day, and form part of the permanent record of this house.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

[For text of report see appendix, pp. 675-683.]

Senator Grosart: Explain.

Senator Hayden: With leave of the Senate, I should like to give some explanation of the contents of this report.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Hayden: Honourable senators, the study of this subject proceeded quite some distance with respect to the hearing of submissions and witnesses before the actual bill received first reading in the House of Commons. Following that, when the bill was referred to the corresponding committee in the Commons, there was tabled with the bill before that committee a substantial number of minister's amendments. There were 30 such amendments, and we had the benefit of those in our consideration of the bill.

I can tell you that during the course of our hearings representatives from the department concerned, the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, were present, and they also had the opportunity of considering the nature of the evidence and the course of the examination of witnesses.

Of the 30 amendments proposed by the minister, some 19 are amendments that, in our opinion, deal satisfactorily with the problems that were exposed to us by the witnesses and in the submissions that came to us. You will find the list of amendments on page 3 of the report that I have just tabled. You will find a list of the amendments, on which we offer no comment, and we are of the opinion that they deal satisfactorily with the particular subjects, all of which were giving some concern.

There are some other items that I should like to mention very briefly. One subject arose because services were included in combines legislation for the first time. The inclusion of services, of course, caused great concern to many different types of people, not only in trade and industry but also in the professions. In our view, as you will see in the report and our reasons, where professions, industry and trade are regulated by legislation in the provinces they should not also be included within the scope of services in this bill, and some activities possibly given the character of criminal offences. If any criminality is involved in what has been given as a service there would, of course, be cause of action in any event.

Take, for instance, lawyers. In Ontario their charges in matters of litigation are regulated under the Ontario Judicature Act by a panel of judges who fix the scale of fees. There is also maintained in Ontario a taxing officer, and any client who is dissatisfied with a bill that he receives may go before the taxing officer and have the bill taxed. Whatever the taxing officer settles on as the proper quantum of the fees to be charged is what the client is obligated to pay. There is, of course, a right of appeal if the findings of the taxing officer are questioned. I understand that in other provinces conditions of this kind prevail, so that you could easily refer to the professions—law, accountancy, and medicine to a very considerable extent—as being regulated services and regulated professions.

In trade and industry one could take, for instance, a telephone company, whose fees are regulated. There are other instances, such as in the case of In Re The Farm Products Marketing Act, in respect of which the Supreme Court of Canada in 1957 held that these regulatory schemes provided adequate protection and that where you had such regulated schemes it could not be held that those proceedings would be “to the detriment or against the interests of the public.”

● (1410)

There was another case, the famous Canadian Breweries case, which involved the question of monopoly. Mr. Justice McRuer, in his judgment in that case, held that this industry was definitely and substantially regulated in the province, and, therefore, with that regulation it could not be said that there was anything detrimental to the public.

So, on balance, we have stipulated that there should be an exemption of these activities of a trade, industry or a profession which are regulated by some other law, that they should be exempt from the scope of Bill C-2; that is, the legislation dealing with competition.

Then, in dealing with due diligence as a matter of defence, there are many provisions in the bill which provide strict liability, what we call per se liability. That is, if you have done what the statute says you cannot do, then, no matter what the reason may have been, you have no defence. If it turns out that your reason is a mitigating one, it might be an element in mitigation of damages.

In that connection I should like to refer to an editorial which appeared in the Toronto Star on this very subject matter. I do not intend to read the whole editorial, but what they had to say was interesting. It had to do with these amendments. The Star said this:

They allow too much discretion in some cases and none at all in others.

In the latter category fall several offenses in the amended act which could send a man to jail even though he had no criminal knowledge or intent, and even though he had made every reasonable effort to be sure he was acting legally. In law, such statutory rigidity is called ‘strict liability’.

The House of Commons Finance Committee, which is currently studying the proposed amendments, should remove the strict liability provisions and allow the courts more discretion in deciding whether a businessman was trying to trick the public or whether he himself was duped by someone else.

We have considered this and all submissions which were made. There were many submissions made on strict liability offences. We finally decided to recommend that a new section be added to the act similar to that contained in section 25 of the English Fair Trading Act, which is found in the English Statutes, 1973, chapter 41. The gist is that in proceedings for certain offences it would be a defence for the person charged to prove that commission of the offence was due to reliance on information supplied or some cause beyond his control, and that due diligence to avoid commission of the offence was exercised. Where the accused invokes the defence that he relied on information supplied, he must notify the prosecutor before trial of the name of the person who supplied the information. A newspaper publisher who published a misleading advertisement in good faith would also have a defence. Therefore, we recommend that this “due diligence” clause, which is another way of saying, “with a reasonable cause,” be added to the clauses of the bill which deal with promotional allowances, misleading advertising and representation, representations as to reasonable tests and testimonials, double ticketing, sale above advertised price, promotional contests, and resale price maintenance.

It is not often my privilege to be able to quote as an authority, in support of what I have to say, an editorial from the Toronto Star.

Now I come to another aspect of this bill, professional and amateur sport. There is a provision in the bill which deals with professional and amateur sport, and in the amendments put forward by the minister it was proposed that amateur sport be excluded. However, the draftsmen proceeded to define amateur sport in such terms as to make it, I think, practically impossible for an amateur, as we know amateurs today, to qualify for this exclusion, because in the first paragraph of the amendment, while amateur sport is excluded, there is a second subclause which defines amateur sport. It says, “Sport in which the participants receive no remuneration for their services as a participant.”

We know that in amateur sport today, athletes remain amateurs even though they are remunerated for their services. There seems to be two classes: the well-acknowledged professional sports and amateur sports. We think that we should live with the realities of the situation. Although on occasion some athletes receive compensation or remuneration, we feel that this should not qualify them as professional athletes. We therefore recommend that the definition of amateur sports should be removed from the minister's amendment and that it be left to the courts to interpret, according to the customs of the trade and the usages in the world of sport, who shall be classified as amateurs. This would be a much better way of dealing with the situation than is offered by this amendment, which would seem to give with one hand and take away with the other.

We recommend, however, that professional sports should be excluded too. We do not think that the criminal provisions of the combines investigation law should relate to any sports. The President of the National Hockey League appeared before the committee, as did representatives of most amateur sport bodies in Canada. The Executive Director of the National Hockey League Players' Association also appeared. That organization was opposed to being included in this category of a combines law which had all the features of investigation and prosecution. For instance, one provision would permit six dissatisfied people to launch a petition to the minister to start an investigation under the Combines Investigation Act. The National Hockey League Players' Association did not approve of the inclusion of professional sports in this legislation because of this aspect of criminal proceedings. They did say, however, that until some better way is found to deal with the problem, it may as well remain in the bill.

Another aspect that you might be interested in is the civil damages provisions, which are new. A provision in the bill gives a person, who can demonstrate that he has been hurt directly by the failure of some person to comply with an order which the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission might make under Part IV.1 of the bill, the right to sue for damages when those proceedings fall in the category of civil proceedings. They only reach the stage of criminal proceedings when, after an order is made, there is a disobedience of the order.

● (1420)

Civil damages may also be claimed by a person who alleges he has been hurt, and when he can establish that the person who he alleges has hurt him has been convicted of an offence under Part V of Bill C-2, or under the section which provides for an order to be made by the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission. Then it goes on to provide that there may also be a right of action in any person to sue for damages in the case where there has been no conviction, and where there have been no proceedings under the combines law against any person for a violation of the criminal provisions of the particular bill, but where it appears from the evidence that might be put before the civil judge that this is likely to or does constitute an offence. The effect of what you are doing there, of course, is that you are setting up a civil judge to make a determination as to whether or not a criminal offence has been committed by this person. We thought that to be a rather anomalous situation; so what we have said, first, is where there is no doubt that in principle a person who has been hurt by some individual or corporation which has violated the criminal law as set forth in the combines legislation, and where such a person or corporation has been convicted, that must be the basis, or the threshold of entry, to the assertion of this right. Where such a person has been hurt we do not think there should be the right to sue for civil damages if no criminal prosecution has been commenced, and no action of such kind taken. We do not feel it should be left to the judgment of a court in a civil action to decide that there has been an offence, or that what is done is likely to lead to an offence. So we recommend that the conviction must be the basis of the right of action of any person for civil damages, and also a violation of the order of the commission under Part IV.1.

We have said, however, that, notwithstanding the provisions in the bill, the record of proceedings and the transcript of evidence taken, where there has been a conviction, should not constitute proof in a civil action. The qualification for entitlement should be that the person can show, or produce a certificate to show, that there has been a conviction, and the onus of proof is on the person suing for damages to establish by whom he was hurt. He must establish that the person he is suing has been convicted. He must directly relate that offence for which this person was convicted to the damage which he has suffered, or which he says he has suffered, and that must be directly by evidence and not by the reading of a transcript of the criminal proceedings.

I should call attention to one of the others. We were much concerned—when I say “we,” I mean the committee—about the doubtful constitutionality in relation to the proceedings under Part IV.1. This was also mentioned in submissions, including that of the Canadian Bar Association. We term these reviewable transactions. It is provided in that section of the bill that on the application of the director—that is the Director of Investigation and Research—and if certain points are established, the commission may make an order subject to whatever the guidelines and limitations are in that Part. We have added more, and amended some, guidelines. The commission, after hearing the supplier, may make an order that this supplier supply merchandise to this particular person.

The director, in order to make this application to the commission, must be able to show that a person has been substantially affected in his business. The section also goes on to say, “or is precluded from carrying on business due to his inability to obtain adequate supplies.”

We felt that there are two different categories there. One is that of a man who is carrying on his business and who is not able to obtain supplies on the usual trade terms, as it says in the bill. The other category is that of a man who is not in any business, but who, for example, wants to enter the camera business and sell, particularly, Kodak cameras, and who, when he attempts to buy supplies of Kodak cameras from a supplier, is refused. Under the bill as it is drawn he could apply to the commission for an order directing the supplier to supply this equipment to him.

We have recommended the elimination of one part of this, namely, that part dealing with inability to obtain adequate supplies. In our opinion, if in his business a person is unable to obtain supplies then, subject to the terms and conditions of the bill, he should be able to go before the commission. However, we also felt that the onus should be on the director to prove the case. If he is the one who is instituting the proceedings, he should prove the case. The supplier who is affected by the application would then have the right to appear, defend, and avail himself of all the facilities, such as examination and cross-examination, production of documents, et cetera.

We deal with many other subjects, but there is possibly only one other to which I should refer, and that is the subject under the heading of “Interim Injunction.” This refers to cases in which the Crown is given the right to apply for an interim injunction when it appears that a person is about to commit an offence under Part V, which is the criminal part of the Combines Investigation Act. In a civil case the usual procedure, certainly in some provinces, is that a person taking such an action for an interim injunction must give security for costs. One would not think of requiring that the Crown should give security for costs. However, we do think that the Crown should be exposed to the same right to claim damages as any other person would be in an action in which an interim injunction is obtained and the proceedings fail. In this case, if the Crown applies for an interim injunction on the basis of a potential offence and it fails, there should then be a right to maintain an action for damages against the Crown.

● (1430)

There are many other sections in the report. We deal with the constitutional aspects, as to the questionable validity of using the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission in these reviewable transactions. We think that before those sections are proclaimed, there should be a reference to the Supreme Court of Canada to determine their validity. The alternative to all that, of course, is to proceed on the basis that the bill is valid and constitutional, and let the private litigants take the burden of contesting the validity of the bill at some future time.

The other subject matters are such things as the jurisdiction of the Federal Court in criminal matters, and the indictment and summary procedure provisions. In the bill there is a provision in the sections dealing with offences where you may proceed by way of indictment, and there are certain penal consequences if there is a conviction. The penalty may be a fine and/or imprisonment.

Alternatively there is a procedure by way of summary conviction where there is provision for a fine. The limitation on the summary proceeding is that the action must be commenced within six months. The amendment proposed by the minister extended that period from six to 12 months. The committee felt that because the Crown may not be ready—these investigations preceding prosecution under a statute such as this take a long period of time—the time to take a summary proceeding may have run its course, and to take any action then would have to be by way of indictment; whereas, if the summary conviction procedures were open, and if the Crown so desired, they could proceed summarily where the penalty is lesser. We see no reason why there should be any time limitation at all, because so far as an indictment is concerned, you can take proceedings at any time. Therefore, if there is going to be a choice on even terms, there should be no limitation on the time in which you can proceed by way of summary conviction.

This is only a slight run at the contents of the bill. I should say at this stage that it has not been the practice, when a report is tabled, to debate the report. There are many reasons for that. One is that we do not have the bill before us at this time. If it is desirable to debate the report, of course, a senator could make a motion calling the attention of the Senate to such and such a report, which was tabled on such and such a date, and a debate could or might then ensue. I have simply tabled the report so as not to provoke debate at this time, feeling that the opportunity for debate will come when the bill is before us for second reading. That is all I have to say at this time in connection with this report.

Senator Benidickson: May I ask Senator Hayden two questions? First, was the report unanimously approved by the members of the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce?

[Senator Hayden.]

Several times in his remarks he referred to recommendations of the committee, and my ear caught only once a reference to an amendment. My second question is: Did the committee actually amend the bill?

Senator Hayden: First, for obvious reasons, the bill was not before us, and therefore we could not amend it. Our obligation was to study the new proposals for a competition policy in Canada and any proposed implementing legislation. That is what we have done. When I used the word "amendment," I was talking mainly and substantially about the amendments which the minister proposed to the bill when it was in committee of the house following second reading in the House of Commons.

If I inadvertently used the word "amendment" anywhere in my remarks, I was not referring to an amendment of the bill. We were suggesting language of a change, vis-à-vis what the minister has proposed, or we were suggesting that at the proper time, on this particular point or that particular point, there should be some addition or change. That is all I was seeking to convey.

At no time did we discuss, as such, an amendment of the bill. We did discuss, and the report discusses, places where the quality and beneficial effects of the bill, and the protection of the public, would be helped by some changes; but the merits of amending cannot come until the bill is before us for second reading, is referred to committee and we are then studying the bill itself.

Senator Benidickson: I had overlooked that, honourable senators. My other question was: Is the report the unanimous report of the committee?

Senator Everett: Honourable senators, in reply to Senator Benidickson's question as to the unanimity of this report, I would say that I attended some of the meetings on the competition policy—but not all, due to meetings of the National Finance Committee—and, after looking over the report, I find myself in disagreement with some of its provisions.

CANADIAN BUSINESS CORPORATIONS BILL

REPORT OF COMMITTEE PRESENTED—MOTION FOR ADOPTION—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Senator Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce, to which was referred Bill C-29, respecting Canadian business corporations, presented the following report:

Wednesday, March 19, 1975.

The Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce to which was referred Bill C-29, intituled: "An Act respecting Canadian business corporations" has, in obedience to the order of reference of Tuesday, February 4, 1975, examined the said Bill and now reports the same with the following amendments:

1. Page 7: Strike out lines 17 and 18 and substitute therefor the following:
"corporations incorporated to carry on business throughout Canada, to advance the cause of".
2. Page 10: Strike out lines 29 to 32, inclusive, and substitute therefor the following:
"name it had before such continuance."

3. Page 15: Strike out lines 24 to 27, inclusive, and substitute therefor the following:
“(6) A corporation that, without reasonable cause, fails to comply with this section is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars.”
4. Page 15: Strike out lines 34 and 35 and substitute therefor the following:
“free of charge, and, where the corporation is a distributing corporation as defined in subsection 121(1), any other person may do so upon payment of a reasonable fee.”
5. Page 16: Strike out line 1 and substitute therefor the following:
“(3) Shareholders and creditors, of a corporation, their agents and legal representatives, the Director and, where the corporation is a distributing corporation as defined in subsection 121(1), any other person, upon payment of a”.
6. Page 17: Strike out lines 24 and 25 and substitute therefor the following:
“(10) A person who, without reasonable cause, contravenes this section is guilty of an offence and liable on”.
7. Page 63: Strike out line 19 and substitute therefor the following:
“(6) A person who, without reasonable cause, contravenes subsection”.
8. Page 75: Strike out line 13 and substitute therefor the following:
“106. (1) Notwithstanding subsection 109(3), but subject to subsections (3) and”.
9. Page 77: Renumber subsections 109(4) to 109(8), inclusive, as subsections 109(5) to 109(9), inclusive, and insert a new subsection 109(4), as follows:
“(4) Notwithstanding subsection (3), directors may transact business at a meeting of directors where a majority of resident Canadian directors is not present if
(a) a resident Canadian director who is unable to be present approves in writing or by telephone or other communications facilities the business transacted at the meeting; and
(b) a majority of resident Canadian directors would have been present had that director been present at the meeting.”
10. Page 79: Strike out lines 1 to 4 inclusive.
11. Page 85: Strike out lines 1 and 2 inclusive and substitute therefor the following:
“duties and delegate to them powers to manage the business and affairs of the corporation, except powers to do anything referred to in subsection 110(3);”.
12. Page 92: Strike out line 36 and substitute therefor the following:
“(9) A person who, without reasonable cause, fails to comply with”.
13. Page 106: Strike out lines 41 and 42 and substitute therefor the following:
“thereby relieved of their duties and liabilities to the same extent.”
14. Page 109: Strike out line 22 and substitute therefor the following:
“fails to comply, without reasonable cause, with subsection (1), the”.
15. Page 116: Strike out line 4 and substitute therefor the following:
“(2) A corporation that, without reasonable cause, fails to comply”.
16. Page 136: Strike out lines 12 to 15 inclusive and substitute therefor the following:
“may be continued to be prosecuted by or against the amalgamated corporation;”.
17. Page 136: Strike out lines 18 to 21 inclusive and substitute therefor the following:
“amalgamating corporation may be enforced by or against the amalgamated corporation; and”.
18. Page 137: Strike out lines 29 to 32 inclusive, and substitute therefor the following:
“against the body corporate may be continued to be prosecuted by or against the corporation; and”.
19. Page 137: Strike out lines 35 to 37, inclusive, and substitute therefor the following:
“body corporate may be enforced by or against the corporation.”
20. Page 139: Strike out lines 40 to 43, inclusive, and substitute therefor the following:
“against the corporation may be continued to be prosecuted by or against the body corporate; and”.
21. Page 140: Strike out lines 3 to 5, inclusive, and substitute therefor the following:
“corporation may be enforced by or against the body corporate.”
22. Page 154: Strike out line 27 and substitute therefor the following:
“(1) An offeror who, without reasonable cause, fails to comply”.
23. Page 176: Strike out line 24 and substitute therefor the following:
“(2) A person who, without reasonable cause, contravenes subsec-”.
24. Page 179: Amend clause 222 by adding thereto the following subclauses:
“(5) An ex parte application under this section shall be heard in camera.
(6) No person may publish anything relating to ex parte proceedings under this section except with the authorization of the court or the written consent of the corporation being investigated.”
25. Page 191: Strike out line 33 and substitute therefor the following:
“244. Every person who, without reasonable cause, contravenes a”.

26. Page 192: Delete subsection 245(2) and renumber subsections 245(3) and 245(4) as subsections 245(2) and 245(3).

27. Page 206: Strike out clause 1 of Item 6 and substitute therefor the following:

"1. The definition "company" in section 2 is repealed and the following substituted therefor:

" "company" includes

(a) a person having authority under a special act to construct or operate a pipeline, and

(b) a body corporate incorporated or continued under the Canada Business Corporations Act and not discontinued under that Act."

In addition to the specific amendments proposed, the Committee gave consideration to the question of corporate reorganizations. Concern has been expressed that the failure to include reorganization provisions of the type contained in the Canada Corporations Act and in various provincial corporations acts will result in preventing certain reasonable types of business reorganizations from being accomplished under this Act. The Ministry of Consumer and Corporate Affairs points out that many of the business reorganizations of the type referred to have related to bankruptcy or insolvency situations and that these will be dealt with in a new federal bankruptcy act to be introduced shortly.

In addition, the Ministry refers to the provisions of Part XIV of the Bill relating to Fundamental Changes and suggests that in the non-insolvency situations these provisions would permit any type of corporate reorganization which heretofore could have been conducted under the reorganization provisions. Your Committee doubts that such is the case. In particular, the ability under court supervision to force an exchange of securities in various circumstances seems to be lacking. On the other hand, the insertion of reorganization provisions into the Bill at this time would require careful consideration and a substantial change in the Bill. The Ministry has undertaken to give this matter careful consideration and, if desirable, include reorganization provisions in the first amending bill which is introduced. Your Committee recommends that this course of action be followed.

Respectfully submitted,

Salter A. Hayden,
Chairman.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Senator Hayden: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that the report be adopted now.

The Hon. the Speaker: The house has heard the motion, which requires unanimous consent. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Hayden: Honourable senators, the same question arises in connection with this bill as arose in connection with the competition bill, namely, that there are many offences which provide a strict liability. We feel that is not in keeping with the trend of legislation, that in proper cases there should be basis of due diligence or reasonable cause that the thing that was done was done.

[Senator Hayden.]

• (1440)

During second reading debate on this bill, I referred to clause 4, which deals with the purposes of the act, and when Senator Walker spoke on second reading he raised the same objection to it.

Clause 4 states:

The purposes of this Act are to revise and reform the law applicable to business corporations incorporated for objects other than provincial—

What we found disturbing were the words, "for objects other than provincial." The jurisdiction of the federal authority to legislate in the matter of corporations arises from the peace, order and good government section of the British North America Act, whereas the provincial jurisdiction is based on the provincial authority under the Constitution to incorporate companies with provincial objects.

We heard from Mr. Ryan of the Department of Justice on this question, and we had our own counsel as well. The committee's proposal is that the words, "incorporated for objects other than provincial," be struck out and the words, "corporations incorporated to carry on business throughout Canada," be substituted therefor. Both Mr. Ryan and the departmental officials agreed with the change the committee proposed. The proposed change is a clearer and constitutionally better concept of the purposes of the act.

The committee also had some problems in connection with directors' meetings. One of the provisions in the bill is that a quorum of resident Canadian directors is required before a meeting can be held. It is the committee's view that situations could arise where it would not be possible to have a quorum of resident Canadian directors. For example, if a resident Canadian director dies, thereby ceasing to be a director, a meeting of directors could not be convened to deal with that because it would not be possible to have a quorum—that is, the majority of the directors would not be resident Canadians. Also, if a resident Canadian director was absent due to illness, or otherwise, a meeting could not be convened.

In dealing with the death of a resident Canadian director, the committee provided that notwithstanding the requirement of a majority of resident Canadian directors, and notwithstanding that the quorum has to be three of those resident Canadian directors, for the purpose of replacing a resident Canadian director who has died a quorum of the board is all that is needed. That would seem to be a simplified way of dealing with the situation. The proposed change would not in any way destroy the policy which appears to be in the bill, that a majority of the directors be resident Canadians. This is solely for the purpose of providing the machinery by which a resident Canadian director who has died can be replaced with another resident Canadian director.

In the event of the absence of a Canadian resident director for any reason whatsoever, the committee has provided that through a telephonic communication, or any other method of communication, by which the absentee director communicates to the secretary of the company, and into which other members of the board are hooked, that director can statutorily be treated as having been present at the meeting. The bill says that in part, so the committee has adopted it in this particular area. Alternatively, the absentee director could subsequently sign the minutes of the meeting, which would have the same effect as though he had been physically present at the meeting.

I also dealt with the liability of directors during second reading debate on this bill. There is provision in the bill that any shareholder who has entered into an unanimous shareholder agreement would have the rights, duties and powers of a director, and, to the extent that was provided, the directors were relieved of their duties. The position which the committee took, and on which we had submissions, was that to relieve the directors of their duties is not enough. What happens with respect to directors' liabilities to pay wages and liabilities in other directions? The committee, therefore, felt that a director who has been shorn of all his rights, powers and responsibilities should not only be relieved of his duties, but also of his liabilities, and we have so provided.

Provision was made for the inspection of records and shareholder lists. The bill started off by saying that any person, upon payment of a reasonable fee, might apply and be entitled to these things. The view of the committee was that this should not apply to corporations other than corporations whose shares are publicly distributed. That is the language that is in the Ontario Business Corporations Act, and in other provincial statutes. The view of the committee was that this should not apply to private companies. Honourable senators will note that it states "any person"—not necessarily a shareholder. We felt that that right should be confined to shareholders and creditors, and the committee also felt that any inspection of documents and records should be confined to shareholders and directors of companies whose shares are publicly distributed.

There was also some concern expressed over the powers of investigation. There is provision under which a shareholder or a director may apply ex parte to a court for an order to investigate the affairs of a company.

In respect of all of the headings I have discussed, all these things were made known to the officials of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs who appeared before us, and the language of the proposed amendments was approved by them. They had no objection to the merits of the amendments, and that is recorded in the proceedings of the committee. The departmental officials did express their desire that the committee report the bill without amendment, and said that the department, in turn, would undertake to introduce amendments next year. After some debate, the committee finally decided that these amendments were important enough to go forward now. There was no public interest at stake, as is sometimes the case with an income tax bill in respect of refunds, and it was felt, therefore, that these amendments should be made to the bill now.

With respect to the investigative procedure, the department's position was that it did not wish to give notice before an inspector was appointed and had taken possession of the assets of the company for fear that by the time an inspector was appointed, and did move to take possession of the assets, the assets may have been moved out of the jurisdiction. Presumably, that does happen at times. The committee agreed in principle that there should not be this enlightening process by which the people who are involved might learn in advance of any investigation. The committee, therefore, took the position that there should be this right to an ex parte application for the appointment of an inspector, and so forth—and all the powers that he may exercise are set out in the bill—but we did say that the proceedings should be in camera. The department agreed with that.

● (1450)

So far as notice to the company is concerned, our position is very simple. The company will get notice very quickly, because the moment the inspector arrives and takes possession of the assets they get that notice. He will move in very quickly. There is nothing to prevent a shareholder from taking action to challenge the authority to grant the appointment of the inspector because there are not sufficient grounds, or any such reasons as that.

There is a provision in the bill that will be struck out, under which, if you were required to file a document by a certain date, then each day after that date on which you did not make a filing—it might be 30 days later when the filing is made—constitutes another offence. The penalty for the offence under the bill is a fine of $5,000 or, alternatively, imprisonment, for not filing that document or report on the specified date, so the judge would be able to levy a fine of any amount up to 30 times $5,000, which would be $150,000. That seems pretty heavy going for an offence of that kind. We could not see the purpose of making the offence a continuing one. If the offence has been committed, it is not a matter of life or death; it is a matter of commercial practice, and under this bill the directors would have other ways of dealing with the failure to file in the proper time.

We did deal with reorganization, which I think is important, and I should like, if I may, to take a minute to tell you about it. In the present Canada Corporations Act there are provisions concerning the reorganization of companies which are not extended into this bill. The kind of provision I refer to is where two corporations may get together and enter into an agreement, which might provide for an exchange of shares by company A for shares in company B. Under the present law, if three-quarters of the shareholders approve, then whether or not the other shareholders or minority interests want to enter into the deal they are compulsorily in the deal. We looked at this for a long time. We discussed it with the departmental officers, and we agreed with their view, which seemed quite reasonable, that there would have to be a complete review of this bill in order to be sure that validating that kind of procedure in the bill in its present form might not create more harm than the effect conferred by adopting this suggested procedure. All we did was to make a comment at the end of our report. We said:

Concern has been expressed that the failure to include reorganization provisions of the type contained in the Canada Corporations Act and in various provincial corporations acts, will result in preventing certain reasonable types of business reorganizations from being accomplished under this Act. The Ministry of Consumer and Corporate Affairs points out that many of the business reorganizations of the type referred to have related to bankruptcy or insolvency situations and that these will be dealt with in a new federal bankruptcy act to be introduced shortly.

We made a note of that. The department agreed they would work on this matter and review it. We felt that their explanation was reasonable, because in certain transactions where the majority is overruling the minority, under the bill the shareholder who dissents has a right to express his dissent and then demand from the company that they buy his shares. A compulsory method of putting through a plan for the exchange of shares would make a mess of some provisions of the bill, so we decided that that is also something they can mark on their calendar for a future date.

There are other points, but I think what I have said is sufficient to indicate the reasons for the amendments, which are about ten in number, three or four of which deal with strict liability.

I must say that at every step we took we worked with the departmental officers. Every time we indicated we could support a particular clause, there was full discussion with them; there was full discussion between them and our counsel. When we had completed our study of the bill we furnished them with a list of our proposals, indicating the route of amendment we were going to take.

The parliamentary secretary was present at some of our hearings, as was the senior man of the team from the department, Mr. Howard, the Assistant Deputy Minister in the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. They were given the opportunity to raise any question they wished. One thing they did say was that they did not disapprove of any particular change we were proposing. They were agreeable to the changes, they thought they were needed, but they did say, "We would prefer you to give us the opportunity to bring them in when a new bill comes forward next year rather than doing it in this bill." They thought they might run into some controversy in the other place, which might delay passage of the bill.

At one stage I was tempted to tell them, and did, that five years ago we had the bankruptcy bill before us, in which we inserted a provision providing for solicitor and client privilege, which was strenuously objected to by the then minister. The then minister appeared before us a number of times and gave reasonably valid reasons why that provision might at that time prove very embarrassing to their investigations. However, he did undertake that the following year there would be a new bankruptcy bill introduced, and that the provision we wanted to insert at that time would be inserted in that later bill. Five years have passed, and the other day we were told by representatives of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs that a new bankruptcy bill has been almost fully drafted, and that we might expect it to come before us in the next couple of months. With the precedent we have, the answer the chairman made to them was not "We love you less," but "We think these amendments are necessary now when we are sure they can be made."

There are instances where an undertaking has been given to amend a bill at the next session of Parliament in the way we suggest, and where there was substantial and material benefit flowing to the general public. We did not think that in this bill there was that kind of material benefit, and I told them that by using the words "material benefit" I meant a money benefit or a refund that would make us move quickly for the benefit of the public.

[Senator Hayden.]

I must commend the officers who appeared before the committee. They are most capable. They understood our position; they understood the bill. We tried to be helpful, and they tried to be helpful. I would say the amendments that we have proposed are amendments with which they concurred, and the only difference, as to whether we would report this bill with or without amendments, was in the time factor.

● (1500)

We could not report it without amendment in any event, because there is an amendment proposed at page 206 of the bill, amending a reference in the schedule to the National Energy Board Act. The bill defines "company" in a particular way, as a body corporate to which a certificate has been issued.

Two companies appeared before us who were also in touch with the department. We had before us the Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Limited and the Foothills Pipe Lines Limited. Their representatives said that both companies had been incorporated under the provisions of the National Energy Board Act. They said that when they wish to begin constructing a pipeline—and they were referring to the Mackenzie Valley area—they will have to apply to the board under section 27 and section 28 of the National Energy Board Act. They said they had to apply for a certificate of necessity and convenience in order to proceed, but that with the definition of "company," which it is being proposed to put in Bill C-29, they would be precluded from making the application. And yet their application is now pending before the National Energy Board. They pleaded with us to put them in a position where they could go ahead with their application and obtain their certificate so that they could start construction work.

Our counsel, in conference with the chairman and others, settled on a form of amendment. By a strange coincidence, the form of amendment was exactly the same as that proposed by the department. We were in agreement as to the change that was needed. The parties appeared before us and the position of Mr. Cafik, who is a parliamentary secretary, and Mr. Howard, and I presume others that they talked to, was that this amendment must be made. It was felt that we could not afford to let this bill pass without making that amendment.

In any event, therefore, the bill was going to be reported with some amendment. So we made that amendment and we relieved a most awkward situation. We then decided that now is the time to put in these other amendments.

For example, can you imagine anything worse than the situation in which it is stipulated that a quorum of the directors must consist of the resident Canadian directors, and that a meeting cannot be constituted and held without a majority of the resident Canadian directors being present?

There is policy behind that, and I am not criticizing that policy at all. But the moment you do that, then, if by reason of death, unavoidable absence or strike, for instance, one resident Canadian director is unable to attend a meeting in which important business must be discussed, the meeting cannot be held. We just thought that was going a bit too far, and we could not be a party to a proposal that would have the effect of setting up a situation in which you could not hold a directors' meeting to deal with important business.

We moved on from that point to consider the other clauses which are relieving, and are for the protection of the shareholders and the corporations. They work no harm, and that was acknowledged by the officials who were before us. So we felt that the amendments were justified. We feel that they have to be made at this time, because otherwise we would live in expectation and hope, and who knows what may develop in a year. We felt the time to do it is now, and that is why we have done it.

On motion of Senator Flynn, debate adjourned.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN SENATE MEMBERSHIP

Senator Langlois, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(i), moved:

That the name of the Honourable Senator Williams be substituted for that of the Honourable Senator Heath on the list of senators serving on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy; and

That a message be sent to the House of Commons to acquaint that House accordingly.

Motion agreed to.

EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY

CANADA'S CLAIM FOR COMPENSATION—QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, on February 27, and again yesterday, Senator Grosart directed questions to me with respect to Canada's claim for compensation following the entry of Great Britain and other countries into the European Economic Community. I am pleased to be able to provide some answers this afternoon.

Negotiations leading to these agreements arose out of the accession of Britain, Ireland and Denmark to the EEC, as honourable senators know. The purpose of the negotiations, under Article XXIV:6 of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, better known as GATT, was to agree on a package of trade concessions to compensate Canada for the loss or impairment of certain of Canada's GATT rights to previously negotiated tariff rates in Britain, Denmark and Ireland. These rates were in effect when these countries adopted the Common Market's tariff and other import regulations, including the Common Agricultural Policy.

The negotiations, which began in Geneva more than two years ago, involved a number of other countries in addition to Canada. Most of these countries, including the U.S.A., Japan, Australia and New Zealand, completed their negotiations in July 1974 on the basis of a global offer of trade concessions by the European Community. Although recognizing that the global offer contained a number of concessions of interest to Canada it did not, in the Canadian view, adequately safeguard our rights on wheat and barley or provide adequate terms of access for cheddar cheese. These issues have now been satisfactorily resolved.

The earlier offer of the Common Market included concessions on some 30 products of which the main ones of interest to Canada were woodpulp, newsprint, kraft papers, coniferous plywood, and canned and frozen salmon.

An important part of the Article XXIV:6 package is a special agreement on Canadian aged Cheddar cheese, a product which I am sure is regarded with enthusiasm by all members of this house. It will mean a major reduction in the levy charged on this product, which should make it possible for us to resume our traditional exports of it to Britain. Together these concessions cover more than one-quarter of a billion dollars worth of exports to the enlarged European Community.

With respect to wheat and barley, it was agreed that both sides would continue discussions with a view to finding, through international negotiations, agreed solutions to problems of international trade in cereals. The question of liberalizing trade in these products has been identified as one to be pursued further in the multilateral trade negotiations which started in Geneva. In the meantime, Canada's GATT rights on these products will be preserved intact, to be invoked if necessary at a later date.

● (1510)

It is the view of the government that the settlement finally reached as a result of these very long and difficult negotiations was essentially a good settlement for Canada. It represents a fair and, the government believes, a reasonable balance of trade concessions with our second largest trading partner. It will provide a major positive element in our objective of developing better trade and economic relations with the European Community, which is, of course, one of the principal reasons for the Right Honourable the Prime Minister's recent visit to five Common Market countries.

While I have the opportunity, honourable senators, may I say that preparatory to the Easter recess a meeting of chairmen of special, joint and standing committees will be held in room 279-S after the house adjourns this afternoon. Leaders are invited to attend this meeting, as well as whips and deputy leaders, to discuss the scheduling of house activities between now and the recess.

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S YEAR

DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Josie D. Quart rose pursuant to notice:

That she will call the attention of the Senate to International Women's Year.

She said: Honourable senators, the Senate of Canada got off to a good start for International Women's Year, and can take pride in the fact that we have a woman, notre élégante sénateur Renaude Lapointe, as Speaker of this honourable chamber. Why Not? Pourquoi pas?

[Translation]

Madam Speaker presides over the debates of the Senate with dignity and charm. She is totally impartial and very indulgent.

[English]

I am sure our male colleagues of the Senate cannot complain of discrimination because of their sex, and it is indeed comforting for our women senators to have a friend at court. Also, congratulations are in order to the Governor General, His Excellency Jules Léger, for appointing the first woman honorary aide-de-camp, Colonel Mary Vallance, of Ottawa.

Honourable senators, the United Nations has declared 1975 to be International Women's Year, and has awarded it an extremely generous budget. The resolution proclaiming International Women's Year was adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on December 18, 1972.

The aims of International Women's Year are indeed excellent:

To promote equality between men and women; to integrate women into the total social and economic development effort of nations; and to recognize women's increasing contribution to strengthening world peace.

In theory, that sounds great, but the fact is that the United Nations should practise what it preaches. The United Nations is still a man's world. One ardent feminist on the staff of the United Nations labels 1975 "the year that will commit the United Nations to its hypocrisies." For the bare facts show that the 29-year old United Nations has been guilty of scandalous disregard of women's rights all these years by violating Article 8 of the Charter of the United Nations, which states:

The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in its principal and subsidiary organs.

In 1972 the United Nations Secretary General appointed Mrs. Helvi Sipilä, a lawyer from Finland, as the United Nations' first and only woman assistant secretary general, with 29 male colleagues. Also, of the United Nations professional staff of over 3,000 people less than 20 per cent are women. At the director level there are eight women compared to more than 200 men, and again only 40 per cent of the permanent missions there have even one woman diplomat in their set-up. I could cite many other instances of discrimination.

It is obvious that the United Nations needs some prodding to set its own house in order, and to change its policy of "Don't do as I do, but do as I say." Women will, therefore, watch with interest the United Nations Conference in Mexico City from June 26 to July 4 as a barometer. That will be the highlight of International Women's Year. Margaret Bruce of the United Nations International Women's Year secretariat is directing this event, and she predicts that the conference in Mexico City will make history.

What about Canada's commitments for International Women's Year, apart from the battle of the buttons? I will come to "Why Not?" and "Pourquoi Pas?" later. However, in justice to the Honourable Marc Lalonde, the minister responsible for Canada's contribution to International Women's Year, there is no lack of publicity in an attempt to eradicate discrimination against women. He has appointed a small army of women to various posts in his department to help achieve these objectives. There is quite an impressive program of legislation before Parliament, but Mr. Lalonde admits:

[Senator Quart]

Legislation alone is not enough if women are to have true equality of opportunity. There must be a change in the way society sees the roles of men and women. Our society has still a long way to go in recognizing the equality of the sexes, in fact as in law.

Last September, in Ottawa, delegates from 32 countries attended a seminar sponsored by the United Nations to study ways and means to end discrimination against women. Mrs. Helvi Sipilä, the United Nations Assistant Secretary General for social development, who attended the conference, is quoted as saying:

Each country must develop its own methods of giving women equality, taking into account its own socioeconomic, historical and cultural background.

Now, honourable senators, what about the Royal Commission on the Status of Women, which began in 1968 to elevate the status of Canadian women? It has a dismal record which shows that the royal commission spent too much time—four years—and spent too much money—nearly $2 million—ending with 167 recommendations. To date only 44 of these recommendations have been implemented by the government. This certainly is not a cause for rejoicing. Since then, in 1973, the government has set up a special task force, and an advisory council of 30 women. Also, an interdepartmental co-ordinating committee was formed. Apart from these committees the government provided funds to women's organizations throughout Canada for special projects. Then, for Canada's participation in International Women's Year, there is a five million dollar program, and the government's additional programs include four major regional conferences costing approximately $175,000 each.

• (1520)

I agree with Doris Anderson, editor of Chatelaine magazine when she said, "Canadian women have been conferred to death." And at what price glory!

But after all this window dressing and catering to women, did not a private member's bill about the beaver receive priority recently in the House of Commons over bills dealing with equality of women? Is the government's attitude "Why Not?" Honourable senators, the beaver does not even have a vote, but I am going to vote for that bill.

I come now to the buttons: "Why Not?" "Pourquoi pas?" The minister defends the choice of the buttons, claiming that:

A change in the status of women in Canada today requires a special thrust to broaden the base of awareness and support for equality in the minds of all Canadians—women and men. That is why the campaign was conceived. The slogan "Why Not?" refers to equality, and the female biological symbol is part of the phrase—a phrase which refers to our attitudes. The button "Why Not?" is the tool for this. It is a question, a challenge, a legitimate and natural response—to be used when women and men will not accept those unstated attitudes as barriers to equality in their lives.

Honourable senators, it is unfortunate that the minister did not consult with the women parliamentarians, senators and members of the House of Commons, before adopting the “Why Not?” “Pourquoi pas?” buttons. If it was publicity the minister wanted when he launched the “Why Not?” button, he certainly has achieved his purpose.

Two women Liberal members of Parliament lost no time in telling Mr. Lalonde “why not”, and are fearlessly campaigning against the button. Mrs. Simma Holt objects to peddling the button to help liberate Canadian women—and in hardly polite parliamentary language she said:

“It’s bloody degrading, and Mr. Lalonde had been misled into endorsing the button by his office force of surrogate wives.”

Her description of Mr. Lalonde’s personnel sounds somewhat like the description of a harem.

Mrs. Iona Campagnolo from British Columbia, another Liberal member of Parliament, declared, “I consider it to be sexist in tone.” Well, honourable senators, that statement did it! Now more men than women want the buttons as souvenirs—or perhaps it is to tease their female employees! That’s my opinion, as I have had many more requests for buttons from men than from women.

Senator Langlois: Why not?

Senator Quart: Pourquoi pas? Perhaps the buttons “Why Not?”, “Pourquoi pas?” will be a success despite criticism. These buttons have certainly made mileage. I quote Andrew Brewin of the NDP regarding criticism of the “Why Not?” button because of the suggestion that it has some sexist connotation:

My answer to this would be in the words of Edward III of England, who said on a similar occasion in the year 1348 “Honi soit qui mal y pense.”

With all this free publicity, why should the government continue to spend the taxpayer’s money on full-page advertisements sponsored by the Minister of National Health and Welfare, stating:

During International Women’s Year women should tell ourselves and those around us that women will no longer settle for a secondary role in society.

These advertisements urge women to stand up to male prejudice and when they are told they can’t be promoted, to ask, “Why Not?”—“Pourquoi pas?”

I read in the Gazette recently a “Why Not?” article in connection with the postal strike—Mr. Mackasey kindly take note—which contained this sentence: “Why not have women as posties, then there would be no more ‘male’ strikes!”

Honourable senators, you may have heard that a ‘jolie Québécoise’, a chanteuse par excellence, Mademoiselle Jacqueline Lemay, was commissioned by the United Nations to compose a “song of equality” for International Women’s Year, and—imagine this—to compose the music and words within 24 hours. The song would then be used for the United Nations’ musical theme for International Women’s Year. She delivered the goods within 24 hours, and the song was recorded with Jacqueline Lemay’s golden voice singing the song for equality. These are the words:

Half the world is woman
Even now does she really know
That she has the right to live
And love her way.
That her burden is light,
And she has nothing to pay.
In the troubles of today,
She will show the way
Half the world is woman.

What a relief it is to know that there is no bitterness or complaint about discrimination or male chauvinism in her song—merely simple optimism that in the troubles of today, women will show the way. Perhaps this mild, non-aggressive approach will succeed with men while the militant women’s liberation tactics will further antagonize the men and women who disagree with their methods, and their thinly disguised hostility to men.

Let us then during International Women’s Year call a truce in the battle of the sexes since, to use an old cliché, that’s a battle that neither side can win for there is so much delightful fraternizing with the enemy. Let us not spend this year repeating over and over old grievances like a broken record. It will hurt rather than help our cause. Let us get on with our job and profit from the new opportunities open to women, and then prove our worth. Let us stop acting like victims of male chauvinism and admit in the name of honesty that in many cases, due to family responsibilities, wives and mothers cannot follow a career or accept promotions that would disrupt their family life. Married women who work always have double priorities. Single women and widows, however, are as free as the air to follow a career in the professional or business world.

This year let us ask men—and perhaps some women—to root out any underhand discrimination which prevents many women from making headway in their chosen careers. For despite rapid strides in the last decade there is still much to be accomplished. Women in politics or in top executive posts are still a novelty—Exhibit A. So when our laws have eventually eradicated all discrimination of any kind against any of the peoples in our society, then, and only then, will International Women’s Year or any future year be a complete success.

Honourable senators, I conclude in a light vein. Women “libbers” claim that textbooks should be pruned of prejudice concerning girls and boys, that even in fairy tales girls are playing second fiddle to boys. That has annoyed boys, and inspired one youngster to deliver a protest speech at a school public-speaking contest. I, for one, approve of his motion of protest, and shall read his speech:

There is a song that goes like this:
What are little girls made of?
Sugar and spice, and everything nice,
That’s what little girls are made of.
Who wants to be full of sugar and spice?

I'd much prefer to be full of steak and apple pie.

● (1530)

And, gentlemen, have you ever heard the second verse of this song? It goes like this:

What are little boys made of?

Snips and snails and puppydogs' tails,

That's what little boys are made of.

Of course, we all know it was a girl who made that up!

Well, in the name of boys all over the world, I would like to ask the composer of that song a few questions:

When her confection of sugar and spice sees a mouse, who has to kill it?

When "everything nice" can't open the cover on a jar, who gives it a little twist and it opens? Did you ever see a girl make a forward tackle on a football field? Is there a girl anywhere who could get in the ring and beat Cassius Clay? When Yvan Cournoyer or Bobby Hull score, are the girls cheering for a puppydog's tail?

When the Beatles sing, are they squealing for a bunch of snips and snails?

Where would they be without our spare rib?

We boys must stick together and stop the girls from taking over our jobs or there won't be any use for us any more.

Let us put an end to songs like this or, better still, let us make our own version.

In all humility, ladies and gentlemen,

I would suggest the following:

What are little boys made of?

Muscles and brain,

And everything sane;

That's what little boys are made of!

If you don't believe me, just ask my best friend:

My Mother.

On motion of Senator Fergusson, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

APPENDIX

(See p. 663.)

COMPETITION POLICY

INTERIM REPORT OF THE STANDING SENATE COMMITTEE ON BANKING, TRADE AND COMMERCE

INTRODUCTION

On October 16, 1974, the following order of reference was made by the Senate:

"That the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce be authorized to examine and report upon any bill relating to competition in Canada or to the Combines Investigation Act, in advance of the said bill coming before the Senate, or any matter relating thereto;

That the Committee have power to engage the services of such counsel, staff and technical advisers as may be necessary for the purpose of the said examination; and

That the papers and evidence received and taken on the subject in the preceding session be referred to the Committee."

Pursuant to a similar order made in the preceding session, your Committee held three meetings prior to the dissolution of Parliament on May 9, 1974 for the purpose of considering Bill C-7 entitled "An Act to amend the Combines Investigation Act and the Bank Act and to repeal an Act to amend an Act to amend the Combines Investigation Act and the Criminal Code", which received first reading in the House of Commons on March 11, 1974.

In the present session, Bill C-2, having the same title and which is in exactly the same form as Bill C-7, received second reading and reference to Committee in the House of Commons on October 28, 1974.

Attached hereto as Schedule "A" is a complete list of briefs considered by your Committee in connection with the subject matter. Your Committee has held a total of 14 meetings to date in the present session.

MINISTER'S PROPOSED AMENDMENTS

On December 3, 1974, the Hon. André Ouellet, Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, tabled in the Commons Committee on Finance, Trade and Economic Affairs a series of proposed amendments and comments thereon to Bill C-2. The table of contents accompanying such amendments is reproduced as follows:

Subclause 1(1)	Section 2	Definition
Clause 2	Section 4	Collective Bargaining
Clause 2	Section 4.1	Underwriting of Securities
Clause 2	Section 4.2	Amateur Sport
Clause 9	Section 27	Proceedings before Commission
Clause 10	Section 29	Intellectual Property
Clause 12	Section 31.2	Refusal to Deal
Clause 12	Section 31.3	Consignment Selling
Clause 12	Section 31.4	Exclusive dealing, market restriction, etc.
Clause 12	Section 31.5	Foreign Judgment
Clause 12	Section 31.6	Foreign Laws
Subclause 14(3)	Section 32	Combination in restraint of trade
Clause 15	Section 32.2	Bid-rigging
Clause 15	Section 32.3	Professional Sport
Subclause 16(1)	Section 34	Price Discrimination
Subclause 16(2)	Sub-section 34(3)	Cooperatives
Subclause 18(1)	Section 36	Misleading Advertising
Subclause 18(1)	Section 36(2) (d)	Misleading Advertising
Subclause 18(1)	Section 36(4)	Misleading Warranty or Guarantee
Subclause 18(1)	Section 36.1(1)	Tests and Testimonials
Subsection 18(1)	Section 36(2)	Double Ticketing
Subclause 18(1)	Section 36.3	Pyramid Selling
Subclause 18(1)	Section 36.4	Referral Selling
Subclause 18(1)	Section 37.1	Sales above Advertised Price
Subclause 18(1)	Section 37(2)	Bait-and-Switch Selling
Subclause 18(1)	Section 37(3)	Bait-and-Switch Selling
Subclause 18(1)	Section 37.2(1)	Promotional Contests
Subclause 18(1)	Section 38	Price Maintenance
Clause 19	Section 44	Procedure
Clause 22	Section 45.3	Statistical Evidence

Your Committee's study of these proposed amendments indicates that a reasonable attempt has been made to meet many of the criticisms of the proposed legislation which were indicated in various submissions.

The Minister has indicated that he may propose further amendments in connection with new section 31.6, which deals with foreign laws and directives in their effect on business in Canada.

With respect to the following amendments proposed by the Minister, your Committee either has no comment or is of the opinion that they are satisfactory and that no further changes to the sections to which they relate are required:

- Definition (tickets evidencing a right to transportation included in definition of article)
- Collective Bargaining
- Underwriting of Securities
- Proceedings before Commission
- Intellectual Property
- Foreign Judgment
- Foreign Laws
- Combination in restraint of trade
- Price Discrimination
- Cooperatives
- Misleading Warranty or Guarantee
- Tests and Testimonials
- Double Ticketing
- Pyramid Selling
- Referral Selling
- Sales above Advertised Price
- Bait-and-Switch Selling
- Promotional Contests
- Statistical Evidence

It will be seen that the above list comprises over half of the Minister's proposed amendments. In the case of most of those not included in the above list, your Committee considers that the proposed amendments, as far as they go, are satisfactory, but that redrafting or major changes for other reasons may be required in the sections to which they relate. Those proposed amendments of the Minister will therefore be commented on hereunder in the context of your Committee's own observations on the sections.

REGULATED TRADES, INDUSTRIES AND PROFESSIONS

Bill C-2 would extend application of the Act to services. Because certain activities of the professions and service industries have been regulated by provincial law for many years, conflicts would undoubtedly arise where activities contemplated by provincial law nevertheless appear to constitute an offence under the amendments to the Act.

The same problem has of course arisen in the past with respect to the activities of trades and industries (in relation to their dealings with articles) which were regulated under provincial law and the courts have held that what might otherwise have constituted an offence under the Act could not be so considered where the activity was regulated by provincial law. Apparently relying on this line of cases, no specific exclusion of regulated service industries from the application of the Act has been proposed in the Bill C-2 amendments. The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs explanatory booklet says at page 27:

"Services such as telephone and other forms of communication, electrical power and the professions would continue to be immune from the legislation to the extent that their activities were regulated or were expressly authorized by law. This immunity is not stated in the Bill, but stems from judicial interpretation.

"The leading case in this connection was In Re The Farm Products Marketing Act, where the Supreme Court of Canada in 1957 held that regulatory schemes based on valid legislation could not be held to be 'to the detriment or against the interests of the public' as the then Combines Investigation Act put it, nor could they be schemes to unduly limit or prevent competition, within the meaning of the then section 411 of the Criminal Code."

Your Committee considers that it would be consistent with the law reform movement to embody the effect of these judicial decisions in the Act, the more so because failure to do so might lead a court to conclude that it was Parliament's intention to override them with respect to activities to which application of the Act was extended subsequently.

Concern was also expressed by the professions as to the possible effect on them of new Part IV.1 of the Act. In view of the special relationship of mutual confidence and trust which must exist between professional and client, your Committee considers that it would be inappropriate that a professional be forced to provide services to anyone. Also, for very good reasons, a professional entrusted with a mandate on behalf of a client may be directed by that client or he may feel himself that he must not act for other clients in the same line of business. Other matters dealt with in Part IV.1, i.e., consignment selling, market restriction, foreign judgments and foreign laws and directives, would appear inapplicable to professional services in any event. Your Committee therefore considers that there should be an amendment clarifying that Part IV.1 would not apply to the provision of professional services.

Neither of the amendments recommended by your Committee would leave the professions or service industries free to fix the fees for their services (or trades or industries to fix prices) or to do anything else prohibited by the Act other than as might be permitted by another law.

EXEMPTION FOR AFFILIATES

The Act as it stands does not specifically exempt arrangements or practices between affiliated companies from the offences created therein although it could probably be argued successfully that the Act was not intended to apply in such circumstances.

Bill C-2 would add a new subsection 38(2) providing that the resale price maintenance provisions (which have themselves been amended by the Bill) would not apply between affiliated companies and a new subsection (7) defining the circumstances in which a company is affiliated with another for the purposes of subsection (2).

Similarly, with respect to the proposed new jurisdiction of the Commission to review exclusive dealing, market restriction and tied selling practices contained in new section 31.4, it is provided in subsection (4) that no order of the Commission applies in respect of such practices between affiliates. Subsection (5) contains exactly the same definition of affiliates as new subsection 38(7).

Your Committee welcomes the inclusion of these specific statutory exemptions. However, the fact that they are provided only with respect to certain offences and reviewable practices raises an implication that they are not intended to apply with respect to others.

The purpose of the legislation is to prohibit in the public interest unlawful arrangements between parties from whom the benefits of independent action should be expected. Since there is no reason to expect affiliated companies, which by definition have common control, to act independently, it follows that arrangements of practices between them should not be prohibited any more than those between departments of a single company. If a group of affiliates is so large that their common practices have an anti-competitive effect on the market, the monopoly provisions of the Act provide the remedy.

Your Committee therefore recommends (1) that new provisions be inserted exempting arrangements or practices between affiliates from the conspiracy provisions (section 32), the proposed new bid-rigging provisions (new section 32.2) and the price discrimination provisions (sections 34 and 35) and (2) that the definition of affiliates proposed in new subsections 31.4(5) and 38(7) be included in the definition section of the Act (section 2).

CONSTITUTIONAL

Several of the new provisions which Bill C-2 would enact may rest on questionable constitutional ground. Reference is made particularly (1) to the provision (new s. 31.1) which would give to a person who has suffered loss or damage a civil right of action to recover damages for breach of any of the statutory offences under the Act or for failure to comply with an order of the Commission and (2) to the "civil jurisdiction" (new Part IV.1) given to the Commission which, in effect, enables it to look into a specific set of facts under very broad legal criteria and make an order affecting one or more named suppliers.

Speaking of the civil damages provision, the explanatory booklet "Proposals for a New Competition Policy for Canada" published by the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs says as follows at p. 67:—

"While the constitutionality of new section 31.1 may be challenged as relating to property and civil rights or matters of a local or private nature which, under section 92 of the B.N.A. Act, are within provincial rather than federal, jurisdiction, it is nevertheless hoped that the section will be upheld* as a matter ancillary to the criminal law, or relating to trade and commerce, and therefore within federal jurisdiction under section 91 of that Act."

Federal combines legislation to date has largely been upheld constitutionally on the basis of Parliament's criminal law power. Can the creation of a civil right of action be said to be ancillary to such powers? Can an order of an administrative tribunal which does not affect the entire population or even a particular class thereof but perhaps only one supplier be said to be a criminal law or is it the regulation of a trade, possibly within a province?

In cases such as the Board of Commerce case, 1922 1 A.C. 191 in which the Privy Council considered legislation not unlike Bill C-2, a court would find precedents for holding the above-mentioned provisions ultra vires. However, judicial interpretation of the Constitution is an evolving process and it is impossible to predict with any certainty what view of the legislation might be taken today by our highest court. Earlier cases can always be "distinguished" or "explained" as was done in respect of the Board of Commerce case decision in the Proprietary Articles Trade Association case, 1931 A.C. 310, where the constitutional validity of the predecessor of the present Combines Investigation Act was in issue and in Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. The Queen 1956 S.C.R. 303 where it was held that the provision of the Combines Investigation Act empowering a court to prohibit the continuation or repetition of an offence by injunction was a legitimate exercise of Parliament's powers ancillary to criminal law.

Parliament cannot be expected to refrain indefinitely from legislating in constitutionally grey areas on the chance that legislation may be declared ultra vires. On the other hand, it is unfair to citizens to expect them to reorganize their affairs both to comply with and to take advantage of provisions of legislation which may be ultimately declared invalid.

The solution to these difficulties in the present case, in your Committee's opinion, is to provide that section 31.1 and Part IV.1 of the Act shall not be proclaimed into force until such time as the Supreme Court of Canada has had an opportunity to render its opinion on the constitutionality thereof pursuant to a reference to the Court by the Governor in Council and then only to the extent they have been upheld as valid.

CIVIL DAMAGES (new section 31.1)

The Bill would provide that a person aggrieved by a breach of the provisions of the Act by another person would have a right of action in the civil courts for the damages suffered as a result of such breach. While the position may be different under the civil law of Quebec, the leading jurisprudence under the common law leaves considerable doubt as to whether a party has such a right of action on the theory that the only sanctions intended are those provided in the Act itself, namely, fines and imprisonment. Thus, for the common law provinces at least, a statutorily created right would be required in order to ensure the right to claim damages.

*In a later edition of the booklet, this phrase was changed to read "it is considered that the section is supportable".

Your Committee sees no reason why someone who is guilty of an offence under the Act should not be required to make full compensation to all those who have suffered thereby. However, in your Committee's opinion, the civil right to damages would be on firmer constitutional ground if it were limited to those cases in which there had been a conviction under the Act. The recommendation of your Committee accordingly is that the Bill be so amended and, as stated above, that the constitutionality of the provision be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Bill provides that the aggrieved party may recover "an amount equal to the loss or damage proved to have been suffered by him". Your Committee recommends that this should be clarified to ensure that only those damages which are the direct result of the acts complained of can be recovered. This would appear consistent with the ordinary rules relating to damage claims under provincial law and your Committee considers that there is no need to deviate from such rules in the present matter.

Subsection 31.1(2) provides that, in any civil action, the record of proceedings in any court in which the defendant was convicted of an offence under the Act is, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, proof that he engaged in the conduct complained of for purposes of the civil action. The subsection goes on to provide that any evidence given in the criminal proceedings as to the effect of such conduct on the plaintiff in the civil action is evidence thereof in the civil action.

It is not clear what is meant by "record of proceedings". If this is to include transcripts of evidence given in the criminal proceedings and exhibits filed therein, confusion and injustice would result, in your Committee's opinion, in the conduct of the civil case.

Your Committee considers therefore that this provision should be amended to make it clear that "record of proceedings" is not to include transcripts of testimony given or documents or other exhibits produced in the criminal proceedings.

The foregoing suggested amendments of your Committee would require consequential amendments to proposed subsection (3).

PRACTICES REVIEWABLE BY THE COMMISSION (NEW PART IV.1)

Bill C-2 proposes a new concept in the supervision of certain trade practices only considered undesirable in certain circumstances. Under the Act as it stands, the sole approach is the creation of criminal offences. Charges are laid against the accused in the ordinary courts and the accused may be acquitted or convicted. If convicted, he is subject to the usual criminal penalties and to an injunction with respect to repetition or continuation of certain conduct.

Under the reviewable practices jurisdiction, the Commission would be empowered to make specially tailored orders affecting particular suppliers and customers, breach of which would constitute a criminal offence; i.e., the supplier would not be punished for practices ante-dating the order.

Your Committee in a previous section of this report has expressed doubts concerning the constitutionality of this proposed new jurisdiction of the Commission and made a recommendation that the question be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada. Even if this new jurisdiction is found to be constitutional in whole or in part, your Committee has further concerns as to its desirability. While it agrees that the more flexible environment for settling questions affecting competition policy which the proposed powers of the Commission would provide may be more desirable than the criminal law approach, its concern is with the selection of subject matters for review proposed by the Bill. For example, it may be that certain aspects of what are now covered by the price discrimination sections of the Act (sections 34 and 35) or the resale price maintenance provisions (section 38) could be more suitably dealt with as reviewable practices than as per se offences.

Your Committee particularly questions the desirability of the "refusal to deal" provisions. Your Committee is concerned that the proposed new provisions are more likely to be invoked, not in the interests of the consumer, but in those of businesses that are in or, worse still, new businesses that simply wish to get into the distribution segment of the economy.

In case there may be circumstances where an order is warranted, your Committee considers that its concerns can be overcome by amendments which would have the effect of raising the threshold of intervention by the Commission, setting out more detailed guidelines as to the circumstances in which the Commission may make an order and providing for a more substantive right of appeal from decisions of the Commission than would be afforded by the rudimentary jurisdiction contained in section 28 of the Federal Court Act.

It has been suggested that the right of appeal from orders of the Commission should not be any more extensive than rights of appeal from decisions of other federal boards or tribunals. Your Committee points out, however, that in the case of several federal boards the Cabinet may exercise review powers on questions of fact or policy. Moreover, most of the parties affected by these tribunals have long since become accustomed to carrying on their activities in an atmosphere of heavy regulation.

In contrast to this, new Part IV.1 of the Act would put under the possibility of extensive regulation long established business practices which have developed in accordance with the realities of a relatively free market. The sudden impact of an order by the Commission which may drastically change the manner in which certain business activities must be carried out could have adverse effects not only on that business but on the economy as a whole. For this reason, your Committee does not share the view that it would be inconsistent with the existing practices in respect of other tribunals to provide a more viable right of appeal to the courts from orders of the Commission.

With the foregoing considerations in mind, your Committee makes the following recommendations for amendment to the proposed provisions of new Part IV.1:

1. Your Committee concurs with the Minister's proposed amendment to various sections whereby it would be made clear that no findings could be made by the Commission until after it had heard the parties against whom an order is sought. However, in the same vein, your Committee considers that the provisions should provide that the Director has the burden of proof in any proceedings before the Commission. In addition, in your Committee's opinion, the words "and after affording every supplier . . . a reasonable opportunity to be heard" are not a sufficient safeguard of the suppliers' rights. Further provisions should be added to make the Commission a court of record and "for greater certainty" clarifying the suppliers' right to cross-examine witnesses produced by the Director and to call witnesses and produce documents on his own behalf in answer to any evidence made by the Director.

2. Your Committee considers that mere insufficiency of competition as determined by the Commission will result in too low a threshold of intervention and that this should be changed so as to make it clear that the Commission cannot make an order where there is a substantial degree of competition in the market amongst suppliers of the product.

3. To be enforceable, it would appear that an order of the Commission, especially under section 31.2 will have to specify at the least a period during which it is to remain in force. Your Committee considers that the supplier affected thereby should have the right to apply directly to the Commission to have the order repealed, amended or varied in the event that any of the circumstances present at the time the order was made have subsequently changed. While it may be that the Commission has such power without a specific provision in view of subsection 26(4) of the Interpretation Act, it would appear that a special provision is required in order to permit the Commission to act on the application of the supplier himself since the original order can only be made on the application of the Director.

4. Sections 31.2, 31.3 and 31.4 provide that the Commission "may" make an order when certain factors have been established by the Director. The use of the permissive "may" implies that, even though the Commission considered that the factors had been established, it could still, in its discretion, refuse to grant an order. Since the thrust of certain recommendations of your Committee is to spell out instances in which the Commission may not make an order, your Committee recommends that a provision be inserted clarifying that the Commission retains the freedom to refuse to make an order where it considers for any reason deemed sufficient by it that no order should be made notwithstanding that the basic factors had been established.

5. There has been considerable debate as to whether the Commission should make an order under the refusal to deal provisions with respect to a particular brand name product. The Minister's position on this was clarified by one of his proposed amendments which would provide in effect that failure to obtain supplies of a single brand name product would not constitute grounds for an order under the refusal to deal provisions unless that particular brand name was so dominant in the market that failure to obtain it would substantially affect the ability of a person to carry on his business in that class of articles. While this clarifies the position, in your Committee's opinion it does so in the wrong direction. Your Committee is particularly concerned with the suggestion that a person's business in that class of articles is all that needs to be affected. Thus, failure to obtain, e.g., a particular brand of toothpaste by a retailer might result in an order being made (if the other requirements of section 31.2 were met) notwithstanding that the retailer had access to other brands and that toothpaste sales accounted for only a minor part of his total operations. Your Committee therefore recommends that the Minister's proposed subsection 31.2(2) be discarded and that the definition of product in section 2 of the Act be amended as follows:

"product' includes an article and a service and, unless the context shall otherwise require, all articles and services that are functionally competitive therewith or may be reasonably substituted therefor."

6. Your Committee agrees with the Minister's proposal to change the word "adversely" to "substantially" in new paragraph 31.2(a). However, your Committee does not consider that the reviewable practices jurisdiction should be available to someone who has never been in business and consequently it recommends the deletion of the words "or is precluded from carrying on business" in that paragraph.

7. One of the requirements that must be met by a person wishing to invoke the refusal to deal provisions is that he be "willing and able to meet the usual trade terms of the supplier . . . in respect of payment, units of purchase and otherwise". In response to criticism that this might not include other reasonable requirements of the supplier, the Minister proposed a new subsection 31.2(3). This proposal represents a substantial improvement, in your Committee's opinion, but still is not sufficiently broad. Your Committee therefore suggests that the new subsection read as follows:

"For the purposes of this section, the expression 'trade terms' means terms in respect of payment, units of purchase and reasonable technical, servicing and merchandising requirements and otherwise."

8. In the provision dealing with exclusive dealing and tied selling, the Minister has proposed an amendment to new subsection 31.4(2) reading as follows:

"..... because it is engaged in by a major supplier of a product in a market or because it is widespread in a market, is likely to lessen competition substantially by (a) impeding entry into or expansion of a firm in the market,

The Comment accompanying this proposal of the Minister indicates that the purpose was to raise the threshold of intervention by the Commission. While your Committee regards this purpose as commendable, it is concerned that the specific drafting technique used may have the reverse effect in that it implies that the mere "impeding" will constitute a substantial lessening of competition. Your Committee suggests the provision be reworded as follows:

"..... because it is engaged in by a major supplier of a product in a market or because it is widespread in a market, is likely to
(a) impede entry into or expansion of a firm in the market, or

(b) impede introduction of a product into or expansion of sales of a product in the market with the result that competition is likely to be lessened substantially . . ."

9. An important instrument in the life of the business community is the franchise agreement, e.g., an agreement whereby the supplier permits the customer to use his trade mark or trade name in connection with the customer's business, on condition that certain standards with respect to the operation of such business designed to protect the goodwill associated with the trade mark or trade name are maintained. These arrangements permit a decentralization of economic activity which is in the interests of both the consumers and the small businessman. However, they may necessarily involve some degree of exclusive dealing, tied selling and market restriction practices.

Your Committee recommends that an amendment be made to make it clear that no order under section 31.4 shall apply to such practices where they are carried on in accordance with a franchise agreement as described above.

10. Your Committee recommends that an appeal should lie to the Federal Court of Canada from any order of the Commission on questions of fact or law or both and that the court be empowered to dispose of an appeal by dismissing it or allowing it and vacating the order or referring the matter back to the Commission.

BID-RIGGING (new section 32.2)

Your Committee agrees that these new provisions are desirable but shares the concerns that, because of the manner in which they have been drafted, they may unwittingly prohibit bids by joint ventures and similar groups, the purposes of which may be entirely legitimate and beneficial to the economy.

In recognition of this complaint, the Minister proposed an amendment which would, in effect, except bids by joint ventures from the prohibition provided the agreement or arrangement between the parties thereto was made known to and accepted by the person calling, for the bid before the bid was made.

Your Committee considers that it would be unnecessarily complicated to have to obtain the consent of the person calling for the tenders prior to actual submission of the tender and that the concluding words of subsection (1) should therefore read simply as follows:

"where the agreement or arrangement is not made known to the person calling for or requesting the bids or tenders at or prior to the time any bid or tender is made by any person who is a party to the agreement or arrangement."

AMATEUR AND PROFESSIONAL SPORT

Subsection (1) of proposed new section 32.3 to the Act would make it an offence for anyone to conspire with another person to limit unreasonably opportunities to participate as a player in professional or amateur sport or limit unreasonably the opportunities for anyone to play for the team of his choice. Subsection (2) would direct the court, in a prosecution under subsection (1), to have regard to (a) whether the sport in question was organized on an international basis and whether for that reason it was necessary to accept certain limitations in Canada and (b) the desirability of maintaining a reasonable balance amongst the teams in the same league.

Included in the Minister's proposed amendments is an amendment for the purpose of removing amateur sport from the application of the Act. While your Committee supports this amendment, it is concerned that it may not have the desired effect in view of the restrictive definition which it provides for amateur sport, namely, "sport in which the participants receive no remuneration for their services as participants." Your Committee understands that some amateurs do on occasion receive some compensation or remuneration which should not, nevertheless, qualify them as professionals. It is therefore recommended that the definition found in subsection (2) of new section 4.2 proposed by the Minister should be deleted.

As far as professional sport is concerned, your Committee heard representations from the National Hockey League and from the National Hockey League Players' Association. The League was opposed to inclusion of professional sport in the Act. The Players' Association agreed that the Combines Act was inappropriate legislation to deal with the subject but was content to see the provisions remain until other legislation could be introduced.

The gist of the offences created by the Combines Act, even as amended by Bill C-2, is the prevention of activity which is likely to increase the prices which the public is required to pay for goods and services. Provisions which single out a particular group of individuals with a view to regulating their relationship with their employers therefore represent a new concept in this kind of legislation.

Your Committee is in agreement with the representations made both by the National Hockey League and by the Players' Association to the effect that the criminal approach typical of the Combines Investigation Act is an inappropriate way of dealing with problems of this kind that may exist in professional sports. The provisions are framed in such a way that a criminal complaint would be laid against one or more clubs in the league and possibly against the league itself which could result in the imposition of fines or imprisonment. The wide-ranging nature of the inquiry which the court would be required to conduct if the accused invoked one or other of the defences provided by subsection 32.3(2) demonstrates, in your Committee's submission, that attempts to regulate this sphere of activity in what is essentially a criminal law statute are inappropriate.

Your Committee is not aware of any evidence that the matters referred to in proposed new section 32.3 have reached such proportions in Canada that they should be dealt with as criminal law. Civil remedies are available to aggrieved players under the common law doctrine of restraint of trade. The fact that most of the few cases of this kind that there have been in Canada have supported the position of the team or the league as being reasonable merely tends to confirm that this is not a subject matter for criminal law.

Your Committee therefore recommends that both professional sport and amateur sport be exempted from the purview of the Act. In any event, if the provisions affecting professional sport are to remain, your Committee recommends that such provisions be transferred from that part of the Act dealing with per se offences to the "Reviewable Practices" Part of the Act which Bill C-2 would create. It appears to your Committee that the procedure to be followed by the Commission in dealing with matters under that Part of the Act is more suitable than the kind of inquiry which a criminal court judge would be directed to make under the provisions of proposed section 32.3.

MISLEADING REPRESENTATIONS AND ADVERTISING (Section 36)

Your Committee considers that the strengthening of these provisions which would result from the amendments proposed by Bill C-2 is commendable; nevertheless, the provisions are so widely drawn that it is possible that they could catch contractual representations between sophisticated parties whereas the intention surely is to protect the consumer.

Your Committee therefore recommends that new paragraph 36(2)(b) be amended to provide that a representation that is relied on solely in connection with the operation of a business shall not be deemed to be made to the public.

DEFENCE OF DUE DILIGENCE

The Act as amended by the Bill would contain a number of strict liability offences, that is to say, offences in which it is unnecessary for the Crown to establish any guilty intent on the part of the accused. The mere fact that certain things have been done constitutes the elements necessary for conviction.

The briefs submitted to your Committee have been virtually unanimous in recommending that a person should not be convicted of certain offences if he is able to establish that he exercised due diligence to ensure that what was done did not violate the provisions of the Act.

The Toronto Star in an editorial on February 14, 1975, speaking of the amendments to the Act proposed by Bill C-2, said as follows:

"..... They allow too much discretion in some cases and none at all in others.

"In the latter category fall several offences in the amended act which could send a man to jail even though he had no criminal knowledge or intent, and even though he had made every reasonable effort to be sure he was acting legally. In law, such statutory rigidity is called 'strict liability.'

"The House of Commons Finance Committee, which is currently studying the proposed amendments, should remove the strict liability provisions and allow the courts more discretion in deciding whether a businessman was trying to trick the public or whether he himself was duped by someone else."

Your Committee recommends that a new section be added to the Act similar to that contained in Section 25 of the English Fair Trading Act, Statutes 1973, Chap. 41, the gist of which would be that in proceedings for certain offences it would be a defence for the person charged to prove that commission of the offence was due to reliance on information supplied or some cause beyond his control and that due diligence to avoid commission of the offence was exercised. Where the accused invokes the defence that he relied on information supplied, he must notify the prosecutor before trial of the name of the person who supplied the information. A newspaper publisher who published a misleading advertisement in good faith would also have a defence.

It is recommended that such new section apply to the offences created in the following sections of the Act as amended:

Promotional allowances—subsection 35(2)

Misleading advertising and representations—subsection 36(6)

Representations as to reasonable tests and testimonials—subsection 36.1(2)

Double ticketing—subsection 36.2(2)

Sale above advertised price—subsection 37.1(2)

Promotional contests—subsection 37.2(2)

Resale price maintenance—subsection 38(8)

RESALE PRICE MAINTENANCE (Section 38)

Subsection 38(3) of the Act provides in effect that where a supplier has been supplying a customer and subsequently refuses to supply him because the customer refuses to sell or has resold goods at a price lower than that specified by the supplier, the supplier is guilty of an offence. This offence would be retained under the Bill in new paragraph 38(1)(b).

However, under paragraph 38(5) of the Act a defence was provided where the supplier could establish that his refusal to sell was based on the supplier's reasonable belief that his customer was using the product as a loss leader or for bait-and-switch selling practices or that the customer had engaged in misleading advertising in respect of the products or that he had not provided the proper level of servicing. These defences would be removed by Bill C-2.

In the departmental explanatory booklet at page 16, it is stated as follows:

"These defences are withdrawn by the amending Bill. Those concerning bait and switch advertising and misleading advertising are no longer necessary in view of the new provisions making these practices offences under the Act. The defence concerning the provision of servicing is no longer of importance. It was placed in the Act at a time when servicing was the function of the retailer of appliances, but this function has largely passed to firms specializing in the servicing of appliances in general. The Economic Council of Canada recommended that these three defences be dropped. It was not favourable to the continuation of the loss leader defence, but felt that a separate inquiry should be undertaken and consideration given to the prohibition of the practice of 'loss leaders'. In the meantime, the defence would be retained. However, in the preparation of the present Bill, it was felt that the Council did not take sufficient account of the thorough inquiry into loss leaders which the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission had already made."

Your Committee considers that the fact that certain practices are proposed to be made offences under the Act is not a sufficient reason for withdrawing the defences to the supplier who refuses to continue to sell. Prosecution of the offender may be delayed or may never take place. Your Committee considers it illogical that a supplier should, in effect, be required to aid and abet a retailer in the commission of an offence.

As to the servicing requirement, it may have application in respect of goods other than appliances and there may still be cases where the retailer is expected to provide servicing.

The explanation for removing the defence in relation to loss leader selling does not appear convincing to your Committee.

On balance, your Committee considers that there is likely to be more harm in removing the defences than in retaining them and it is therefore your Committee's recommendation that present subsection 38(5) be retained.

INTERIM INJUNCTION (Section 29.1)

Bill C-2 would add provisions to the Act permitting the Crown to obtain an interim injunction (even without notice in certain cases) against a person who appears to the court to have done or to be about to do something toward the commission of an offence under the Act.

Your Committee received many representations that these provisions should be deleted on the grounds that (1) the commission of a crime should not be prejudged and (2) that grave injustice could result where someone was so restrained only to be acquitted later.

In private law matters, injunctions can be obtained but the applicant runs the risk that, if he cannot ultimately prove his case on the merits, he may be liable in damages to the person against whom the injunction was directed. So important is the preservation of this right to claim damages that in some jurisdictions interim or interlocutory injunctions will only be granted upon condition that the applicant put up security in an amount sufficient to satisfy such a damage claim by the other party.

While your Committee does not suggest that the Crown need be obliged to put up security, it does consider that the Act should clearly provide that a person against whom an injunction is directed and who is later acquitted has a right of action against the Crown for any damages suffered as a result of the injunction.

INDICTMENT/SUMMARY CONVICTION

The Act provides that enforcement proceedings may be taken by way of summary conviction or indictment in many instances. The penalty which may be inflicted in a case where the summary conviction proceeding is used is less severe than where proceedings are by way of indictment. However, the Criminal Code provides that proceedings by way of summary conviction must be instituted within six months from the date of the offence. It does not seem reasonable that the degree of punishment should be dependent upon matters as uncontrollable as the date of institution of the proceedings. In other words, there could be cases where the Crown felt that imprisonment was not warranted yet because the delays for instituting proceedings by way of summary conviction had expired they were bound to proceed by way of indictment with the inevitable result that there would be imprisonment if the accused were convicted. This anomaly has been recognized by the Minister in his proposed amendment in which by new subsection 44(5) he would extend the delay for institution of summary conviction proceedings from six months to one year.

In the opinion of your Committee any distinction based upon delays for institution of proceedings should be eliminated altogether so that the Crown may retain complete flexibility with respect to all cases.

JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURT (Section 46)

The Act provides that prosecutions shall be brought in the ordinary criminal courts in the provinces but that, with the consent of the accused, most offences may be prosecuted in the Federal Court—Trial Division. Bill C-2 would amend the relevant provisions so that a prosecution could be brought against a corporation in the Federal Court—Trial Division without obtaining its consent. A prosecution against an individual in that court would still require his consent.

This is of doubtful constitutional validity since, although Parliament has jurisdiction in relation to criminal law, the provinces have jurisdiction in relation to the administration of justice and the creation of criminal courts. Doubtless this was the reason for making the jurisdiction of the Federal Court under the Act conditional upon the accused's consent.

Quite apart from the constitutional issue, your Committee agrees with the concern expressed in many of the submissions made to it that the accused, even if it is a corporation, should have the right to be tried in the ordinary criminal courts by a judge familiar with the well settled rules as to burden of proof and other matters which distinguish criminal from civil trials. Your Committee accordingly recommends that the proposed amendments in this connection to subsection 46(4) be deleted.

CONCLUSIONS

The foregoing presents the recommendations of your Committee on Bill C-2 based on the representations made and its study of the Bill to date. Consideration of the Bill by your Committee will be continuing and, if necessary, additional recommendations made in a further report or reports.

Your Committee's staff is presently drafting the text of actual amendments to the Bill that would be required to express its recommendations. It is expected that these amendments will be available shortly for discussion purposes.

Respectfully submitted,

Salter A. Hayden,
Chairman

March 18, 1975

SCHEDULE "A"

2nd Session—29th Parliament
1974

List of Briefs submitted with regard to Combines Investigation legislation

Submissions ReceivedAppeared

1. Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto.
2. The Canadian Chamber of Commerce.
3. Dominion Foundries and Steel Limited.
4. Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada.
5. Imperial Oil Limited.
6. International Harvester Company of Canada Limited.
7. Investment Dealers Association of Canada.
8. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association.
9. The Canadian Real Estate Association.
10. The Honourable Robert Welch, Q.C., Ontario Provincial Secretary for Justice.
11. Canadian Lumbermen's Association.
12. Ontario Lumber Manufacturers' Association
13. Union Oil Company of Canada Limited.

May 8, 1974

May 1, 1974

May 8, 1974

1st Session—30th Parliament
1974-75

1. Association of Canadian Advertisers Incorporated
2. Allied Beauty Assoc.
3. Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.
4. National Automotive Trades Association of Canada.
5. Blake, Cassels & Graydon.
6. The Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto.
7. The Canadian Chamber of Commerce.
8. Coca-Cola Ltd.
9. The Canadian Bar Association.
10. Canadian Construction Association.
11. Consumers' Association of Canada.
12. Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.
13. Canadian Lacrosse Association.
14. Dominion Dairies Limited.
15. Dominion Foundries and Steel, Limited.
16. The Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations of Canada.
17. National Hockey League Players' Assoc.
18. Canadian Federation of Insurance Agents & Brokers Associations.
19. The Institute of Canadian Advertising.
20. Imperial Oil Limited.
21. Insurance Bureau of Canada.
22. International Harvester Company.
23. The Investment Dealers Association of Canada.
24. Canadian Manufacturers' Association.
25. Ontario Road Builders' Association.
26. Patent and Trademark Institute of Canada.
27. The Canadian Petroleum Association.
28. The Canadian Real Estate Association.
29. Sun Oil Company Limited.
30. Canadian Trucking Assoc.
31. Union Oil Company of Canada Limited.
32. Grocery Products Manufacturers' of Canada.
33. The Toronto Stock Exchange.
34. Canadian Institute of Plumbing & Heating.

December 18, 1974

November 27, 1974

December 18, 1974

February 12, 1975

November 13, 1974

February 26, 1975

December 18, 1974

November 20, 1974

November 20, 1974

February 26, 1975

December 11, 1974

December 11, 1974

December 11, 1974

November 27, 1974

February 5, 1975

November 27, 1974

November 20, 1974

February 5, 1975

THE SENATE

Thursday, March 20, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report of the Governor of the Bank of Canada, including statement of accounts certified by the auditors, for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 26(3) of the Bank of Canada Act, Chapter B-2, R.S.C., 1970.

Report of operations under the Municipal Improvements Assistance Act for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 11 of the said Act, Chapter M-16, R.S.C., 1970.

PRAIRIE GRAIN ADVANCE PAYMENTS ACT

BILL TO AMEND—REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Senator Argue, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-10, to amend the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator McDonald moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

NATIONAL FINANCE

COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED TO MEET DURING SITTING OF THE SENATE

Senator Langlois, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(a), moved:

That the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance have power to sit while the Senate is sitting this afternoon and that rule 76(4) be suspended in relation thereto.

Senator Flynn: Explain.

Senator Langlois: If I might be permitted a word of explanation at this stage, the reason for this motion is to permit the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance to complete its report on supplementary estimates (D). It will be a very short meeting. If necessary, it is suggested that we adjourn during the committee meeting in order not to disrupt the work of this chamber.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, could I ask for an explanation from the chairman of the committee? I think the purpose of the meeting is rather more than merely to complete the committee's inquiries into supplementary estimates (D).

Senator Everett: Honourable senators, at the committee meeting this morning there was raised a question of privilege in relation to an option agreement in respect of the purchase of Canadair Limited, and it is the committee's wish to discuss that further.

Senator Langlois: This is the tool to do the job that I was referring to.

Senator Everett: Perhaps I might add that if the motion is agreed to the meeting will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, you have heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Motion agreed to.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, March 21, 1975, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

Motion agreed to.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

On the Question Period:

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, in view of the fact that we are sitting tomorrow, may I ask the Leader of the Government when we will be sitting next week, and at what time the adjournment for the Easter recess is expected to take place?

I should also like to know what legislation we should expect to receive from the other place in the next few days.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, the present indications are that the Senate will be sitting Monday night. It is hoped that Parliament will be in a position to adjourn its activities for the Easter recess on Wednesday.

Senator Flynn: Do you have any idea of what legislation will be coming to us?

Senator Perrault: I hope to have a better idea later today.

AGRICULTURE

ANNUAL REPORT OF CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD—QUESTION

Senator Argue: Honourable senators, I should like to direct a question to the Leader of the Government. Could he please inform the Senate when we might expect the Annual Report of the Canadian Wheat Board, Crop Year 1973-1974, to be tabled? The accounts were closed out some months ago and the moneys have been paid to the producers. Moreover, the producers are at this time receiving through the mails an abbreviated version of the Canadian Wheat Board's Annual Report, and it would seem to me that now is the time for that report to be tabled in the House of Commons and in the Senate.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, I hope to be able to report tomorrow on the matter queried by Senator Argue.

Senator Argue: Thank you very much.

CANADIAN BUSINESS CORPORATIONS BILL

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ADOPTED

The Senate resumed from yesterday the debate on the motion of Senator Hayden for the adoption of the Report of the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce on Bill C-29, respecting Canadian business corporations.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, basically, my remarks on this matter are two-fold and need not take much of your time.

First, in the way it handles a complex new subject, the report in question is excellent. This bill is an interesting new overtone in the field of business corporations in the federal domain. It is a departure from old ways which have become meaningless over the years. It is, of course, in large degree, a copy of the present Ontario legislation which, it has been said, the Ontario legislature is about to revamp. It may well be that this bill is, to some extent, already dépassé; but, in any event, it certainly constitutes a new departure, a new perspective, and it is indeed a welcome approach. I think, on the whole, it is an excellent bill.

● (1410)

I must mention also the work done by the committee. The committee has displayed a great deal of wisdom and expertise in dealing with this bill. We heard several witnesses, we discussed the bill clause by clause, and the committee has come up with 27 amendments which in practical terms amount to 11, as has been indicated by the chairman of the committee, because some of them are repetitive or consequential. I think it has been accepted by the officials of the department and by the parliamentary secretary to the minister that our suggestions and amendments are all entirely acceptable and meaningful. Most of them are of some substance; some are merely by way of clarification; but, on the whole, they are all very useful.

This experience proves once again that in matters of this kind, which are not politically contentious, the Senate and its committees can do a most useful job. This bill, as in the case of the Bankruptcy Act and other bills of the same nature, has been dealt with in the Senate in a manner which proves beyond question the usefulness of this chamber.

The next point I want to raise is this: the parliamentary secretary to the minister would have preferred the committee, and the Senate for that matter, not to bring in or adopt amendments to the bill except for one. He considered that one, which is related to the energy board and which was explained by the chairman yesterday, essential, and would have accepted that it be brought in now. With regard to the others, he would have had us wait for a new bill, an amending bill, which would have been introduced either here or in the other place in the next session. I must say that I am very happy that the committee resisted the suggestion of the parliamentary secretary. I do not say that in all cases we should disregard such arguments, to the effect that by proposing amendments to a bill we run the risk of having the other place delay its passage, or perhaps refuse to adopt it during the current session, with resulting inconvenience. Some bills may require more prudence in this respect than others, but I doubt that in this case it would have been acceptable. I am happy that the committee resisted the invitation to confine itself to the amendment which I have just mentioned, but rather decided that it would bring in this report with all these amendments. If there is a danger for the Senate, it is in accepting this kind of suggestion, namely, that we should be here only to make recommendations and not amendments; that because the workload in the other place is so heavy, and because sometimes they can't find the time to deal with our amendments we should be very careful not to express our views, not to make amendments that might inconvenience them. I think it would be very dangerous for us to start accepting that kind of notion. We have resisted in the present case, and I am convinced that they will have ample time in the other place to consider our amendments and adopt or reject them as they see fit.

I hope the Senate will, generally speaking, continue to resist the invitation to make its views known only through recommendations. We are legislators, honourable senators, and we are here to legislate and amend bills if we think they need amending. This is what we have done in the present case and I am pleased.

Motion agreed to, and report adopted.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time, as amended?

Senator Hayden: With leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(b), I move third reading now.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is there unanimous consent, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Motion agreed to and bill, as amended, read third time and passed.

CANADIAN SOVEREIGNTY SYMBOL BILL

SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Muriel McQueen Fergusson moved the second reading of Bill C-373, to provide for the recognition of the Beaver (Castor canadensis) as a symbol of the sovereignty of Canada.

She said: Honourable senators, the beaver has been considered a national symbol of Canada for many years, and Bill C-373 merely seeks to give official recognition to this fact.

To New Brunswickers like myself the beaver has a very special significance. Max Aitken, one of New Brunswick's famous sons and one of its greatest benefactors, was given a peerage in 1917. When he was looking for a distinctive Canadian title he chose the name Lord Beaverbrook from a stream in the province of New Brunswick where beavers abound. Beavers appear on a memorial to Lord Beaverbrook in a small park in the centre of Fredericton, our capital city. Lord Beaverbrook was and still is affectionately and admiringly referred to in my province as "the Beaver."

Because the beaver was a clan sign for Indian tribes and can be seen carved on their totem poles;

— because in the early days of Canada the Hudson Bay Company, as far back as 1632, used the beaver on its coat of arms;

— because in 1851 the beaver appeared on the first Canadian stamp to carry a picture—which by the way is a fabulously valuable and famous stamp now;

— because at least 14 regiments of the Canadian Armed Forces have the beaver as their insignia;

— because the beaver was prominent on the posters urging Canadians to buy Victory Bonds in the First World War; and — because it has been used on many other occasions within Canada as a national design or emblem, Canadians have accepted the industrious beaver as a symbol of Canada and have come to love it. Also, because the beaver formed part of the ensign of the Canadian Marine Service, it has become recognized internationally as a Canadian symbol. It was, therefore, a very great surprise to many Canadians to learn that the State of Oregon has formally adopted the beaver as its state animal and that the State of New York has a private bill before its legislature for the same purpose. It was also a great surprise to learn that Canada has never done anything to give Canadians a right to claim that the beaver represents Canada. Of course, we cannot prevent any country or state from adopting any animal, symbol or emblem it wishes, but we are really lax if we do not assert publicly, even at this late date, our claim to a symbol that for so many years has been considered distinctively our own.

● (1420)

The great importance of the beaver as a symbol does not lie really in its recognition internationally through its having been carried to far places on the ensign of the Canadian Marine Service. Its importance lies rather in the way it is regarded by Canadians living in every part of our land. We have concrete evidence that it is important to Canadians, because since this bill was introduced in the other place, and its progress reported through the press and other news media, more than 14,000 Canadians have taken the time and trouble to write endorsing this legislation. These letters, which have been passed along to the Secretary of State, reflect the strong attachment which

[Senator Fergusson]

Canadians feel for the beaver. They have come from all 10 provinces, from both the Yukon and Northwest Territories and also from all age groups. For example, within a few days after the bill was introduced in the other place, a petition in its support was circulated in Yellowknife which, although it is the capital of the Northwest Territories, does not have a large population. That petition was signed by more than 200 people.

The comments in other submissions range from succinct endorsement by those supporting the bill to at least one long, detailed treatise which expounds the virtues of this little animal. They point out that its pelt was responsible for the early discoveries and development of Canada and that its ingenuity and vigour remain as outstanding traits admired by many Canadians. Because they demonstrate the feelings of many Canadians about the beaver, I will give you a few quotations that I have picked out of the messages received. Students in Beaconsfield, Quebec, write:

We believe that the Canadian federal government should officially adopt the beaver as it has played such an important part in the history of our country.

From Willowdale, Ontario, comes a petition with the comment:

The beaver has been on our nickel for years. We feel that Canadians have a right to keep their furry friend.

Janice Newton of Halifax sends a letter that comes right to the point. She says:

Keep the beaver Canadian—it is as Canadian as the maple leaf. Maybe even more!

Her comment brings to mind those made by a very distinguished former Prime Minister of Canada, the late Right Honourable Lester B. Pearson, who, when talking about his love of sport, and particularly the game of hockey, said:

It is perhaps fitting that this fastest of all games has become almost as much a national symbol as the maple leaf or the beaver.

The Grade 7 class at Buckingham Elementary School all signed a letter which begins:

We love the beaver. Three cheers for the beaver.

Even more dramatic are Rob and Jan Griesdale of Calgary, who proclaim in their letter:

If the beaver goes, we go!

Senator Flynn: Where?

Senator Fergusson: A lady from Hastings, Ontario, was even willing to admit her age to give support to this cause. She wrote:

I am sixty-five years old and as long back as I can remember the beaver has always been a Canadian emblem.

Mrs. Constance McDermid of St. Catharines, Ontario, writes:

Please add my name to your list of supporters in regard to our beaver as an emblem. Why don't we use the emblem more? It stands for industry and faith. The little creatures build well. Somehow to me beavers mean Canada.

I am afraid Derek Hoskin of Lethbridge, Alberta, had his tongue in cheek when composing his letter, which reads in part:

I was surprised to learn that the industrious little creature does not have our official recognition. Don't the honourable members on the Hill work like beavers during their term of office? I believe they do. I look forward to them voting in favour of recognizing their model.

The Grade 3 pupils of Beverly Central School in Troy, Ontario, note:

We have studied animals and we think the beaver is the hardest worker and a great engineer. For this reason we would like to see him remain as one of Canada's emblems.

Honourable senators, these quotations could go on and on—there are a great many of them—but I wish to keep this speech as brief as possible. I believe that these few examples, taken from over 14,000 signatories in support, indicate the widespread and strong feelings of Canadians for the beaver.

What I wish to make clear is that the bill in no way seeks to create a new national symbol or displace any existing ones. The maple leaf, the flag on which it appears, and the Canadian coat of arms retain their importance and preeminence. Quite simply, Bill C-373 corrects an oversight of history by officially recognizing the beaver as a symbol of our great country, just as it has been regarded by generations of Canadians.

Honourable senators, this bill received all-party support in the other place, and its unanimous adoption by their Standing Committee on Justice and Legal Affairs would, I hope, permit us to adopt this legislation as expeditiously as possible and without the need of taking the time of a Senate committee whose members are already faced with a considerable workload on more complicated legislation.

Bill C-373 was introduced in the other place by an Opposition member, who deserves a great deal of credit for having done so, and it is my pleasure to sponsor it here as a member on the Government side of the Senate. This is truly a non-partisan bill which seeks to promote national unity, and I hope honourable senators will find it worthy of their support.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, as Senator Fergusson has said, this is a unique bill and one which could be described as being non-partisan.

Senator Fergusson did not, if I heard her correctly, mention the name of the member who introduced the bill as a private bill in the other house. It seems to me quite proper that Senator Fergusson, in moving second reading today, adorned herself in green. Perhaps it is a tribute to the fact that the name of the member who introduced the bill in the other place is Sean O'Sullivan. As it is only a few days after March 17, I thought I might draw attention to the appropriateness of this coincidence. We on this side, of course, support the bill.

● (1430)

I should point out that the word "beaver" in the English language—I am not sure whether it is so in French—is sometimes a synonym for "beard," so I am sure it will have the full consent of at least two members of the Senate, Senator Argue and Senator Deschatelets, who should appreciate having their adornments immortalized by this bill, which will make that particular adornment of theirs the symbol of Canada. I am not suggesting that we should all follow suit.

Senator Flynn: It would not suit everybody as well.

Senator Grosart: I would suggest leaving out, of course, members of the Senate on the distaff side, but there are some honourable senators whose general appearance might be improved by the adoption of the beaver on the chin; there are others whose appearance might not be improved.

It is a particular tribute to Senator Fergusson that she was asked by a member of the Opposition in the other place to introduce this bill in the Senate. I am sure all honourable senators will agree that the chances that this bill will be passed expeditiously, as she suggests, are greatly enhanced by the fact that she was chosen to sponsor it here.

Senator Flynn: May I ask the sponsor of the bill a question? If we adopt this bill, will we be restricting the use of the word "beaver," or drawings depicting this particular animal, for commercial purposes? The beaver is a symbol widely used across the country for commercial purposes. Will the adoption of this bill restrict such use in any way? You will recall that Senator McIlraith some time ago had a bill with respect to restricting the use of the name "Parliament Hill."

Senator Fergusson: I do not have the bill in front of me, Senator Flynn, but as I understand it there is no restriction on the use of the beaver as a symbol. I think it is clear that the adoption of this bill would in no way restrict the use of the beaver symbol for commercial purposes.

Senator Flynn: I was thinking of the effect of other legislation.

Senator Quart: Honourable senators, a documentary film is presently being produced by the National Film Board on Grey Owl, and you all know of his love for the beaver. However, I understand that the producers could not find beavers in Canada to use in the documentary and had to get four beavers from Utah. I think it would be worthwhile investigating this. I do not remember the details, but at the time it appeared to be rather strange that they could not find beavers in Canada. Probably they did not look in New Brunswick where, I am told, there are a great many of them.

A short time before this bill was introduced in the other place, I recall that on the program As It Happens people were being asked what they thought of having the beaver as a symbol of Canada. I learned then, through an interview which Barbara Frum was conducting, that the National Film Board had to go to Utah to get four beavers to use in the documentary film on Grey Owl. I think it was a mistake for the National Film Board to have done that.

Senator Choquette: Perhaps they required tame beavers.

Senator Quart: As I understand it, these were wild.

Senator Fergusson: I cannot answer your question, Senator Quart. I do not follow the particular program you mentioned. All I know of the Grey Owl documentary is the little I have read in the press about it. I will make some inquiries and hopefully be in a position to answer your question when this bill next comes before the Senate.

Senator Quart: Do not misunderstand me; I am in favour of the bill.

On motion of Senator Petten, debate adjourned.

CRIMINAL CODE (COMMUTATION OF DEATH SENTENCE)

BILL TO AMEND—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from Tuesday, March 18, the debate on the motion of Senator Robichaud for second reading of Bill S-21, to amend the Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence).

Hon. Charles McElman: Honourable senators, when debate on the second reading of Bill S-21, to amend the Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence), was launched by the sponsor, Senator Robichaud, he made the mistake of duplicating an earlier mistake that might now be referred to as the "Senator Laird classic." Senator Robichaud said that this bill "is simple in concept," and, further, that "there is nothing complicated about it." The ensuing debate and the questions that have been raised indicate that Bill S-21 is not as simple or as uncomplicated as the sponsor either believed or intended.

To begin with, it has been said repeatedly by the sponsor and others that capital punishment, the death penalty, now applies in Canada only in the case of convicted murderers of police officers and prison staff. That, of course, is not entirely accurate. As has been drawn to the attention of the Senate, there are two further sections of the Criminal Code which call for the death penalty, one being the offence of treason, section 47(1), and the second being the offence of murder while committing or attempting to commit sea piracy, section 75(2).

Bill C-168 of 1967 and Bill C-2 of 1973 did not amend the Criminal Code relating to treason and sea piracy, so the death penalty under those sections still applies. The Senate debate on this bill should record that fact. Senator Argue's Bill S-23 draws attention to still further instances, under the National Defence Act, of where the death penalty can still be ordered.

Many specific concerns and objections with respect to this bill have already been raised by previous speakers in this debate, such as Senators Manning, Prowse, Asselin and Bélisle, including the question of its constitutionality. I share those concerns, and will also attempt to show that this bill is dangerous rather than "simple," and that its effect would be to infuse new and unproductive complications into an already complex and difficult process of law, justice and administration. Although not intended, I am sure, that would surely be the result of this proposed tampering with the existing discretionary power of commutation and the unwise foisting-off upon jurors and juries of even a limited responsibility that would involve them, in effect, in the sentencing process, in addition to their already heavy duty and responsibility in deciding the guilt or innocence of the accused.

[Senator Fergusson.]

Honourable senators, the sponsor of this bill seeks to restrict the legal right of commutation of the death penalty by the Governor in Council to those cases where the presiding judge and jury recommend clemency or where the jury may be divided with respect to a recommendation either for or against clemency. In all other cases, this bill would take away from the Governor in Council the discretionary power to commute the death sentence. The sponsor of the bill has given what he considers to be valid reasons for such an extreme proposal.

First, let me say that I do not accept the proposition that the Governor in Council disregards or flouts the law, or that commutation of the death sentence has become automatic. One section of the criminal law provides that certain convicted murderers shall be sentenced to death, while a further section of the same code provides for commutation. Both are in the law, and they are not in conflict. I am satisfied that each case is considered on its own merits, and a decision reached in accordance with all of the facts available and the individual and collective consciences of those human individuals who are members of the cabinet. If that were not the case, it would seem rather pointless to go through the weeks of gathering every scrap of meaningful information in each case, briefing the committee of cabinet, then the full cabinet, prior to deciding whether there should or should not be clemency.

● (1440)

There are numerous members of the Privy Council in this chamber who have experienced the trauma of that dreadful process. They must deeply resent the repeated inference that commutation is an automatic, even irresponsible and routine process. It is done seriously and in accordance with the law, contrary to the impression that those who favour capital punishment ceaselessly try to create.

The sponsor and some of his supporters have stated in this debate, and elsewhere, that they have no argument with the law respecting capital punishment as it now stands. Their argument, they insist, is with the manner in which the law is being administered by the Governor in Council. Well, if that is truly the view of the sponsor and his supporters, it appears to me that they are taking a strange approach in trying to achieve their purpose, a purpose that has to be designed to force the state to take more human life. If one agrees with the law but disagrees with the administration of it, he surely does not try to change the law; he tries to change those who administer the law. He first tries to convince them to accept and follow his point of view. If he is unable to convince them and he still believes strongly enough in the issue concerned, he should then try to change the administrators at the next opportunity that presents itself under our democratic process.

Senator Flynn: Good idea.

Senator McElman: If his case is strong enough, and if the issue is as urgent and important in the public mind as he believes it to be, then he should be capable of assembling a strong body of electoral support for any party that may publicly share his view on the issue, and against those who do not administer the law to his particular liking. In other words, he should attempt to "throw the rascals out."

Senator Robichaud: No, I disagree.

Senator Flynn: You would rather have the rascals.

Senator McElman: If my memory serves me well, no major political party in Canada has attempted to make capital punishment, or the administration of this law, a major issue in any of the three elections that have been held since the current law first came into force in 1967. Perhaps that is because it is such an emotionally charged and unpredictable issue. Whatever the reason, it has not been made a major election issue. Perhaps it should be.

However, there is a major political party in Canada that stands firmly and publicly on the record in favour of total abolition of capital punishment. That party is the Liberal Party, and I have no doubt that this policy has some influence on the thinking of those who are today charged with the terrible responsibility of commuting or not commuting sentences of death. That policy decision of the party was not arrived at in the recent past, nor was the decision reached in secret, and it was not merely a one-shot aberration to be later forgotten, as sometimes happens.

More than 10 years ago, in open national convention, with delegates present from every part of the nation, the Liberal Party debated the issue of capital punishment and reached its decision. It was not a unanimous decision, but abolition was favoured by an overwhelming majority of the delegates. That decision has been strongly reaffirmed by the several national conventions of the party that have since been held, up to the present time.

Senator Robichaud and I attended those conventions together as delegates from New Brunswick. He was then Premier of New Brunswick, and one of the more influential delegates and compelling speakers at those conventions. I cannot recall an occasion, until a few weeks ago, when he spoke against either the policy of total abolition or the manner in which the law has been administered.

I am sure honourable senators will understand my reference to the Liberal Party and conventions, and that it is not intended to be a partisan reference. These are merely facts that are most relevant to the subject matter of this debate, and as such they should be freely and openly discussed.

During recent months the climate for public debate on this subject has become overheated and highly emotional. That is an entirely human and understandable reaction, a reaction to the killing of police officers in British Columbia, Alberta and, more recently, New Brunswick, not to mention those ghastly multiple murders that have taken place in Quebec. It was within that emotionally charged climate that the sponsor chose to introduce Bill S-21. Not only do I believe this bill to be ill-advised and ill-conceived, but also that the timing of its introduction could not have been more poorly chosen, if public consideration of the subject is to be unemotional and dispassionate, as the sponsor cautioned honourable senators to conduct themselves in this debate.

I believe it is pertinent to this debate that honourable senators should know that in New Brunswick today there is a widely and, I suggest, sympathetically held misconception that Senator Robichaud's bill is a bill to restore capital punishment rather than merely to restrict the existing power of commutation. In recent weeks many New Brunswickers have come to regard him as one of the leading advocates of the restoration of capital punishment on a much broader scale than is now provided by the law. This impression has been created by public statements that the honourable senator has been making recently in our native province, and in various interviews with the media. Some of those statements were made at a meeting held in Moncton by the Atlantic provinces law enforcement officers on February 8 of this year. Representatives of the penitentiaries' staffs were also in attendance at that meeting, bringing the total attendance to something of the order of 300 persons.

It will be recalled that Moncton was the site of the December murders of two city policemen who had been investigating the kidnapping of a teenaged boy. The trial of two men charged with the kidnapping and the murders began on Monday of this week in Moncton, so further specific reference to the case would be quite inappropriate and out of order at this time. However, honourable senators will appreciate the charged atmosphere in which that police association meeting on February 8 was held.

Honourable senators will also recall that the sponsor of this bill requested, and obtained, the permission of the Senate to delay his launching of the debate on second reading until he had the opportunity of attending that Moncton meeting as a guest panelist. He told the Senate that he might obtain there information useful in the debate on this bill. Honourable senators may further recall, when Senator Robichaud completed his remarks in opening this debate, that I asked him to tell the Senate about the meeting at Moncton, which he had not then done, and whether it had been a calm meeting—that is, a meeting without passion or emotion.

● (1450)

Senator Robichaud informed the Senate that those in attendance were "unanimously in support" of his bill, and also that "they were unanimous in their support of capital punishment." And that was not surprising. He added:

I might say that in my estimation they are going too far in wanting capital punishment, period. Perhaps they, themselves, are a little too violent in their emotional reaction, and I told them so.

There were several parliamentarians at the Moncton meeting in addition to Senator Robichaud. Among them were Michael Landers, the Liberal M.P. for Saint John-Lancaster in New Brunswick; Leonard Jones, the Independent M.P. for Moncton, who gained some national notoriety as the former mayor of that city; J. Michael Forrestall, the Conservative M.P. for Dartmouth-Halifax East; and Father Michael McKee, the Liberal Member of the Provincial Legislature for Moncton City. The involvement of parliamentarians in that meeting was reported by the media in considerably more detail than that given by Senator Robichaud. The reports in the press of that meeting, and the film clips that I saw personally on television some six times, were well summed up in the lead editorial of the Moncton Transcript of February 11 last. It was entitled: "Voices of Intemperance," and in part, referring to the meeting, read as follows:

—the most serious aspect was that elected representatives—lawyers, at that—stepped over the brink into the area of irresponsibility in their approach to this matter.

Senator Louis Robichaud, a lawyer, a former premier, a senator—

And I could add to the words of the editorial, “a former attorney general.”

—may have evoked an emotional response when he said that if his daughter was raped and murdered and the judicial system failed to take proper recourse, “then I will do it myself.”

However, this was nothing more than an incitement to vigilante law, the law of the lynch mob. As such it is a shocking attitude, and ill-becomes a man who by profession and by past and present occupation has been charged with upholding the law.

Then there was Saint John's Michael Landers. He also demonstrated grave irresponsibility when he said that if the submission of the meeting's resolution to the Cabinet didn't bring the desired results, “I suggest you have a national police strike.”

Moncton's independent MP Leonard Jones, always so vociferous in condemning permissiveness, always so staunch a defender of law and order, also fell into this trap of wild talk. He was a little more restrained, but nevertheless, after having said he didn't think “we should have to take the law into our own hands,” added, “. . . but it may come about if the government does not soon act.”

If it is the rule of law that separates us from the jungle, then any advocacy of throwing out the rule of law, even temporarily, is to advocate a return to the jungle.

Further on the editorial says:

Moncton MLA Father Michael McKee and Dartmouth-Halifax East MP Mike Forrestall exhibited great courage in putting the abolitionist viewpoint forward. And Springhill Mayor William Mont also was courageous in pointing out that some people were telling the police what they wanted to hear. . . Both Mr. Forrestall and Mr. Mont were booed and heckled.

Honourable senators, after that meeting concluded, the chairman, who is also president of the New Brunswick Police Association, made a public statement in which he dissociated himself and his colleagues from some of the more extreme, emotional and passionate statements that were made by some of the parliamentarians. In doing so he displayed a considerable measure of responsibility.

I attended a more recent meeting in Fredericton at the University of New Brunswick where the sponsor of this bill addressed a large group of students—a very different kind of audience and meeting than that in Moncton. He spoke extemporaneously and well. He handled a lengthy and probing question period with great skill and much good humour. As a fellow senator, I was proud to be there. In reply to a question, he stated that he had not yet made up his mind on the subject of capital punishment, and that he had introduced Bill S-21 for the purpose of initiating a useful and meaningful debate on a subject that is currently of deep concern to many Canadians. That was good to hear. It means there is still a chance, if only a minimal one, that I may be able to convert him to the point of view that I hold on this subject.

[Senator McElman.]

If this bill were to pass and become law there are several potentially undesirable results that could ensue. First of all, if the government of the day should be dedicated to the absolute prevention of capital punishment—as some contend the present government to be—it could circumvent the purpose of this bill. In that limited number of cases where the jury recommended against clemency, or made no recommendation, the direct power to commute would be withheld from the Governor in Council. But Her Majesty's royal prerogative of mercy remains. The government need merely refer each such case to the Crown with the recommendation that the royal prerogative be exercised. There can be little doubt that it would be done, particularly in light of the fact that the United Kingdom itself abolished capital punishment some five years ago. That decision was debated and reaffirmed only last fall by an impressive majority in Parliament, in the very midst of the terrorist bombings and killings then occurring in the streets and shops of London, which brought with them a strong and emotional public demand for the revival of capital punishment.

So, by exercise of the royal prerogative, the law as proposed by this bill would be circumvented and made impotent. It would be nothing more than a further administrative nuisance, and surely that is a poor basis for enacting law. Such a procedure would be humiliating to Canada as an independent nation.

Senator Flynn: Why? Why would the exercise of the royal prerogative be against the sovereignty of Canada?

Senator McElman: Why?

Senator Flynn: Yes. You say that Canada as an independent nation would be humiliated.

Senator McElman: I say it would be embarrassing, when we have a procedure within our own competence now in the law, if in order to achieve that purpose we had to go to our Queen—indeed, our Queen.

Senator Flynn: Yes, she is our Queen.

Senator McElman: That is right, but we do not now call her in to this sort of situation. I think it would be rather humiliating to draw Her Majesty into this procedure. I suggest it would be, to use the vernacular of the British, a vexing and ruddy nuisance to Her Majesty. As a matter of fact, I believe it is unthinkable that we should place ourselves in such a position.

If this bill became law what would be its effect upon individual jurors? Many jurors, even under current law, find it most difficult psychologically to participate in reaching a decision of “guilty” for fear the convicted person may be hanged and become a lifetime weight upon their conscience. How much greater would become the mental anguish of the juror if, in addition to his duty to reach a decision of guilt or innocence, he should now become involved, in effect, in actually sentencing a fellow human being to the gallows? Such a juror, and like-minded fellow jurors, would have an out. They could resort to the obvious avenues, to relieve themselves of that dreadful responsibility. Some jurors might prefer to see the accused go free, despite the weight of evidence, in order to overcome their fear of being forced to participate in his actually being sentenced to death.

● (1500)

Hung juries, and other complications in the judicial process, could multiply rapidly. Think of the field day this would create for the shrewd or slick criminal lawyer acting for the accused. All he would need do would be to reach one juror by the persuasiveness of his argument, or otherwise, to ensure that there would be a recommendation of clemency. Even though it may come from only one juror, without any recommendation from the remainder of the jury, it would be sufficient. Conversely, it would require only one juror to refrain adamantly from joining in any recommendation, either for or against clemency, to break the magic formula of absolute unanimity that appears to be implied in this bill. In each of those instances the shrewd defence lawyer would have taken his client over the second to last hurdle to save him from the noose. One must wonder if this is really the sort of mess that is intended to be inflicted on jurors, judges and the Governor in Council.

There is at least one further possibility, and I find it abhorrent. If this bill became law, it is possible that a few, a very few, convicted persons would hang; but would it be because they, more than all the others whose sentence would be commuted, really should hang? Or would they hang, rather than others, due to the freakishness of a particular jury, or because they were unable to hire a capable lawyer, as could the others, or for a multiplicity of other reasons? And there always remains the remote possibility that an innocent person will be hanged, as long as we continue to carry out capital punishment. It cannot be denied that the chances of hanging an innocent person will be increased if this bill should become law.

One often hears the proposition that the jury, being composed of the peers of the accused and having heard all of the evidence and the facts, is more competent than any other body to determine whether or not leniency should be shown the convicted person. The sponsor of the bill repeated that time-worn argument. The truth of the matter is that facts and evidence are presented to jurors by two antagonists, the prosecutor and the defence counsel, and those facts and evidence are presented, challenged and argued in a different manner by each of those antagonists, and never the twain appear to meet. Depending upon the professional brilliance, or lack of it, on the part of one or both counsel, a person could well wonder how the jury ever sorts out the true facts in the evidence, and arrives at a just decision.

In criminal cases short of capital murder, one further element is injected into the process prior to the passing of sentence. This is the pre-sentence report, that has become commonplace in the judicial process. That report is the sum total of all information concerning the convicted person—his background, his family, his economic and all other circumstances—that could possibly be useful to a judge in arriving at a decision as to the severity or leniency he should exercise in imposing a just sentence. The information is gathered and assembled by well-trained people. It is, more often than not, information that could not, or should not, be presented as evidence during the trial, simply because it has no bearing on the guilt or innocence of the accused. It is information that is not made available to the jury, but only to the judge.

The situation is quite different in a capital case. There is no gathering of such information. It is not available to the jury, nor is it available to the judge, and there is no reason why it should be. Once a verdict of guilty is rendered by the jury the judge has no option as to the severity or leniency of the sentence he may impose; he must impose the sentence of death by hanging.

Under existing law there is a body that does have use for such information concerning the convicted person, and that information is gathered and assembled by competent people and presented to that body along with, and in addition to, all of the facts and evidence that form part of the court record. The body that receives this additional information—the equivalent of a pre-sentence report—is the Governor in Council, and only the Governor in Council. This additional information must, and does, influence the decision that only the Governor in Council can properly reach—the decision as to whether or not the death sentence will be commuted. It is here that the ultimate decision should be reached, free from the conflicting emotional and passionate pleadings of counsel; free from the proddings and instructions of the judge; free from the public distractions of the court room. It is the Governor in Council, with all of the relevant information at his disposal, who must continue to have that awful final responsibility, and not the jury.

It is, in my view, a ghastly proposition to try to saddle jurors and juries with that final decision. Today a jury may remain silent on the subject of leniency in any capital case that it decides, and whatever it says is only a recommendation; no responsibility of finality rests with the jury. Under this bill the simple act of silence on that subject by the jury would constitute, in effect, its sentencing of the accused to death—a final decision—and that is wrong. This is not, and should not be, the role of the jury.

In the United States the law and the judicial system are currently embroiled in a dreadful mess involving capital punishment. I urge honourable senators to consider the fact of that predicament, because it came about as a result of circumstances such as this bill would create—that is, a mixing or sharing of responsibilities that, under traditional British criminal law, always have been kept distinctly separate.

In Canada, following the British tradition, the Criminal Code and any revisions of it can be made or enacted only by the federal Parliament, and that law, including provisions for capital offences and their punishment, is the same for every Canadian, irrespective of the province or territory in which he may reside. Parliament, therefore, makes the law; the government administers the law; the police authorities enforce the law; the judiciary endeavour to ensure that there will be equal justice before the law; juries, as provided by the law, decide upon guilt or innocence; and the Governor in Council makes the final dreadful decision in capital cases. It is a carefully designed and finely balanced system of law and justice, which should not be tampered with lightly or thoughtlessly. The system works well because these respective responsibilities are rather precisely separated. A mixing or sharing of those responsibilities is avoided, and should be avoided.

The United States does not enjoy such a precise and well-balanced system in respect to the criminal law. I am not competent—and, indeed, very few people would be competent—to describe the many areas in which responsibilities are mixed, matched, and shared between the federal and state authorities, but there is a very current example with respect to laws—plural—in the United States that relate to capital crime and capital punishment.

● (1510)

In early 1972, 40 states of that union practised capital punishment under state law. There was also federal law providing for capital punishment. Furthermore, there were great variations, as between those states, of the types of crime designated as capital offences. The state laws also varied greatly in the powers and responsibilities given to juries in capital cases.

The accused could not be given equality of justice within the nation, but only within the state where he happened to commit the crime. The whole matter came to a head in 1972 when the United States Supreme Court, in a split decision, ruled that capital punishment is unconstitutional. In consequence, no person has been executed in the United States since that ruling was handed down. In fact, due to clemency decisions and appeals, no one has been executed in the United States since 1967.

The point that should be of vital interest to the Senate in this debate is the reason upon which the United States Supreme Court based its decision. The majority consensus in that decision was summed up by Justice Potter Stewart. I should like to read to you from a Canadian Press report of the whole matter, with a Washington dateline, as published in the Saint John Telegraph-Journal on Saturday, March 8, 1975—less than two weeks ago. That report states:

Stewart found that because most juries had the discretion to vote clemency in capital offences, the death sentence was being "wantonly and freakishly imposed" on a "capriciously selected, random handful" of defendants—and was therefore unconstitutional as it was then applied.

Let me repeat and stress the basis for that ruling;

Stewart found that because most juries had the discretion to vote clemency in capital offences—

That was the basis for it. Honourable senators, that is the very mess into which this bill seeks to lead us. Simple answers to complex questions! This is not a direction we should take in the amendment of our law—simply to resolve a grievance that Senator Robichaud and some others may have over the manner in which the law is being legally administered.

There is another part of the Canadian Press article that should be read into the record of this debate. It is as follows:

Prof. Charles Black of Yale, one of the most respected constitutional scholars in the United States, argues in a recent book that the laws can never be explicit enough to make capital punishment fit the constitution.

Noting that a prosecutor can choose to file a lesser charge than murder, a judge or jury can reduce the charge, a state governor or president—

[Senator McElman.]

Again mixing authority:

—can grant clemency, Black argues that the official choices "that divided those who are going to die from those who are to live are on the whole not made, and cannot be made, under standards that are consistently meaningful and clear."

Without such standards, the poor and those from minority groups would continue to face death more often in future—as they have in the past—than those who can enlist expert lawyers and prominent character witnesses.

Honourable senators, a great and emotional debate has followed the Supreme Court ruling. In the midst of the emotional debate, 31 of the states and the United States Congress have scrambled to enact new law on capital punishment, with a view to getting around the ruling of the Supreme Court, and a test appeal for the reinstitution of capital punishment is now before the court.

The State of North Carolina has reacted somewhat violently in its new legislation. That state has only 3 per cent of the total United States population, but about 30 per cent of the country's condemned persons. That latter percentage is likely to increase dramatically if the new state law is declared constitutional, because, according to this Canadian Press article, the State of North Carolina, in its new law, has made burglary and arson capital crimes. If that is true, they are walking a reactionary road that leads straight back to the jungle.

When he initiated this debate, Senator Robichaud urged each and all of us to follow our own conscience and vote accordingly. In view of the current wave of public emotion, a situation that always arises in discussions such as this, let me add to the advice that he gave by quoting other advice that has been handed down to us from one of Britain's great statesmen and parliamentarians, Edmund Burke. He said to the British people:

Your representative owes you, not his industry only, but his judgment; and he betrays instead of serving you if he sacrifices it—

That is, his own judgment.

—to your opinion.

I must say in closing, honourable senators, that my involvement in this debate has come as no surprise to Senator Robichaud. He discussed with me his intention to introduce this bill before he did so, and I told him—indeed, I promised him—that I would vigorously oppose it, because I am opposed in principle to that which the bill seeks to achieve.

I shall vote against second reading of Bill S-21 because I believe it should not receive second reading.

On motion of Senator Petten, for Senator Neiman, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 5 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

THE ESTIMATES

REPORT OF NATIONAL FINANCE COMMITTEE ON SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES (D) PRESENTED AND ADOPTED

Leave having been given to revert to Reports of Committees:

Senator Everett, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance, to which was referred the supplementary estimates (D) laid before Parliament for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1975, presented the following report:

Thursday, March 20, 1975.

The Standing Senate Committee on National Finance, to which the Supplementary Estimates (D) laid before Parliament for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1975 were referred, has in obedience to the order of reference of Thursday, March 4, 1975, examined the said Estimates and reports as follows:

1. In obedience to the foregoing, the Committee made a general examination of the Supplementary Estimates (D) and heard evidence from the Honourable J. Chrétien, President of the Treasury Board, and from the Program Branch of Treasury Board, Mr. B. A. MacDonald, Deputy Secretary, and Mr. R. L. Richardson, Assistant Secretary. Also the Honourable D. S. Macdonald, Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, along with a number of his officials, appeared before the Committee to give evidence on government resource policy as reflected in these Estimates.

2. The Supplementary Estimates (D) total $1,917 million and bring the total Estimates tabled for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1975 to $28,233 million. It is noted that the Supplementary Estimates (A), (B), (C) and (D) total $4,936 million increasing the original Main Estimates from $23,297 million, which in percentage terms is an increase of 21 per cent. This increase in the size of Supplementary Estimates in relation to the original Main Estimates, which has been a matter of concern to your Committee because of its growth over the past few years, is approximately double the increase which took place in the fiscal year 1973-74.

3. Some of the largest items in the Supplementary Estimates in which your Committee showed particular interest are as follows:

- a) payment to the Old Age Security Fund to make up the deficiency in the Fund—$700 million;
- b) payments in the 1974-75 and 1975-76 fiscal years in respect of Canada's financial participation in the development and exploitation of the Athabaska Tar Sands—$138 million;
- c) operating and capital expenditures in the various transportation programs of the Department of Transport—$193 million;
- d) payment to the Canadian National Railway Company for the deficit arising in the operations of the Canadian National Railways System in the calendar year 1974—$45 million;
- e) loans to Canadair Limited as approved by the Governor in Council, one without interest in connection with the Option Agreement to acquire the equity and notes of Canadair Limited for $3.3 million, and one for the financing of water bombing aircraft for $26 million—total $29.3 million;

f) to increase from $40 million to $75 million the amount that may be outstanding at any time under the Supply Revolving Fund of the Department of Supply and Services—$35 million; and

g) operating expenditures and grants for welfare services and for pensions in the Department of Veteran Affairs—$20 million.

4. The Treasury Board has supplied your Committee with a list explaining the $1 items in the Supplementary Estimates (D) which is attached as Appendix A to this report, as well as a document containing an explanation of various other items which is attached as Appendix B.

5. Your Committee is of the opinion that it would be useful to have included in Supplementary Estimates a table which would show a breakdown of expenditures into operating, capital and grants and contributions as is done in the Main Estimates. The President of the Treasury Board assured the Committee that this would be done in respect of the next Supplementary Estimates.

6. Your Committee also asked that it be provided with a list of items in these Supplementary Estimates where the Government may expect all or part of monies loaned or invested to be recovered and was told that this information could be provided.

7. The Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources tabled three documents with your Committee which dealt with the following subjects:

- a) the option and the deficiency agreement between the Federal Government and Inter-Provincial Pipe Line Limited in connection with the Montreal extension of the Inter-Provincial Pipe Line System;
- b) a statement by the Honourable D. S. Macdonald regarding the Syncrude Project; and
- c) copies of studies relative to an evaluation of the Syncrude Project.

8. These papers generated questions to which the Minister and his officials responded to the satisfaction of the members of your Committee.

9. One area that concerns your Committee is the making of deficiency payments to the Inter-Provincial Pipe Line Limited in connection with the construction and operation of the Montreal extension, as it is understood that there is to be no monitoring of the pipeline's construction. The Minister assured your Committee that the audit process, before payment is made, would apply the necessary safeguards to ensure that the pipeline would be constructed economically.

Respectfully submitted.

D. D. Everett,
Chairman.

(For text of Appendixes A and B to this report, see pp. 695-702.)

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Senator Everett: Honourable senators, in view of the fact that we expect a supply bill tomorrow, I would request leave to have the report taken into consideration now.

The Hon. the Speaker: The house has heard the motion, which requires unanimous consent. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, if there are no motions, I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

Senator Grosart: We have before us only the motion to consider the report. The motion under rule 78(3), with leave, is merely to consider the report now, rather than on a future date. If it is the wish of the Senate to dispose of this item now, so that we can deal with the appropriation bill, perhaps there should be a motion to adopt the report.

Senator Everett: In that case, honourable senators, may I have leave to revert to Motions?

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Everett: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that the report be adopted now.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Flynn: I understand that we will have an opportunity to consider these estimates when we receive the appropriation bill. We will then be able to discuss the report. For those of us who were not in committee, it is a rather blind act of faith that you are asking of us.

Senator Everett: Honourable senators, I would be glad to discuss the matter now, if that is your wish.

Senator Flynn: No, it is all right.

Senator Argue: Do you want the oil at the top, or do you not?

Senator Flynn: I am not worried if the speech is to be made by Senator Everett rather than by Senator Argue.

Senator Argue: In that case, why make your complaint?

Senator Flynn: I was afraid you would follow.

Senator Argue: You were complaining about nothing. Now you will get the speech.

Senator Everett: Honourable senators, perhaps we should deal with the matter now. You will be pleased to know that my speech will not be a long one.

Your committee heard evidence from the President of the Treasury Board in respect to supplementary estimates (D). We also took particular interest in some of the appropriations which have been made to the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources, most specifically the terms of the Syncrude agreement and the agreement to extend the crude petroleum pipeline from Sarnia to Montreal.

In addition, your committee took an interest in an agreement entered into between the Government of Canada and General Dynamics and Canadair for an option to purchase the shares of Canadair. Your committee saw the agreement and examined it, and it is satisfied as to its contents.

Honourable senators, these supplementary estimates total $1,917,000,000 and bring the total estimates tabled for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1975 to $28,233,000,000.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, it is perhaps worth while clarifying the position. According to our rules, a report from a committee is received without debate. However, there is general consensus that a report from the National Finance Committee on the estimates is in a somewhat different category from that of an ordinary report of a committee, because there is a resolution of the Senate which requires that there be a report from this committee before the Senate will consider an appropriation bill. Senator Everett was perhaps in order, therefore, in moving that we consider the report now, and adopt it, even though it is not the normal procedure with regard to a report from a committee which is not on a bill.

Having attended the committee hearings, I shall have some comment to make on the report. However, the most appropriate time would be when the appropriation bill, which will contain exactly the same subject matter as the report, is before us.

Senator Flynn: I hope it is exactly the same subject matter. On previous occasions we have had some differences about that.

Senator Langlois: We will deal with it tomorrow.

Senator Flynn: We will see tomorrow.

Senator Argue: Blind faith.

Motion agreed to and report adopted.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 11 a.m.

THE ESTIMATES

(See p. 663.)

APPENDIX "A" TO REPORT OF NATIONAL FINANCE
COMMITTEE ON SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES (D)EXPLANATION OF ONE DOLLAR ITEMS IN SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES (D), 1974-75

Summary

The one dollar items included in these Estimates have been grouped in the attached schedules according to purpose.

A. One Dollar items authorizing transfers from one vote to another—21 items.

B. One Dollar items for grants—10 items.

C. One Dollar items authorizing the deletion of debts due the Crown and the reimbursement of certain working Capital Advance Accounts—7 items.

D. One Dollar items which authorize amendments to previous appropriation acts—3 items.

E. Miscellaneous—to authorize a guarantee, to increase the financial limits in other legislation, and to extend the interpretation of certain legislation—6 items.

SCHEDULE A

ONE DOLLAR ITEMS AUTHORIZING TRANSFERS FROM ONE
VOTE TO ANOTHER—21 ITEMS

Agriculture

Vote 5d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $189,299.

Explanation—This additional amount is required to cover price increases for livestock feeds, fuel oil, electricity, etc.

Vote 20d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $346,118.

Explanation—The additional funds will be required to provide for the following:

(1) To provide for contributions of $96,119 to the Province of Quebec to cover a portion of the administrative expenses and premiums paid under an Experimental Crop Insurance Program during the period April 1, 1973 to March 31, 1974.

(2) To provide $250,000 for the federal share of payments to producers in accordance with an agreement with the Province of Manitoba for the purchase and transportation of hay required as a result of crop losses due to adverse weather.

Source of Funds—Vote 1—($535,417)—Administration expenditures for the Small Farm Development—Adjustment activity will be less than originally forecast.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs

Vote 1d—Amount of the transfer to this Vote $706,999.

Explanation—The additional funds will be allocated as follows:

(1) To cover the cost of furnishings and equipment for the departmental headquarters at Place du Portage, Hull, and also price increases for certain contracts awarded. The delivery of these furnishings and equipment was delayed resulting in a carryover of the account to the current fiscal year. ($164,000)

(2) To provide for the cost of projects contracted out by the Policy Analysis Division. Due to difficulties in recruiting economic and policy analysis staff, work was commissioned to start required studies and a small research program. ($100,000)

(3) To establish the Office of the Assistant Deputy Registrar General to administer the Conflict of Interest Guidelines. ($193,000)

(4) To cover the cost of the transfer of the Registration Division from the Corporate Affairs Program. ($50,000)

(5) To supplement the cost of a general advertising campaign involving T.V., radio and newspaper, to inform the public of services and programs provided by the Department. ($200,000)

Source of Funds—Vote 5—($656,999)—Funds are available due to a late start in the expansion of the Consumer Fraud and Consumer Consulting activities and difficulties in staff recruitment.

—Vote 10—($50,000)—Funds are available due to transfer of the Registration Division from the Corporate Affairs Program.

Vote 15d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $239,999.

Explanation—The additional funds are required to cover a carryover of legal accounts and to cover fees and expenses incurred in the prosecution of sugar refineries under the Combines Investigation Act.

Source of Funds—Vote 5—Funds are available due to a late start in the expansion of the Consumer Fraud and Consumer Consulting activities and difficulties in staff recruitment.

Energy, Mines and Resources

Vote 1d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $147,999.

Explanation—These additional funds are required to meet increased costs of Department of Supply and Services services, regular stocked items and freight charges, costs relating to the purchase of equipment and material, and printing charges.

Vote 15d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $627,999.

Explanation—These additional funds will be required as follows:

1. To cover the increase in aircraft operating costs and additional summer students hired under the airborne survey program. ($277,000)

2. To provide for the substantial increase in cost of lithographic materials. ($154,000)

3. To meet the cost of additional staff required to carry out special Terrain Analysis studies ($103,000)

4. To meet increased costs for service charges for services provided by Department of Supply and Services, commissionaire salaries, etc. ($94,000)

Source of Funds—Vote 5—($775,998)—Funds are available within the program due to delays in the recruitment of qualified staff.

Environment

Vote 1d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $82,999.

Explanation—The additional funds are required to provide for increases in Department of Supply and Services service charges ($50,000), Department of National Health and Welfare nursing services ($8,000) and Commissionaire Contract increases ($25,000).

Vote 5d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $1,958,444.

Explanation—The additional amounts will be used as follows:

(1) To provide $1,159,445 for a deficit in salary funds arising from the requirement to hire Wardens and Guardians in the Fisheries Protection and Conservation Activity.

(2) To provide $400,000 to cover the deficit for the operation of the Newfoundland Bait Service.

(3) To provide $188,000 for the additional contributions required to meet Canada's share of increased costs of operations incurred by international fisheries commissions.

(4) To provide $210,999 for increases in service charges announced by the Department of Supply and Services.

Vote 20d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $856,763.

Explanation—Additional funds are required to meet unforeseen increased costs in the operation of weather forecasting and weather reporting services.

Vote 30d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $659,999. In addition, authority is requested for the payment of a grant of $1,000.

Explanation—Additional funds are required to cover the increased Federal share of losses by farmers for crops eaten by migrating waterfowl. The Main Estimates for the current year includes contributions to the Prairie provinces of $490,000 for this program. The increase is due to the late harvesting of cereal crops consequent upon the late spring and the crops being available to the migrating birds for a longer period.

It is proposed to provide a grant of $1,000 to assist with the cost of a national symposium on the problems and opportunities generated by wildlife in urban areas.

Source of Funds:

Votes Transferred To	Votes Transferred from
	Vote 10	Vote 25
Vote 1d	$ 82,999
Vote 5d	1,958,444
Vote 20d		$856,763
Vote 30d		659,999
	<hr/>	<hr/>
	$2,041,443	$1,516,762

Vote 10—Funds are available due to delays in certain major capital projects.

Vote 25—Expenditures for various major capital projects within this program will be less than originally forecast.

Justice

Vote 15d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $114,999.

Explanation—These additional funds are required to cover printing costs of reports and informational material, salaries and other operating expenditures.

Vote 25d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $288,999.

Explanation—Additional Funds are requested to cover the increased printing costs resulting from greater demands for Commission publications and the publishing of papers and studies which have been completed ahead of schedule.

Source of Funds—Vote 10—($303,998)—Payments to the provinces to assist in the operation of legal aid systems will be less than was originally forecast.

National Health and Welfare

Vote 25d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $499,999.

Explanation—Additional funds are requested to cover increased costs for goods and services including medical evacuations, drugs and goods.

Source of Funds—Vote 45—Funds are available because of delays in project implementation and slow billings under the Guaranteed Income Experimental project.

Privy Council—Canadian Intergovernmental Conference Secretariat

Vote 5d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $399,999.

Explanation—During 1974-75 there was a substantial increase in the demand for administrative support services which are provided by the Secretariat to various intergovernmental meetings. Additional funds are required to meet the cost of these services.

Source of Funds—Vote 1—Grants to the Institute for Research on Public Policy will be less than originally forecast.

Public Works

Vote 1d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $795,999.

Explanation—These additional amounts will be used as follows:

(1) To provide $180,000 for the costs of a Commission to review the present and future needs relative to the amount and type of accommodation and facilities that Parliament requires to operate.

(2) To provide $616,000 to cover higher costs in the Administration Program to support the operational programs of the Department.

Vote 5d—Amount of transfer to this Vote of $279,999.

Explanation—To meet the cost of the development and maintenance of the Government of Canada Master Specifications system for government departments.

Vote 25d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $485,999.

Explanation—It is proposed to carry out remedial work (shore protection) on the St. Lawrence River at Ste. Anne de Sorel, Matane and Champlain.

Source of Funds:

Votes Transferred	Votes Transferred From
To	Vote 10	Vote 15	Vote 35
Vote 1d	$179,999	$339,000	$277,000
Vote 5d	279,999
Vote 25d		485,999
	<hr/> $459,998	<hr/> $824,999	<hr/> $277,000

Vote 10—Funds are available due to the receipt of higher than forecast revenues in the Accommodation Program.

Vote 15—Funds are available due to delays in starting a number of capital projects.

Vote 35—Funds are available in the Transportation and Other Engineering Services Program because greater use was made of central support services in the Departmental Administration and the Professional and Technical Services Programs.

Regional Economic Expansion—Cape Breton Development Corporation

Vote 30d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $12,099,999.

Explanation—Funds are required to cover operating losses in the Coal Division of the Cape Breton Development Corporation due to an increase in operating costs and a reduction in coal production in relation to forecast levels.

Source of Funds—Vote 10—Contributions under this program will be less than originally forecast.

Secretary of State—Company of Young Canadians

Vote 60d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $549,999.

Explanation—The Company of Young Canadians in preparing its current budget did not provide for the Cost-of-Living increase nor for an increase in the number of volunteers. It is proposed to provide for these increased costs through a transfer of funds from the Arts and Culture Program of the Department.

Source of Funds—Vote 15—Due to delays in the Massey Hall project the total amount of the grant for this purpose will not be required.

Transport

Vote 45d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $310,748.

Explanation—It is proposed to provide contributions to the Algoma Central Railway and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company as compensation to these two railway companies for freight rate increases foregone in 1973. These companies applied too late for payment to be made out of 1973-74 funds.

Source of Funds—Vote 40—Funds are available due to delays in initiating several ferry service projects and in the site selection for the Motor Vehicle Test Centre.

Vote 55d—Amount of transfer to this Vote $1,531,999.

Explanation—The additional funds are required for the operating deficit and related expenses incurred by the STOL Demonstration Service.

Source of Funds—Vote 1—Funds are available due to delays in the design and construction of the Transport Training Institute.

SCHEDULE B

ONE DOLLAR ITEMS FOR GRANTS (10 ITEMS)

Consumer and Corporate Affairs

Voted 5d—To authorize grants totalling $225,000.

Explanation—It is proposed to provide assistance to consumer associations to enable them to provide a consumer advocacy role before federal regulatory and administrative tribunals.

Source of Funds—Vote 5—Anticipated expenditures will be less than originally forecast since some of the funds originally allotted to the Consumer Help Office Project will not be required.

Vote 25d—To authorize a grant of $15,000.

Explanation—An additional grant is required for the World Intellectual Property Organization due to fluctuating foreign exchange rates. A grant has already been provided of $75,000 to this Organization.

Source of Funds—Vote 25—Printing costs under this program will be less than originally forecast.

External Affairs

Vote 10d—To authorize a grant of $50,000.

Explanation—As a result of increased costs for goods, services and utilities for La Maison canadienne of Paris will require a grant to meet its operating and maintenance deficit.

Source of Funds—Vote 10—A portion of the grant of $268,000 to the St. Malo Cathedral will not be required in the current year.

Justice

Vote 10d—To authorize a grant of $500.

Explanation—It is proposed to provide an additional grant of $500 to l'Institut international de droit d'expression française. The Main Estimates for the current fiscal year provided a grant of $1,500 to l'Institut; the additional amount is required to cover the cost of the annual review to be published by l'Institut.

Source of Funds—Vote 10—Payments to the provinces for the operation of legal aid systems will be less than was originally forecast.

Labour

Vote 1d—To authorize grants totalling $50,000.

Explanation—It is proposed to provide additional grants of $10,000 and $40,000 respectively to assist workers under the Transitional Assistance Benefits and Adjustment Assistance Benefits Programs. These additional grants will be used to meet increased demands for assistance due to a high level of unemployment. The original Estimates for the current year provided a sum of $50,000 for Transitional Assistance Benefits and $375,000 for Adjustment Assistance Benefits.

Source of Funds—Vote 1—Forecast expenditures for administration will be less than originally expected.

National Health and Welfare

Vote 45d—To authorize grants totalling $15,000.

Explanation—It is proposed to provide family assistance grants to children of immigrants and settlers on a retroactive basis. The new Family Allowance Act provides assistance to these children from January 1974. Some applications have been received for benefits prior to that date and authority is now being sought to make these payments.

Source of Funds—Vote 45—Funds are available because of delays in project implementation and slow billings under the Guaranteed Income Experimental project.

Secretary of State

Vote 15d—To authorize grants totalling $285,000.

Explanation—The additional funds will be used for the following purposes:

(1) To provide a further sustaining grant of $125,000 to the Fathers of Confederation Building Trust, Charlottetown, P.E.I. The original Estimates for the current fiscal year provided a grant of $500,000 for this purpose.

(2) To provide a grant of $160,000 to the Canadian Publishers Project Coordinating Committee for the purpose of assisting in the promotion and distribution of Canadian books.

Source of Funds—Vote 15—Forecast requirements for the Cultural Statistics Program will be less than was originally expected.

Vote 20d—To authorize a grant of $150,000.

Explanation—It is proposed to make a grant to support the work of the Canadian Studies Foundation. This grant is to be matched by an equal grant from the Canadian Council of Education Ministers. It will be used to develop curriculum material for the teaching of Canadian studies for use in elementary and secondary schools.

Source of Funds—Vote 20—Funds are available due to delays in the recruitment of qualified staff for Policy

Analysis Division and from research grants which will not be required in the current year.

Vote 35d—To authorize grants totalling $481,000 as well as a transfer of $480,999 to this Vote.

Explanation—The additional funds will be used for the following purposes:

(1) To increase the grants allocated for the International Women's Year Program in order to assist organizations with the financing of projects or cultural events. ($415,000)

(2) To increase the grants to the Institut canadien pour l'Éducation des adultes and the Canadian Association of Adult Education to $75,000 and $50,000 respectively in support of their activities for the promotion of adult education and citizenship. ($66,000)

Source of Funds—Vote 30—Funds were originally provided for the International Women's Year Program under the Operating Vote. It is now proposed to provide this assistance in the form of grants. In addition, a further $66,000 is also available due to under-expenditures for professional and special services.

Secretary of State—National Museums of Canada

Vote 90d—To authorize a grant of $4,000,000.

Explanation—It is proposed to provide a grant to the Art Gallery of Ontario to assist in the construction of the next stage of their building program so as to enhance the education and information services to the public.

Source of Funds—Vote 90—Funds will be available under the National Museums Policy Contribution Program because payments formerly paid in advance are now made on a progress basis.

SCHEDULE C

ONE DOLLAR ITEMS AUTHORIZING THE DELETION OF DEBTS DUE THE CROWN AND THE REIMBURSEMENT OF CERTAIN WORKING CAPITAL ADVANCE ACCOUNTS (7 ITEMS)

Public Works

Vote 20b—Authority is requested for the deletion of certain debts totalling $8,982.41 and for the transfer to this vote of $349,999.

Explanation—Additional funds are required for the repair of a ferry terminal wharf at Tadoussac, P.Q.

It is proposed to write-off debts incurred by a shipbuilding company which has gone into receivership without sufficient resources to meet its outstanding debt. These services were provided in 1970 and the write-off of this debt has been approved by the Interdepartmental Committee on Uncollectable Debts.

Source of Funds—Vote 15—Funds are available due to delays in the commencement of a number of projects.

Regional Economic Expansion

Vote 1d—To authorize the reimbursement of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Stores Working Capital Advance Account in the amount of $10,342.

Explanation—Authority is requested to reimburse the Working Capital Advance Account for the value of stores which have been declared obsolete and transferred to the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation for disposal.

Solicitor General

Vote 5d—To authorize the reimbursement of certain Working Capital Advance Accounts for the value of stores which have become obsolete, unserviceable, lost or destroyed.

Explanation—It is proposed to reimburse the Industrial and Stores Working Capital Advance Account in the amount of $1,023.12 for the value of stores lost by fire or declared as obsolete to the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

It is also proposed to provide a reimbursement of $13,787.11 to the Operational Stores Working Capital Advance Account to cover the value of stores declared as obsolete to the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, lost by fire or otherwise certified by Departmental Boards of Enquiry as being unserviceable, lost or destroyed.

Solicitor General—Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Vote 20d—To extend the purposes of this vote so as to reimburse the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Clothing and Kit Working Capital Advance Account in the amount of $4,488.

Explanation—It is proposed to reimburse the Clothing and Kit Working Capital Advance Account for the value of unilingual shoulder badges which have become obsolete.

Veterans Affairs

Vote 5d—Authority is requested to delete debts totalling $78,294.91.

Explanation—The Interdepartmental Committee on Uncollectable Debts has recommended the deletion of these debts classified as uncollectable. The debts arose mostly from overpayments resulting from undeclared income or the failure to advise of changed marital status. Of the twelve cases involved, two debtors have died with no known estate and balance are indigent.

Vote 30d—Authority is requested to delete debts totalling $65,309.32.

Explanation—It is proposed to delete debts which are considered to be uncollectable for some eight pension recipients. Of these cases, three of the debtors died with no known estate, two are indigent, one case is classified as a liability not admitted and successful collection proceedings are unlikely and the balance are cases where the existence of an enforceable debt cannot be readily established. These debts have been reviewed by the Interdepartmental Committee on Uncollectable Debts and certified as being uncollectable by the Canadian Pension Commission. The debts have resulted mostly through overpayments resulting from undeclared income or the failure to advise of changes in marital status.

Vote 45d—Authority is requested to delete debts totalling $61,192.33.

Explanation—It is proposed to write-off the uncollectable portion of a debt for a veteran confined to mental hospitals from the time of his discharge from the Army in 1919 until his death in 1973. The Department has recovered wherever possible and it is now proposing with the approval of the Interdepartmental Committee on Uncollectable Debts to write-off the balance. The veteran was not eligible for treatment because the condition pre-existed his enlistment.

SCHEDULE D

ONE DOLLAR ITEMS WHICH AUTHORIZE AMENDMENTS TO PREVIOUS APPROPRIATION ACTS (3 ITEMS)

Agriculture

Vote L26d—To extend the authority of the Racetrack Supervision Revolving Fund.

Explanation—It is proposed to extend the activities within the Revolving Fund to include the carrying out of chemical research relating to the use of drugs on horses and for the development of improved techniques for race surveillance.

Industry, Trade and Commerce

Vote 1d—To extend the vote wording so as to insure loans by private lenders to Canadian manufacturers until January 1, 1979 and to transfer an amount of $299,999 to this vote.

Explanation—It is proposed to extend the authority under the General Adjustment Assistance Program from January 1, 1976 to January 1, 1979, to insure loans by private lenders to Canadian manufacturers. These loans provide for the restructuring and modernization of facilities.

In addition, a transfer of funds is requested to help meet the legal, accounting and appraisal fees incurred in negotiating the option agreements with Canadair and de Havilland of Canada. These expenditures were not anticipated when the Main Estimates were prepared.

Source of Funds—Vote 35—Funds are available due to delays in certain transportation studies.

Manpower and Immigration

Vote 10d—To extend the time limit for capital expenditures on Occupational Training facilities from 1975-76 to 1980-81 inclusive.

Explanation—It is proposed to extend the Capital Assistance Phase-Out Program for a further five years. This extension will permit the provinces and territories to account for funds provided to them under the program for the phase-out of federal payments following the termination in 1967 of the Technical and Vocational Training Act.

SCHEDULE E

MISCELLANEOUS—TO AUTHORIZE A GUARANTEE, TO INCREASE THE FINANCIAL LIMITS IN OTHER LEGISLATION, AND TO EXTEND THE INTERPRETATION OF CERTAIN LEGISLATION (6 ITEMS)

Energy, Mines and Resources

Vote 5d—To authorize the entering into of an agreement with the Interprovincial Pipe Line Limited.

Explanation—Authority is requested to enter into a Deficiency Payments Agreement with Interprovincial Pipe Line Limited related to the construction and operation of the Montreal extension of the Interprovincial Pipe Line system and to ensure that any tolls or tariffs allowed or prescribed by the National Energy Board in respect to this agreement shall be deemed not to make, contain or result in unjust discrimination within the meaning of the National Energy Board Act.

Finance

Vote 1d—To amend the Canada Student Loan Act and to authorize the deletion of debts totalling $75,087.18.

Explanation—It is proposed to seek authority for the following purposes:

(1) To increase the annual loan limit under the Canada Student Loans Act from $1,400 to $1,800 (from $700 to $900 for a semester). This increase is recommended in order to provide more aid to needy students to help cover increased educational costs. The current overall borrowing limit of $9,800 is not being changed.

(2) To increase the basic loan provision so as to provide adequate funds to cover the increased borrowing which will follow the loan limit change. Under the current formula the basic loan provision plus the Supplementary Loan Provision for 1975-76 is estimated at $143,000,000, whereas, projections on the new loan limits indicate requirements of up to $175,000,000. The Estimates assume no change in current provincial practice respecting the loan to grant "mix" of provincial student aid plans.

(3) To delete eight debts totalling $75,087.18 which have been approved as uncollectable by the Standing Interdepartmental Committee on Uncollectable Debts. Three of these relate to Farm Improvement Loans and five to Small Businesses Loans.

Vote 17d—Authority is requested to provide for the transfer of certain Canada Savings Bonds between a trust governed by a Registered Retirement Savings Plan, a Pension Fund or Plan or a Profit-Sharing Plan and a Beneficiary thereof, and for the registration of the bond in the name of the Trust.

Explanation—Provision does not exist for the transfer of Canada Savings Bonds to a Trustee of a Registered Retirement Savings Plan, Profit Sharing Plan or Pension Fund Plan. On February 7, 1975 the Minister of Finance announced that this restriction would be eliminated from those issues now outstanding and that any such bonds purported to have been paid at any time by a taxpayer as a premium under a Registered Retirement Savings Plan shall be deemed to have been acquired as a qualified investment by the Trust. This proposed vote wording will provide for the implementation of this announcement.

Vote L18d—Authority is requested through this vote wording to clarify the meaning of the term "United States dollars" as it applies under section 5 of the Bretton Woods Agreements Act and under Finance Vote L37d, Appropriation Act No. 1, 1970.

Explanation—Under the Articles of Agreement of the International Monetary Fund, Canada's quota is stipulated in terms of Special Drawing Rights Units of Account. Until 1971, one Special Drawing Rights Unit was equal in value to one United States dollar. As a result of the formal devaluations of the United States dollar, this identity was lost and the value of the Special Drawing Rights Unit in terms of United States dollars was increased, requiring Canada to make "maintenance of value" payments to keep the Fund's holdings of Canadian dollars consistent with their value in Special Drawing Rights Unit.

This obligation was met in 1972 and again in 1973 through the use of special votes in Appropriation Acts. It is intended that the vote wording will clarify the technical definition of Canada's International Monetary Fund obligation so that further maintenance of value payments can be made when required.

Indian Affairs and Northern Development

Vote 30d—To extend the purpose of this Vote so as to amend the Canada Mining Regulations in respect of the number of mineral claims staked by an individual and to authorize the deletion of debts totalling $76,802.14.

Explanation—Authority is requested to amend the Canada Mining Regulations or any lease thereof so as to ensure that any claim shall not be held to be invalid by reason only that there are in excess of 36 mineral claims located within an area shown on a mineral claim staking sheet in a licence year by a person or someone on his behalf.

In addition, authority is requested for the deletion from the Accounts of Canada of the Crown's claim against a mining company which is now defunct. The debt amounting to $76,802.14 has been approved by the Interdepartmental Committee on Uncollectable Debts.

National Defence

Vote 1d—To authorize an extension to the present Vote wording and to authorize the transfer of $6,999,999 to this Vote.

Explanation—Authority is requested to extend the National Defence Act so as to provide for the inclusion of girls under the Cadet Training Program for 1975 and thereafter and to provide them with the same allowances as boys.

In addition authority is requested to transfer $6,999,999 to cover increased operating expenditures to the Defence program.

Source of Funds—Vote 5—Capital expenditures will be less than originally forecast due to the deferral of certain projects and delays in others.

APPENDIX "B" TO REPORT OF NATIONAL FINANCE COMMITTEE
ON SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES (D)

Energy, Mines and Resources—Vote 47d

Eldorado Nuclear Limited

Pages 22 and 23—Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75

In January, 1974 a $15 million five-year exploration program for Eldorado Nuclear Limited was announced. The program would be financed by the Federal Government, and this exploration for uranium ore would assist in establishing and maintaining adequate Canadian uranium reserves which could be economically exploited under current and projected technology and market conditions. The $1.7 million covered by this Vote represents the financing for the first year of the exploration program.

Environment—Vote 15d

Fisheries and Marine Program

Pages 26 and 27—Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75

This Vote provides for two items:

(1) Grants of $4 million to Canadian producers of frozen and canned groundfish, crab meat and lobster meat.

(2) Contributions of $4 million to Canadian producers of groundfish products in order to maintain fishing operations during the months of January, February and March.

The grants are to finance the extension of the cold storage assistance and inventory financing aspect of the groundfish price stabilization program from October 31, 1974 to March 31, 1975. This program was originally scheduled from July 31 to October 31, 1974, and was implemented last summer to assist fishermen who would have suffered a drop in prices due to the severely depressed U.S. groundfish market. The market conditions had resulted in a high inventory build-up and producers were offered storage assistance on the condition they would maintain prices to the fishermen.

The contributions are to provide interim assistance to groundfish producers through deficiency payments to producers who continue production. This program was announced on December 20, 1974 and is part of a $21 million program which also includes the purchasing and canning of frozen groundfish to be used in the World Food Program and the provision of working capital loans to fish processing plants in Newfoundland and Labrador that were affected by the severe ice conditions in May and June, 1974. This interim program will terminate on April 30, 1975.

External Affairs—VOTE 26d

Canadian International Development Agency

Pages 34 and 35—Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75

The purpose of this Vote is twofold:

(1) to forgive loans made by the Federal Government to the Export Development Corporation (EDC) for the purpose of financing agreements between the Corporation and the Government of Bangladesh; and

(2) to authorize the EDC, in return, to forgive Bangladesh its obligations under those agreements.

The debts being forgiven by the EDC relate to four loans made by the Corporation to Pakistan between 1962 and 1969, for the purchase of power generation, paper mill and locomotive equipment for use in East Pakistan. These debts were taken over by the Government of Bangladesh upon the formation of that state, and are being forgiven in accordance with a decision of the Bangladesh Aid Group (an international aid consortium of which Canada is a member) to provide debt relief to that country.

Since the EDC is writing off these debts at the request of the Government rather than at the direction of its Board, a compensatory adjustment is being made in the Corporation's debt to the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

This item is in fact only an accounting adjustment which does not involve a new cash flow. It appears under CIDA's Estimates because the action is being taken on development assistance grounds.

Indian Affairs and Northern Development—VOTE 40d

Northern Affairs Program

Pages 48 and 49—Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75

The major portion of this Vote is for a transfer payment to the Government of the Northwest Territories, to provide for salary and price increases during 1974-75 which could not be fully absorbed by the NWT Government. The $2 million is essentially to assist the NWT Government in meeting the requirements of new salary settlements negotiated with the NWT Public Service Association and the NWT Teachers Association. Total wage settlements for these associations involved increases in the order of 15 percent, as opposed to the 6 percent that had been provided for in Main Estimates. Similar assistance was given to the Government of the Yukon Territory through an item in Supplementary Estimates (B) 1974-75.

Another item covered by this Vote is a contribution to the NWT Government of $547 thousand for the development of a townsite at Strathcona Sound, NWT. In June, 1974 the Federal Government entered into an agreement with a Canadian company, Mineral Resources International, concerning government assistance to the company for the development of a lead/zinc mine at Strathcona Sound. Under the agreement, the government would provide development assistance in the amount of $18.3 million over a three-year period commencing in 1974-75. The funds would be used for a dock, an airport, roads and townsite development. Appropriate amounts for 1975-76 and 1976-77 will be included in the Main Estimates of Transport and Indian Affairs accordingly. However, no funds were provided in 1974-75 Estimates for this project. The NWT Government is acting as project manager for the townsite development, and this contribution would cover site planning, leasing and other pre-construction expenses.

Regional Economic Expansion—VOTE L12d
 Pages 92 and 93—Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75

This Vote is to authorize a Working Capital Advance of $1.5 million that would allow the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration (PFRA) to carry the recoverable portion of the costs of projects, pending repayment by the provinces, that are undertaken pursuant to federal-provincial agreements on Agricultural Service Centres and Community Water Projects in the Prairie provinces.

This Working Capital Advance is required because the payment terms of the agreements are such that provincial contributions to project costs are not usually available at the time the expenditures are being incurred, imposing a problem to PFRA of temporarily re-allocating available cash from within its overall program budget.

Transport—Vote 20d
 Air Transportation Program

Pages 114 and 115—Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75

The major item within the total of $139,512,600 for this Vote is $136,279,600 for crediting to the Airports Revolving Fund. These costs were incurred through the acquisition of the peripheral lands for the new Montreal International Airport at Mirabel, Quebec, the development of the lands and interest on funds borrowed from the Federal Government. The credit reflects the transfer of these peripheral lands from the Ministry of Transport to the Department of Public Works on 1 April, 1975. An additional amount of $7,295,469 is credited in Transport Vote 15d for operating losses in a similar manner, bringing the total amount of the transfer to $143,575,069. This item is in fact only an accounting adjustment which does not involve a new cash flow.

The remaining $3,233,000 is required for a number of capital projects in progress across Canada. In addition, $5,000,000 contained in Transport Vote 25 (Grants and Contributions) for payments to former owners of property expropriated in connection with the new airport at Mirabel, Quebec, is expected to lapse due to the delay in settlements in this fiscal year. These funds are to be transferred into Vote 20 (Capital Expenditures).

The additional capital funds will go toward the continuation of various projects which include: land acquisition for the Calgary International Airport expansion and the Vancouver International Airport; runways at Fort St. John, British Columbia and London, Ontario; airport development at La Ronge and Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, and St. John's, Newfoundland; and the new air traffic control tower at Mirabel, Quebec. The escalation of construction costs and the rapid pace of construction on many projects has created the requirement for additional funds.

NATIONAL HEALTH AND WELFARE—VOTE 46d
 Pages 70 and 71—Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75

OLD AGE SECURITY FUND⁽¹⁾

(millions of dollars)

	1970-71	1971-72	1972-73	1973-74	1974-75
Receipts:
From Taxes	1,914.2	2,118.0	2,219.0	2,496.5	2,740.0
Credit from Appropriations	—	—	—	235.0 ⁽²⁾	700.0 ⁽³⁾
	1,914.2	2,118.0	2,219.0	2,731.5	3,440.0
Payments	1,907.2	2,205.3	2,524.3	3,034.5	3,463.0
Surplus/(Deficit)	7.0	(87.3)	(305.3)	(303.0)	(23.0)
Deposits with Receiver General	7.0	(87.3)	(305.3)	(303.0)	(23.0)
Balance at beginning of year	721.4	728.4	641.1	335.8	32.8
Balance at Close of Year	728.4	641.1	335.8	32.8	9.8

1) Source for 1970-71 to 1973-74 is Public Accounts.

Source for 1974-75 is Treasury Board estimate.

2) Supplementary Estimates (B) 1973-74.

3) Supplementary Estimates (D) 1974-75.

THE SENATE

Friday, March 21, 1975

The Senate met at 11 a.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Daudlin has been substituted for that of Mr. Caccia on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 1, 1975

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-54, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1975.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. Léopold Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move, seconded by the Honourable Senator Perrault, that the bill be read a second time now.

The Hon. the Speaker: The house has heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Senator Benidickson: Honourable senators, I do not want to develop the reputation of being a curmudgeon around here, but I do have to complain that we are constantly abridging our rules. We did so with respect to the amendments to the Canadian Business Corporations Bill just the other day, and we do so frequently.

I attempted to obtain today a copy of the proceedings of the meeting of the National Finance Committee which was the basis of the Senate study on the supplementary estimates (D). As you know, the study of supplementary estimates is a prior step to the presentation of an appropriation bill. I was unable to obtain a copy of the proceedings. The chairman of the committee presented his report yesterday, but we do not have Hansard yet; nor do we have the Minutes of the Proceedings of the Senate containing that report and the two appendices. Of course, I am familiar with those because I attended the committee meeting yesterday, but I still have not received the committee evidence from a week ago and I did not take notes at the time. Furthermore, I understand that it is not the intention of the deputy leader to do other than to explain the bill.

Under our rules we could refuse consent so that he would not be able to proceed with second reading until another sitting, and perhaps that would give me the time to obtain the evidence and any other information I would wish to look at. But I do not propose to refuse consent. I simply want to draw to the attention of the Senate that we seem to be getting further behind with respect to the time it takes to receive the printed reports of our committee sittings. For example, seeing Senator Bourget reminds me that he sponsored a bill recently, and subsequently presided over a meeting of the Transport and Communications Committee. We then passed that bill in the house before the evidence from that committee meeting was available. Indeed, I received it only this morning. For these reasons I suggest that something must be done to speed up the printing of the evidence of our meetings and our committee reports.

In so far as the supplementary estimates are concerned, in the other place they received the attention of six or even eight separate committees, and yet the evidence from those meetings was promptly printed. Indeed, at least one of those committees had three sittings before it completed its study with respect to the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources. Before we could deal with the subject, and before they could pass the supplementary estimates and have them advanced to this chamber, they had printed copies of the evidence of the committee studies. I think we should not be proceeding, as we do so often, without printed reports of the preliminary committee studies that are basic to the procedure and the bills that we are asked to advance.

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, if I may be allowed to comment on these remarks, I know we have been living with this perennial problem of delay in the printing of Senate deliberations, because for a long time it has been the practice that the printing of Senate proceedings takes second place to the printing of House of Commons proceedings. I recently drew the attention of the Leader of the Government to this situation, and I am sure that he will do his best to try and have it corrected.

As to the report of the National Finance Committee, which was presented in the house yesterday, I was informed at 10.30 last evening that copies of the appendixes to the report had not been supplied to the Debates office or to the Journals office. I do not know who is responsible for the omission, but I immediately tendered my own material to the Debates office. Subsequently, at about 11.30, I was informed that the printing of these appendixes might result in the Debates of the Senate and the Minutes of the Proceedings of the Senate not being available in time for this morning's sitting. That is why the first thing I did this morning on reaching my office was to have my own material photocopied, and I asked that this material be distributed to honourable senators at the commencement of this sitting. I hoped this would overcome our problem.

In regard to our schedule of work for today, I have discussed this with the Leader of the Opposition and I am going to make my introductory speeches this morning on Appropriation Bill No. 1 and the interim supply bill. I understand that the debate will then be adjourned by the Opposition until Monday, at which time it will be given further consideration.

The Hon. the Speaker: The house has heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, before I begin my remarks on this legislation, I would like to call attention to a typing error which was pointed out to me this morning, and which appeared in the report presented last night by the Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance. Line 1 of paragraph 3 on page 1 reads: "The supplementary estimates (D) total $1,197 million . . .". That figure should have been $1,917 million.

Senator Flynn: Only a difference of $800 million.

Senator Langlois: I would also like to draw attention to the fact that I had two tables photocopied and distributed. The first table relates the supplementary estimates (D) to the three previous supplementary estimates we had during the present fiscal year, and to the main estimates to be voted, giving in separate columns the statutory votes and the amounts.

The second table sets out the details of the supplementary estimates covered by Appropriation Acts Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5, giving the totals of these appropriation acts. I hope that this information will be of some assistance to honourable senators in the appreciation of my remarks. Furthermore as I have already stated, copies of the report of the National Finance Committee, including a summary of $1 items and other information presented to the committee, have been distributed. I hope that this documentation will assist honourable senators in following my remarks.

● (1110)

Senator Benidickson: That is what was omitted from the report last night?

Senator Langlois: Yes, and that is why I am having these documents distributed now.

The bill introduced today provides for full supply for the fourth and final supplementary estimates which total $1,917,165,212. These supplementary estimates (D) seek additional authority required to complete the fiscal year 1974-75, and provide information on statutory costs which have exceeded earlier estimates. You will recall that royal assent has already been given to four supply bills covering estimates for the current fiscal year, the first providing interim supply for April, May and June. The second, agreed to on October 30, 1974, provided for full supply for the balance of the main estimates as well as full supply for the supplementary estimates. The third and fourth supply bills provide full supply for supplementaries (B) and (C) for 1974-75. The estimates on which the present bill is based were tabled and referred to the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance on March 4. These estimates were discussed in committee on March 13 with the President of the Treasury Board and his officials, on March 19 with the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources and his officials, and on March 20 with officials of the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce.

Full estimates tabled today for 1974-75 consist of budgetary items of $26.530 billion and non-budgetary items of $1.703 billion giving a grand total of $28.233 billions. The main portion of these final supplementary estimates is due to revisions to statutory costs of $588 million, and adjustments to accounts of $860 million. The main reason for the revisions in the statutory costs is the increase in payments to provinces under the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act. The adjustments to accounts consist of three items: payment into the old age security fund to cover a deficit of some $700 million, the operating capital costs involved in the transfer from the Minister of Transport to the Department of Public Works of the peripheral lands at Mirabel Airport in the amount of $143.575 million, and finally the forgiveness of a loan to Bangladesh in the amount of $16,466,288.

Honourable senators, the other major budgetary items are:

(1) Items which arise from established commitments of the government, such as the Canadian National Railways deficit of $45 million. Deficits of East Coast ferry services of $33 million.

(2) Programs of policies adopted during the year, such as Bill C-4, to extend veterans' allowances, $20 million; special program for milk subsidies, $4 million; groundfish stabilization, $5 million.

(3) An additional $10 million requested for Treasury Board vote 5 to cover additional salary costs and the amounts provided in departmental estimates and the contingencies vote.

On the non-budgetary side, $138 million is proposed for investment in the Athabaska Tar Sands. Most of the other non-budgetary items are to authorize increases in revolving funds within several departments required to handle a larger volume of business at higher prices during the year.

Given a higher level of inflation during 1974-75 than expected, the actual operating costs in excess of previous estimates have been absorbed, in whole or in part, in a number of departments by exercising restraint across a department so that over-runs in one program or vote can be met by transfers from another vote.

These $1 items, which require parliamentary approval, have been grouped as follows:

(1) $1 items authorizing transfers from one vote to another, 21 items in all;

(2) $1 items for grants, 10 items in all;

(3) $1 items authorized in the deletion of debts due the Crown and the reimbursement of certain working capital advance accounts, seven items;

(4) $1 items which authorize amendments to previous appropriation acts, three items in all; and

(5) miscellaneous items to authorize a guarantee, to increase the financial limits in other legislation and to extend an interpretation of certain legislation, six items.

The list of these $1 items, as I have already said, has been prepared and distributed to the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance for their review, and to this house.

I believe that I have covered the important features of this bill. If further explanations are deemed necessary, I will do my best to supply them to this house.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear.

Hon. Allister Crosart: Honourable senators, I welcome the explanation of the appropriation bill given by the Deputy Leader of the Government. I have a few comments which perhaps should now be made. The first, of course, refers to the total amount of the estimates for the year, which is now $28 billion. I was glad to hear the deputy leader say that this is the last set of supplementary estimates we will receive this year. These are supplementary estimates (D), and it will be recalled that the committee in its report drew attention to this new fashion of underestimating in the main estimates the requirements for the year, and the habit that has developed of saying, "Oh, well, if we need any more money we will get it by way of supplementary estimates." All of us have probably heard senior officials say that this is almost a fashion now—"Why worry about the main estimates? We can get it later."

● (1120)

Year by year we have these fantastic increases in the difference between the main estimates and the total spending of the government. I suggest the time has come for showing considerably more restraint in this practice.

It is true, as the deputy leader has said, there are occasions when particular needs arise during the year, when it is quite necessary to ask for supplementaries. That was the original object of supplementaries, of course. But today, as I say, it has become just an easy way to get more money.

Honourable senators will view with alarm these fantastic increases in government spending. We agree, of course, that there has been inflation. We are not talking about the same dollars from year to year. But, on the other hand, the fact of the matter is that by the time we have the main estimates and supplementaries for next year, total government spending, or the government "take" from the economy, will certainly be $30 billion or more.

In 1968-69—about seven years ago—the total spending of the federal government was just over $10 billion. It has risen year by year. It was $10.8 billion in 1968-69; $12.1 billion the next year; then $13.4 billion; then $15.1 billion; then $16.5 billion; then $20.4 billion; and now $28.2 billion. We have had a statement from the government that it will exercise restraint this year so that hopefully the total increase will not be more than 15 per cent.

The deputy leader referred to what he spoke of as the restraint exercised by government departments this year. When it was found that total government spending was running to these astronomical heights, the Treasury Board apparently prevailed upon the departments to use restraint and see if they could not meet some of their new and extra requirements by transfers from existing votes.

One has to wonder why, if they could do it in those circumstances, they could not do it all the time. It is an extraordinary thing to have the government now coming to us and actually boasting that in an emergency situation they were able to exercise restraint. I am sure we would all hope that the government would make it more than a pro tem practice to exercise restraint in their spending.

Some of the items which are referred to in the report of the committee are understandable, of course. The item of $700 million to meet the deficit in the old age security fund is a comparatively new item of expenditure. We are told, and I am quite sure it is true, that this is entirely due to the indexing of the old age pensions which came into effect in 1972. The fund was just in balance in 1970. In 1971-72 it had a deficit of $87 million, and in 1972-73 a deficit of $300 million. We are now asked to vote an additional $700 million to make up the deficit.

The fund, of course, has come a long way from quite modest beginnings. Back in 1951, as honourable senators will recall, the old age pension was $40, payable at age 70. As a result of a recommendation by a committee of this house, the guaranteed income supplement was added to take care of the needs of those who had an income less than what the committee at that time decided was the minimum level of subsistence. Both the basic pension and the supplement are now subject to indexing. It was suggested by a member of the committee that perhaps the time had come to look at this indexing of the basic pension to see if it was absolutely necessary. There was no objection raised to the indexing of the supplement.

I mention this because there was a report of the discussion which took place in committee in the Globe and Mail, and some of us have received quite a number of letters from old age pensioners and those interested in the subject complaining about this suggestion. I can only say that the report in the Globe and Mail was not entirely accurate. In the case of myself, the Globe and Mail reported that I had agreed to it, when the fact of the matter is that I and others in committee had said we should not take any action on it until we had more information. It is obvious that there is a problem. Unquestionably, there are those in receipt of the old age pension for whom indexing is not necessary, but there is obviously a fairly large group of old age pension recipients who fall between the two extremes. In other words, they may have fairly adequate assets—a house, for example—which do not yield income, but which would disqualify them from receiving the supplement because of the needs test involved. This fact was recognized by the committee and the chairman commented on it. It was the view of the committee that we should take no action on this suggestion until further information was acquired. I can quite see that when we have all the information there will be complete recognition of the needs of those in the intermediate class, those who are not in receipt of the supplement but who certainly appear to be entitled to the indexing of the basic pension.

On the matter of the very high level of government spending in this fiscal year just ending, I am concerned about the amount of the federal government's "take", and, indeed, the "take" of all levels of government, from the GNP. Surely, there must be a point at which the stop sign should go up. It is only two years since the suggestion was made that all levels of government might be taking—and I use that word deliberately—for their purposes 40 per cent of the total productivity of Canada. I shall be very surprised if the figure is not close to 50 per cent when this fiscal year is out.

I hope there will be a careful examination of the impact of this huge “take” by all levels of governments from the GNP and, therefore, the well-being of all Canadians. I have seen no indication of such a study. There was one made many years ago, but none recently. I hope the government will take under advisement such a study so that we may be informed as to the government's attitude towards this heavy “take” by all levels of government from the gross national product.

Senator Benidickson, on a point of privilege in the committee, raised the matter of a government loan to Canadair. I am sure he will be speaking on it; I shall merely summarize it. There is an item in supplementary estimates (D) to provide a loan to Canadair Limited. Canadair is a limited corporation fully owned by General Dynamics, an American company. Because it is in the position of having only one shareholder, its annual statement is not published. It is, however, lodged with the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs and, therefore, is available to anyone who wishes to examine it. The purpose of this loan item is to provide for an option agreement on the purchase of that company, and instead of making some payment in respect of that option agreement, the contractual arrangement is that the government will loan Canadair Limited $3.3 million interest free over the term of the option agreement.

● (1130)

That seemed to the committee to be a peculiar way of going about this sort of transaction—lending a company, which you are thinking of taking over, money without interest to carry on their affairs in the meantime. We inquired into that and asked to see a copy of the option agreement. At first the department refused. On the insistence of the committee, the department agreed to make the option agreement available to the committee on a confidential basis. We had some doubts about that, wondering why 11 or 12 senators, representing the public, should be allowed to have this information on condition that they will not tell the public. However, finally we got to the bottom of it, and found that there was a formal undertaking by the federal government that this option agreement would remain confidential.

One wonders why the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce did not tell us that when we made our first request. It would have saved us a few hours of discussion, because if they had said, “This is a contractual obligation undertaken by the government,” I am sure that would have been the end of it; we would have said, “We understand that.” Instead of that, we spent a couple of hours trying to find out why. Naturally some members of the committee assumed that this was another of these Air Canada-CN cases in which, when information was asked for, the reply by the government was that they would not like us to have that information because—the old excuse—it was competitive information. We thought this was that kind of case, but it turned out not to be.

[Senator Grosart.]

Reference was made to the appearance of the Honourable D. S. Macdonald, Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, before the committee, where he gave us some evidence and full information on the participation by the federal government and some provincial governments in the Syncrude project on the Athabaska tar sands. I must say that personally I had some grave doubts about the wisdom of that government participation, but the information given us, and Mr. Macdonald's explanation, completely persuaded me, at least, that the government was taking an important and progressive step in rescuing—if I may use that term—the Syncrude project.

In committee we objected to the form in which the supplementary estimates were being presented to us, as they have been over the years, in that they do not show a breakdown of expenditures into operating costs, capital grants and contributions, as is done in the main estimates. We were not able to find out why a different form of breakdown is given. However, I am glad to say the department has agreed, on this initiative of the National Finance Committee, that future supplementary estimates will contain this breakdown.

I mention that because, as we look back over the years, the National Finance Committee, under a series of hard-working and distinguished chairmen, has introduced some important innovations into the presentation of the estimates. We are sometimes asked what the Senate does in these committees and in this chamber, and I think it is worth mentioning that we have made these very important contributions. One, of course, was a written explanation of the $1 items for the first time. The committee insisted on them. After we had been given explanations of the $1 items for two or three years we asked the deputy minister if they were being given to the Commons. He told us they were not, and when we asked why he said that the Commons had never asked for them. The Commons have now discovered them, and are spending a great deal of time requiring explanations of the $1 items.

Senator Langlois: Once more the Senate led the way.

Senator Grosart: Once more the Senate led the way. The chairman of the National Finance Committee is not here, but I am quite sure he will be sympathetic to my suggestion that the time may have come when the committee should perhaps spend even more time on this general overview of the estimates presented by the government. I suggest that because, without in any way criticizing the practices of the other place, it is true that in considering the estimates as they do now under the change in rules, committee by committee, there may be a gap in this matter of a complete overview of the estimates, main and supplementary, as a whole.

Another matter which was discussed, which I think is of some importance, was the deficiency agreement entered into by the federal government and the pipeline company which is undertaking to build a pipeline from Sarnia to Montreal. A rather unusual agreement has been entered into by which the federal government undertakes, in certain circumstances, to pay any deficiencies in the capital cost of this huge undertaking that may arise from time to time. The method is a fairly simple one on the surface. Of course, the pipeline company must present an audited statement of its costs. If there is any difference of opinion as to the validity of that statement, the federal government may then call in a group of independent auditors, and if there is no agreement at that level the matter may go to the Federal Court.

Senator Langlois: Or arbitration as to the difference.

Senator Grosart: Arbitration would be part of the process between the two audits, and then I believe it could go to the Federal Court.

Senator Langlois: You are quite right.

Senator Grosart: What we questioned was whether there were sufficient guarantees in the document on the matter of the efficiency of the spending. It was quite clear that the audit would be directed mainly to seeing whether this money was spent, which is the normal function of an audit. We questioned whether, in either of these two types of audit, in the normal practice of auditing they would go beyond that. We asked the minister directly if he was satisfied in his own mind that in the event of a difference of opinion about the efficiency of the spending the agreement as it stood would entitle the federal government to go behind the audit. I have read the agreement two or three times. It can be said, if you read the agreement overall, that the government has that authority, but in my own mind I am not entirely sure. First, I hope the problem does not arise; secondly, if it does arise, I hope the minister is correct in his reading of the agreement.

In respect to construction, there does not seem to be any provision for the federal government to monitor construction as it proceeds. Senator Carter had some pungent remarks to make on that. I am not sure whether he was entirely satisfied, or whether we might not be running into the problem that has been run into before with these open-end type of agreements. We all remember the problem with the winter works program, where the government was in the position of having to accept the provincial government audit and not being able to go behind it. For that reason, I think there has been a general agreement amongst those responsible in these matters that open-end agreements are generally not the best ways of achieving certain purposes.

Honourable senators, there are more comments to be made on the report, because other matters of importance were raised by senators in committee. However, I am quite sure they will be dealt with as the debate proceeds. Therefore, I conclude my remarks by congratulating Senator Langlois for the great care he has gone to in giving us this information in the difficult circumstances referred to by Senator Benidickson. I am sure we all appreciate that the deputy leader does make an effort to overcome this problem of delays in printing, and so on.

On motion of Senator Flynn, debate adjourned.

● (1140)

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 2, 1975

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-55, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1976.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that this bill be read the second time now.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, you have heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Senator Flynn: On the same understanding as for the previous bill.

Hon. Léopold Langlois: Of course.

Honourable senators, the main estimates for 1975-76 on which this bill is based were tabled in the Senate, and referred to the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance on February 20, 1975. These estimates have not as yet been discussed in committee. However, before we are called upon to give final approval of the 1975-76 estimates, the National Finance Committee will have ample opportunity to discuss them and report to the Senate thereon.

The 1975-76 estimates total $29,585 million, consisting of budgetary expenditures of $28,242 million and non-budgetary expenditures of $1,343 million. The bill now before us is the first interim supply bill for the 1975-76 fiscal year, and will release a general proportion of 3/12ths of the votes in these estimates. There are, however, additional proportions for 27 special items to which I will refer later. The total expenditure proposed by this bill is $4,603,596,900.59.

The proportions requested in this bill are intended to provide for all necessary requirements of the public service to June 30, 1975. This bill is in the usual form of interim supply bills, and in no instance does it request release of the total amount of any item.

In general, the 27 votes which require additional proportions may be put into four groups. First are those votes from which it is necessary to pay grants early in the fiscal year. They are: Energy, Mines and Resources, vote 30; Finance, vote 5; and Urban Affairs, vote 15.

Second are those votes for which additional sums are required to finance programs until forecast revenues are received later in the fiscal year, and they are: Finance, vote 20; and Supply and Services, votes 1 and 15.

Third are those votes which provide payments required to cover accounts maintained on a calendar rather than fiscal year basis. They are: Transport, votes 40, 50 and L70; and Urban Affairs, vote 10.

Fourth are the votes for which additional portions are required for other specific purposes, and they are:

Agriculture—Vote L30

Consumer and Corporate Affairs—Vote 30

Energy, Mines and Resources—Vote L50 and 65

Environment—Vote 15

Indian Affairs and Northern Development—Vote L80

Labour—Vote 1

Manpower and Immigration—Vote 10
 National Health and Welfare—Vote 40
 Privy Council—Vote 5
 Secretary of State—Votes 10 and 15
 Transport—Votes L75 and L100
 Treasury Board—Votes 5 and 10
 Veterans Affairs—Vote 1

Honourable senators, clause 5 of this bill would grant borrowing authority for $4 billion, and would provide for the cancellation of all outstanding and unused borrowing authority from previous appropriation acts for the fiscal year 1974-75. This borrowing authority has been included in the bill, as usual, to authorize the issuance of Treasury bills, marketable bonds and non-marketable bonds—including Canada Savings Bonds—for the financing of the ordinary operations of the government including non-budgetary cash requirements, such as loans and advances to Crown corporations, and to meet requirements of the Exchange Fund Account. On the question of borrowing authority, I should like to add for your additional information that section 36 of the Financial Administration Act requires that:

No money shall be borrowed or security issued by or on behalf of Her Majesty without the authority of Parliament.

The authority to borrow for the purpose of refunding maturing issues is section 38 of the Financial Administration Act. This section provides that the Governor in Council may authorize the minister to borrow such sums of money as are required for the payment of any securities that were issued under the authority of Parliament and are maturing or have been called for redemption. Section 39 provides for authorization by the Governor in Council of temporary short-term borrowing by the minister in special circumstances.

The authority for the government to raise new money through the issue of securities is usually obtained annually. At about the beginning of each fiscal year an appropriation bill seeks new authority for the Minister of Finance to raise new money by the issue of securities, and it provides for cancellation of unused borrowing authority under previous appropriation acts. Additional borrowing authority is sought, if necessary, later in the year.

The terms and conditions for such borrowing are authorized by the Governor in Council. Section 37 of the Financial Administration Act, in part, reads as follows:

Where authority is conferred by Parliament to borrow money on behalf of Her Majesty, the Governor in Council, subject to the Act authorizing the borrowing, may authorize the Minister

(a) to borrow the money by the issue and sale of securities in such form . . . as the Governor in Council may approve; and

(b) to enter into such contracts . . . relating to the borrowing . . . as the Governor in Council may approve.

New money raised through the issue of securities is used in the financing of the ordinary operations of the government, including non-budgetary cash requirements, such as loans and advances to Crown corporations, and to meet the requirements of the Exchange Fund Account.

The types of securities issued by the government include Treasury bills, marketable bonds denominated in Canadian dollars or foreign currency, and non-marketable bonds including Canada Savings Bonds.

● (1150)

The total borrowing authorized annually by Parliament in the last few years has been as follows: for the fiscal years 1964-65 to 1967-68 inclusive, $1,750 million; 1968-69 and 1969-70, both inclusive, $2,000 million; 1970-71 to 1973-74 inclusive, $3,000 million; and 1974-75, $5,500 million. By the end of the fiscal year 1974-75 the authority to borrow $5,500 million will have been used to the extent of an estimated $3,900 million. The major portion of the cash requirements for 1974-75 were met through the Canada Savings Bond campaign in October and November last.

In the coming fiscal year, as in other years, the full amount of borrowing authority should not be required. However, it is important for the government to have flexibility in its debt management planning and operations. For example, the government's practice is to have available at all times sufficient unused borrowing authority against which to charge net new borrowing by means of Canada Savings Bonds, which peak at the time of the new campaign but diminish thereafter, and to enable it to finance the unpredictable requirements of the Exchange Fund Account.

It is customary for one of the first appropriation bills of each new fiscal year to request net new borrowing authority. Accordingly, this bill now before you incorporates a request for $4,000 million.

The wording of this bill provides that its coming into force cancels only that portion of the outstanding and unused borrowing power in respect of which no action has been taken by the Governor in Council pursuant to section 37 of the Financial Administration Act.

Before closing my remarks, honourable senators, I should like to assure you that the passing of this bill will not prejudice the rights and privileges of members of this house to criticize any item in the estimates when it comes up for consideration in committee. The usual undertaking is hereby given that such rights and privileges will be respected, and will not be curtailed in any way, as a result of the passing of this measure.

Finally, I draw the attention of honourable senators to the documentation that I have caused to be photocopied and distributed. I hope each of you have received it by now. There is, first, a table, consisting of two pages, giving a summary of the items covered by this interim supply measure. There is a second table giving a summary of the statutory items and voted items, together with both budgetary and non-budgetary items of the main estimates. It is a very short resumé, but the information may be of some use to members of this house in their consideration of this bill.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, I move the adjournment of the debate in the name of Senator Flynn.

On motion of Senator Grosart, for Senator Flynn, debate adjourned.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report on the operations of the Shipping Conferences Exemption Act for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 12 of the said Act, Chapter 39 (1st Supplement), R.S.C., 1970.

Report of the Canadian Transport Commission for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 28(2) of the National Transportation Act, Chapter N-17, R.S.C., 1970.

Report of the Custodian of Enemy Property for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 3 of the Trading with the Enemy (Transitional Powers) Act, Chapter 24, Statutes of Canada, 1947.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move, seconded by Senator Perrault, that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Monday, March 24, 1975 at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Motion agreed to.

PRAIRIE GRAIN ADVANCE PAYMENTS ACT

BILL TO AMEND—THIRD READING

Senator Langlois moved the third reading of Bill C-10, to amend the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CANADIAN SOVEREIGNTY SYMBOL BILL

SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from yesterday the debate on the motion of Senator Fergusson for second reading of Bill C-373, to provide for the recognition of the Beaver (Castor canadensis) as a symbol of the sovereignty of Canada.

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, I moved the adjournment of this debate in order to give any honourable senator an opportunity to participate in the debate. As no one has indicated they wish to do so, perhaps Senator Fergusson will close the debate.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, I wish to inform you that if the Honourable Senator Fergusson speaks now, her speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading.

Hon. Muriel McQueen Fergusson: Honourable senators, I will not keep you long but in closing the debate I should like to comment on the questions asked yesterday by Senator Flynn and Senator Quart. Senator Flynn asked whether the passing of this bill would mean that there could be no further commercial use of the beaver as it is now used so frequently.

Complaint has often been made in this chamber that when we get a bill from the House of Commons we do not have the benefit of the explanatory notes which appeared in the bill as printed for first reading in the House of Commons. When I introduced the bill in the Senate I had not seen that material, otherwise, I could have answered Senator Flynn's question immediately. Indeed, had the explanatory notes been available to us, the question would probably not have been asked. In any event, the explanatory note in the bill as originally printed says:

The purpose of this bill is to recognize the Beaver as one of the symbols of Canada's sovereignty. The importance of the beaver to the discoveries, explorations and settlements first made in Canada is, of course, basic to our history.

Moreover, the beaver—although never officially recognized—became and remains a symbol with which Canadians have identified.

This bill does not, therefore, remove the beaver from popular use as a trade name or other symbol: rather, the bill proposes to protect the beaver as a popular symbol reserved to Canadians by declaring the beaver a national symbol.

● (1200)

I trust that that answers Senator Flynn's inquiry.

Senator Quart asked a question about a film on Grey Owl being made by the National Film Board. I called the National Film Board, and I was informed that they were not making any such film. However, I made further inquiries, and found that a private company is making one. Indeed, I might add here that I found quite a number of clippings about it, and I cannot see how I missed them earlier. Clearly Senator Quart is more observant than I am. There are several that refer to this film, and to the five beavers imported from Utah. The producer of the film has said that he imported the beavers from Utah because it was convenient to do so. In Utah there are beaver ranches, while in Canada beavers are not kept in captivity because it is against our principles, and our legislation does not permit it. Beavers are free, and we do not keep them in captivity. The trapping of beavers is permitted, but the producer said that it costs $300 to buy a trap. He offered to buy the beavers in Canada, but there were no trappers willing to spend $300 on a trap to supply beavers to the producer at a price he was prepared to pay. I gather he paid only $100 for each beaver from Utah. That is the reason why he had to import them, not because we are in any way short of beavers.

To conclude that point, honourable senators, I should mention that an item in the Montreal Star of February 26 this year, which I came across in my searches, says that last winter 1,000 beavers were trapped in Ontario within 25 miles of Parliament Hill.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

Senator Fergusson moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting of the Senate.

Motion agreed to.

CRIMINAL CODE (THE NATIONAL FLAG OF CANADA)

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

Hon. Muriel McQueen Fergusson moved the second reading of Bill C-223, to amend the Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada).

She said: Honourable senators, this is a private member's public bill that has been approved by all parties in the other place. The purpose of Bill C-223 is to make the wilful destruction or desecration of the National Flag of Canada an offence under the Criminal Code, punishable on summary conviction.

On February 13, 1965, in unique ceremonies throughout Canada and abroad, a Canadian symbol, adopted by Canada and proclaimed by Her Majesty the Queen, was inaugurated as our national flag. At 12 noon on that day the Canadian flag was first raised on the Peace Tower in Ottawa, and speaking on that occasion His Excellency the Right Honourable Georges P. Vanier, Governor General of Canada, said:

I hope and pray... that our Flag will symbolize to each of us and to the world the unity of purpose and high resolve to which destiny beckons us.

The chief chaplains of the Canadian forces in their prayers asked blessings on the flag. It was a proud day for Canada and Canadians.

The need for legislation to deal with desecration of the flag is of real concern. The fact that insults to the flag are rare in no way lessens the need for this protection. At many of its national conventions the Royal Canadian Legion has approved resolutions to prosecute individuals who insult the flag, which is a symbol that belongs to all the people of Canada, and as such should be treated with dignity and respect.

This bill will apply to those people who damage or insult in any way the Canadian flag in circumstances that clearly indicate a definite intent to do so.

Individuals who treat the flag with contempt are lacking in awareness of their proud heritage as Canadians. They are people who are ready to accept the rights and privileges of their citizenship but who shirk the duties and responsibilities which are also inherent in that citizenship. It is hoped that the passage of this bill will help them to realize the significance of the national symbol, and will deter them from wilfully damaging the flag in an effort to express dissatisfaction with anything that might be happening.

Honourable senators, this is not the usual sort of bill to come before us. Many democratic countries have enacted legislation to protect their national flag, notably the United Kingdom, France and the United States. I believe that we Canadians should also provide all possible protection for our own flag.

This bill was introduced in the House of Commons by Mr. Len Hopkins, and was passed by that house on March 18 of this year. In my view, it deserves careful consideration, and I hope it will receive the support of this house.

Senator Forsey: May I ask Senator Fergusson a question? What are the penalties under this bill? I ought to know, but I don't. I believe this is an offence punishable on summary conviction, but not being a lawyer I am not sure what that involves.

[Senator Fergusson.]

Senator Fergusson: I am sorry, but I did not hear you, Senator Forsey.

Senator Forsey: I asked Senator Fergusson if she could tell me the penalties for an offence under this legislation.

Senator Fergusson: It does not say in the bill what these are Senator Forsey. I would have to look up the Criminal Code to find out what the penalties are for these offences.

● (1210)

Senator Prowse: Honourable senators, may I be permitted to help? The penalty is a fine of up to $500, or six months imprisonment, or both.

Senator McIlraith: A maximum of $500.

Senator Forsey: Thank you very much. I wanted to be sure of that. I believe, as a result of what Senator Fergusson said, that wilful damage is involved.

I would like to also ask the question whether there have been any serious incidents connected with this matter? It seems to me a little odd that it should suddenly pop up as a subject for legislation unless there have been some serious actions which call for it. I am a little leery, myself, of legislation just for the sake of legislation. I feel that we should have some substantial ground for legislating.

I wonder if there have been any serious incidents, for example in front of the Parliament Buildings, by anarchists, Maoists, Quebec separatists or a variety of dubious characters? Have there been any serious actions that would call for this, I wonder?

Senator Fergusson: I cannot answer Senator Forsey's question as to whether there have been incidents. I am sure I have read of some, which I cannot quote, in which the flag was trampled on and in which it was burned.

Senator Lamontagne: I saw it happen.

Senator Fergusson: Senator Lamontagne says he saw it happen on Parliament Hill.

Senator Forsey: I recollect something of the sort, but I wonder if there have been a number of incidents of this nature to cause a serious need for this legislation? I understood Senator Fergusson also to say that there is legislation of the sort in Great Britain, France and the United States. I was a little surprised to hear that about Great Britain, because I have recently had information from someone who said there was no such legislation in Great Britain. Could we have elaboration of that?

Senator Fergusson: I am sorry, Senator Forsey; I have only had this for a day and a half, and have not had the opportunity to study it thoroughly. However, I know that Mr. Hopkins had information from Great Britain, on which it is based. I have it in my file, which I did not bring into the chamber, but I would be very glad to allow you to see it.

Senator Forsey: I am sorry to have been such a nuisance, but I was really trying to get information that would reassure me about this legislation, and the parallels to it in other countries.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, is the debate concluded?

Hon. Senators: Yes.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Fergusson moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading on Monday next.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, I find myself in somewhat of a difficult position. I have just received a note from the Leader of the Opposition saying that he would like to adjourn the debate on the motion for the second reading of Bill C-223 because he has some comments to make in respect to it. I wonder what the disposition of the chamber is to that request?

Senator Fergusson: Senator Flynn can make his comments on third reading.

Senator Grosart: Quite possibly. I merely say he has asked me to adjourn the debate on his behalf. We have not actually voted on second reading.

Senator Perrault: Yes, we have voted on second reading.

Senator Grosart: I believe Her Honour was just putting the question.

Senator McIlraith: No, she had put it.

Senator Grosart: As Senator Fergusson says, perhaps Senator Flynn can make his comments on third reading.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until Monday, March 24, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Monday, March 24, 1975

The Senate met at 8 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

CANADIAN BUSINESS CORPORATIONS BILL

CONCURRENCE BY COMMONS IN SENATE AMENDMENTS

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that they have agreed to the amendments made by the Senate to Bill C-29, respecting Canadian business corporations, without amendment.

RAILWAY ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-48, to amend the Railway Act.

Bill read first time.

Senator Perrault moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Wednesday, March 26.

Motion agreed to.

CULTURAL PROPERTY EXPORT AND IMPORT BILL

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-33, respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states.

Bill read first time.

Senator Perrault moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Wednesday, March 26.

Motion agreed to.

CIVIL SERVICE INSURANCE ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-26, to amend the Civil Service Insurance Act.

Bill read first time.

Senator Perrault moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Wednesday, March 26.

Motion agreed to.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report on the Quinquennial Actuarial Examination on the state of the Superannuation Account in the Consolidated Revenue Fund as at December 31, 1972, pursuant to section 35 of the Public Service Superannuation Act, Chapter P-36, R.S.C., 1970.

Report on the Quinquennial Actuarial Examination on the state of the Public Service Death Benefit Account in the Consolidated Revenue Fund as at December 31, 1972, pursuant to section 48 of the Public Service Superannuation Act, Chapter P-36, R.S.C., 1970.

Report on the administration of the Public Service Superannuation Act, Parts I and II, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to sections 36 and 49 of the said Act, Chapter P-36, R.S.C., 1970.

Report on the administration of the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to section 11 of the said Act, Chapter 43 (1st Supplement), R.S.C., 1970.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move, seconded by Senator Perrault, that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until tomorrow, Tuesday, March 25, 1975, at 11 o'clock in the morning.

Senator Grosart: Explain.

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, if I may add a word of explanation at this stage, the reason for this motion is that we have been informed that the other place has agreed to sit late this evening to pass the emergency legislation dealing with the strike at West Coast ports. It is anticipated that this legislation will be passed by the other place this evening, and that we will be in a position to deal with it tomorrow morning. That is why it is proposed that the Senate, when it finishes its business this evening, adjourn until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

If it should happen that this bill does not come to us late this evening or in the course of tomorrow morning, then at 11 o'clock we would adjourn during pleasure to reassemble at the call of the bell later in the day so as to be in a position to deal with the bill as soon as it is passed by the other place.

Since it is emergency legislation, I feel sure that the Senate will agree to this motion, and sit tomorrow morning for the purpose of dealing with that legislation.

Senator Flynn: When the deputy leader speaks of the "call of the bell" at any time tomorrow, I assume he means that we shall meet at 2 o'clock in any event to deal with the other business before us, even if this particular bill has not reached us at that time.

Senator Langlois: I suggested adjourning during pleasure to reassemble at the call of the bell, and that could be at 2 o'clock, or at whatever time the bill comes to us.

Senator Flynn: But we shall have other business to deal with anyway.

Senator Langlois: Oh, yes, I agree, but we could deal with that at 2 o'clock.

Senator Asselin: But what will happen with respect to committee meetings? I understand that arrangements have been made for two committees to meet tomorrow morning.

Senator Langlois: I have another motion to follow this one, and when I move it I shall explain what we are going to do.

Motion agreed to.

STANDING COMMITTEES

AUTHORIZATION TO MEET DURING SITTING OF SENATE

Senator Langlois, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(a), moved:

That the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs and the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs have power to sit while the Senate is sitting tomorrow, March 25, 1975, and that rule 76(4) be suspended in relation thereto.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is there unanimous consent, honourable senators?

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, the reason for this motion is that when the meetings of these committees were arranged last week there was no expectation that the house would have to sit tomorrow morning to deal with the emergency legislation to which I referred earlier.

In view of the fact that witnesses from a distance have been invited to attend these committee meetings, it is impossible at this late stage to cancel those invitations. In some instances witnesses will be travelling great distances to be in attendance tomorrow. However, I am hopeful that the chairmen of these committees will be able to arrange sitting times tomorrow so that there will not be great interference with the sittings of this house. We have to keep in mind that it is difficult, if not impossible, to have two committees meeting while the house is sitting because that gives rise to problems of logistics—staffing, attendance and so on. I am sure that the chairmen of the committees will take that into consideration and try to arrange sitting time that will not, as I have said, interfere too much with the work of this chamber.

Senator Flynn: "Logistics"—that's a very good word.

● (2010)

Senator Langlois: It includes everything.

[Translation]

Senator Côté: Honourable senators, I would like to ask a question. There is also a joint committee of the Senate and the House of Commons which must sit at 9.30 tomorrow morning; what will happen with that committee? Senate business will certainly not keep it from sitting.

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, as I have just mentioned, we must rely on the goodwill and cooperation of the committee chairmen, and if it is considered that their business will prejudice the sitting of this House, they can adjourn at 11 o'clock and resume a little later in the day. I understand that the witness who is to appear before your committee lives in Ottawa and can be heard by the committee later in the day, when we know what is the business of the Senate. I think we will have the kind cooperation of the committee chairmen and they will arrange their hours of sitting not to prejudice the sitting of this house.

[English]

Motion agreed to.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

On the Question Period:

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, I am not attempting to revive the discussion with regard to the emergency legislation which may come to us either tonight or tomorrow. However, I would like to ask the leader or the deputy leader what legislation it is expected that the Senate will pass before the adjournment on Wednesday, and when exactly will it be asked to pass it? I understand that we have two supply bills tonight, but is there any legislation other than these two supply bills? Is there to be emergency legislation concerning the strike at the western ports? Is there any other legislation that the leader or the deputy leader will ask the Senate to pass because it is urgent to do so before we adjourn?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, at this time I can report that important bills that were sent over from the other place this evening do not have a particular and immediate urgency associated with them. Thus, they should not prolong our deliberations this week unduly. However, if there is unanticipated urgent legislation, the Leader of Her Majesty's loyal Opposition will be informed forthwith.

Senator Flynn: I was just thinking of the two supply bills. Does it matter if we pass them tomorrow, or on Wednesday?

Senator Perrault: It is hoped that we can pass them and have royal assent this evening.

Senator Flynn: Even though the other legislation might not come to us from the other place this evening?

Senator Perrault: Yes. May I report to the house that it is hoped the other place will have dealt with the other legislation by approximately midnight. That would be rather late for any action to be taken here tonight. So, as of now we will plan to deal with the matter with dispatch tomorrow. However, that need not deter us from dealing with and disposing of matters of supply this evening.

Senator Flynn: I shall be even more precise. What difference does it make whether the two supply bills receive royal assent tomorrow night rather than this evening?

Senator Langlois: The Leader of the Opposition will no doubt recall that when I introduced these bills on Friday last, I explained that passage of the bill covering supplementary estimates (D) was urgent in that it provided, among other things, for an increase in veterans' allowances. It is hoped that the increased allowances will reach the veterans before Easter. The increase involves the sum of $20 million and, although I am not insisting, it is hoped that the bill will receive royal assent this evening. The interim supply bill could be delayed until tomorrow, but the bill with respect to supplementary estimates (D) should be passed this evening, if that is at all possible without undue pressure on anyone, because of the increase in veterans' allowances.

Senator Grosart: May I ask the Leader of the Government, in view of the fact that Bill C-33, respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states, has come to us this evening in the usual form, as passed by the House of Commons and without the draftsman's notes which appear in the bill as it was presented to the House of Commons on first reading, is it the intention of the government to accede to suggestions which have been made here by more than one senator that the draftsman's notes appear in bills as they are presented to us by the House of Commons?

Senator Perrault: There is no question whatsoever that those notes are very helpful and useful, and I shall ascertain whether that can be done. There is no question that it expedites our efforts here.

CANADIAN SOVEREIGNTY SYMBOL BILL

THIRD READING

Senator Fergusson moved the third reading of Bill C-373, to provide for the recognition of the Beaver (Castor canadensis) as a symbol of the sovereignty of Canada.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CRIMINAL CODE (THE NATIONAL FLAG OF CANADA)

BILL TO AMEND—MOTION FOR THIRD READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Senator Fergusson moved the third reading of Bill C-223, to amend the Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada).

She said: Honourable senators, on Friday last I made an error in replying to a question by Senator Forsey as to whether Great Britain had legislation similar to this. On referring to the file, I find that although the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany have similar legislation, the United Kingdom and France do not.

Senator Asselin: Why Canada?

● (2020)

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators may remember that last Friday Senator Grosart wanted to adjourn the debate on second reading on my behalf. He was a few seconds late, however, and it was decided that the Senate had concluded debate on second reading. That is fine. I don't suppose that I am really entitled to criticize that attitude. What I would have said during debate on second reading had I had the opportunity was that some reservations have been expressed as to the necessity of having this kind of legislation. I do not think it has been conclusively proven that it is really necessary to create another criminal offence. However, that is merely an opinion and one which I will not pursue this evening. I think others have the intention of pursuing it further.

[Senator Flynn.]

What I wanted to draw to the attention of the Senate is the wording of this bill. In comparing the English and French versions, I am left with some doubt as to whether we are not, perhaps, going too far.

Looking at the English version of the bill, it says:

49.1 Every one who wilfully destroys, disfigures, mutilates, defaces, defiles, desecrates—

And so forth. The French version is:

Est coupable d'une infraction punissable sur déclaration sommaire de culpabilité, quiconque volontairement détruit, abîme, mutilé, lacéré, salit, profane ou discrédite le drapeau national du Canada.

—discrédite volontairement—ça va très bien.

It is one thing to wilfully cast contempt upon the national flag of Canada, but if you destroy it voluntarily, that is another matter. My concern is with the definition of "wilfully" and "voluntarily." If I want to get rid of an old flag, I want to be in a position to do so without the threat of being charged with wilfully casting contempt upon the flag. I do not want my neighbour, who may not be in accord with me, to be in a position to lay a charge against me. It seems to me that these words should be prefaced with the word "contemptuously." In other words, the wording should be clarified so as to show that contempt must exist in connection with the disfiguring or mutilating of the flag. You should be able to get rid of an old flag if you wish. In any event, looking at the French version, I should not like to be charged for having "... volontairement détruit, ou abîmé, lacéré ou même sali le drapeau national du Canada."

If I want to do it merely as a means of getting rid of an old flag, I should be able to do that with impunity, since I would not be showing contempt for the national flag of Canada. For that reason I do not think the present wording is proper.

That is what I wanted to draw attention to on second reading, and it was my hope that this bill would have been referred to committee to determine whether the officials of the Department of Justice were in agreement with the suggestion that there should always be contempt in respect of whatever is done with the national flag of Canada. Whether that is the feeling of other senators, I do not know. It is not my intention to move that the bill be referred to committee at this time, but if there are further expressions of opinion which are similar to mine, I will certainly support a motion of that type. There is no urgency in connection with this bill, and I would suggest that we look into it carefully and not rush it through.

[Translation]

Senator Côté: Honourable senators, I do not have the bill with me, but could the honourable senator tell me whether there is a difference between the French and the English version?

Senator Flynn: There may be a difference. I cannot be so sure with the English text, which says "wilfully" as with the French version which says "volontairement". With respect to that French word "volontairement", if I want to burn an old flag, if I destroy it because I no longer need it, I do so "volontairement". I do not know whether in English "wilfully" means exactly the same thing, but I believe there is a difference between "wilfully" and "contemptuously".

Senator Denis: In a malicious way.

Senator Langlois: It would be a criminal matter and mens rea would have to be proved.

Senator Flynn: Voluntarily, in criminal matters the problem is just to know what you do. There is certainly a translation problem. But in my opinion, "wilfully" does not go far enough.

[English]

Senator Prowse: Honourable senators, I move the adjournment of the debate.

[Translation]

Senator Côté: Honourable senators, before the debate is adjourned I wonder if a decision should not be taken. One point should certainly be examined, if the feeling is that the French version does not convey exactly the same meaning as the English version. It should be amended one way or the other. Maybe we could do it here. On the other hand, we could pass it on third reading, subject to revision by officers in the Department of Justice.

Senator Denis: It will be too late.

Senator Flynn: It will be too late.

Senator Côté: Let us then amend it here.

[English]

Senator Choquette: Honourable senators, before the debate on third reading is concluded, perhaps I might be permitted to add one or two words.

I would go a little further than the Leader of the Opposition, and say that even the English version is defective and incomplete. In all these cases of malice aforethought, mens rea has to be proved by the Crown, by those prosecuting, and even in the English version there should be words like, "wilfully and maliciously and with intent to defame," et cetera, so that we know what the action consists of—what the accused has to face and what the Crown has to prove. The Crown would have to prove mens rea, taking into consideration those words that I have just mentioned, and perhaps a few more. I repeat, not only is the French version defective and incomplete, but the English version is as well.

Senator Yuzyk: I should like to ask a question that came to my mind when the Leader of the Opposition raised this issue. Is it still possible under our rules to send this bill to a committee?

Senator Flynn: Oh, yes.

Senator Yuzyk: I ask that because I have been asked by the chairman of the Civil Liberties League of the National Capital Region that he be given an opportunity to appear before the committee on this bill. In my experience, I have not known a bill to be referred to committee on third reading.

Senator Flynn: Yes.

Senator Yuzyk: Then I shall probably take part in a debate on a motion to refer the bill to committee.

Senator Prowse: If the honourable senator is prepared to move that the bill be not read the third time now, but that it be referred to a committee, I will stand my motion for the adjournment of the debate. It was not my intention to prevent anybody from speaking.

Senator Flynn: You might as well adjourn it.

On motion of Senator Prowse, debate adjourned.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 1, 1975

SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from Friday, March 21, the debate on the motion of Senator Langlois for second reading of Bill C-54, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1975.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, Bill C-54 provides, as we have been assured by the Deputy Leader of the Government, for the last of the supplementary estimates for the fiscal year ending on Monday next

● (2030)

Senator Langlois: We are adjourning on Wednesday, I hope.

Senator Flynn: That may be so, but the fiscal year is going to end next Monday.

Senator Grosart: There is still time for supplementary estimates (E).

Senator Flynn: The point is that the amount is not insignificant. The amount to be voted for supplementary estimates is $1.8 billion, if I remember correctly.

Senator Grosart: That is right.

Senator Flynn: Senator Grosart has dealt with the importance of this amount, especially when it follows all the other supplementary estimates, the total effect of which has been to raise the amount of the main estimates laid before Parliament about a year ago from $22 billion to $28 billion, an increase of almost 30 per cent. As Senator Grosart explained, that is a record.

I do not intend to return to that particular aspect of the bill, inasmuch as it has been dealt with more than ably by the deputy leader on this side. The first comment I should like to make on this bill particularly is that the amount of the expenditures which Parliament is called upon to vote each year, and especially the amount of the supplementary estimates which follow the main estimates, show two things: first, Parliament is really unable to provide adequate control over expenditures; and, second, the reason for this lack of control over expenses is that the decisions are being increasingly made at the level of the bureaucracy. It is quite clear, for example, that regardless of how good a job the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance does, it is not able to provide adequate control over these expenses. The same thing holds equally true in the other place, especially as in the other place they have to deal with these matters in separate committees. Furthermore, there the members are more interested in problems which concern their own regions. While, overall, the government is the master so far as Parliament is concerned, nevertheless, it is true that the government itself becomes increasingly unable to control the expenses owing to the decisions being made at the bureaucratic level. There is certainly no doubt about that, because it is evidenced by the very amount of the supplementary estimates. In other words, if the main estimates totalled $22 billion and the supplementary estimates now total $6 billion, it is obvious that the government should have been informed of this last year.

Naturally, there are things which occur that cannot be foreseen. No one would dispute that. But, on the whole, it seems quite clear that this is definite evidence that the government is losing control over the bureaucracy so far as government expenditures are concerned. What should be done about that, I do not know, but I do know that it is a big problem which must be dealt with and solved. But when it comes to voting these supplementary estimates, what can we do, especially when we are told that it is most important to pass the bill tonight so that there can be royal assent tonight because these cheques for $20 million have to go out tonight or tomorrow? What can we do? Every time we have that kind of legislation before the Senate we are told the same thing.

It is not long since we passed the income tax bill. At that time we were told that it was urgent to pass the bill so that the refunds could be sent out right away. Incidentally, in respect of those refunds, I should like the Leader of the Government or the deputy leader to consider what I am about to say. Just after we passed Bill C-49, to amend the statute law relating to income tax, I heard the Honourable Mr. Goyer on television referring to the refund cheques. He said that the printing and forwarding of the refund cheques involved 9 million cheques for a total of $1.8 billion. The curious point I should like you to consider is that that amount is exactly the same amount as the total of supplementary estimates (D) which we now have to pass.

But are these figures realistic? How can 9 million cheques be sent out when there are fewer taxpayers than that, according to the figures which have been published. Surely, there is something strange here. Is it some form of propaganda to tell the Canadian public that the government is generous, and is sending cheques to everybody? I do not know, but it seems rather curious, indeed. I really would like to know if these figures are accurate. Are they real? Are they possible? Were there really 9 million cheques? Did the income tax refunds really total $1.8 billion?

At any rate, these are the problems we are faced with. But if we are in a difficult situation, just imagine how difficult the situation is for the people in the other place. They have strangled themselves with their own rules. After so many days of debate, so their rules dictate, a supply bill must be passed. It will be deemed to have passed after so many days, and it will pass without debate. The effect is that if there is something in a supply bill which does not tally with what is in the estimates, they have no chance to discuss it at all.

[Senator Flynn.]

As honourable senators will remember, that was exactly the situation when we debated Bill C-42 in December. I remember I spent quite a bit of time trying, unfortunately without success, to convince the Deputy Leader of the Government to refer that bill to committee. But, no, it was too urgent. We had no time to refer the bill to committee. In any event, the committee had dealt with the estimates, and the bill was exactly the same as the estimates, so what need was there to send it to committee? But that was not true.

Senator Langlois: I never said that, and you know it.

Senator Flynn: I never said what?

Senator Langlois: I never said that it was the same as the estimates. I never said that.

Senator Flynn: I do not know if that is exactly what you said, but—

Senator Langlois: That is not true, and you know it.

Senator Flynn: Wait a minute. I am willing to amend my statement in whatever way is deemed to be reasonable, but the deputy leader certainly cannot disagree that the argument he used at the time for not referring the bill to committee was this: the committee had already dealt with the estimates, and there was no reason why we should send the bill to the committee since the committee had already dealt with the estimates. Now, whether the deputy leader said it was the same thing or not is beside the point, because it means the same thing.

Senator Langlois: Oh, no.

Senator Flynn: If he had considered that there was something different in the bill he would have agreed with me at the time that the bill should be referred to the committee, so that as far as any differences between the estimates and the bill were concerned those differences could have been considered by the committee. But he did not take that position. I am sure he will recall that he systematically avoided discussing this very matter—namely, that we should be able to deal with a supply bill as something distinct from the estimates. The record is there to show that what I am saying is correct. Anyway, the problem is that the other place is not able to do a good job, and neither is this house able to do a good job, so far as estimates and expenditures are concerned. I hope that we will find, at some time in the future, another formula which will enable us to give back to Parliament real control over the expenditures of the government.

● (2040)

I wish now to deal with the form of the bill, the very subject that I was just discussing. I say that a supply bill is not necessarily the same thing as the estimates which are laid before Parliament and studied in committee. Very often the form of a supply bill varies from the estimate upon which it is based. Not long ago we had the case of Bill C-42, where there was inserted a borrowing power of over $2.5 billion. I can't think that such a borrowing power would be considered by anyone as something unimportant.

We were denied the right to have that problem examined in committee. The Commons likewise had been denied by their own rules—which is their own problem, of course—the right to examine that problem. So the borrowing power of $2.5 billion sought by the Minister of Finance went unreviewed.

You have standard clauses in these supply bills, but you have others that are not standard. Let us look at Bill C-54. Of course, clause 1 is standard, but clause 1 in this bill reads:

1. This Act may be cited as the Appropriation Act No. 1, 1975

There is one incidental remark I wish to make here. I have said before that this title is misleading. This is the last of the supplementary estimates for the fiscal year 1974-75, and it is going to be named Appropriation Act No. 1 of 1975, based on the calendar year instead of the fiscal year. I do not see why we do not number these bills according to the fiscal year. We would not know just from reading the title whether the bill belongs to the fiscal year or to the calendar year. This bill really deals with 1974-75; it is the last of the appropriation bills for that year. Appropriation Act No. 1, 1975, should be the first one in the next fiscal year. The interim supply bill that we are going to deal with, C-55, could properly be titled Appropriation Act, No. 1, 1975-76. But, anyway, this is only incidental. I have mentioned it before, but when you come to try to correct some of these things that have been done for years and years, someone will always say, "Well, it has always been done that way; why should we change?" We are fated never to improve, I suppose.

I was saying that clause 1 of Bill C-54 is a standard form. So is clause 2. Clause 3 is standard also, but paragraph 2 of that clause is not necessarily standard. When it deals with supplementary estimates it is there. When it deals with interim supply it is not there. Clause 3(2) reads:

The provisions of each item in the Schedule shall be deemed to have been enacted by Parliament on the 1st day of April, 1974.

I asked on a previous occasion why we need this. Is it because the government has already started spending the money provided in this bill? Is the government asking for a retroactive effect in the supplementary estimates? It says, the first day of April, 1974. If you look at Bill C-55, which is interim supply, applicable to the first of April next, you will find that this does not apply. I asked the deputy leader, on the occasion of the discussion of Bill C-42, to refer that bill to committee in order to find out what the exact purpose of such a paragraph was. Is it because the government has already taken it upon itself to start spending the money before approval by Parliament? I think Parliament would like to know. It is important that Parliament should know. That is one reason I gave on that occasion for referring the bill to committee, and I think it remains a good reason.

Clause 4 is generally standard as far as a supply bill is concerned.

We then come to clauses 5 and 6 of the present bill. This is the first time I have seen such clauses. Let me read clause 5.

At any time prior to the date on which the Public Accounts for a fiscal year are tabled in Parliament, an appropriation granted by this or any other Act may be charged after the end of the fiscal year for which the appropriation is granted for the purpose of making adjustments in the accounts of Canada for the said fiscal year that do not require payments from the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

What is this for? I think I can understand it. It means that any money voted for a fiscal year may be spent after the end of the fiscal year if it is spent in the 30 days following, and before the tabling of the public accounts. I think that is the case. You have a delay of 30 days for spending the money that has been voted for a given fiscal year.

Senator Croll: That is normal.

Senator Flynn: I do not say that it is not normal, but I say it was not in the previous bills of supply.

Senator Langlois: You are dealing with final supply. When you are dealing with final supply you have to do that, though not in the previous supply bills.

Senator Flynn: I am not disagreeing with the purpose of this, I am just mentioning that this is something which should be of interest to Parliament, and that we should look into it in committee. How far do we go, and how is it that we are attributing to one fiscal year certain expenditures and not to the following fiscal year? This is a point that I have raised before, and I have never been able to get an answer. I have never been able to get such a bill referred to committee, where we might clarify this point.

Clause 6 deals with the same thing to some extent. It reads:

The amounts appropriated by this act may be paid at any time on or before the thirtieth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-five, and such payment shall be deemed to have been made in and be chargeable to the fiscal year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-five.

It seems to me that you have to pay these amounts before April 30. How do you reconcile that, however, with clause 5 if, for instance, the public accounts are tabled in Parliament before the end of April? That is an interesting question. I have always wondered how they play with these amounts that are voted by Parliament. This may be only in the last supplementary estimates, but I draw attention to the fact that they were not in any previous supply bill that I remember.

Senator Langlois: They are always in finals. They have always been in final supply bills.

Senator Flynn: I do not remember that having been the case. I have raised these questions before, and I never got any answer. I remember that in dealing with Bill C-42, when I asked that the bill itself, not the estimates, be referred to the National Finance Committee, Senator Langlois and Senator Everett both refused to have these points considered in committee, and I say again—

Senator Langlois: What was that? Will you explain that?

Senator Flynn: Bill C-42. I remember very well that that was the case where we had the borrowing power for $2.5 billion in clause 5 of Bill C-42. As this matter had not been discussed by the other place, I remember asking the Senate to refer the bill to committee so that we could inquire about the borrowing powers sought by the Minister of Finance under clause 5.

● (2050)

Senator Langlois: I hate to interrupt my honourable friend, but that is not what he said in the first place. He said that both Senator Everett and I had refused to allow these items to be discussed in committee. They were never sent to committee.

Senator Flynn: That is right.

Senator Langlois: But you said—

Senator Flynn: When I said that you refused to have these items discussed in committee, I meant that you refused by not allowing the bill to be referred to committee. I think it means the same thing.

Senator Langlois: Does it?

Senator Flynn: The honourable the deputy leader was discussing the matter of saying "two and a half billion dollars" instead of "2.5 billion dollars" and now he is discussing another simple problem of semantics. When I say that you refused to have these matters discussed in committee I mean that you refused to have the bill sent to committee. It means the same thing, I hope. If it does not, then you can choose your own wording. I couldn't care less.

There was another point to which I wished to draw attention as far as the supplementary estimates are concerned. It is not, perhaps, an important point, but it is rather an interesting one. This point was raised in committee, by the way, and thank God it was raised in committee. It comes under vote 5d on page 12, under the heading of Parliament, and dealing with the House of Commons, it says:

5d House of Commons—Program expenditures—To extend the purposes of Parliament Vote 5, Appropriation Act No. 3, 1974, to provide, notwithstanding Section 10 of the Senate and House of Commons Act for payment to Réal Caouette of an amount based on an annual rate of $4,000 in respect of that portion of the current fiscal year commencing July 8, 1974, throughout which he is a member of the House of Commons and the Leader of the Social Credit Party of Canada and to provide a further amount of—$2,926.

That is really peanuts; there is no doubt about that. We have frequently discussed $1 items which had the effect of changing legislation. This is a $2,926 item which has the effect of changing legislation. It was explained in committee that because Mr. Caouette now heads a party of only 11 members in the other place, he is not entitled to the $4,000 indemnity as leader of a recognized party in that place. So, instead of changing the act or the rules in the other place, Parliament is asked—and the Senate is asked—to give him the equivalent, but for the current year. We are asked to give it only to him and only so long as he is a member of the House of Commons and Leader of the Social Credit Party of Canada. They seem to think that this will not be for a very long time. They do not provide this for anyone who might replace him as leader of the party. What is this? What really is this? I wonder and I would very much like to know. I know that Réal Caouette has been very helpful to the Liberal Party on many occasions, but I think it is very cheap on the part of the government to give him only $2,926 for his efforts. And it is not indicative of much pride on the part of Réal Caouette to be satisfied with such a small sum for his efforts.

[Senator Langlois.]

I hate to think that we in the Senate are going to pass this without protest, and I want to register my own protest against this covert and underhanded way of doing things. As far as I am concerned I will have nothing to do with questionable activities of that kind.

Hon. Léopold Langlois: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, I must inform the Senate that if the Honourable Senator Langlois speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading of this bill.

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, I shall open my remarks by dealing with the comments made by Senator Grosart of Friday last. He took the same line of discussion as was taken this evening by his leader when he attacked the "huge sum" provided in the supplementary estimates. He attributes to me the promise that these would be the last and final estimates. I never said anything of the kind. A reference to page 704 of Debates of the Senate, of March 21, will indicate that I merely mentioned:

The bill introduced today provides for full supply for the fourth and final supplementary estimates which total $1,917,165,212.

That is all I said.

Senator Grosart: If it is final, is it not the last?

Senator Langlois: If you wish to look on that as a promise or an undertaking, then you can do that. But if you think I can say this, then you are barking up the wrong tree. I am not qualified to make such a promise because the introduction of supplementary estimates is in the domain of the Minister of Finance, and they are introduced in the other place as a result of a message from the Governor General. If my honourable friend did not know that, then he has learned something tonight.

Senator Grosart: May I ask the deputy leader if he contemplates that there might be an "after final" supplementary estimate?

Senator Langlois: No, I made that statement, and that is all that I made. There was no undertaking or promise given. I think I have proven that point.

Then we come to the so-called "huge amount" of these estimates. I agreed the other day that this was an exceptionally high amount for the final supplementary estimates, but I explained this in my remarks, and I quote again from page 704 of Hansard:

The main reason for the revisions in the statutory costs is the increase in payments to provinces under the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act. The adjustments to accounts consist of three items: payment into the old age security fund to cover a deficit of some $700 million, the operating capital costs involved in the transfer from the Minister of Transport to the Department of Public Works of the peripheral lands at Mirabel Airport in the amount of $143.575 million, and finally the forgiveness of a loan to Bangladesh in the amount of $16,466,288.

These were the explanations.

I wish to remind my honourable friend that the amount of $143 million to cover the transfer of peripheral lands from one department to another is not in real terms an expenditure, and he should bear that in mind when he is criticizing it. It would seem that $143 million is not important to him, but it is to me in explaining this bill to this house. I do not think I should have to comment further on this point.

The reason given in committee by the minister was that there was an unpredictably high rate of inflation that could not be taken care of in the main estimates, which were prepared a year and a half ago. Perhaps it is a case of the light only being on the other side of the house tonight, but I do not know how many on the other side can estimate, with any degree of accuracy, what the rate of inflation will be 12 months from now.

Senator Grosart: May I ask the deputy leader if he thinks there is the slightest possibility of any economist or anybody else even guessing at what it might be as long as the present government stays in power.

Senator Langlois: No economist, and nobody else either, could have predicted the decision of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise so drastically and unilaterally the world price of oil two years ago. No one knew that the oil price would climb that high. It was a unilateral decision taken by the OPEC countries. It was not foreseeable when the main estimates were prepared. This is recognized the world over as being the main source of the inflation problem the world is living with today.

• (2100)

Senator Grosart: Would the honourable deputy leader not, in the interests of reality—

Senator Langlois: I know you are following your general practice of interrupting my speech every two minutes or so, but go on.

Senator Grosart: When I rose I asked if the honourable deputy leader would object to my asking a question. If he objects, that is all right.

Senator Langlois: Do you call that a question?

Senator Grosart: If he objects, I will not ask it.

Senator Langlois: You have been doing that ever since I started introducing these bills in the house. Every time I utter a phrase that you do not like, you rise to interrupt my line of thought. But you will not succeed.

Senator Grosart: All you need do is say that you do not wish to be interrupted.

Senator Flynn: Don't lose your temper.

Senator Langlois: I am not losing my temper. The Minister of Finance has explained that he has asked the heads of departments to exercise restraint. We have a long list of $1 items which puts in black and white the effects of this request by the President of the Treasury Board when he asked the heads of departments to exercise restraint.

These $1 items are to transfer funds from one vote to another in order to take care of over-runs in any program or vote. I have also explained that, and that is why my friend usually objects to this long list of $1 items each year. He says that the minister should have exercised that restraint earlier, that he should have done it a year and a half ago when he figured out what the main expenditures would be. Having all that information now, it is very easy to criticize ex post facto. Anyone can be an expert in that field if he waits until after the events to form an opinion and say that we should have done this or that. Anyone can be an expert in those circumstances.

Senator Grosart: So we should never criticize.

Senator Langlois: The other day my honourable friend mentioned two loans made to Canadair. He referred with particular emphasis to the loan of $3.5 million to Canadair, which is related to the option agreement into which the government entered to buy the shares of Canadair. He forgot to mention one important point. He said that this was an interest-free loan. There is nothing further from the truth. This is explained in black and white in the agreement put before us in committee. My friend had no reason to ignore that very important part of the agreement. The loan was given as a consideration for the option. This was explained, and I have the agreement here. If you wish, I will quote part of it. It was explained that this loan was given because Canadair and General Dynamics were asking for security to cover the good faith of the government in asking for this option. Instead of making a very high deposit, the government agreed to make a loan to Canadair for the important reason—and this was omitted by my honourable friend—that the agreement provided for the assets of Canadair to be frozen for the lifetime of the option period. Canadair was not permitted to sell, dispose of, or otherwise alienate its assets. These assets were frozen and Canadair and General Dynamics deserve some kind of compensation. We cannot ask a company to freeze its assets for a period of seven or eight months without compensation for the inconvenience created by such a clause in an agreement. As anyone with any experience at all in legal matters knows, it is normal practice to require a deposit to guarantee the good faith of an optioner in any option agreement.

I am now returning to this interest-free feature of the loan. It was understood and it is provided in the agreement that this loan is repayable forthwith as soon as the option lapses, reaches its end, which is October 1975, or when the government decides not to take the option or to buy the company. Then, if at that time, when this maturity date is reached, Canadair does not repay the loan, which is due immediately at that date, it must pay interest at 9½ per cent as soon as the loan becomes overdue. Also, if the option is exercised, the loan automatically becomes repayable with interest at 9½ per cent. So it can hardly be termed a tax-free loan.

Senator Flynn: We never criticized that. I do not know why the honourable deputy leader becomes excited about that. There was never any criticism of that. The only problem was that of confidentiality, which was cleared up in committee.

Senator Langlois: Yes, and I could tell you a very funny story about this.

Senator Grosart: Just this once, would the deputy leader—

Senator Langlois: Is this a question?

Senator Grosart: Yes, this is a question. Would he agree that I meant no criticism whatsoever of the interest-free loan and would he permit me to read the exact words I used?

I said:

The purpose of this loan item is to provide for an option agreement on the purchase of that company, and instead of making some payment in respect of that option agreement, the contractual arrangement is that the government will loan Canadair Limited $3.3 million interest free over the term of the option agreement.

Senator Langlois: Yes, you have it there.

Senator Grosart: Yes, I made it very clear, as clear as could be. "Instead of making some payment in respect—" That is exactly what the deputy leader is saying, and I rise only because I am becoming a little sick of his comment about someone with legal experience.

Senator Langlois: I don't know if you have legal experience; I am not challenging that.

Senator Grosart: I am just pointing out that I made no such criticism.

Senator Langlois: My learned friend read his sentence out of context. In that sentence was the term "interest-free." It is important to explain why it was made that way, and that is exactly what I am telling the house tonight.

Senator Grosart: I said that it was an interest-free loan in that—

Senator Langlois: This is another question, I suppose?

Senator Grosart: Go ahead, but you are completely misrepresenting me and you know it.

Senator Flynn: He likes to argue tonight.

Senator Grosart: I know.

Senator Langlois: My honourable friend also mentioned this other loan of $25 million for the program of water bombers. A lengthy statement from the minister, tabled in the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance, explained in detail why this loan was made. It was the second, if not the third, of such loans made to Canadair. It was made, before any such option was contemplated, to permit Canadair to build these water bombers in order to satisfy the demand of the world market. Under this plan, some 50 aircraft have been built so far. Forty aircraft are already sold, and this vote is to provide for the building of 15 additional aircraft. That is a consideration of the loan. I should add that we were informed in committee that all the conditions of the loan had not been agreed to. This will be done by Governor in Council, and we will be provided with this information at a later date.

● (2110)

The Deputy Leader of the Opposition mentioned also a request he made in committee regarding the possibility of the Treasury Board showing in their estimates the expenditures which could be considered as investments rather than operating expenditures. He was informed by the Deputy Secretary of the Treasury Board that it would not be an easy task, although such a list was being provided in the main estimates.

[Senator Langlois.]

As the deputy secretary mentioned, any expenditure, on the one hand, could be considered an investment, but, on the other, it could not be considered an investment. Senator Grosart added that all he was interested in—I stand to be corrected—were those expenditures for which there could be an expectation of refunding or recovery. He was told that it was not an easy task, yet he received a firm undertaking from the Deputy Secretary of the Treasury Board that he would endeavour to provide that information in the next estimates. Again, I wish to underline the position taken by officials of the Treasury Board that it is not an easy task, but they would do their best to comply with the request.

In Senator Grosart's speech, there was also reference to the extension of the system of Interprovincial Pipe Line Limited from Sarnia to Montreal. In discussing the provision for deficiency payments in the agreement between IPL and the government, he criticized the fact that apparently there was no monitoring by the government of the construction costs. If my honourable friend again reads the agreement, he will find that in it there is a safeguard provision, in that the accounting will be checked and audited. He mentioned that there was the possibility of arbitration and reference to the Federal Court. In the event of a disagreement, there is provision for joint auditing by auditors appointed by both sides. If agreement cannot be reached, there is recourse to arbitration, and, finally, reference to the Federal Court, if necessary.

The minister explained to the committee—to my satisfaction, at least—that due care would be taken in the course of audits to ensure that no undue costs were included in the construction costs of the pipeline, which naturally would have to be taken into account in recognizing any deficiency payments to be made to IPL. The minister was quite clear and definite on this point, and I believe the agreement is in accord with what he said at that time.

It can be safely said that this is another great venture, very much in the interests of Canada, and everything has been done to work out a deed which is as foolproof as possible. In my opinion, no deed can be considered absolutely foolproof, but this agreement is as foolproof as any agreement could be.

I come now to the remarks made this evening by the Leader of the Opposition. I was not surprised; I rather expected the Leader of the Opposition to rehash what took place in December when we debated the bill relating to supplementary estimates which was introduced, if my memory serves me correctly, in the other place on December 10, and finally passed by the Senate on December 19. The bill was introduced in the Senate—again, I am speaking from memory; I did not have time to check the dates from the Debates of the Senate—on December 11, and it was before us until December 19.

Senator Flynn: Imagine, one full week. Awful!

Senator Langlois: If you call that a rush, you are rushing slowly, my friend.

Senator Flynn: You seem to think that we delayed passage of the bill.

Senator Langlois: I am not complaining about that. That is where your imagination is getting hold of you. I did not, during the course of the debate, bring any pressure to bear on anyone. It is not my habit to do so, and I have not done so tonight. My honourable friend came back with this objection which he raised in December. He did not even have the merit of originating this argument. It was raised in the other place by a party colleague of his, Mr. Stevens, who made the discovery that there was a new clause in the supply bill, clause 5, which provided for a borrowing authority of $2.5 billion. He claimed that since clause 5 of the bill was not included in the message from the Governor General in commending the estimates to the house, that it was illegal.

The leader of the house in the other place, apparently taken by surprise—I do not want to make any excuse for him—readily agreed that apparently a mistake had been made and promised that it would not be repeated.

I said quite frankly, when we discussed this in December, that it was not good enough, because if there were an illegality in the bill, it could not be cured by a promise that it would not be repeated. But when the bill reached the Senate, I studied the situation and reached the conclusion that it was not necessary for the message to contain clause 5, because clause 5 provided merely for a borrowing authority which could not be considered as an expenditure and therefore did not require a recommendation from His Excellency. I was not content with my own research, but checked with the Department of Justice, and was confirmed in my opinion without any reservation.

I gave this information to the Senate, but my word was not accepted. I do not blame the Leader of the Opposition for not accepting it, but I do blame him when, two days later, after I returned with a written opinion from the Deputy Minister of Justice, who is charged with the legislation, stating that he supported my opinion without any reservations—and this was confirmed by the Clerk of the Senate—he again did not accept my word and the independent written opinions.

He then wanted the bill referred to the National Finance Committee for the purpose of getting Mr. Ryan or Mr. Gibson, from the Department of Justice, to appear before the committee to confirm that the letter I had in my hand—and which I had shown to Senator Flynn before the sitting—was really a letter which had come from the Department of Justice. That was going a bit too far.

● (2120)

At that time I would have been prepared to accede, but I reminded the Senate of an objection raised two days earlier by Senator Hicks who had referred the Senate to the Forms and Proceedings which form appendix II to our rules. When that reference was made by Senator Hicks, Senator Flynn took the position that the Forms and Proceedings were antiquated. I then referred honourable senators to the footnote at the bottom of page 94 of the rules, which reads as follows:

These forms and proceedings, formerly known as "Forms of Proceedings" have been revised in accordance with present practice and the new rules of the Senate. They are included as an appendix to the rules pursuant to the order of the Senate dated December 10, 1968.

How can we call these Forms and Proceedings antiquated when they were recognized by our Rules Committee in 1968 as being "in accordance with present practice"?

Our rules clearly state that a supply bill shall not be referred to a committee of this house. That is based on a quotation which, unfortunately, I do not have before me.

Senator Flynn: It is all well and good to refer to general words, but you should be prepared to point to the very fact.

Senator Langlois: It is in our rules. Perhaps my honourable friend will give me a few moments to find it.

Senator Flynn: If you want to rehash the whole thing—

Senator Langlois: You started it.

Senator Flynn: I did not refer to that point at all. I referred only to the problem of referring a supply bill to a committee. In any event, if you want to rehash it, do so properly. What Senator Hicks quoted was a decision of many years ago. Simply because it is reported in our rules, or in an appendix to our rules, is not to say that it has meaning today.

Senator Grosart: These are not rules; they have no authority whatsoever.

Senator Flynn: If you want to rehash it, go ahead. I do not know what is the matter with the Deputy Leader tonight. He does not want anything left on the record without a reply, even if it is a bad one.

Senator Grosart: He does not want royal assent tonight.

Senator Flynn: He will not get it.

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, I do not know whether that is in the form of a question.

Senator Flynn: If that is the way in which you want to discuss this matter, we will do likewise.

Senator Langlois: Senator Hicks is in his seat this evening. Perhaps he has the reference at hand.

Senator Hicks: At the time I quoted from Bourinot.

Senator Flynn: Yes, that is right.

Senator Langlois: Exactly.

Senator Flynn: You quoted from Bourinot.

Senator Langlois: It is contained in our rules. The reference to Bourinot is just that, a reference.

Senator Flynn: It is a quotation from Bourinot in our rules.

Senator Langlois: No, it is not. If my honourable friend will give me a few moments I will find it.

Senator Flynn: You are wasting the time of the Senate.

Senator Langlois: You wanted it, so you will get it.

Senator Asselin: We are ready to sit all night. There is no problem.

Senator Flynn: We will go until tomorrow. That will be the end of it. I have had enough.

Senator Langlois: What is this?

Senator Flynn: If you want the bill to go over until tomorrow, that's fine.

Senator Langlois: I am prepared to sit all night. I am ready to sit on Easter Sunday, too.

Senator Flynn: You are being vindictive. One cannot say a word in disagreement. You get carried away.

Senator Langlois: I will find the exact reference.

Senator Flynn: It is on page 136.

Senator Langlois: Thank you.

Senator Flynn: The note is: "See Bourinot, Fourth Edition, page 443 and 444."

Senator Langlois: I will read what was quoted by Senator Hicks. I thank my honourable friend for helping me find it. What I am quoting is not from Bourinot. It states:

Supply bills are not referred to a committee of the whole or to a select committee. However, the estimates on which a supply bill is based are referred to the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance when they are tabled in the Senate.

Following that there is the reference: "See Bourinot, Fourth Edition, pages 443 and 444." That is merely a reference. What I have quoted is not a citation from Bourinot. The words I have quoted are not in quotation marks.

Senator Flynn: We will discuss it.

Senator Langlois: They are part of our rules.

Senator Benidickson: Honourable senators, I am wondering whether either Senator Flynn or Senator Langlois, both of whom have referred to this debate—and which I recall—could give us the date on which it took place.

Senator Langlois: It started on December 11 and ended December 17, 1974.

Senator Benidickson: And it was in relation to Bill C-42?

Senator Langlois: Yes. My honourable friend does not appear to accept that explanation. That is up to him. I know he will tell me it is not an argument. I am not putting it forward as an argument.

When this bill was before the other place, this point was not raised at all. There was no mention at all of the borrowing authority included in this bill. The other place was aware of the debate which took place in the Senate in relation to the borrowing authority included in Bill C-42. I take that as acceptance by the other place of the practice which has been followed since Confederation. I have gone that far back to check it. It has always been the practice of the government to take advantage of the vehicle of a supply bill to obtain this borrowing authority by adding a clause which merely says that borrowing authority for so much is being provided for general purposes. This has been done since Confederation. All parties over the years have agreed with this. It was raised for the first time in the Senate in connection with Bill C-42, and when this present bill was introduced in the other place, the same procedure was followed. There was not one single observation made as to the legality of that procedure, in spite of the fact that they were aware of the debate which took place in the Senate on Bill C-42.

[Senator Flynn.]

Senator Flynn also discussed at some length the item in the present bill concerning Mr. Caouette. As he said, this was discussed at some length in committee. The position taken by Treasury Board, and rightly so, was that this did not amount to an amendment of section 10 of the Senate and House of Commons Act. The reason put forward by the Treasury Board officials for that position was that this is merely a suspension of the requirement under section 10 of the Senate and House of Commons Act in respect of the number of members of a recognized party. It says, "notwithstanding Section 10 of the Senate and House of Commons Act".

Senator Flynn: That is what I said.

Senator Langlois: You said that it was a change. It is a suspension.

Senator Flynn: A suspension is not a change?

Senator Langlois: The reason why Mr. Caouette had to be named specifically, to my mind, is that this suspension is valid only from the date of the last election to the end of the fiscal year ending March 31, 1975. Next year if there is another man in Mr. Caouette's place in the other house they would have to have a new name, and they would have to have a separate item if they want to carry on with this practice. I am not defending the point.

• (2130)

Senator Flynn: That is what I said. You are saying exactly the same thing as I said. You seem to be arguing with me tonight every time I am in agreement with you, except that you seem to use words other than those that I used.

Senator Langlois: If I have been making your remarks clearer to the house I think it was a worthwhile exercise.

Senator Grosart: You have been making it more confusing.

Senator Langlois: I am afraid you are confused by the truth. The point is that this is not an amendment; it is a temporary feature.

Senator Flynn: That is what I said.

Senator Langlois: It is a suspension of a section in the law for a limited time, which is the balance of the current fiscal year.

Senator Asselin: You admit that this is a precedent created by the House of Commons and the government.

Senator Langlois: By the House of Commons, yes.

Senator Asselin: And the government?

Senator Flynn: By us too.

Senator Langlois: It is a precedent. I do not know of any other precedent of that kind. I must admit that.

Senator Choquette: Do you know the reason?

Senator Langlois: Not in the other place.

Senator Choquette: It is compensation for past services.

Senator Langlois: "Past services" being what? Fighting the Liberal Party? The big opposition in the Province of Quebec is not the Conservatives; it is the Creditistes. Everyone in that province knows that.

Senator Flynn: That is why you are staying in office.

Senator Langlois: It is a reason to explain your defeat, but I am not an expert in your own field.

Senator Asselin: You should question Senator Bourget about that.

Senator Langlois: If I may repeat in a different way what my honourable friend said, if I understood him correctly, it was that this is a hidden way of doing things.

Senator Flynn: Certainly.

Senator Langlois: It is in black and white there. Even in the $1 items this item was put in evidence. In no way was it hidden. It was there for everyone to see. Although it is a very minor point, I am not prepared to accept that argument.

Honourable senators, I am sorry if in the course of my remarks I have, as usual, been too direct with my friends opposite. I have done so to try, in my usual way, to deal with situations as I see them. The only thing I have in mind is to try, if at all possible, to throw more light on the subject in our debates.

I do not want my remarks tonight to be interpreted as my saying that I am opposed to the work done by our Standing Committee on National Finance. I am an active member of that committee, which is doing a wonderful job. If our rules permitted it, I would not be opposed to all bills dealing with financial matters being referred to such a committee. However, we have to bear in mind that the role of the Senate in money matters, in appropriations, is a very limited one indeed, and I do not think anyone would challenge that. This is one of the reasons why it has been accepted as a practice in this house—and it is evidenced by our rules—that these bills should not be referred to a standing committee for further scrutiny. The estimates are sent there, and they are discussed at length.

This year the bill that is presently before us was before the committee on four different occasions. We had two ministers in attendance. We had the President of the Privy Council, the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, the Deputy Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce, and other officials of all those departments. The Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources had some ten, if not fifteen, officials with him, who in turn came before the committee to answer specific and complex questions. We had all the information in the world. All the information we wanted to have was there for our begging. I think this is a marvellous way of dealing with the estimates, and in doing that wonderful job the Senate has so far obtained great results.

The other day Senator Grosart said—and I was ready to support him—that it was thanks to the Senate that today we have before us a detailed list of these $1 items, and this year the other place decided to follow suit. During Senator Grosart's speech I was pleased to say that the Senate had again led the way, and my honourable friend agreed. This is one of the results we have achieved, and I trust that we will carry on this good work so that we will obtain still further and better results in the future.

Motion agreed to and bill read the second time.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Flynn: Next sitting.

The Hon. the Speaker: It is moved by the Honourable Senator Flynn—

Senator Flynn: No, I am not moving anything.

Senator Langlois: I move that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting of the Senate.

Motion agreed to.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, with leave, I should like to make a statement with respect to the West Coast Ports Operations Bill—Bill C-56—which is before the other place. We have been informed that members of that house are now in the process of giving third reading to this very urgent piece of legislation. There is a real possibility that Bill C-56 will come to the Senate for action this evening. I felt that honourable senators would like to know of this possibility. It has not been finally determined yet, but we may have this legislation before us in the next fifteen minutes or so.

Honourable senators, I move that we adjourn during pleasure to the call of the bell in approximately 20 minutes from now.

● (2140)

Senator Flynn: I have no real objection to that, but it seems to me that there should be a time limit on it. After all, it has to be done with the unanimous consent of the Senate, and, in my opinion, if we do not receive the bill before 10.15, nothing would be gained by dealing with it tonight, because whether we pass it late tonight or early tomorrow morning they cannot resume work before Wednesday morning. In other words, I think we have to be reasonable when asking for unanimous consent.

Senator Perrault: Of course. In the present climate of uncertainty I quite agree with the remarks of the Leader of the Opposition. Perhaps it would be more appropriate to adjourn until 10.30 tonight. In the interim I would appreciate the opportunity of discussing the forthcoming course of action with the Leader of the Opposition.

Senator Flynn: Agreed.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 10.20 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

WEST COAST PORTS OPERATIONS BILL, 1975

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-56, to provide for the resumption and continuation of longshoring and related operations at ports on the west coast of Canada.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that this bill be read the second time now.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, the house has heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Hon. Raymond J. Perrault: Honourable senators, may I, by way of explanation, note the fact that there have been some minor amendments to Bill C-56. The copies of Bill C-56 which have been distributed in the Senate do not include these amendments, but I understand that copies of these amendments are now being distributed. For that reason, it is not necessary for me to read them to the Senate.

Honourable senators are aware that the bill before us, with its amendments, contains the legislative proposals respecting longshoring and related operations at ports on the West Coast. These proposals have won overwhelming support in the other place. Indeed, I understand there was unanimous support there. I will refer to these proposals in some detail a little later, but first it would be helpful and appropriate to recall some of the pertinent background facts and events that have led to the introduction of these proposals.

The West Coast Ports Operations Bill, 1975 has, as its principal subjects, some 4,000 non-supervisory and supervisory longshoremen represented by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the British Columbia Maritime Employers' Association representing some 61 companies.

As honourable senators realize, we are contending here with two distinctly separate yet related dispute situations. With respect to the non-supervisory longshoremen who are represented by seven locals of the ILWU, a legal strike began on March 2 after unsuccessful attempts to negotiate a revision of their collective agreement which expired on December 31, 1974.

It should be pointed out that during negotiations both the union and the employers made firm recommendations that no conciliation board or conciliation commissioner should be appointed in these disputes. In fact, it was suggested by the parties that possibly conciliation board reports were partially to blame for past strikes in the port of Vancouver as such reports were invariably rejected by one side or the other, and a strike ensued. The parties felt confident that if left to their own devices, settlement could be reached in direct negotiation without resort to strike or lockout. To give the parties full opportunity to work out a mutually arrived at settlement, the conciliation procedures were waived and the parties so notified on December 31, 1974.

The parties resumed direct negotiations early in the new year. These negotiations reached an impasse, and on January 23 the union membership voted heavily in favour of strike action. Negotiations resumed following the taking of a strike vote. After a final week of very intensive negotiations an impasse was reached on March 1.

[The Hon. the Speaker.]

On March 2 last, the union called a legal strike affecting dock operations at 11 ports—Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster, Prince Rupert, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Chemainus, Harmac, Crofton, Cowichan Bay and Squamish.

Five days later William Kelly, the Department of Labour Assistant Deputy Minister for Industrial Relations, was appointed as mediator in the dispute. On March 16, following an intensive mediation session, this skilled negotiator succeeded in bringing the parties to a settlement, a settlement subject to ratification by the union membership. So at this stage there was reason for optimism, and particularly so when a union caucus of 55 delegates subsequently voted 67 per cent in favour of endorsing the terms of the settlement. However, as we know, this was not the attitude of the rank-and-file union membership, of whom some 55 per cent voted to reject the mediated settlement, and 45 per cent voted in favour of it.

Thus the strike continues, and so, too, continues the disruption and damage not only to many sectors of the Canadian economy, but also to those foreign countries suffering unfulfilled grain contracts. As we know, the Canadian Wheat Board has undertaken substantial commitments to many overseas customers, of whom Japan has already made alternative arrangements. This is but one very disconcerting aspect of this continuing dispute. Not only have Canadian shipments fallen seriously behind by some 60 million bushels during the current grain year, but our grain transportation facilities, the farmers and other sectors, are now facing severe strains which cannot be permitted to continue.

The mediated settlement appears to have been a most reasonable one, and it is difficult to comprehend the reasons for its final rejection by the union membership. This rejected package, this negotiated arrangement, this proposed settlement, provided for a wage increase of $1.95 an hour over two years, $1.15 in the first year and 80 cents in the second.

Honourable senators will agree that it is a difficult decision for a Minister of Labour and any government, regardless of its political persuasion, to conclude that collective bargaining has run its full course, and other measures must be taken to terminate a dispute having a serious effect on the economy of the nation, and, in this instance, having worldwide effects when starving people are asking for our aid.

One might ask: Would a further mediation attempt be successful? In the light of past experience there would appear to be little hope for early resolution of the dispute if this course of action were to be followed. In the 1969-70 dispute, for example, between the same parties, mediated settlements, with the participation of Mr. William Kelly, were obtained three times and rejected by the union before a fourth mediated settlement was subsequently ratified.

● (2230)

While I am sure that it is not the wish of any government, or of any Canadian political party and its representatives, to advance and support legislation curtailing the collective bargaining process, I am also sure that honourable senators will agree, along with our colleagues in the other place, that we have reached a stage in the dispute where there is no alternative.

I would now refer to the second dispute situation involving 13 West Coast stevedoring companies and the ship and dock foremen, Local 514, of the ILWU. This case surrounds in part the application of Local 514 for certification by the Canada Labour Relations Board, and the parties' attempt to negotiate a first contract. Some eight months ago the union was certified by the board as bargaining agent for units of foremen for 12 or 13 companies. The exception at that time involved Pacific Coast Terminals Limited, which was subsequently certified in January of this year. However, these certifications shortly became the subject of proceedings instituted in the Federal Court by the employers against the decisions of the Canada Labour Relations Board. Nonetheless, the parties held separate and joint meetings in direct negotiations, which were unsuccessful to the extent that the conciliation officer was appointed to deal with the 13 collective bargaining disputes. Again a settlement was not forthcoming, and the union had the right to strike as of January 8. No further conciliation efforts were advanced. Further inability to reach an agreement culminated on March 22 in the foremen setting up picket lines at all 13 company locations involved.

I have already made brief mention of the damaging situation which now exists as a result of the first mentioned strike. That this situation cannot be allowed to continue is self-evident. Therefore the West Coast Ports Operations Bill, 1975, the measure before us, orders the immediate resumption of both non-supervisory and supervisory longshoring and related operations. With respect to the strike of non-supervisory employees, their strike will cease immediately on the coming into force of this legislation, and they will return to work under the terms of their collective agreement which expired December 31, 1974. This extended collective agreement will expire on December 31, 1976, or whenever a new agreement or an amended agreement comes into force before that date. No strike or lockout is to be permitted during the entire term of this extended agreement. An arbitrator is to be appointed to whom will be referred all matters relating to the amendment and revision of the collective agreement that are in dispute. The arbitrator's decisions together with other amendments previously agreed to by the parties will constitute a new collective agreement that will be in effect from January 1, 1975.

With respect to the dispute involving the supervisory employees, that is, of Local 514, their right to strike will cease immediately on the coming into force of this legislation, and they will also return to work on the same terms and conditions as applied before the work stoppage.

No company may alter any term or condition without union agreement. No strike or lockout is to be permitted prior to the establishment of a collective agreement. An arbitrator is to be appointed to whom will be referred all matters in dispute between the companies and the union.

May I say with respect to the amendments—copies of which have now, I understand, been made available to all members of the Senate—that these amendments are essentially technical only to satisfy the legal draft people. They are not amendments in substance. For example, the amendment in clause 4 adds “forthwith” to indicate an immediate return to work. This was added to remove the possibility of any ambiguity with respect to the necessity to get back on the job.

The amendment proposed to clause 7—and honourable senators have their copies of the measure before them—is to stipulate a time within which the arbitrator must report. Clause 13 is treated in the same way. Thus clause 7 and clause 13 both relate to the time in which the arbitrator must report. These are important technical additions. In other words, the action contemplated by the government is not designed to prolong indefinitely the report of the arbitrator after he assumes his duties.

The amendment to clause 16 was put in to change the previously designated “persons” to “employer or employee organizations.” Clause 17 ties in with the previous amendment and represents no substantive change.

Honourable senators, members of the other place, together with the members of this house, have become increasingly concerned about the disruption in our external trade with other nations, and I think there is an overwhelming view in both Houses of Parliament that the kind of urgent action which is being contemplated here this evening is very much in the public interest. Therefore, I would urge the support of all honourable senators, wherever they sit in the Senate.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, I am quite certain that no one in this chamber is very happy at the prospect of dealing with this piece of legislation in these circumstances. It is not, of course, the first time we have had to tackle such a problem. But at least on other occasions we have had more than a few hours and certainly more than a few minutes, to deal with a bill of this type. It is quite certain that no one here will be able to absorb and digest the legislation in detail. We know what its purpose is; we believe generally that it is adequate, and we hope that it will be effective; but that is all. We are here to solve in a few minutes a problem that is not entirely recent. But we are used to the present government's attitude towards these problems. It waits until it cannot do otherwise, and then it acts. It introduces legislation, rushes it through the House of Commons and rushes it through the Senate by declaring that we have no time, no option and any delay would be harmful to Canada. It is done with other types of legislation, too. We are told that if we delay we will create problems. But, if we have no choice, then so be it. However, I think I sense the mood of the Senate. I think I am right in saying that we are not happy and that this sort of situation is really one that should not repeat itself. But then, I have said that before, haven't I? And here we are again, faced with yet another of these situations. Honourable senators realize, I am sure, that the situation in Canada with regard to labour is very difficult. It is not one that has fallen upon us suddenly. During 1974 the work stoppages caused Canada a loss of more than 9 million man-days of work. The total number of man-days lost was exactly 9,255,120, which is a record in man-days of work lost. It represents an increase of no less than 67 per cent over the preceding year, because in 1973, 5,776,140 man-days were lost in 724 work stoppages, involving 348,527 employees. In the period between 1970 and 1973 Canada lost more days through labour disputes than any other major industrialized country with the exception of Italy. This has been put on the record before in this house. It seems that we cannot even be best at what is worst. Certainly we have nothing to be proud of in the field of labour and labour relations.

● (2240)

As you know, 1975 is a year in which a record number of wage contracts come up for renegotiation, raising the possibility of further strikes disrupting industrial production and the delivery of that production. Strikes such as that of the longshoremen on the West Coast, if allowed to continue, could have catastrophic effects on our economy. At some point we must draw the line. At some point government must say that this has gone on too long, this is far enough, this is having, or threatens to have, too serious an effect upon the economic welfare of the country. In my estimation, that point in the case of this strike was reached some time ago.

Let us look at what has been happening out on the West Coast. The longshoremen's strike which this bill, I hope, will force to an end, is the third major strike to hit the port of Vancouver in the past six months. It has crippled the movement of grain to the country's most important customers and is posing serious questions as to the future of what is still the biggest grain port in the world. Over a quarter of this country's exports move through Vancouver harbour. But no grain has moved out of Vancouver since February 18 and in the first six months of the 1974-75 crop year, which began last August, grain export facilities were shut down 36 per cent of the time. Grain company executives say that the port's global reputation is being destroyed by industrial strikes. Our reliability as an exporter has been put in serious doubt. Our image abroad as compared with those of our principal competitors has never been more critical. At present there are 33 empty vessels waiting to load at Vancouver, and 15,000 boxcars are backed up in the West waiting to get into the port. Probably the saddest and most scandalous aspect of this strike is that some of the grain that has not been moved was destined for Bangladesh, where every day thousands die of starvation.

These stoppages of work in the last six months have followed in the wake of the worst grain loading delays on record. These delays cost the grain farmer $17 million in late delivery penalty payments in the 1973-74 crop year. They are expected to go even higher this year. Canada sells 60 million bushels of wheat annually to Japan. Recently because of the uncertainty of delivery by Canadian suppliers, Japan has switched to the American market.

This strike which we are legislating to an end could not have come at a worse time. The port of Vancouver has not recovered from the 1974 stoppages and the railways, which had serious problems in moving grain to port, were about ready to make a major effort to catch up when the federal blue-collar workers struck.

We are also threatened now with the eventual loss of our best grain customer. Delivery on our contract with China is five months behind schedule and the Chinese are unlikely to get all their wheat before the end of May, at the earliest. Some day soon we may be forced to limit sales of grain through West Coast ports to 20 million bushels a month, or less. This will greatly affect our competitive position. The port of Vancouver is threatened with death. It is no longer trusted and has lost its credibility in the eyes of exporters and importers, foreign and Canadian. This government has shown itself once more to be completely lacking in leadership. Only when the situation is completely intolerable does this government move to act.

[Senator Flynn.]

For several years now we have been asking the government to introduce legislation setting down a course to be followed in the case of strikes in the public service which have serious detrimental effects on the economy. Some years ago the government asked our grain farmers to stop growing grain because they could not sell it. Then, as a result of no great display of initiative on the part of the government, we were faced with a rush of orders. So large were the orders that we had a hard time filling them. These days farmers are supposed to be growing for all they are worth, but the problem is now, of course, that we cannot deliver the stuff.

All this is insane and it is time order was restored. This bill is not the best way to handle such a problem, but we are forced into having to proceed in this manner because the government, I repeat, refuses to consider a more ordered way of dealing with such matters. Until we regularize our method of dealing with situations which endanger the welfare of Canada, we will have to periodically appear to be doing violence to the principle of free collective bargaining.

I do not plan to go into the details of the strike. The arithmetic does not interest me. Nor am I particularly concerned right now with who is right or who is wrong. My concern is with the necessity of the government's coming forward once and for all with legislation that will provide a mechanism to deal with these situations.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear!

Senator Flynn: I remember very well the last time we had to deal with a strike, also affecting the port of Vancouver, when the Leader of the Government informed us that the government was considering legislation of the type I am referring to. Well, it was not the first time we had received such an assurance, and nothing has been done, and nothing appears to be going to be done. I hope that this bill, which we are going to pass in the Senate in a matter of an hour or so, to which the House of Commons was unable to devote more than five or six hours, will cure this present problem.

● (2250)

I hope this situation will impress upon the government the determination to do something about these problems and not use Parliament as a mere tool to solve a problem, that when there is nothing else to be done the government will say to the workers, "Go back to work," and, to the employers, "Take them back," and use the arbitrator to force a solution on them, as we are bound to do here. The time has come when the government should realize that this is not the way to solve the labour problems with which we are faced in Canada. I hope we shall not have to come back next week or in a few days to settle another problem.

Very well, we are passing this legislation. It will receive royal assent tonight. An order will be given tomorrow to the employees and employers to return to work. But a lot of the damage which has been done will not be repaired. It could have been had the government acted before. I hope that this legislation will at least stop the damage, but it should have been stopped a long time ago.

Hon. J. Harper Prowse: Honourable senators, the Leader of the Opposition has performed his duty. In my opinion, he has laid the blame unfairly on the government. The blame for the situation which has arisen, and which places us in the position of having to do something which is repugnant to everyone in both Houses of Parliament—namely, to force people back to work—rests with the negotiators representing both labour and management. Much of the problem has arisen because of incompetence on the part of negotiators on both sides to solve the situation by means of ordinary negotiation.

The right to strike is an important tradition, and has been the means of winning a great deal for labour. However, let me make it perfectly clear—and I hope my words are listened to by everyone—that if we were to have a referendum in this country today on whether the right to strike should be abolished, I have no doubt that it would be passed with an overwhelming majority. I do not think that should happen, but it is the temper of the people today.

Perhaps where we have gone wrong is by continuing to take into our labour negotiation an adversary system which we have found to be useful in solving our legal disputes. Perhaps we should try something else. Perhaps the time has come to give labour a voice on the board of directors, and to give management a voice on the board of the labour unions. That would enable sides to always know what each other is thinking and doing, and negotiations could then be undertaken on a better basis.

I cannot but feel that for some reason or other, labour or management, or both, have deliberately refused to discharge their responsibility to reach an agreement. They have thrown the matter over to us, because somehow they think that by placing us in this embarrassing and difficult position someone will not have to pay as much as they should be paying, or someone will get a little more than they might get some other way. I do not know who is to blame. Possibly both sides are to blame by failing to reach an agreement. I agree with the Leader of the Opposition to that extent. If we can devise a way to make this kind of thing unnecessary, then let us try to do so.

Hon. Hazen Argue: Honourable senators, I am sure the discussion that will ensue in this chamber this evening will not in any way unduly delay the passage of this legislation. However, I feel that I should say a few words at this time.

With regard to the present labour strike, as in most other labour strikes, it seems to me that it is the innocent who suffer most. Thus the effect of this strike at Vancouver is felt substantially on the Prairies by grain producers and others. There is a feeling of strong alienation out there, the feeling that Parliament does not understand the people on the Prairies, that in the present situation Parliament is overlooking their needs, as it has done in many other instances.

I am not an authority on the Vancouver port, but I heard a knowledgeable person say recently that in the last year the port of Vancouver had operated fully for only approximately 70 days. Whether this applies to the group now on strike, or to others, the port has not functioned as it should. The problem is not easy to solve. The whole question of labour, negotiation and settlement in the Public Service is not one that is easy to settle.

The Senate has been playing its role in endeavouring, through a joint committee of the Senate and the House of Commons, to put forward recommendations that would help settle disputes in the Public Service.

The Canadian Wheat Board has done a magnificent job on behalf of grain producers of Western Canada, so much so that over the past number of years Canadian grain producers have enjoyed higher returns than grain producers in the United States. Today, Canadian Wheat Board prices are from $1 to $1.50 a bushel higher than prices in the United States. But the Canadian Wheat Board's reputation as a source of supply of grain is being destroyed. During the past few weeks we have lost sales, and some of our best customers have gone elsewhere to obtain their wheat supplies.

In addition, farmers on the Prairies are having millions of dollars taken from their pockets because of demurrage resulting from these labour disputes.

There is no easy long-term solution. A one-man royal commission is sitting in the West, looking into some of the problems that affect labour disputes in the grain industry. Certainly some very difficult problems need to be solved over the next period in order that this kind of difficulty, which results in grain being moved in a very unsatisfactory manner, will not be repeated.

Present in the Senate gallery tonight are some distinguished representatives of grain producers from the Prairies. I am happy to see them here. They are responsible leaders, doing what they can in the interests of those they represent. If I may, I should like to tender them some advice. Parliamentarians do not have adequate contact with representatives and others from the Prairies, not only at times of emergency but over the course of months and years. There always appear to be difficulties on the Prairies with regard to dealings with the federal government. It has always disturbed me that issues which are directed against Ottawa—the anti-Ottawa campaign, so to speak—are heard almost exclusively on the Prairies, but are not heard in Ottawa. This may be understandable.

● (2300)

When meetings are held on the Prairies, they receive good coverage locally, but hardly a trickle in Ottawa. My suggestion is that there should be a continuing closer contact between the people on the Prairies, the agricultural producers, in particular, and their representatives in Parliament, in both the House of Commons and the Senate.

I could mention other issues along the line of the kind of issue we are discussing this evening that provide very difficult problems in relations between the people on the Prairies and the Parliament of Canada. I might mention the Crowsnest Pass rates, for one. I might mention inland terminals, and I might mention the proposed taxation of cooperatives which was brought forward some years ago. As a matter of fact, I hear a disturbing amount of discussion that this kind of a taxation proposal, or some other kind of taxation proposal, in respect of cooperatives might be back again.

These are the types of problems which should be discussed before they arise, before they come to a head, rather than having a head-on collision at some point in the future. My suggestion is that in the days ahead there should be closer contact between the producers on the Prairies, who are adversely affected by this kind of situation, and parliamentarians so that everything that may reasonably be done to prevent this kind of legislation having to be brought forward can be done. Perhaps by looking at these problems in this way, better solutions, more lasting solutions, more satisfactory solutions may in fact be achieved.

Senator Forsey: Honourable senators, I wonder if I might ask the Leader of the Government a question on a matter which I am not quite clear about? He spoke as if there was an amendment to clause 7 providing for a time limit on the proceedings of the arbitrator. In the sheets that have been handed out to us showing the amendments, I find only the amendment to clause 13 setting this 60-day time limit.

Senator Grosart: He explained that.

Senator Forsey: Does that apply to both clauses, or just the one? I may not have a complete list of the amendments. All I have is the amendment to clause 13 and no limitation, apparently, on clause 7.

Senator Grosart: He explained that.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, I shall be pleased to attempt to clarify that matter. The original proposal was to make this amendment only to clause 7. It was later placed in an additional position in the proposed legislation, that of clause 13, as well as amending clause 13 by adding the following subclause (3) after line 2, on page 8:

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or the Canada Labour Code, the arbitrator shall be required to decide all matters referred to him under this Part within 60 days of his appointment.

The original draft listed this incorrectly, as it turned out, under clause 7, suggesting that only clause 7 be amended by adding the subclause to which I just referred after line 35 on page 4. It has now been put in in another place as well by the drafters of this legislation.

Senator Forsey: With great respect, honourable senators, I find that explanation somewhat perplexing, because Part II, in which clause 13 falls, deals only with the supervisory longshoring and related operations, and clause 7, as I understand it, deals with non-supervisory. So that it appears to me that there is a limitation on the arbitrator's time, the time in which the arbitrator must report, must render his decision, under Part II dealing with supervisory operations, but no limitation of time under Part I. I wonder if this is inadvertent, or if I merely got confused, or have the wrong document here.

Senator Prowse: The amendment applies to both clause 7 and clause 13.

[Senator Argue.]

Senator Perrault: Yes. As I said in my initial remarks, the proposal is to amend both clauses. However, in the speed with which this measure was passed in the other place, the supporting explanatory documentation simply has not caught up with the progress of the bill from the other place to the Senate chamber. The original text which I have in my hand shows clause 7, but it has been amended now to read clauses 7 and 13, so it applies to both.

Senator Forsey: I see. I did not notice that heading. Underneath it says that clause 13 be amended. It applies to both. Thank you very much.

Senator Perrault: In other words, the amending line designation, and so forth, may not be shown in particular explanatory documents made available to honourable senators, but the amendment applies to both clauses.

Senator Forsey: I am sorry I bothered you. It was just my carelessness in reading it. I wanted to be quite clear that this does apply to both parts.

Hon. Raymond J. Perrault: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: I wish to inform the Senate that if the Honourable Senator Perrault speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading of this bill.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, it is not my intention to speak at any length, but merely to thank those who have remained this evening in such great numbers to review this legislation.

Senator Asselin: Would you explain the sanctions attached to the bill?

Senator Perrault: I shall do my best to clarify that later, Senator Asselin.

No government likes to rush through any legislation in haste. Those words "in haste" were employed by the Leader of the Opposition. No government likes to act with such undue dispatch on a matter of such fundamental importance, but the suggestion that this bill is somehow a matter of panic on the part of the government, that this is the result of some sort of failure by the government to achieve an early ports settlement, is not, I believe, fair comment. In fact, the government has exhausted all of the resources available to it in trying to effect a settlement. No one has ever suggested to honourable senators that the collective bargaining process is an easy process. The political parties of Canada, all of which have supported the idea of free collective bargaining, have never once suggested to the people of Canada that there is not agony at times in this process, that people do not get hurt by strikes and lockouts. No one enjoys the process, but it is a remarkable thing that in our free society in just over 100 years of existence we have achieved one of the finest standards of living in the world. We are certainly in the top three or four nations in terms of living standards, some of which is due, I suggest, to the fact that we have in Canada a free collective bargaining process. This has meant gains, not only for labour, but for industry.

There are people, in present circumstances of disruption and unrest, who look at our free collective bargaining process and say it should be changed. There are all sorts of people with simplistic solutions who say that in all cases we should bring about immediate settlements and force people to go back to work. That may be the system in authoritarian societies, but to suggest that there is merit in compulsion as a standard method of resolving labour management disputes is a useless suggestion and a vain hope.

● (2310)

I want to assure honourable senators that when we listened tonight to the statistics cited by the Leader of the Opposition chronicling the days lost, the weeks lost and the number of labour-management disputes in this country, it brought no satisfaction to me, and it brought no satisfaction to other members of this chamber. However, I would point out to the Leader of the Opposition that most labour-management relations in Canada are not under federal jurisdiction; they are under provincial jurisdiction. I look at the Conservative government in Ontario, and I find they have discovered no magical way to bring about labour-management harmony.

When we compare the success of the federal Department of Labour and federal legislation in the matter of resolving labour-management disputes, we find out that, on the whole, it has had a far better record than provincial jurisdictions during these past ten years. And why? Because the federal government, the Government of Canada, has been seeking new ways and new initiatives to bring about labour-management harmony, such as the idea of developing industry specialists. The government rejects the concept that just a few days before the expiration of a contract is the time for labour and management to get together. As far as the federal government is concerned, this outmoded approach is out of the window. I see my good friend, the former Premier of New Brunswick, nodding his head, because he had that kind of progressive approach when he was premier of that great Maritimes province.

We believe that labour and management must discuss and work together during the life of a contract, that we need industry specialists, that we need new initiatives, that we need to improve the climate of negotiation. There have been many successes in the area of labour-management relations under federal jurisdiction, but the well-chronicled failures are the ones that get most of the attention. However, let us take nothing away from the fact that there has been remarkable progress by federal Department of Labour officials in improving labour-management relations under their jurisdiction over the past ten years.

I agree with the Leader of the Opposition when he says that we do not want Parliament to become the inevitable final step in the collective bargaining process. We do not want there to develop in Canada a situation whereby labour and management say, "Well, if we hang on long enough, or if we reject the settlement, we can always go to good old Parliament," because that is a distortion and an aberration of the free collective bargaining process.

Let us hope that this emergency measure, which I hope will enjoy the support of the Senate this evening, will be the prelude to a new era of better understanding in the ports of Canada, not only the West Coast ports but the ports on the Great Lakes and on the East Coast as well.

A few minutes ago the Leader of the Opposition, or perhaps it was some other honourable senator, correctly pointed out that the federal government is engaged in new initiatives to try to find out why we are having difficulty in moving grain through the ports of Canada. That study is under way. But let us not go for the apparently easy solution that compulsion of labour and compulsion of management will bring about general labour-management harmony in this country. Significantly, those countries with labour courts, those countries that bring down edicts settling labour-management disputes, have a worse strike record than we have in Canada. Compulsion as such, and as a rule, is not the answer.

Senator Asselin: Do you not think this bill is a compulsory means to get the workers to go back to work?

Senator Perrault: There is an element of compulsion in this, undoubtedly.

Senator Flynn: I hope so.

Senator Perrault: But I am saying that this is not the norm, nor should it be, in Canada's labour-management relations. Honourable senators are aware of what I mean. In the normal course of events we do not want to have this kind of settlement by governments, or by the courts, or by some authoritarian individual who says, "This is the way it will be."

Senator Asselin: At least twice a year.

Senator Perrault: We are not doing that.

Senator Grosart: Let the bill pass.

Senator O'Leary: Let us pass the bill.

Senator Flynn: If you do not have the last word, at least try to be very humble. This is a case for the government to be very humble.

Senator Grosart: Let the bill pass.

Senator Perrault: I think we should always be humble in public life on all occasions, wherever we sit.

Senator Flynn: Especially when you are the government you should be humble.

Senator Perrault: I was asked a question about the enforcement clause, clause 16. That clause reads:

(1) Upon application made on behalf of Her Majesty in right of Canada, the Supreme Court of British Columbia shall make an order directing any employer or employee organization named or described in the order that has failed or refused to comply with any provision of this Act, forthwith to comply with that provision, and any employer or employee organization that fails or refuses to comply with any order made by the Court under this section that is directed to it may be cited and punished by the Court as for other contempts of court.

So, if the order of the Supreme Court of British Columbia is not complied with, that is punishable as for any other contempt matter coming before the courts. On page 10 the wording is:

(2) Any person cited and punished for contempt of court under subsection (1) may appeal from the conviction, or against the punishment imposed, to the Court of Appeal for British Columbia in accordance with such directions, in lieu of the ordinary rules governing appeals to that Court, as may be given by that Court to ensure that the appeal is heard and disposed of as expeditiously as possible and in priority to all other appeals.

Senator Asselin: If the workers do not go back to work what will happen? What will be the penalty for contempt of court?

Senator Perrault: I do not have the penalty list before me this evening. It will be a fine or a term of imprisonment.

Senator Flynn: The same as anybody else.

Senator Langlois: It is treated as ordinary contempt of court.

Senator McIlraith: Perhaps, honourable senators, it would be helpful if I indicate that clause 16 provides that:

—any employer or employee organization... may be cited and punished by the Court as for other contempts of court.

Senator Asselin: To imprisonment or to pay a fine?

Senator McIlraith: There is a supplementary provision in the Criminal Code that deals with any person not following the act, so in addition to the penalty provisions in the bill itself there is the general provision in the Criminal Code that would affect persons. That is why the provision in the bill deals with employers and employee organizations only, as distinct from persons.

Senator Flynn: Usually there is a clause creating an offence for individual persons involved. I know of the Criminal Code provision to which Senator McIlraith is alluding, but usually in this kind of bill there is an enforcement clause applicable to each individual.

Senator Perrault: What I think we are looking at is a fine or term of imprisonment at the discretion of the judge if an organization is found in contempt.

Senator Flynn: No, no; it is not the same thing.

Senator Perrault: This is a matter for legal interpretation. There is perhaps some room for disagreement about that.

Senator Flynn: That is the problem of adopting a bill like this under these circumstances.

Senator Perrault: Admittedly, these are not the most desirable circumstances, but I urge support for this measure.

Motion agreed to and bill read a second time.

● (2320)

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Perrault: With leave, honourable senators, I move that it be read the third time now.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, you have heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

[Senator Perrault.]

The Hon. the Speaker: It is moved by the Honourable Senator Perrault, seconded by the Honourable Senator Langlois, that this bill be now read the third time. Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion?

Senator Flynn: Yes, but I think it should be put on record that it would have been salutary to have sent his bill to committee so as to inform honourable senators of exactly what it contains, and how it will operate.

However, we are asked once again to act with blind faith, and I suppose we have to do as we are forced to do. It is too bad, but in answer to what the Leader of the Government said a few moments ago I will merely repeat what I have already said: Let the government be humble under the circumstances and let not the government use this occasion to preach in defence of a free collective bargaining system, because what it is really doing here is imposing a form of coercion on both employers and employees.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, the government certainly appreciates the enthusiastic support of the Opposition members of the Senate.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

ROYAL ASSENT

NOTICE

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that the following communication had been received:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
OTTAWA

March 24, 1975

Madam,

I have the honour to inform you that the Honourable R. G. B. Dickson, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, in his capacity as Deputy Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 24th day of March, at 11.30 p.m. for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to certain bills.

I have the honour to be,
Madam,
Your obedient servant.
André Garneau
Brigadier General
Administrative Secretary to the
Governor General.

The Honourable
The Speaker of the Senate,
Ottawa.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 11.30 p.m. the sitting was resumed.
The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

ROYAL ASSENT

The Honourable R. G. B. Dickson, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, having come and being seated at the foot of the Throne, and the House of Commons having been summoned, and being come with their Speaker, the Honourable the Speaker of the Senate said:

Honourable members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

I have the honour to inform you that His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to cause Letters Patent to be issued under his Sign Manual and Signet constituting the Honourable R. G. B. Dickson, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, his Deputy, to do in His Excellency's name all acts on his part necessary to be done during His Excellency's pleasure.

The Commission was read by the Clerk Assistant.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to give the Royal Assent to the following bills:

An Act to provide for the resumption and continuation of longshoring and related operations at ports on the west coast of Canada.

An Act respecting Canadian business corporations.

An Act to amend the Prairies Grain Advance Payments Act.

An Act to provide for the recognition of the Beaver (Castor canadensis) as a symbol of the sovereignty of Canada.

The House of Commons withdrew.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to retire.

The sitting of the Senate was resumed.

ADJOURNMENT

EARLIER MOTION RESCINDED

Leave having been given to revert to Motions:

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave and notwithstanding rule 47(2), I move, seconded by the Honourable Senator McIlraith, that the order of the Senate of this day that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until tomorrow, Tuesday, 25 March, 1975, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, be rescinded.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, March 25, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Brewin has been substituted for that of Mr. Orlikow on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, together with a statement of accounts certified by the Auditors, for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 33 of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation Act, Chapter C-16, and sections 75(3) and 77(3) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter F-10, R.S.C., 1970.

Report respecting operations of the Medical Care Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to section 9 of the said Act, Chapter M-8, R.S.C., 1970.

HEALTH AND WELFARE

CONNAUGHT LABORATORIES LTD.—FURTHER QUESTION

Senator Sullivan: Honourable senators, I should like to comment on the replies given by Senator Perrault on Tuesday, March 11, to my questions regarding the proposed sale of land by Connaught Laboratories for high-density residential development.

First, I must emphasize that I do not wish to stress unduly the environmental hazards of hospitals and microbiological laboratories generally, with which I have been very much associated. Yet it is a sad fact that over the years many doctors and other laboratory workers have lost their lives from laboratory infections.

I must emphasize too that it is greatly to the credit of the Connaught Laboratories that there has never been in its long history, to the best of my knowledge, any case of transmission of infection from the laboratories to residents in the neighbourhood.

Some credit for this happy experience may also be due to the sustained policy of the governors of the University of Toronto to maintain a wide buffer zone of unoccupied land between the production areas of the laboratories and neighbouring residences. I know personally from my years of service on the Connaught Committee of the Governors of the University of Toronto that the maintenance of an open buffer zone around the laboratories was considered to be a policy of the utmost importance.

We must all surely realize now, as a result of recent public concern about the hazards to neighbours of lead factories and asbestos plants, how distressing and disturbing the fear of such hazards can be. Surely we do not want that kind of trouble to occur in connection with the Connaught Laboratories, which are so important to public health in Canada.

I note that Senator Perrault stated that the questions which I raised "do not come under the purview of the Department of National Health and Welfare." That being the case, I ask the following question:

Will the Government of Canada, as sole owner of Connaught Laboratories Limited, request the Ministry of Health of Ontario to monitor all proposals for residential development in close proximity to the Connaught Laboratories with the object of preventing any possible hazard to the residents of such developments or hindrance to the work of the laboratories?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, I certainly give the assurance that the inquiry will go forward with respect to the suggestion made by the honourable senator. I think it should be recalled, however, that on Tuesday, March 11, I did state:

● (1410)

Dangerous micro-organisms are handled in many institutions across Canada, such as hospitals and universities, which are located in residential areas. The types of facilities and methods employed in these institutions to control the spread of micro-organisms are well-established and, I have been informed, have been proven not to present a health hazard.

In any event, appropriate inquiries will certainly go forward and perhaps a statement on this subject can be made at a later date.

AGRICULTURE

ANNUAL REPORT OF CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD—FURTHER QUESTION

Senator Argue: Honourable senators, a few days ago I asked the Leader of the Government if he would inquire as to when the Annual Report of the Canadian Wheat Board might be tabled. I wonder if he has an answer at this time.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, I have been informed that the Honourable Otto Lang, the minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, will be receiving the report in one or two weeks. Within 15 days of his receiving the report he will proceed to table it in the other place. Certainly, every effort will be made to have that document tabled here as soon as possible coincident with that date.

The mini report for 1973-74 has been available since early in 1975, but the full report, as I have indicated, should be available for tabling very soon.

CRIMINAL CODE (THE NATIONAL FLAG OF CANADA)

BILL TO AMEND—ORDER STANDS UNTIL LATER THIS DAY

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the motion of the Honourable Senator Fergusson, P.C., seconded by the Honourable Senator Inman, for the third reading of Bill C-223, intituled: "An Act to amend the Criminal Code (The National Flag of Canada)".—(Honourable Senator Prowse).

Senator Prowse: Honourable senators, I would request that this matter be dealt with later today, at which time it is my intention to yield to Senator Yuzyk.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 1, 1975

THIRD READING

Senator Langlois moved third reading of Bill C-54, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1975.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, last night I asked that third reading be postponed until today because I did not want to reply to my very good friend, my very close friend, Senator Langlois, in the atmosphere created by his speech.

Senator Bourget: Do not start it again.

Senator Flynn: He said that he had a stiff neck. Well, his remarks were equally stiff. I do not know if he still has a stiff neck, but I am in rather good humour today.

Senator Bourget: Hear, hear.

Senator Perrault: That is an improvement.

Senator Flynn: I merely want to put on record a few observations. Senator Langlois takes some rather strange attitudes toward our rules. Before I go into that, however, by way of a preamble I should say that Senator Langlois appears to take all criticism from this side—occasionally criticism comes from the other side but he does not react to it in the same way—as criticism of himself personally. It seems to me that his position does not require that he defend the government on every aspect of every piece of legislation or on every decision that the government makes. I am quite sure that he does not believe any longer, if ever he did, that this government is infallible. I know that he was elected to the House of Commons in 1945 and sat in the other place until 1957, during a period when the government of the time—and I see my good friend Senator Bourget listening to me most closely—thought that it was infallible, or at least that it could never be defeated. I remember some of those words: "If we want to do it, who is going to stop us?" I am quite sure that Senator Langlois does not want to resurrect that attitude, that feeling or perspective of the government of the day. I told Senator Perrault last night that under present circumstances the government should be properly humble. I am quite sure that Senator Côté, who came into the house long after the period I am referring to, does not react in the way some of his colleagues do, even if he likes a good fight occasionally.

Senator Langlois: I am not that old, either.

Senator Flynn: You are not that old. You are about my age.

Senator Langlois: That is old enough for me.

Senator Flynn: It is old enough for me too, I can assure you. Last night is a perfect example of Senator Langlois' strange attitude. He kept, picking on everything said from this side of the house. When I said that the government was trying in Bill C-42 to borrow $2½ billion, Senator Langlois sought to correct me and said it was only $2.5 billion. I tried to find out what difference there was, what disagreement he had with me. All he could do was insist that I was not correct.

Senator Langlois: You were wrong at the time; you were not sure of your figures.

Senator Flynn: Another example was when I explained the vote about R  al Caouette. I said that it would not be continued, that it would finish at the end of March. Senator Langlois said I had put it incorrectly, but I had said exactly that.

The most interesting point was his argument concerning Senator Grosart's discussion of the so-called free loan to Canadair. Senator Langlois said, "Oh no, it is not a free loan." The wording in the bill is, "a loan without interest." I suppose there is a difference between an interest-free loan and a loan without interest. It was simply because my very good friend Senator Langlois wanted to argue last night. He wanted to get even. He wanted to have the last word. Nevertheless, we were all saying the same thing, and for one who wanted the debate to end last night I suggest that he did nothing positive to achieve his purpose. This is only by way of a preamble, and I have no desire whatever to rub it in.

Senator Langlois: It is a very long preamble.

Senator Flynn: It may appear long to you, but it has taken me only a few minutes to do it. The only question I want to raise at this time—there is another one I will raise when we deal with interim supply—is whether Senator Langlois is correct when he says that a supply bill should never be referred to a committee. I have looked this up. Of course, he quoted our rules.

Senator Asselin: And Bourinot.

Senator Flynn: And Bourinot, yes. As I recall, I had to help him find the page in our rule book. I told him it was at page 136. I helped him because he had been looking for it for about five minutes, and I thought that was a bit exaggerated for someone so expert in our rules.

Senator Bourget: Perhaps in the excitement he could not see it.

Senator Flynn: No, I rather think it was because he was very calm, in quiet possession of the truth. He was a bit stiff in the neck, mind you, and I don't suppose that helped. He quoted from our rules when I gave him the page:

Supply bills are not referred to a committee of the whole or to a select committee. However, the estimates on which a supply bill is based are referred to the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance when they are tabled in the Senate. See Bourinot, Fourth edition, pages 443 and 444.

First I want to say that this is an appendix to our rules, and it was put in there merely for guidance. I have looked at our debates on the subject, and that is the only purpose of these things. They are especially to give the Senate some reference as to the forms and proceedings, not as to the rules. If my honourable friend had looked first at rule 1 he would have read:

In all cases not provided for hereinafter, or by sessional or other orders, the standing orders, the rules, usages, forms and proceedings of the Parliament of Canada, in force up to the day on which the present rules go into operation, shall be followed so far as they can be applied to the proceedings of the Senate or any committee thereof.

● (1420)

I repeat "In all cases not provided for hereinafter"—and I shall come back to that later—the rules to be followed are those that were "in force up to the day on which the present rules go into operation." That would refer to the former rules, and I have taken the trouble to look at the rules governing this house prior to December 1969. I assure you that nobody will be able to find in those rules anything to suggest that a supply bill cannot be referred to a committee. What has been said is that we were trying to put into our rules what had previously been the practice, and it is true that supply bills, up until quite recently, had not been referred to a Committee of the Whole or a select committee. It was also true that the estimates on which supply bills are based had never been referred to committees either. But recently they have been, at least since 1967 or 1968. The practice that we have adopted in recent years is different. When I look at Bourinot I find that the reference there is to the effect that it was not in the past the practice to refer supply bills to a Senate committee. This is found on page 443. It is under the heading "Supply Bill in the Senate," and it says:

XII. Supply Bill in the Senate.—The supply bill is sent up immediately after its passage in the Commons to the Senate where it receives its first reading at once.

There is nothing wrong with that.

The bill is generally passed through its several stages on the same day—

That is practice again.

—and is never considered in committee of the whole

(a). It is usual, however, to discuss the various questions arising out of the bill at some length (b).

You will notice that in Bourinot there is no reference to even sending the estimates to a committee or more specifically to the National Finance Committee. So it is not a rule; it is simply a statement of what has been the practice, and there is nothing in our rules to suggest that we are bound by such a practice. On the contrary, I refer honourable senators to page 32 of our rules where they can read, with regard to bills and the National Finance Committee, the following:

[Senator Bourget.]

(h) The Senate Committee on National Finance, composed of twenty members, five of whom shall constitute a quorum, to which shall be referred on motion all bills—

And I underline the word "bills".

—messages, petitions, inquiries, papers and other matters relating to federal estimates generally, including:

(i) national accounts and the report of the Auditor General;

(ii) government finance.

If a supply bill is not a bill concerning government finance, then I do not know what it is. At this point I would recall to your attention that I mentioned rule 1 where it is stated that "if it is not otherwise provided for" we have to resort to the rules, usages, forms and proceedings of the Parliament of Canada up to the day on which the present rules go into operation. But it is otherwise provided for in these rules, and there is nothing wrong with sending a bill, even a supply bill, to a committee, because it has been repeatedly said and agreed to that the Senate has the power to vote down a supply bill, or that it has the power to reduce the amount of a supply bill, but it has, of course, no power to increase the tax or any other burden on the taxpayers of Canada, no more so than has the House of Commons without a recommendation from His Excellency.

But if we have that power, and if we have the power to say in relation to a particular vote that we are going to delete it, then the only practical way of doing that would be to refer the bill either to Committee of the Whole or to a select committee, and in this case, as is provided for under our rules, it would be to the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance. I disagree entirely with the suggestion of Senator Langlois that a supply bill cannot be referred to a committee, be it Committee of the Whole or any select committee. The National Finance Committee is, under our rules, entitled to look into a supply bill. That is very clearly provided for and I challenge my honourable friend to find anything in the rules which would say otherwise.

The appendix to which he refers only referred to proceedings, and formulae and practices but, as I have said, this so-called practice which is mentioned at page 136 of our rules was not even to be found in the previous rules, because it is only recently that we have adopted the habit of sending the estimates to the National Finance Committee. Will my honourable friend say that when we started the practice of sending the estimates to committee that we were going against our own rules? If he says no, then he has to agree that the same problem exists as far as a supply bill is concerned. I remain very much convinced that a supply bill on some occasions would need special or distinct examination in committee from that given to the estimates themselves. That is why I wanted to put on the record my entire and absolute disagreement with the proposal of Senator Langlois. There may be occasions where we will want to do something about a supply bill, and the only practical way to do it will be to refer it to Committee of the Whole or to a select committee, which under our rules is the National Finance Committee. That is the point I wanted to make as far as this bill is concerned.

There is another point which has to do with the objections I raised on Bill C-42 and which Senator Langlois rehashed yesterday, even though I had not mentioned the problem of the necessity, when you find borrowing powers provided in a certain bill, to have these preceded by a recommendation of His Excellency. That is another question I will want to deal with when we consider Bill C-55.

This having been said and, as far as I am concerned, this having been said in the interests of the Senate and its authority to deal with supply bills and the efficient manner in which to deal with such bills, I do not mind if this bill now receives third reading. It should have received it last night, but the mood of my honourable friend prevented it.

Hon. Léopold Langlois: Honourable senators, I just want to make a few remarks in the way of comment on what my honourable friend, Senator Flynn, has just said.

I am very honoured by the importance he has put on my brief and improvised remarks of last evening. It is probably due to his great friendship towards me that he has taken such an interest in what I had to say. I am grateful to him, and I hope he will always bear in mind what I say in this house and, on other occasions, reflect upon and remember so clearly whatever I have explained.

I do not want to rehash a debate which started in December last and which has been carried on until March, and which will likely come back in future sessions. But I was very much surprised by the argument put forward by my honourable friend this afternoon when he referred to rule 1 in our rule book. The rule reads:

In all cases not provided for hereinafter—

And this applies to the rules themselves since we are dealing with the rules.

—or by sessional or other orders, the standing orders, the rules, usages, forms and proceedings of the Parliament of Canada—

It happens to be that it is part of the forms and proceedings of the Parliament of Canada that we have this quotation which I cited from page 136 of our rule book last night, and which is not in quotation marks. It is not a citation from Bourinot. It is simply that supply bills are not referred to Committee of the Whole or to a select committee. I will leave my reference at that. And this is in the form and proceedings which were reconfirmed, so to speak, by a decision of our Rules Committee in 1968.

Senator Flynn: Read it.

● (1430)

Senator Langlois: It is at page 94 of our book of rules:

These forms and proceedings, formerly known as "Forms of Proceedings" have been revised in accordance with present practice and the new rules of the Senate.

Senator Flynn: Present practice.

Senator Langlois: That note is important. It is a specific way to incorporate those forms and proceedings in the rules of the Senate. I see the Deputy Leader of the Opposition shaking his head, but I am not impressed by that at all.

Senator Flynn: You still have a stiff neck, there is no doubt.

Senator Langlois: Again coming back to the wording of rule 1:

In all cases not provided for hereinafter—

I omit the long enumeration which is not pertinent.

—the rules, usages, forms and proceedings of the Parliament of Canada—

So when our Rules Committee made these forms and proceedings part of our book of rules, they included them under rule 1, and nobody can interpret rule 1 without having that in mind. And this was done in 1968.

Senator Flynn: If you read that, you will find it.

Senator Langlois: My friend is very much impressed by the reference at page 136 to Bourinot, but being a lawyer, and a civil law lawyer, from Quebec—

Senator Flynn: No, I have never been a criminal lawyer.

Senator Langlois: No, a civil law lawyer from Quebec—he must have seen similar references in the Civil Code of the Province of Quebec, where there is reference after reference to the Napoleonic Code. It does not mean that this is a repetition of something provided for in the Napoleonic Code. It is only a reference in order to assist those researchers who have an interest in going further into the origin of a particular provision of the code.

Senator Flynn: It is a provision.

Senator Langlois: That is why you have this reference in our forms and proceedings to Bourinot, because this is the source from which this principle was taken and incorporated into our forms and proceedings; and it does not mean any more than that.

Senator Flynn: That is what you are saying.

Senator Langlois: There is no doubt whatsoever in my mind that our forms and proceedings, as they are referred to in rule 1, are part of our rules—

Senator Flynn: They do not amend the rules.

Senator Langlois: They are included—

Senator Flynn: No.

Senator Langlois: —in our rules.

Senator Flynn: No.

Senator Langlois: You can say no, but please read rule 1.

Senator Flynn: I read it.

Senator Langlois: You read it too quickly, I am afraid. I think this is quite clear.

In all cases not provided for hereinafter, or by sessional or other orders, the standing orders, the rules, usages, forms and proceedings—

That refers to what is written in our forms and proceedings, and in the footnote on page 94.

Senator Flynn: You do not amend the rules by that.

Senator Langlois: No, but read it. Does it mean anything to you? Does it mean something to you?

Senator Flynn: Yes.

Senator Langlois: It is very clear to anyone who wishes to understand it. I am not going to discuss this point any further. We have discussed it for the last four or five months, and it is likely we will do so on other occasions. I think the point is clear, that this citation on page 136 applies to supply bills and this is part of our rules today, and should be so considered.

Senator Forsey: Excuse me. I wonder if the deputy leader could enlighten me as to what the rules of the Parliament of Canada are. I thought the Senate was part of Parliament.

Senator Langlois: If my honourable friend had been following the discussion so far, he would have borne in mind the footnote on page 94 of our own book of rules, which reads:

These forms and proceedings, formerly known as "forms of Proceedings" have been revised in accordance with present practice and the new rules of the Senate. They are included as an appendix to the rules pursuant to the order of the Senate dated December 10, 1968.

If this does not make it part of the proceedings of the Parliament of Canada, of which the Senate is an integral part, and an important part, I do not know what would do it.

Senator Forsey: I quite understand that, but I am perturbed and I wonder if the deputy leader could enlighten me as to what exactly the rules of the Parliament of Canada are. There are the rules of the Senate and the rules of the House of Commons but what are the rules of the Parliament of Canada? I do not know what rule book I would find them in, and as a relative newcomer here I defer to the vast knowledge and experience of the deputy leader.

Senator Langlois: The rules of Parliament include both the rules of the House of Commons and the rules of the Senate, since both houses form the Parliament of Canada. I think this is elementary and need not be further explained.

I think this deals with the main point made by the Leader of the Opposition this afternoon. He made a reference to Bill C-42, and rightly so. He stated that this should have ended the discussion last night. If I have followed up on this point, it is because he started it. He made a statement. I did not want to get into this discussion at all. I just wanted to put the facts before the Senate as they should be. My honourable friend accused Senator Everett and myself of having prevented the supply bill from being discussed—

Senator Flynn: Referred.

Senator Langlois: —in committee. I took the attitude that that could not have happened, because that bill was never referred to committee.

[Senator Langlois.]

My honourable friend then said he was referring to Bill C-42, which was discussed in December 1974. Of necessity, I had to follow up on that. I gave the circumstances and the reasons why that bill was not referred to the National Finance Committee. I had, in the process, to remind the Senate of all the circumstances. And that is all I did. I left it at that; I did not argue any further on the subject. I merely put the facts fresh in the minds of all honourable senators. That was the only thing I wanted to do, and the only thing I did.

My honourable friend concluded his remarks by saying that I was to blame if this bill was not passed and given royal assent with the other bill we passed last night, because I was in such a mood. But I think the mood came from the other side. I am not the one who said no last night; he is the one who said no. If it is to be blamed on anybody's mood, then it must be blamed on the mood in which he was last night.

I can hardly accept that every time there is an exchange of views, and one does not share the same view as one's opposite number in the house, important legislation will be delayed on that score, especially after I had reminded the house last night that there was some $20 million due to veterans, that the veterans, were interested in getting their increased allowances before Easter, and if we were not going to have this law passed last night we were going to prevent this money from reaching them before Easter on account of the recess that is likely to commence tomorrow.

As to my honourable friend, I am not challenging his right to disagree—as much as I disagree with him, so much will I fight for his right to disagree with me—because that is the freedom of speech, the freedom of expression that, thank God, we still have in this country. But to say that because you do not like the views expressed by your opposite number you will delay an important piece of legislation, is beyond me, and beyond many honourable members of this house.

Senator Flynn: There is not much that is beyond you.

Senator Bourget: Pax vobis.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 2, 1975

SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from Friday, March 21, the debate on the motion of Senator Langlois for second reading of Bill C-55, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1976.

• (1440)

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, if I may start with an aside, I would suggest, since there are marked differences of opinion between my good friend Senator Langlois and myself, with respect to the interpretation of the appendix to our rules, that the matter be referred to the standing committee.

Senator Langlois: Which one are you referring to?

Senator Flynn: I am referring to the reference of a supply bill to a committee.

Senator Langlois: I mean which committee are you referring to?

Senator Flynn: The Committee on Standing Rules and Orders. We would probably have a useful debate and an enlightening conclusion from such a reference to that committee. For myself, I have always thought—and this is applicable to the present bill, because I am quite sure Senator Langlois would not want it referred to committee—that this is important so far as supply bills are concerned.

With respect to Bill C-55, which asks for interim supply, I merely wish to draw to the attention of the Senate the fact that the amount we are called upon to vote is quite substantial, being $4,603,596,900.59. Moreover, it is divided in a rather curious way:

(a) three-twelfths of the total of the amounts of the items set forth in the Estimates for the fiscal year ending the 31st day of March, 1976, as laid before the House of Commons at the present session of Parliament—$3,919,682,567.25

(b) eight-twelfths of the total of the amounts of the several items in the said Estimates set forth in Schedule A—$120,982,666.67

(c) five-twelfths of the total of the item in the said Estimates set forth in Schedule B—$20,000,000.00

(d) three-twelfths of the total of the amounts of the several items in the said Estimates set forth in Schedule C—$449,223,250.00

(e) two-twelfths of the total of the amounts of the several items in the said Estimates set forth in Schedule D—$61,699,666.67

(f) one-twelfth of the total of the amounts of the several items in the said Estimates set forth in Schedule E—$32,008,750.00

It seems to me that if the Senate wants to deal with this bill in an efficient manner it should be in a position to find out in committee from the officials just why in one case it is three-twelfths; in another case, eight-twelfths; in another, five-twelfths; in another, three-twelfths; in another, two-twelfths; and, finally, in the last case, only one-twelfth.

Senator Langlois has given us the general reasons, but I do not see that these are sufficient to allow us to properly assess the reasons for the differences among paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (f) of clause 2. To me this seems to be an excellent reason for referring the bill to committee—whether it be the National Finance Committee or even Committee of the Whole—at which time we could have the officials enlighten us on these differences.

The second point I should like to make relates to clause 5, which states:

(1) The Governor in Council may, in addition to the sums now remaining unborrowed and negotiable of the loans authorized by Parliament, by any Act heretofore passed, raise by way of loan under the Financial Administration Act, by the issue and sale or pledge of securities of Canada, in such form, for such separate sums, at such rates of interest and upon such other terms and conditions as the Governor in Council may approve, such sum or sums of money, not exceeding in the whole, the sum of four billion dollars, as may be required for public works and general purposes.

Again we have this borrowing authority of $4 billion, which is to be related to the $2.5 billion authorized under Bill C-42. When we were dealing with Bill C-42, I pointed out that the borrowing power had not been mentioned in the estimates. It had not, therefore, been considered by our National Finance Committee. In fact, the bill was something entirely different from the estimates. When Bill C-42 was before us I raised the following question: If the borrowing power was really germane to a supply bill, then it should be preceded by a recommendation from His Excellency the Governor General. Last night, however, Senator Langlois reiterated his position that he had studied the situation. At page 721 of Hansard he is reported as saying:

—I studied the situation and reached the conclusion that it was not necessary for the message to contain clause 5, because clause 5 provided merely for a borrowing authority which could not be considered as an expenditure and therefore did not require a recommendation from His Excellency. I was not content with my own research, but checked with the Department of Justice, and was confirmed in my opinion without any reservation.

I gave this information to the Senate, but my word was not accepted. I do not blame the Leader of the Opposition for not accepting it, but I do blame him when, two days later, after I returned with a written opinion from the Deputy Minister of Justice, who is charged with the legislation, stating that he supported my opinion without any reservations—and this was confirmed by the Clerk of the Senate—he again did not accept my word and the independent written opinions.

Senator Langlois: Incidentally, Senator Flynn, that should read "Law Clerk of the Senate." It was not the Clerk, but the Law Clerk.

Senator Flynn: Yes, I accept that.

Surely, honourable senators, because the Deputy Leader of the Government, or the Deputy Minister of Justice or the Law Clerk of the Senate, or anyone else, expresses an opinion, we are not bound to accept it simply because it is reported to us by someone in this house, be he the Deputy Leader of the Government or anyone else. Surely, we are entitled to place matters of opinion before a committee for the purposes of discussing them. But, according to the deputy leader, the moment he says, "I have the opinion. You must accept it," that is the end of the matter. If that were so, we could never discuss anything in this house. Does the deputy leader think he is infallible, as were his friends before 1957? Is that era returning?

But all that is only incidental. The real point is this: Either his opinion as to the borrowing authority is correct, and it does not need a recommendation from His Excellency the Governor General, in which case it is not a supply bill matter; or his opinion is incorrect and the matter does require a recommendation from His Excellency the Governor General. At this point I want to draw to your attention two of our rules. Rule 62, which is a proviso as to supply bills, reads as follows:

The Senate shall not proceed upon a bill appropriating public money that has not within the knowledge of the Senate been recommended by the Queen's representative.

In other words, a supply bill requires a recommendation by the Queen's representative. We are all agreed on that. But my honourable friend says that the borrowing authority provided in this bill does not require a recommendation by the Queen's representative. Therefore, the borrowing authority is not in the nature of a supply bill. It is a matter foreign to a supply bill.

That leads me to rule 63 which deals with annexed clauses, and reads as follows:

A bill of aid or supply shall not have annexed thereto any clause the matter of which is foreign to and different from the matter of the bill.

My friend has a choice. Either the borrowing authority is in keeping with the supply nature of the bill, in which case the whole thing must be recommended by Her Majesty's representative; or the borrowing authority is foreign to the supply bill and, according to rule 63, cannot be tacked on to the supply bill. If this borrowing authority has nothing to do with supply, then we should be entitled to deal with it in committee. We should be able to inquire of the Minister of Finance what his needs are, and not be satisfied merely with the information supplied by the deputy leader, the leader, or anyone else speaking on behalf of the government.

● (1450)

When we had the authority to borrow $2.5 billion included in Bill C-42 we should have been entitled to inquire about it. Of course, my honourable friend told us that it was because the Canada Savings Bonds were so successful that we needed to cover the additional borrowing. Why should we not be permitted to question the Minister of Justice as to his opinion?

I would have liked to question the Minister of Finance on this particular clause in this bill to see whether he has need of the $4 billion. My honourable friend says, "Yes. We do not expect to exhaust this authority." I believe him, but I deplore the attitude he takes, that everything he says is the last word the Senate should ask for. I have no use for that attitude. It has no place here.

Senator Langlois: I agree with you.

Senator Flynn: He cannot get away from the point I have made today. The question falls under either rule 62 or rule 63 and, in both cases, he is wrong.

Hon. Léopold Langlois: Honourable senators, again my honourable friend is rehashing the debate that started in December—

The Hon. the Speaker: I should inform honourable senators that if Senator Langlois speaks now his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading of this bill.

Senator Langlois: My honourable friend is still rehashing the debate that took place in December and again last night. When he refers to this borrowing authority in clause 5 of the present bill he seems to forget that when I introduced Bill C-55 I made a very long and detailed statement on the origin and the operation of these borrowing authorities. I stated that these borrowing authorities were sought in compliance with section 36 of the Financial Administration Act, which I quoted at the time. However, I refuse now to enter into an argument which we dealt with quite fully in the earlier stages of this session.

[Senator Flynn.]

I want to deal particularly with the reference to rules 62 and 63. Rule 62 states:

The Senate shall not proceed upon a bill appropriating public money that has not within the knowledge of the Senate been recommended by the Queen's representative.

Rule 62 deals with a bill appropriating public money. A measure giving authority to borrow money under the Financial Administration Act is not a measure appropriating public moneys. That is an argument I made over and over again in December, and again last night. Rule 62 does not apply. This is very clear, and it is supported by the opinion the Department of Justice gave me in its letter some time in the middle of last December, and which was tabled in this chamber.

Next I come to rule 63, which says:

A bill of aid or supply shall not have annexed thereto any clause the matter of which is foreign to and different from the matter of the bill.

The borrowing authority included in the bill before us has to do with the financing of these very estimates.

Senator Flynn: No.

Senator Langlois: If it is not germane to the supply bill, I do not know what will be germane to anything. It is not foreign to the bill; it is very germane to it. It provides the necessary borrowing authority in order to make possible these expenditures. I hope it is clear that such a clause in a supply bill is not foreign to that bill. It is very germane to it, because it is the means of implementing the votes contained in the legislation. This is the interpretation that has been placed on this rule of the Senate ever since Confederation.

Senator Flynn: No.

Senator Langlois: In December Senator Everett gave a few examples of previous supply bills—even one passed under a Tory administration, in the period from 1957 to 1963—which contained such a clause authorizing a borrowing authority, but which was not included in the message from His Excellency. This practice has been confirmed on many, many occasions by all parties in power, according to my information, ever since Confederation, and today my honourable friend wishes to change all that. He wants to put aside this continued interpretation of our rules, that such a clause is not foreign to but is germane to supply bills, and the long established practice that such a clause should not be put aside on that ground alone.

In that connection, I repeat that this is in essence based on legal advice I have received from the Department of Justice. My honourable friend can say whatever he likes about the authority behind such legal advice, but I repeat what I said in December, that we on this side of the House—and when I speak in this house I am speaking as Deputy Leader of the Government—are bound, as my leader is bound, by any legal advice coming from the Department of Justice.

Senator Flynn: No.

Senator Langlois: We have to live by it.

Senator Flynn: No.

Senator Langlois: If you deny that, give me one example of any government in power, be it Tory or Liberal, that has gone against legal advice from the Department of Justice.

Senator Grosart: Many times; many, many times.

Senator Langlois: Give me one example. You say it has been done many times. Give me one example.

Senator Flynn: I will give your example. Last year on Bill C-42 you yourself said in this house that you had had very serious doubts about the legality of the proceeding, and it was only after study that you came to the conclusion that the government was right. If you had come to another conclusion, what would you have done? You would have done the same as you did, I suppose.

Senator Langlois: My honourable friend is again putting in my mouth words that I never pronounced.

Senator Flynn: I am not. That is what you said.

Senator Langlois: It is what I said when the bill came to me and when I was advised of the objection raised in the other place. I was impressed by that, and I took it upon myself to inform the Deputy Secretary of the Treasury Board that if this objection was well-founded in my own mind I would have only two alternatives—either have somebody move an amendment to that bill and accept it, or withdraw the bill altogether.

Senator Flynn: That is fine; that is what I am saying.

Senator Langlois: That was before I started my research. After my research was completed I was convinced in my own mind that the objection raised in the other place was wrong. However, I was not content with that. As I said last night, I telephoned the Department of Justice and obtained confirmation, which was readily given, without any reservations. From there on I had no doubt whatsoever. I had no other course of action but to follow the advice I had received from the Department of Justice. I had no alternative but to act in that way.

Senator Flynn: The record will show your contradiction.

Senator Grosart: May I ask the Deputy Leader of the Government one question?

Senator Langlois: The debate is closed.

Senator Grosart: Surely I can ask a question.

Senator Flynn: Not if he does not want you to.

Senator Langlois: Very well. If it is not another speech I am willing to accept it as a question.

Senator Grosart: Are you making another speech?

Senator Langlois: No, I am not. However, I was entitled to make a speech in reply to Senator Flynn.

Senator Grosart: My question is this: Is the Deputy Leader of the Government saying or implying that the members of the Cabinet, the Government of Canada, are bound by a decision of the law officers of the Crown?

Senator Langlois: By legal advice from the Justice Department, yes, of course.

Senator Grosart: No.

Senator Langlois: I am saying that I am.

Senator Grosart: Then that is all I want to know.

Senator Flynn: It is on the record.

Senator Langlois: I said that in December, too.

Senator Grosart: That means they are running the country.

Motion agreed to and bill read the second time.

• (1500)

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Langlois: With leave, now.

The Hon. the Speaker: The house has heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Senator Flynn: I would just like to ask the deputy leader if arrangements have been made for royal assent this afternoon?

Senator Langlois: Yes, royal assent has been arranged for 5.45, I am told.

Senator Flynn: Very well.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

ROYAL ASSENT

NOTICE

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that the following communication had been received:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
OTTAWA

March 25, 1975

Madam,

I have the honour to inform you that the Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, in his capacity as Deputy Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 25th day of March, at 5.45 p.m. for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to certain bills.

I have the honour to be,

Madam,

Your obedient servant,

André Garneau

Brigadier General

Administrative Secretary to the
Governor General.

The Honourable

The Speaker of the Senate,
Ottawa.

CRIMINAL CODE (THE NATIONAL FLAG OF CANADA)

BILL TO AMEND—MOTION FOR THIRD READING—BILL
REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the motion of the Honourable Senator Fergusson, P.C., seconded by the Honourable Senator Inman, for the third reading of the Bill C-223, intituled: "An Act to amend the Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada)".—(Honourable Senator Prowse).

Hon. Paul Yuzyk: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators, that Senator Yuzyk shall have leave to proceed instead of Senator Prowse?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Yuzyk: Honourable senators, Bill C-223 would amend the Criminal Code by adding one sentence which on the surface appears quite simple. I shall read it to you from the bill:

49.1 Every one who wilfully destroys, disfigures, mutilates, defaces, defiles, desecrates or casts contempt upon the National Flag of Canada is guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction.

This sentence to me has very broad implications. It is an amendment to the Criminal Code, and its implementation and enforcement could have serious repercussions. Several senators took part in the debate on second and third readings, and raised questions which were not answered. I suggested that this bill be referred to committee. I have discussed this matter with Senator Prowse who agrees that it should be sent to committee in order to have a more detailed explanation of its implications.

I believe that before this committee we should have the Minister of Justice and other witnesses who would speak to the bill. I have already had a request from the chairman of the Civil Liberties League of the National Capital Region to appear before the committee and present his views, which will be critical.

Consequently, honourable senators, I move, seconded by Senator Prowse—who is unavoidably absent at the moment because he is attending the meeting of the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs:

That this bill be not now read the third time but that it be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, it is moved by the Honourable Senator Fergusson, seconded by the Honourable Senator Inman, that this bill be read the third time. In amendment, it is moved by the Honourable Senator Yuzyk, seconded by the Honourable Senator O'Leary, that the bill be not now read a third time but that it be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion in amendment?

Motion in amendment agreed to and bill referred to Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 5.45 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

ROYAL ASSENT

The Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, having come and being seated at the foot of the Throne, and the House of Commons having been summoned, and being come with their Speaker:

The Honourable James Jerome, Speaker of the House of Commons, then addressed the Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General as follows:

May it please Your Honour:

The Commons of Canada have voted certain supplies required to enable the Government to defray the expenses of the public service.

In the name of the Commons, I present to Your Honour the following bills:

An Act for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1975.

An Act for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1976.

To which bills I humbly request Your Honour's assent.

The Honourable the Deputy of the Governor General was pleased to give the Royal Assent to the said bills.

The House of Commons withdrew.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to retire.

The sitting of the Senate was resumed.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Leave having been given to revert to Notices of Motions:

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, March 26, 1975 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

Some Hon. Senators: Explain.

Senator Langlois: If I might offer a word of explanation, this unusual morning sitting tomorrow is warranted by the expectation that a very important piece of legislation will be coming to us some time during the course of this evening and will be ready for consideration in the morning. This is the bill containing amendments to the National Housing Act. An agreement has been reached with the other place that this bill will be considered in Committee of the Whole, with the minister responsible, the Honourable Barnett Danson, in attendance in the Senate. It is hoped that this bill will be dealt with tomorrow, without putting any pressure on the Senate. This has been agreed by my honourable friends on the other side.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 10 a.m.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, March 26, 1975

The Senate met at 10 a.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-46, to amend the National Housing Act.

Bill read first time.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Senator McIlraith: Honourable senators, I would like to ask permission of the Senate to proceed to second reading now, with a view to passing the bill today, before the Easter adjournment. This request is made, as I think honourable senators will understand, because of what we regard as the urgency of the requirement for the authority contained in the bill.

As honourable senators know, housing starts were down quite sharply in 1974. Not only were they down, but the rate of decline from the previous couple of years accelerated as we came to the end of the year. At this stage of 1975 the starts are very low—

Senator Asselin: Are you presenting the bill?

Senator McIlraith: No, I am asking for leave to proceed to second reading now. As I have said, housing starts are very low, and it looks as if we are well into this trend. There are two consequences of that failure to build houses in adequate quantities. The first is the social consequence and the second is economic. For those reasons, and because we believe that this bill, if enacted, will serve to bring about an increase in housing starts, I would ask the house for leave to proceed to second reading at this time.

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, we have no objection whatever to giving leave in these circumstances. However, merely as a matter of procedure, I should like this item to be called after we have dealt with the other Orders of the Day. I understand that we shall be dealing with this legislation only and that none of the other orders will be proceeded with at this time. Nevertheless, I would ask that it be called after we have dealt with the other items.

Senator McIlraith: Very well, later this day.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

MULTICULTURALISM

MINISTRY OF STATE—ORGANIZATION AND BUDGET— QUESTION

Senator Yuzyk: Honourable senators, I have some questions which I should like to direct to the Leader of the Government in the Senate. They are:

I. A Ministry of State responsible for Multiculturalism was established in November 1972, which lasted until the fall of 1974 as a separate ministry.

(a) What was the budget allocated to this ministry for the purposes of multicultural programs and projects and how much was spent under Dr. Stanley Haidasz?

(b) Did the minister have a separate departmental budget and, if so, what was its size and how was it spent?

II. Subsequently, the Honourable John Munro, Minister of Labour, was assigned also the portfolio of Multiculturalism.

(a) Does he have a separate department and a budget for multiculturalism?

(b) What is the size of this departmental budget?

(c) How large a fund does he administer for the purposes of multiculturalism?

(d) How much was spent by the government on multiculturalism to March 31, 1975, and how much remains to be spent?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, because of the detailed nature of this question I will take this as notice.

WEST COAST PORTS OPERATIONS ACT, 1975

RESUMPTION OF WORK—QUESTION

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, may I ask the Leader of the Government if he has anything to report concerning the resumption of work by longshoremen and related operations in the ports on the West Coast of Canada?

Senator Perrault: No, I do not have any immediate new information. However, I shall endeavour, before the Senate rises today, to present a report for honourable senators.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, I should like to put a question to the Leader of the Government or the Deputy Leader of the Government. Other than the act to amend the National Housing Act, is further legislation likely to come to us from the other place? In any event, is there other legislation that we might be expected to deal with before we adjourn, as I understand it, quite possibly later today?

Senator Langlois: The answer is no, we are not expecting further legislation from the other place. The item presently before us is the only one with which we will be dealing today.

Senator Flynn: May I ask if there is any indication as to when we will return?

Senator Perrault: It is expected that the Senate will resume its activities on Tuesday, April 8.

NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

Hon. George McIlraith moved the second reading of Bill C-46, to amend the National Housing Act.

He said: Honourable senators, at the outset of my remarks I wish to thank the house for waiving the notice provided in the rules of the Senate and permitting us to proceed with this bill today.

I should like to point out that this is an amending bill by way of adding or extending programs to our housing legislation. It does not in its general scheme substitute particularly new programs; it adds new and important facets to existing programs.

● (1010)

The purpose of the legislation is to give many more Canadians the help they need to buy or rent housing, particularly in the low or medium price ranges. At the same time, it is intended to stimulate the flow of private capital into the housing market and stimulate the production of housing in those same price ranges. As honourable senators well know, production has lagged behind previous years, as I indicated earlier today when I sought permission to proceed. This may be due to several factors, including inflation pressures, high interest rates in the early part of last year, but, more alarmingly, in the latter part of the year and the early part of this year, a rather cautious approach and, indeed, lack of effective demand on the part of prospective buyers of homes generally because of uncertain market conditions.

The passage of the bill will contribute significantly to a revitalized housing market and will provide an important stimulus to the whole economy. Perhaps the best way of my approaching the second reading, because of the nature of the bill, is to attempt to outline the main provisions in a summary way. There are three kinds of assistance offered in the housing clauses of this bill. First, there is assistance to home buyers; secondly, assistance for those who wish to rent moderately priced accommodation; and, thirdly, assistance for non-profit rental housing projects.

Dealing with the first category, the assistance provided for home owners takes the form of extending the provisions of the highly successful assisted home ownership program to qualified families who obtain NHA insured loans from approved lenders. To these new provisions, a family that obtains a private mortgage for a new home, not for existing housing, may receive from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation a grant of up to $600 a year.

This will substantially reduce their effective monthly payments.

The reducing grant is available only for the purchase of moderately priced new housing, with limits set by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in each market area. This privately funded program is designed to supplement but not replace the existing assisted home ownership plan, which will continue to serve home buyers in the lower income ranges with CMHC direct loans and grants. That is the first category of assistance for housing.

In the second category, the rental field, the bill provides owners and builders of rental accommodation with a reducing grant, provided they enter into an agreement with CMHC to keep their rents down to a certain schedule to be set out in the agreement. This agreement will be for five years, and authority is being asked to extend it for as long as 15 years. It will ensure that the tenants are the beneficiaries of the federal government's contribution. Care is taken in this section to ensure that the benefit of the federal government's assistance at this point goes to the tenant. It is estimated that these incentives will draw $1 billion or more of private capital into the housing market, where funds are most needed in the low and moderate price ranges. Much of this capital might not otherwise be invested in housing. It will therefore help to increase the housing supply and put a downward pressure on the price of houses.

The third housing provision is a series of clauses allowing Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to buy land to be used for non-profit and cooperative housing projects. The corporation, having assembled the land for that purpose, will be authorized to lease it to the sponsors of the housing project, either a non-profit project corporation or a cooperative housing group, at advantageous rents. This will result in these two types of organizations not being required to put up the capital for the purchase of the land.

I think I should remind the house that at the present time Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation provides 100 per cent loans at 8 per cent interest for such schemes. In addition, it provides a contribution amounting to 10 per cent of the capital cost. Even with this substantial federal government support, sponsors of non-profit and cooperative housing projects, because of the high price of land, are finding it difficult and, in some cases, impossible to provide accommodation at a cost that is acceptable to the group of people they are trying to help. The arrangements proposed in this bill will provide the sponsors of non-profit and cooperative housing projects the alternative of buying the land and being eligible for the 10 per cent grant, or having Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation acquire the land and then leasing it from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation on a long-term lease, whichever is to the greater advantage for the particular project in question.

So much for the direct immediate assistance to housing contained in this bill. There are other important provisions, one of which is the sewage treatment grant. The present program in this area is due to expire this year and this bill, if enacted, will result in the removal of the expiration date, thereby continuing that program. It will also provide for something new, the installation of storm trunk sewers, which are required to open up new residential developments. It is obviously important that new residential land be brought into the market for building as quickly as possible, and the absence of a provision for financing storm trunk sewers has been a handicap in this connection. The proposal in this bill will materially assist communities which otherwise could not afford to service the available land.

Another provision would relieve the tax burden in areas where, because of the nature of the terrain and the smallness of the community, there may be a real problem for the municipality in putting in the required sewage facilities. The bill provides assistance by way of grants to meet special conditions which may and do arise in some communities.

The forgiveness provision under the existing legislation in respect of municipalities will be extended to municipalities that borrow money for eligible projects privately rather than through CMHC. Under the existing legislation, municipalities must borrow from CMHC. This forgiveness provision will be extended to projects financed by the municipality by borrowing from sources other than CMHC. That provision should help very materially in having these projects go forward.

Another provision makes available assistance for the preparation of regional sewage plans. With the change of structure in government at the municipal level, some unusual and undesirable anomalies have arisen.

● (1020)

The other important provisions of the legislation have the effect of increasing the statutory limits within which the corporation may make or insure loans. The aggregate amount of all loans that may be made by approved NHA lenders, and insured by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, is raised to $25 billion from $19 billion, and there is a provision for increasing the aggregate amount of loans that may be made by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for direct lending to $12 billion from $10 billion. The aggregate of loans that may be made by banks under the Home Improvement Loan Program and that may be insured by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is raised to $650 million from $600 million. It will be seen that that increase in authority is rather significant. There are, of course, other consequential changes that will flow from those things of which I have spoken.

Before concluding, I should like to reiterate what I sought to say in the early part of my remarks. The bill does not replace any housing programs that are already in existence. It adds to existing programs, increasing the options open to persons who are desirous of housing, home ownership, or rental.

I believe the bill is an important step forward at this time, a much needed step, and that it has the potential for helping many thousands of families to obtain suitable housing. I commend it to honourable senators.

Perhaps I should add here that at the conclusion of second reading, and if it meets with the general consensus, I shall move that the bill be referred to Committee of the Whole, and that we bring the minister into the Senate, for which there is authority under rule 18, to answer such questions as honourable senators may wish to ask.

[Senator McIlraith]

Senator Manning: Will the honourable sponsor permit a question?

Senator McIlraith: Yes.

Senator Manning: In the case where the CMHC purchases land and leases it to a non-profit or cooperative association for the provision of low-cost housing, are there restrictions imposed on the future sale of that property, and, if so, what is the nature of the restrictions?

Senator Grosart: Ask the minister.

Senator McIlraith: The provision is quite lengthy, and it is set out in the clause. I would prefer to answer the question in committee, because it would be a rather long-winded answer if I gave it now.

Senator Hicks: Perhaps my question will get the same reply. Does the honourable senator who sponsored the bill have any notes as to the nature of the changes that were made by the Standing Committee on Health, Welfare and Social Affairs in the other place? Were they significant in the effect they had on the bill as originally introduced on December 19?

Senator McIlraith: I do not want my answer to sound harsh, but I think the answer I would wish to give is: No, they were not. I recognize that that answer sounds a little harsher than I intended. I do not mean it to cast any reflection on the work of the committee, but in terms of the total impact on housing the answer is no.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, I am sure I will be expected to make the usual complaint about dealing with a bill of this importance under these circumstances. However, we have agreed that this is an exceptional case. It is not that we like it, but we welcome the suggestion that if we have to do it this way at least we will have the honour of having the minister here in the Senate, and in due course I am quite sure we will welcome him. Personally, I think this is an important use of one of the procedures provided by our rules. As the sponsor of the bill has said, the minister will be here when we deal with the bill in Committee of the Whole. I will reserve some of my remarks until that time, and I am quite sure that some of the questions that have already been asked will be answered by the minister at that time.

The reason, of course, that we are faced with this situation is the problem of slowness of passage of legislation in the other place. In this case the legislation was held up by the budget debate.

In any event, we have agreed here that there is urgency to pass it—an urgency for which the government must take a good deal of responsibility—and that is because in the management of the economy we have run into an unfortunate situation. As Senator McIlraith indicated, we have had a most disastrous slump in new housing starts in the last year. As a matter of fact, the drop was close to 20 per cent, being from a high of 268,000 new starts in 1973 down to 222,000 new starts in the last year. No one is quite sure what the situation will be in the present fiscal year. We have had various figures given to us; we have heard such figures as 183,000 new starts, which obviously would be a complete disaster; 198,000, which was the estimate given by the University of Toronto planning group; 200,000, the figure used by the minister and others; 210,000, which, as the Minister of Finance indicated a few days ago, would be the target to be met; and, finally, a rather more hopeful figure from the minister, 220,000. But even if that target is reached, we will be no better off than we were last year, a year in which there was a slump of 20 per cent in new housing starts. As Canadians are well aware, this is a time when we need the opposite trend in our housing policies.

In other words, the policies of the government have not been successful. Admittedly, there are causal circumstances beyond the field of housing; there have been many problems in the economy. But there is no question that government policy, going back to 1972 when we had 250,000 starts, has not been the kind of policy which could assure for Canadians adequate housing at reasonable capital costs or rents at this particular time.

The background to this is more than the mere slump. The background is the great public debate now as to how this problem of providing adequate housing at reasonable costs, capital costs or rents, should be provided to Canadians. The government has, in its wisdom or otherwise, decided to come down on different sides of the controversy, and there is something less than general satisfaction among the experts and among the public as to whether the strategy of the government—if I may call it that—is a strategy which can be successful in the long run in solving this problem. The controversy centres around the old problem of whether the “feds” should do it, or the provinces. Some of the provinces have come up recently with strong objections to the assumption by the federal government that it has the adequate knowledge and experience to enter into this field, which is, of course, basically a provincial field. The question has arisen as to whether the answer is to be found in public housing, or in increased activity in the private sector. The government has come down, to some extent, on both sides in this particular bill, for there is provision for financial stimulation both to builders and to prospective owners.

● (1030)

The bill is under very severe criticism, and understandably so. Perhaps the major criticism is that it represents a mishmash approach. We have no overall housing policy or strategy at the moment. This is, to some extent, a function of history. The housing acts of Canada go back a good many years. I believe the first act was in 1935. There have been many amendments, major ones, in 1938, 1944, 1954, and a dozen amendments between 1954 and the major amendment of 1973, which brought in AHOP, the Assisted Home Ownership Plan, to which the sponsor referred and of which he tended to speak in glowing terms. There are contrary opinions as to whether it has been as successful as the sponsor and, no doubt, the minister, would claim, and as to whether, as the sponsor pointed out, this bill successfully extends the present assistance given by the federal government to home ownership in Canada. It does not disturb the many existing programs and projects of the federal government, some of which have been apparently highly successful, some not; but as I look over the whole spectrum, I reach the conclusion that “mishmash” is a very descriptive term. It may be a little difficult to pronounce this early in the morning, but it is the term I wish to use, and certainly it is apt. If the public generally are not aware of the benefits to which they are entitled, it is quite understandable. It would take a Philadelphia lawyer, I think, to advise any individual as to what benefits might be available to him under these many, many federal projects. I will not bother to list them now, but they are myriad.

Some of the criticisms that come to mind immediately about the bill before us are as follows. First, the apparent low emphasis that is discernible on public, non-profit and cooperative housing projects. It is said that the government has actually pulled back, that under this bill and the departmental decisions there will be less emphasis on and less support for public and non-profit housing than previously.

Canada is in a unique position in its dependence on the private sector. I am not objecting to that; however, it should be noted that public housing in Canada accounts for only about two per cent of the total. In other countries—many other countries—it is much higher. There are reasons for these differences, but the greatest criticism that was made of the bill when it was in the committee in the other place was by witnesses who objected to the emphasis on the support for the private sector building—that is, profit building. They thought that there should be greater encouragement for what many regard as an important component of good housing strategy; that is to say, an emphasis on cooperative and non-profit housing schemes by church groups, and so on, because the inflation factor is much lower in this particular area than it is in the private sector, for the obvious reason that the control of resale, and so on, of such types of housing is much greater than it is in the other 98 per cent.

Another criticism of this bill is that the government has not seen fit to put the emphasis, or as much emphasis as many people think they should, on home ownership of existing older homes. The reason is obvious: the government is attempting to spark the economy, and no doubt feels that this will be achieved much more readily by the funding of new homes. However, a very good case can be made out that this is a serious deficiency in the government's present approach. One recognizes that the government has to decide how much money it can put into housing, and then must reach a decision as to which of the various types of housing will yield the greatest results. It has certainly decided now to give very low priority to Canadians wishing to buy existing homes.

Another serious criticism that has been made is that a much better way to achieve some of the results anticipated by the bill would have been to wipe out entirely the building materials tax. The government has reduced the tax now to five per cent. It has decided to maintain that five per cent, but there are many experts in the field who are convinced that the most progressive measure which could have been taken would have been the abolition of that tax. Apparently the amount involved in government revenue is about $460 million. This is a lot of money, of course, but there are many of us who feel that the best service anyone could render to the present administration would be to restrict the amount of money that is made available to them to spend. All the evidence that I have seen recently would indicate that the only way we are going to stop this government spending us into bankruptcy is not to give them the money, because as long as they have the money they are going to spend it. They have made that very clear. However, one of the criticisms here, and this is inevitable, is that in this housing program that will be implemented by this bill, the government is not spending enough money. Actually, the increase in the budget for these housing purposes this year will be about 12 per cent, or 12½ per cent, which will obviously do no more than match on-going inflation, if it does that.

There is also great concern about the adequacy of government control of the way this money is spent. Serious criticisms are being levelled about the inadequacy of CMHC inspection of projects as they develop. We are told that CMHC inspects only once a year, and then only to assess, as far as they can, the guarantee or security of their loans or grants.

● (1040)

It is rather interesting too, honourable senators, that we now have rent control—federal rent control. I do not want to go into any very long argument about the background to that. I have not seen it mentioned anywhere in the debate, but it is clear to me that the effect of one substantial part of the suggested program in this bill is to bring in rent controls. I say this because in the provision of very large subsidies to builders of rental accommodation it is provided—in fact it is a condition of the grant—that the builder control rents, as the sponsor said, for five years and possibly up to 15 years. Of course, we do not have the regulations before us and so we can only guess as to how this may be achieved. But, as I have said, there is now no question whatever that we have federal rent control in effect in Canada.

One of the existing programs called the LD, Limited Dividend, program has been in effect for some time, and there are some doubts as to whether it is working out as the government might have wished or believed it to work out. There seems to be considerable evidence that through lack of control the government is increasingly being left with uneconomical projects on its hands. In other words, they are getting them back because the builders found them to be uneconomical to operate under the conditions and regulations as laid down, and so they just walked away from them. Perhaps when the minister is before us he will be able to give us some information as to how serious that particular situation is.

A main thrust of the bill—and here I am speaking in money terms—is in the provision of rental housing. This is perhaps the most serious problem in housing today. There is some evidence—and indeed the minister himself said that he was shocked by the evidence—that a very large number of Canadian families—in fact, 107,000—are tenant families with incomes of under $3,000 who are paying more than 50 per cent of their income in rent. Furthermore, there are more than 800,000 householders who spend more than 25 per cent of their income on rent. Part of the drive of this bill is to bring that percentage down to 20 or 22 per cent, or to some percentage of income that is regarded as manageable by low-income families. I have not been able in reading the bill, or in reading the discussions that have taken place on it, to see how it will improve that situation. There again perhaps the minister will be able to enlighten us.

[Senator Grosart.]

Honourable senators, the sum of $1 billion was mentioned by the sponsor. Apparently $1 billion—it is more than $1 billion, perhaps $1.2 billion, $1.3 billion or even $1.4 billion—is the amount that the government hopes will be attracted into housing from the private sector because of the incentives in this bill. From this it would appear that the two major thrusts of the bill are, on the one hand, the provision of financial incentives to builders—that is, builders who are in the low-income rental field—and, on the other hand, the provision of incentives to individuals through reducing the interest on their mortgages.

There are substantial extensions of the conditions for qualification. This bill would extend, for example, the right to qualify to loans obtained by an individual prospective home owner from a private source, not merely those, as in the existing act and regulations, from public sources.

It has also been suggested that the new registered home owner savings plan may in itself be a disincentive to the acquisition of homes by Canadians. As honourable senators are aware, this plan permits those who do not own a home, and have not owned a home, to put by $1,000 a year for the purpose of buying a home or furniture, and to deduct that amount from their taxable income for income tax purposes. In the case of a young couple, a deduction of $2,000 is permitted. I believe advantage is being taken of this plan by many young people, but I can understand why it has been said it is a disincentive. Of course, it obviously postpones a decision to own a home until sufficient capital has been acquired to make the necessary downpayment.

I hope honourable senators will understand if I take a little time to look through my notes. I did not know I was going to handle this bill until late yesterday afternoon. Perhaps “handle” is the wrong word, and it might be preferable to say that I did not know I was going to “speak” to it.

Senator Langlois: Perhaps “mishandle” would be better.

Senator Grosart: Mishandle? I think that is going a little far. The Deputy Leader of the Government is almost tempting me to go farther than I intended, and to “manhandle” it. I can assure him that if I were under the influence of what has been called the “mood,” which has been prevalent in this chamber recently, I might be tempted to be much more critical of the bill than I am.

When the minister is before us, honourable senators, I shall certainly be interested in getting from him what this bill will cost the government. I say that because, strangely enough, nowhere in all the presentations and discussions that have taken place do I find an estimate of what this will cost the government. The sum of $1 billion, of course, is not the cost to the government. That is another matter. These various programs always have tags on them, or at least some of them do, and it is my intention to ask the minister to let us know what the cost of each of these programs is likely to be so that we can assess it in relation to its possible benefit.

● (1050)

Honourable senators, I will conclude my remarks by saying again that one dislikes dealing with a bill such as this in the manner in which we are doing it. However, if we must do it, the best way of doing it is having the minister here so that all senators will have the opportunity of hearing the government's view of the bill and asking questions of the minister. I can assure honourable senators that he has had lots of practice, because from my reading of the background he must have been before the committee in the other place for seven or eight days. I see the minister is in the gallery and he will be in good shape to answer the many questions I am sure he will receive from us.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear!

Hon. Sidney L. Buckwold: Honourable senators, if I may be allowed a few remarks, I am one who is delighted with this bill and I take this opportunity of congratulating the minister and his department for what I consider to be a very progressive and valiant attempt to improve the housing situation in Canada. I can say generally that I believe Canadians—I say generally—are among the best housed populations of the nations of the world. That does not mean to say that we do not have problems. However, I do say that under various governments, whether the present government or that of the Right Honourable John Diefenbaker—I say this for the benefit of honourable senators across the way—the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has been a very beneficial instrument over the years with respect to housing throughout the country.

I was a little astounded to hear Senator Grosart indicate that the provinces are beginning to resent the intrusion of the federal government into what he claims to be basically a provincial field. I doubt whether he really means that, because in my opinion, the provinces have been delighted to have the leadership that has been given through the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in developing housing and other programs. I am sure that Senator Grosart would be the first to say that the provinces would stand as one to resent and protest any withdrawal of the federal government from this very important field.

There is no doubt that we have experienced a slowdown. However, I would remind the house that, although there was a drop in starts last year, the completions in 1974 were 257,243. I grant that the drop in starts may have an adverse effect in the following year. Hopefully, however, with the kind of impetus we see possible as a result of this legislation we can still maintain a good record. I would suggest that 257,243 completions in 1974 is a very significant factor in providing good housing for Canadians.

I am pleased with the variety of the programs which have been brought to the attention of this house as a result of this bill. I believe the impetus that is being given to provide housing for lower and middle income groups will be beneficial. The Assisted Home Ownership Program was a great success. I do not believe that most Canadians have been aware of how successful it has been. It exceeded the expectations of the government, the Department of State for Urban Affairs and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The original budget was approximately $300 million and because the demand for this program which, as you are aware, assists lower and medium income approved applicants to have their interest charges reduced up to a maximum of $600, an additional $150 million had to be provided. I draw this to your attention because I believe that the progressive programs which we see being developed are further extended by the provisions of this bill.

I am slightly concerned by the non-profit aspect. I am all for the non-profit programs, but I do hope that the minister and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will keep in mind that this is a long-term operation and that in accepting non-profit organizations they should do so on the basis that they are very reliable organizations and likely to have extended supervision ability. In January I spent a few days in Washington attending a meeting with the Housing and Urban Development officials. One of the great problems they have encountered has been in connection with the non-profit organizations and their lack of ability to control programs. Fortunately, in Canada these organizations have shown good responsibility, which is the reason for the extension. However, again I caution the government to make sure that we do not find ourselves in a sort of vacuum with respect to these organizations as we look ahead 15 or 20 years in the lifetime of these projects.

I should like to draw the attention of the Senate to a very important part of the program, namely, the extension of the financing of sewage treatment plants and trunk storm sewer systems. From the point of view of local government, this is one of the greatest financing burdens and one in which the local politician is really reluctant to become involved. This is because a storm sewerage system is buried, and he does not really receive much credit for investing several millions of dollars in it, necessary and beneficial as it is.

These are the kind of things on which the taxpayers' money is spent and they want to know where the results are. For this reason the provision of new land for housing, which is so essential in this whole program, will be encouraged as a result of the programs and the financing repayments, forgiveness and the ability to borrow from the government through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. I believe that the forgiveness clause will prove to be a very real incentive. It is introduced by way of an extension of other programs which have been available, but it has been broadened. It has been broadened to the point that if a municipality finances through its ordinary channels it will be entitled to forgiveness. This works out to 25 per cent of the loan, which I calculate to be 16½ per cent of the total cost of the project, which is a real incentive.

The legislation also provides for lower interest changes, as a result of using federal government rates, which is a very important aspect when one considers the cost of the long-term financing of trunk storm sewers and sewage treatment plants. This part of the program did not receive much attention, but I can say as a former municipal person that additional benefits and features of this program are very important and welcome to our municipalities.

I therefore pass on to my honourable colleagues my conviction that this bill is essential. I say to Senator Grosart that it is probably not enough. We must do more in order to stimulate the building economy so far as housing is concerned. I do not share the view that the reduction of the sales tax will immediately have the desired effects. The fact is that it has been reduced by 6 per cent, which will give some impetus. I presume that in due course the government will probably consider a further reduction in that tax.

There are other aspects, which perhaps we should not get into here, as to whether the government should consider allowing mortgage interest payments or local municipal taxes to be deductible for income tax purposes. This is the system used in the United States, and it has resulted in a tremendous impetus for home ownership. I would say that its greatest impetus to home ownership has been the benefits which accrue to an individual because he owns his own home. It has resulted in the United States having a higher percentage of owner occupied homes than almost any country in the world. This is a finance program that would have to be looked at in due course.

● (1100)

Honourable senators, I commend the bill. I hope that in due course the minister will be able to find some way of being able to reduce mortgage rates generally for housing. That in itself would provide the greatest impetus to the building of homes for rental and owner occupancy. I believe the bill is worthy of support, and I look forward to asking questions of the minister about the details of the bill.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, I may have been misunderstood when I made my remark about the attitude of some provinces toward the government's housing strategy. To make it clear, I was not suggesting that any province was objecting to the federal government making money available; but if Senator Buckwold thinks that the provinces are not up in arms, angry, about this, then he has not been reading the newspapers. I can assure him that they are complaining strongly that this money would be much better spent if the spending were controlled at the provincial and municipal level.

Senator Buckwold: I do not think that is correct.

Senator Perrault: They are always angry.

Senator McIlraith: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, if the Honourable Senator McIlraith speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading of this bill.

Senator McIlraith: Honourable senators, I do not propose to add to my remarks. I merely wish to thank honourable senators for the consideration they have given to second reading.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

CONSIDERED IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator McIlraith: Honourable senators, as I indicated earlier, I propose asking the Senate to commit the bill to a Committee of the Whole, in accordance with rule 18, which, of course, carries with it an invitation to the minister to come into the chamber to answer questions.

[Senator Buckwold.]

Therefore, I move, seconded by the Honourable Senator Perrault, P.C., that the bill be committed to a Committee of the Whole presently.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate was accordingly adjourned during pleasure and put into a Committee of the Whole on the bill, the Honourable Senator Bourget, P.C. in the Chair.

Pursuant to rule 18 of the Rules of the Senate, the Honourable Barney Danson, P.C., the Minister of State for Urban Affairs, was escorted to a seat in the Senate Chamber.

The Chairman: Honourable senators, the Senate is in Committee of the Whole on Bill C-46, to amend the National Housing Act. Before we commence studying the bill clause by clause, I should like, on your behalf, to welcome the minister and his officers, and to ask him if he has a preliminary statement to make.

Hon. Barney Danson (Minister of State for Urban Affairs): Thank you, Mr. Chairman and honourable senators. I am pleased to have been invited from the other place to be here with you. I believe that I can best serve your purpose by answering your questions rather than making a lengthy opening statement. I should like to say how grateful I am to Senator McIlraith for proposing the legislation in this house, to those who have spoken on it, and also to Senator Grosart for an extremely knowledgeable criticism of it.

The urgency in connection with this bill has already been expressed. I apologize for the urgency. I am sure you are aware of the need to stimulate the housing industry, and this bill is a very important element in that.

There are times when building can start, and there are other times when it cannot. There is reason for urgency following the delay which has occurred in the other place. I am grateful for your cooperation in this very special way. I will be pleased to answer any and all questions with the assistance of my officials, Mr. Alfred E. Coll of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and Mr. Teron, the President, who will be here shortly.

The Chairman: Shall the title of the bill be postponed?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

The Chairman: Clause 1. Shall clause 1 carry?

Senator Grosart: Stand. Mr. Chairman, I suggest that clause 1 stand because it will give us an opportunity later to ask some general questions arising out of the specific questions on the clauses.

The Chairman: Clause 1 stands. Shall clause 2 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

Senator Lamontagne: Mr. Chairman, may we have an opportunity to ask general questions before we get to specific clauses?

The Chairman: I think we could do that.

Senator Flynn: Normally that should be done on clause 1. Possibly we could revert to clause 1 and refer the adoption to the end. I have no objection to reverting to clause 1.

The Chairman: Shall we revert to clause 1?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

The Chairman: Shall clause 1 carry?

Senator Lamontagne: I should like to ask the minister why this legislation is coming at this late date when we in this country have been the victim of a slump in housing starts? This was quite evident in the latter part of 1974, and even earlier in that year.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Honourable senators, the bill was introduced in the other place at the end of last year. There was, of course, the Christmas recess, and it has taken an inordinate length of time in the house and committee of the other place.

The turnaround in starts was seen at the end of last year. At that time, my officials and I worked on the legislation as a response to the decreasing starts. We feel this would be a strong stimulus. We have met with the housing industry, and clients of the housing industry—those who wish homes, especially in the lower income groups—and have devised amendments to an already comprehensive housing program which would enrich and stimulate it further. The delay, I regret, was in the other place, not so much in the introduction of the legislation.

● (1110)

Senator Buckwold: A non-profit corporation is defined in clause 1 of the bill. What criteria are Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation using to assure that there will be an ongoing responsibility for a fairly lengthy period of time, and that this will not result in fly-by-night organizations, ad hoc organizations, or the kind of organizations that could lead to eventual trouble?

Hon. Mr. Danson: As you have noted, Senator Buckwold, "non-profit corporation" is defined. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation takes special pains, to the point of allowing up to $10,000 in start-up grants, to make certain the corporation is well organized and on sound ground.

This program was introduced by my predecessor. It has not been as rapid in getting going in some cases as we would like because of the care we have taken to make certain that the organizations are sound, are representative and well managed. This is a matter of continuing interest and concern. As the program unfolds, of course, we see right across the country an amazingly high quality of operation by some of these organizations. Some of them do get frustrated because the expertise is not necessarily present, and we are trying to assist them through CMHC. We also find that some groups, such as the United Auto Workers or the Canadian Labour Congress, or groups such as those within organizations, who are used to administering programs and who have developed the technical expertise necessary, have done exceptionally well. There have been areas of difficulty, but no areas of failure.

This is an area of concern to me, and as we nurture this program along we see even greater areas of success. I consider the area of third sector housing to be, potentially, one of the important forces, as opposed to private sector and government housing. It has great potential growth, and we are encouraging it.

We are encouraging not only voluntary groups, such as churches, service clubs, and so forth, but many other types of organizations. In this connection, we had the announcement by the Minister of Veterans Affairs yesterday providing special incentives to veterans' groups to look at the needs of veterans at this stage.

If I may say, Mr. Chairman, I do not know of any other country in the world which has taken its veterans through another generation in looking after their needs. The Veterans' Land Act was aimed at a bunch of young veterans returning with war brides and going off to the land to till the soil and raise their babies. Those same veterans seem to have dropped that type of activity—not that they do not have the will, but the energy has changed. The government is now addressing itself to the current needs of veterans in a very special and sensitive way so that their organizations can participate in such programs as this. I think the various legions and other veterans' organizations across the country are ideal clients for such projects as this. It is also extremely important to municipalities who are establishing non-profit groups, some of which are housing corporations. This is another area which we are encouraging and expanding.

Senator Connolly (Ottawa West): Mr. Minister, can you tell us how many non-profit groups are participating in this program?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Mr. Chairman, I do not have the precise number that are now functioning. We have provided start-up grants to more than 150, but as to the percentage of them that are active organizations, I cannot say.

Senator Riley: Mr. Chairman, like you, I should like to welcome the minister to this chamber. Our association goes back a quarter of a century, and I did not think I would precede him to this chamber by a year.

A good many remarks commending this bill have been made by the sponsor and those who participated in the debate on second reading. Nothing, however, was said about senior citizen housing. I should like to know, as I am sure all honourable senators would, what is being done about senior citizen housing today. How far have you advanced, and at what pace are you advancing?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Thank you, Senator Riley. Your question touches an area of special interest to me because of my philosophical approach to life and society. My view is that a society which looks after its senior citizens adequately is a much more humane and developed society than those which do not. Some societies which we consider to be less developed, do a far better job in this area than we do.

We have come a long way in Canada in senior citizen housing over the last several years. The total number of loans made since this program began in 1946 in respect of senior citizen housing is 1,870. Those loans went to the construction of 78,186 senior citizen units, mostly apartment-type units, and the provision of 32,781 hospital beds, representing an expenditure of over $1 billion. This emphasis will continue.

Another aspect is housing for those who need assistance generally. I believe it was Senator Grosart who made reference to public housing. I might indicate that there is an increase in the area of non-profit and corporation housing from $142 million to $175 million. In addition to that, with the philosophy of the corporation and myself, we are trying to have people live in the community generally rather than building ghettos. Perhaps I can address myself to that area in response to other questions.

In so far as senior citizen housing is concerned, for those who wish to remain where they are, the rental supplements under section 44(1)(b) have been enriched and expanded. Many people will be able to stay in the community, if they wish, and as we expand senior citizen housing—some of which, as you know, is quite beautiful—our senior citizens will have the choice of moving to a senior citizen housing project or remaining in their present rental accommodation or public housing accommodation with the aid of rental supplements.

Senator Carter: Will cooperative societies qualify for the 10 per cent write-off provided in this legislation?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Yes, Senator Carter. Non-profit corporations and cooperatives are considered in precisely the same way in so far as their financing is concerned. It is 100 per cent financing of the capital cost at 8 per cent interest, plus a 10 per cent forgiveness, which is really to take into account land costs, although it is not specifically stated that way, and a start-up grant of up to $10,000 to organize and get under way.

Further to that there can be rental supplements. Where the land costs exceed 10 per cent of the capital cost of the project, we give the cooperative or non-profit corporation the option of having Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation acquire the land and lease it back to them at an advantageous rent. This is designed primarily for those major cities where land costs are extremely high, making it impossible for viable projects of this type. This measure will assist greatly in keeping the rents at an affordable level. This is a particularly valuable option in such cities as Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal, particularly where the land in question is near the centre of those cities, where a good many of our senior citizens wish to live.

Senator Carter: As you have already said, a group of 10 veterans, say, could form a cooperative housing group and qualify for this 10 per cent forgiveness provision. Would they, by accepting that 10 per cent forgiveness, disqualify themselves for the veterans' housing benefits which commenced yesterday, or could they have the best of both worlds?

● (1120)

Hon. Mr. Danson: I suppose the best of three worlds. At the moment some still qualify under the Veterans Land Act. Under the new policy announced by the Minister of Veterans Affairs yesterday, not only do they qualify for these benefits, but any non-profit group that got together, such as the ten veterans you suggest, would qualify for a further 10 per cent of the capital, which would help bring the amount down even more.

Senator Hicks: I should like to ask a supplementary question. Am I clear in my understanding that even though a veteran may have availed himself of the benefits of the Veterans Land Act several years ago and completely discharged his obligation, he might still qualify under an arrangement similar to the one the minister has been referring to?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Yes. I am always concerned about building up expectations. Certainly that would not be a disqualification. Under the announcement made by the Minister of Veterans Affairs they would also qualify for special assistance under the Assisted Home Ownership Program. In that case they could not have owned a home in the three prior years.

Senator Carter: I should like to make a comment on behalf of veterans. I listened very carefully to the statement made by the Minister of Veterans Affairs. I admit that for veterans with very low incomes, and veterans who have children, who can take advantage of the benefits under the National Housing Act as well as benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs, this is a very good scheme, but as I see the picture most veterans today who will take advantage of the benefits under your department provided by this bill, or under the Department of Veterans Affairs arrangements, are now around 50 years of age. They will be looking more towards retirement, and making provision for housing for their retirement. They are not likely to have children living with them, which would qualify them to benefit under this legislation. That limits them to only benefits available under the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Take, for example, a veteran who is 50 years of age and about to retire on an income of around $10,000 a year. Twenty-five per cent of his income would be $2,500. If that veteran takes a mortgage for $30,000—and he cannot very well expect to build much of a home with a smaller mortgage than that—his mortgage payments, assuming interest at 10 per cent, would be around $3,000. The only benefit available to that veteran would be $500 a year from the Department of Veterans Affairs to bring the mortgage payments down to within 25 per cent of his income. I do not think that compares too favourably with benefits under the old act.

I readily admit that for veterans with very low incomes, retiring on, say, $6,000 or $7,000 a year, the benefits could be much greater. Nevertheless, I think the bulk of the veterans now will be in the group that receives the minimum, rather than the maximum, benefits from both pieces of legislation. Perhaps the minister would comment on that.

Hon. Mr. Danson: I do not know my terms of reference here, because this rather involves my colleague, the Minister of Veterans Affairs. However, perhaps I can refer to it. I guess it is a matter of trying to do all things at all times. I do not know any other country that has treated veterans better—and I say this as a veteran—than we have. Those about whom we are primarily concerned are having a tough time. Many veterans, such as some now present, are not really in need of assistance in any form whatsoever, but as veterans we had benefits available to us, regardless of income, immediately after the war, and under the Veterans Land Act which extends until this weekend.

What we want to ensure is that we look after those veterans who are aged 50 and over and who are facing retirement. First of all, I think the greatest potential here is under the non-profit clause of the bill, where the child qualification will not matter. We waive the child qualification too when they borrow, as they can, from private lenders and still get the $600 subsidy.

[Mr. Danson.]

It is true that the provision remains for new housing, but I would suggest that most veterans would want to rent or buy existing housing rather than build a new house, and I think this is a great incentive to them.

While, in effect, one could say it is for all veterans, it is really only for those who need assistance, which I think is fair. I believe veterans would recognize that. I do not think veterans are looking for a free ride thirty years later. Those of their comrades who are in difficult circumstances will indeed be helped, and any veteran can look ahead and, if he needs assistance, see that the assistance is there from his country. I think that is a very special thing when we carry it through to another generation.

Senator Carter: Why do you waive the child requirement for loans from approved lenders, and not from CMHC loans?

Hon. Mr. Danson: The difficulty is really one of funds. If we opened it up to everybody there would just not be enough to go around. I think we have gone a long way here, because this serves most of the people, particularly in the area of low rental accommodation. I think that is the widest possible area. If we extended it to the full range of benefits there can be interest reduction payments, bringing our lending rate down to 8 per cent, and then a further subsidy of up to $50 a month in an endeavour to get the repayment down to where it is about 25 per cent of the person's income, and that applies to all Canadians who qualify. In addition, DVA will supplement that by another $50 a month. It could work out for a low income veteran to a subsidy of about $1,500 a year. If he is a home buyer and moves into his first home, he gets as well the $500 first-time home-owner's grant this year. Of course, if he goes into rental accommodation, there are the rental supplements which are available through the provinces and ourselves.

● (1130)

Senator Carter: In the case of a person purchasing a house which is already built, what requirements have to be met? Are there specifications? Does CMHC or the department have regulations which might disqualify a house from being purchased under this plan?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Well, there are some. It is not the same as building a new house, where our inspection is very thorough. As a matter of fact, I was interested in Senator Grosart's remarks. I guess we are criticized for being too thorough at times, and at other times for not being thorough enough. It is one of those situations where you cannot win. But with used housing it becomes much more difficult. We do have soundness standards—making certain the structures are good and adequate. They are not fancy, I must say, because a structure which is considered quite satisfactory in some parts of the country may not be up to the physical standards which would apply in one of the major cities. I would say it is a commonsense approach based on acceptable standards.

Senator Williams: My question is rather broad. Will this bill affect and involve the Indian people of Canada, whether they be non-status Indians, registered band members, or urban Indians? By "urban Indians," I mean those Indians who have moved off the reserves and taken up residence in municipalities and cities. Will this bill in any way benefit them, or will they simply be referred to the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Senator Williams, this legislation itself does not specifically deal with native peoples, but all native peoples, even on reserves, can qualify, as can other Canadians—for example, those who are non-status, the Métis, and the status Indians, and also those who are urban Indians, who may be enfranchised or not but who are living in urban centres. Further to this, however, under section 40 we have special legislation which allows even deeper subsidies in those cases. It is not dealt with in this legislation, but it exists.

If I may be permitted to say so, this is an area of special interest to CMHC. We meet with Indian housing groups and groups representing native communities generally on a regular basis, in an attempt to upgrade our programs and our delivery systems in order to assist them. We have, I believe, 35 native people in the corporation who work with native groups and bands to assist them in developing the skills, both technical and administrative, to work with the programs and to build good housing. We are enriching and expanding that program. Indeed, we are now conducting a comprehensive review to expand it even further in respect of the native peoples.

Further to that, I am engaged in discussions with my colleague, the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, on special programs for status Indians, both on and off reserves. I hope that we will be able to develop a better program which will not do more things for native peoples, but will allow native peoples to do more things for themselves.

Senator Williams: I gather from your reply, sir, that they are involved and that they are eligible.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Oh, yes, they are eligible for all these benefits plus the other special programs.

Senator Lamontagne: I should like to go back to the question of overall policy. We are dealing here, it seems to me, with a highly unstable industry. Surely the government has to take special responsibility for that instability, in the sense that when we reach the peak of the short term economic cycle the government, through its tight and dear money policy, creates a slump in the building industry, and in the construction of dwelling units in Canada. At that point, when the recession starts, the Minister of Urban Affairs and the representatives of CMHC have to come before Parliament to try to repair the damage which has been done through the previous stage of the short term cycle.

I would be glad to hear the minister tell us that it is his intention to introduce, perhaps for the first time in the post-war period, measures to stabilize this most important industry on a short term basis. I would also like to hear if he intends to implement some of the recommendations which were presented recently by the Economic Council of Canada in its special report on the construction industry.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Senator Lamontagne, in spite of economic fluctuations, the budget for housing has increased each and every year. Indeed, up until 1974 we had record-breaking years, year after year. In 1973 there were 264,000 starts, which was an all-time high. It is true that the economic conditions have altered this. I suggest that those have been international problems. I do not mean to suggest that we in the government can escape responsibility for our portion of it, but the shortage of mortgage funds is one of the major factors, and the cost of those funds. Money is the most fluid of international commodities, and has a tendency to find its own level. Interest rates reflect the real world, and the government responds to this. Of course, I need not tell you that, sir. Therefore, any time we cut the interest rate back, it has the effect of creating a subsidy, and I think we should call it that.

We have done that in this legislation, even considering the drop in starts, and that is some consolation. Our rate of starts, even at what we consider the very seriously low level of around 170,000—actually, 156,000 is the annual rate based on last month's figures—does, if you take our production as one-tenth of theirs, relate well to the American rate. I do not take any comfort from that. Perhaps as minister it gives me an excuse, but I cannot take any comfort from it. However, it does show that we are not alone. Indeed, I think we are responding well to the situation with this infusion of capital, which we are bringing in from the private sector at a price people could not previously afford but should be able to as a result of this legislation.

Senator Grosart: Mr. Chairman, I should like to ask the minister a general question about the cost of the amendments we are now being asked to pass. Will he give us the total cost, and show how it is broken down into the 4 or 5 major components—the $600 a year item, the low rental item, the land-lease and the sewerage program, and so on. I just want that in general figures.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Senator Grosart, with respect to the land-lease provisions, I will deal with 1975 and 1976 separately, because 1975 is a partial year whereas 1976 will be a full year. We estimate, for instance, that the land-lease provision in 1975 will cost $2.4 million. The estimate for 1976, the full year, is $5.2 million. Under the Assisted Home Ownership Plan, AHOP, from approved lendings—this is the subsidy on the interest rate to bring it down to an affordable level—in 1975 we estimate $6 million, and in 1976, $18.5 million, because it will be an accumulative figure.

● (1140)

Under sewage treatment program—I guess we should lump that together—the total for 1975 would be $8.9 million; for the full year of 1976 it would be $20 million. I do not believe we have any other cost involved in this legislation that is an addition to existing legislation.

Senator Grosart: I wonder if you have the figures for non-profit housing.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Senator Grosart, that is the land-lease provision. These are just the subsidy figures we are dealing with here; not the capital costs. But in non-profit and cooperative housing, in the whole package there, it is

[Senator Lamontagne.]

$175 million. That is capital, in addition to the subsidy portions.

Senator Grosart: How about the low income rental provisions? AHOP, as I understand it, covers the amount paid to individuals. What is the amount that is estimated will be paid to builders under the rental clause?

Hon. Mr. Danson: The amount that would be paid by way of subsidies—that would be under the rental housing provisions in the bill that we are talking about—is $6 million. There is a total of $6 million allocated there for the limited dividend rental accommodation, and $12 million for the AHOP private, as we call it, for a total of $18 million, which should lever, we estimate, about $1 billion of private sector capital that otherwise we would have to tax people for.

I heard your comments, Senator Grosart, on that. By this interest rate reduction we simply lever money from the private sector, the private lenders, who have indicated considerable interest in this, so we can negotiate at the lowest interest rate they could afford to lend at. We have to watch that very carefully, because it is part of our job, and also what the client group can pay and still get a rent that is at a figure they can afford, which we estimate would be between 22 and 25 per cent of income, as a goal and a requirement under the program.

Senator Carter: May I ask a supplementary question? Are approved lenders limited to private money, or can they also come and get money from CMHC?

Hon. Mr. Danson: The approved lenders do not borrow from CMHC. Our clients borrow from CMHC, so this gives the building industry a choice of going to the approved lenders—the private lenders—or, in some cases, to us where our programs are direct, like AHOP, and the public housing, where the funding is direct. The approved lenders are people we insure under the act, but they do not get money from us.

Senator Carter: How about the rates they charge? Is there any limit, or is this just determined by the market?

Hon. Mr. Danson: If I understand you, Senator Carter, you mean the rate at which starts are made, or do you mean the rate of interest? I am sorry, but whenever people talk “rates” to me, I think of rates of housing starts.

Senator Carter: Rates of interest.

Hon. Mr. Danson: This is something we will monitor very closely. It has to be at the very bottom end of the interest market. This is the real market we are dealing with. We are not going to be in a position of supporting higher rates than would normally be the case otherwise. It is getting down to the lower end of that market, which is still attractive to investment funds. The rate might then be 10½ per cent, but the most that one client could pay might be 9 or 9½ per cent. I do not like to use specific figures because they will vary in each case, but that difference in spread is what we are interested in. It is then possible for a person to buy a home, build a home or rent accommodation. But we do not look at that amount of 22 to 25 per cent of income as a desirable standard.

Senator Neiman: Mr. Chairman, the minister knows that I have had the opportunity on occasion of attending on his behalf, or on behalf of his department, at openings of senior citizen's homes and homes for handicapped people. I might say that these are always very satisfying occasions because you feel that the federal government touches on and enters very directly into the lives of the citizens of Canada, and always with happy results.

My concern today is really with the handicapped people. I have mentioned this to the minister before, but I wonder if it is a stated, stipulated policy of his department that any public building to which it advances funds will have the proper facilities to enable handicapped people to enter—that is, for access to doorways, elevators, and facilities such as that. I also wonder, when money is advanced to public housing, whether it is done on the understanding that a certain amount of public housing will be provided or modified for the benefit of handicapped people.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Mr. Chairman, Senator Neiman and I have indeed discussed this, and I am pleased to say that as a result of our discussions I have learned of a rather comprehensive program in this respect, and of a publication for people who build multiple family dwellings especially, which indicates the best standards for the handicapped, with particular reference to wheelchair patients. I would be delighted to see that you get a copy of that, Senator Neiman. I should have sent you one anyway—perhaps I have, but I am not sure.

The other important factor is that whenever it is a question of multi-family dwellings being built from now on with CMHC financing, there is a requirement to accommodate wheelchair patients and to have ramps and proper access for them. Beyond our own direct lending—this is not easy to control, but we are encouraging it—it is quite incredible how much response there is to it. It seems to be a natural development that has been taking place in the last couple of years. You find that the ramps and doorways are being put in. It really does not mean much more than that, as long as people like yourself think about it and remind us. I do not want to call Mr. Teron a developer in the normal sense, but I am sure he is one of the leading and dynamic people in the field, and I imagine developers would agree that this is something that could be done very simply when it is thought about, and people are thinking about it. It applies to bathrooms, and things of that nature. That is being done, and that is a requirement.

The Chairman: Are there any other questions of a general nature? If not we will stand clause 1.

Shall clause 2 carry?

Senator Flynn: I am wondering what "less two" means in clause 2?

Mr. Danson: Mr. Chairman and senators, I am always startled when someone asks me what legislation means.

Senator Grosart: It is an unfair question.

Hon. Mr. Danson: I am one of the non-lawyers in the Commons, and in the Cabinet. In this case this is very specific. The act, in that section, contains the words "per cent" in error after the word "two". For example, a mortgage rate correction of 8 per cent less two produces a reduction of .16. This results in a rate of 7.84, whereas a reduction of the straight two which would result in 6 per cent. So we have managed in this case to eliminate some confusion, I hope.

● (1150)

The Chairman: Shall clause 2 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 3 carry?

Senator Grosart: I wonder, Mr. Minister, if you would indicate to us the current status of the mortgage insurance fund? It appears that you are requiring more money in that fund, and yet it seems to be solvent on an actuarial basis.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Indeed, senator, it is very solid. I believe the reserves in that fund are now in the range of $400 million. This was built up over a period of time. It is run on a sound actuarial basis, and this is believed to be what is needed to protect the outstanding exposure that exists now. Even though the rate of default is not all that high, we have to be prepared in case we run into a period of economic recession, which I doubt will happen under the current government. Even though CMHC is non-political, they have to be prepared for a change of government.

Senator Grosart: Would the minister indicate the rate of default—that is, foreclosures, powers of sale and so on? I should like to know the percentage of the defaults that have had to be covered by the insurance fund over the years, or in one particular year?

Hon. Mr. Danson: I am just getting that information. I have it in front of me, but the print is too fine for me to read. Perhaps you would allow me a moment. I think I can come back with that answer a little later, if you do not mind.

The Chairman: Shall clause 3 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 4 carry?

Senator Asselin: Would the minister explain why there is a mention of a maximum of $25 billion in clause 4? There we see the words "... been issued under this Act shall not exceed twenty-five billion dollars." Why is that?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Mr. Chairman, this is to accommodate the accumulated insured lending of the approved lenders. I think under the last revision it was increased from $15 billion to $19 billion. We are not quite at that level yet, but we are reaching it now, so it is necessary to increase it to accommodate any other possible loan insurance obligations we might have before new amendments come through again. This allows us to incur obligations up to $25 billion, which is an accumulated or total amount.

Senator Grosart: At what level does that fund stand now? You are asking to go from $19 to $25 billion, and I understand the obligations are nowhere close to that yet. You have lots of leeway at the moment, so I am wondering why you are asking for this extra leeway of $6 billion?

Hon. Mr. Danson: I am just getting the precise figure. My recollection—because I was asked this question in committee—is that it is around $17 billion. But this is being looked up for a precise figure now.

Senator Grosart: I think it is less than that.

Hon. Mr. Danson: From the figures I have here now we are running an overdraft. It is at $19.233 billion. But that is normal when I get into a portfolio.

Senator Grosart: Is it the actual status at the moment that you have an overdraft? I ask this because it is quite contrary to the information given earlier.

Hon. Mr. Danson: I shall have to get that information for you. That is our insured loan limit. I have a recollection, from the information we had before, that we are running at about $17 billion. If you have other information, then I would really like to check that—not only for you, senator, but for my own information as well. We will get that information along with the percentage of loss under mortgage insurance.

The Chairman: Shall clause 4 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 5 carry?

Senator Grosart: Perhaps the minister would explain the purpose of the amendment made by clause 5.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Mr. Chairman, clause 5 is a new amendment to authorize the corporation to make payments to owners of rental housing projects who obtain loans from approved lenders. This is part of the heart of the bill. If the owners have entered into an agreement with the corporation under which they have agreed to comply with certain provisions with respect to the operation of the project, including a provision with respect to rentals to be charged,—which you, Senator Grosart, I believe, referred to as rent control; and it is that in effect, but it is a voluntary agreement between the owner and the corporation because they are getting public funds—we ask that they enter into a rental agreement to make certain that the project is not being used for people who do not need the rental subsidy. There is also provision precluding the sale of a project without the consent of the corporation, except under such terms and conditions as the corporation may provide. This is the essence of it.

In the case of home owners you can give it directly to the home owner, but in this case we have to give it to the borrower who is borrowing from the approved lender. This is the leverage factor, and for that he has to undertake these obligations. We are dealing with something in the range of $18 million. If I came before you with a program to spend even $100 million, it would seem like a fantastic program, but here, even though we are only talking about $18 million, I think everyone does appreciate the magnitude of the funds that can be borrowed from the private sector for housing.

Senator Hicks: As I read the section, it will apply to existing rental housing projects as well. The introductory paragraph says:

—enter into an agreement with any person who is or proposes to become an owner of a rental housing project—

Does the minister envisage that a good many existing rental projects will now become eligible for payments under this clause, if they will subject themselves to appropriate controls that will be prescribed by the provisions of this clause and by regulations under the act?

[Senator Grosart.]

Hon. Mr. Danson: Mr. Chairman and Senator Hicks, normally what we are trying to stimulate here is new housing. But there are cases, particularly with respect to non-profit groups and people who are trying to generate housing or reduce rents—for example, last week in Montreal we were working on the rehabilitation of some places, and in Toronto as well—for special types of client groups, such as the deprived or the handicapped, where they can buy an existing building, fix it up and regenerate it for low-income people. But the main thrust of this particular legislation is towards new rental starts.

● (1200)

Senator Hicks: But the wording is rather general.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Yes, this gives us an opportunity to exercise the wisdom and discretion for which the corporation is noted.

Senator Buckwold: I should like to ask a question related to section 14.1(2), which reads:

An agreement entered into under subsection (1) shall provide that

(a) the rentals to be charged by the owner of the rental housing project shall be rentals that the Corporation deems to be fair and reasonable having regard to the probable family income of the lessees of each family housing unit;

What will be the mechanics of this in the event that tenants and incomes change? Will this be a percentage of the income that the developer or the owner will set, or will it be done on each individual basis, meaning that each time a tenant moves there must be a negotiation?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Mr. Chairman, the intention is to maintain this at 25 per cent or less of the tenant's income. Mechanics for it exist and forms have to be dealt with by the landlord and the corporation with respect to entry for new tenants. An audit also takes place each year during the first phase and every second year during the second phase. With respect to the limited dividend, we can easily check that on an annual basis by means of an inspection carried out by the corporation to make certain that the landlord is meeting his commitments and that the tenants are at those lower rent levels.

Senator Buckwold: In other words, you are saying that each time there is a change of tenants, the landlord must go through the procedure of determining the rent for the individual unit?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Yes. The corporation sets the rates that can be charged, but each tenant must be assessed on that basis. This is audited and it is not a rigid procedure.

Senator Buckwold: This appears to involve a physical problem from the point of view of a landlord. Are you not introducing difficult administrative procedures which might leave an apartment or home vacant for a period of time during which the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation decides whether to approve or otherwise?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Yes, Senator Buckwold, it does appear to be complex, but we want to make certain that our subsidy is passed through to the tenant. We have had experience with this. Limited dividend accommodation is not new, but the most recent experience was when I came to this portfolio and we did a test run with $50 million for rental accommodation and the landlords were quite receptive to it. I must say, however, that they would rather have it without those strings attached. It does create an administrative burden, but it has been honoured and has worked. In the process we have been able to ensure that that pass-through does take place. I do not suggest for one moment that there are not cases in which it is not perfect. However, were we to attempt to reach perfection we might establish an unacceptable bureaucratic procedure. It seems to have worked quite well.

Senator Buckwold: I only hope that some type of generalized agreement could be arranged to make it easier for landlords to rent their apartments and for tenants to enter them as soon as possible.

Hon. Mr. Danson: I do not believe that this has caused any delays. However, it is an interesting point, and I would like to discuss it further with my officials. I shall endeavour to obtain a more comprehensive answer for you with respect to those mechanics, Senator Buckwold, and forward it to you.

If I may now, Mr. Chairman, I have some information with respect to Senator Grosart's question. In 1974 claims against the fund were $18 million. They fluctuate rather widely through the years. During 1973 the claims amounted to $40.1 million; in 1972, to $29.3 million; in 1971, to $7.4 million; and in 1970 to $2.7 million. The amount remained in that low range until as far back as 1966, when it increased to $10.4 million. The cumulative claims since 1954 totalled $181.4 million.

Senator Grosart: Could I ask what percentage of that might have been recovered? I take it that that represents the gross claims, but the amount recovered by the corporation on repossession would have to be subtracted.

Hon. Mr. Danson: Yes, Mr. Chairman, there is a very high percentage of recovery by resale. This is, fortunately, easier when resale can be made on recovery. In many cases, particularly in the multiple family units, we have retained ownership and acted as a landlord. This is not a role we seek, incidentally, and we will endeavour to get out of it.

Senator Carter: Mr. Chairman, I am not sure that I have the details accurately, as I am speaking from memory. If I recollect correctly, in his budget the Minister of Finance announced some tax concessions to private investors in new housing subject to the regulations established by CMHC. They would be permitted to write off some of that private investment against personal income tax. Perhaps the minister would correct me if I am wrong. If that is the case, is it related to this legislation?

Hon. Mr. Danson: No, Senator Carter, it does not apply to this legislation. That is legislation of the Minister of Finance under the registered home ownership savings plan, which we welcome because we hope it will channel much more investment funds into the housing field.

Senator Carter: But it does not relate to this legislation?

Hon. Mr. Danson: No.

The Chairman: Clause 5. Shall clause 5 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Clause 6. Shall clause 6 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Clause 7. Shall clause 7 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Clause 8. Shall clause 8 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

Senator Flynn: With respect to Part II, perhaps the minister would like to give a word of explanation of what is contemplated by this program of acquisition of land?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Yes, Senator Flynn. This is a new section and it enables the corporation to purchase land and lease to non-profit or cooperative associations or corporations. This is an option to the 10 per cent forgiveness which applied previously. It relates to especially high land costs, such as those in major cities where non-profit corporations or cooperatives wish to build. It enables the client to prefer this as an option. The corporation would then apply a lease-back at what would be considered to be a fair rental. In some cases it might be $1, or 1 per cent, and in other cases considerably more. It would depend on what would provide an economic rent in the project.

Senator Flynn: The corporation would only lease the land, rather than resell it.

Hon. Mr. Danson: No, it remains the property of the Crown and CMHC in perpetuity. The land lease may be for 50 or 60 years, but the title would remain that of the corporation.

Senator Flynn: It would be a kind of emphyteutic lease; is that how you would describe it? What would happen to the building erected on the land leased by the corporation? Does it continue to be the property of the corporation at the expiration of the lease?

● (1210)

Hon. Mr. Danson: In essence, as a non-lawyer, I understand the building would become part of the land. The intention is to have leases for a time that allows an economic amortization. At the end of that time, another judgment is made, according to the economic and social conditions of the time. It might remain as it is, or it might be recycled to another use or a new type of housing, or there could be some other use. It is in the public domain at that time.

Senator Flynn: There would be an obligation for the lessor to build on it, and at the end of the lease it becomes the property of the owner of the land.

Hon. Mr. Danson: I was not familiar with the terms, Senator Flynn. Thank you.

Senator Cook: We have had a lot of experience in Newfoundland with this type of lease. We found that as the lease began to run out, there was difficulty in making the lessee keep the buildings in good repair. Have you given any consideration to that matter? As the lease begins to run out, and the building reverts to the landlord, there is no incentive on the part of the tenant to keep it in good repair, and you end up with large sections of slum land. In Newfoundland the landlord was forced to renew the lease at an economic rent, in which case the lessee maintained the building.

Hon. Mr. Danson: In this case, we have not yet had the experience which the former oldest colony has had. In our arrangements with the lessee, we have provision for negotiation or renegotiation 10 or 15 years before the time the lease expires, in order that they may declare their intention on it. That is determined in advance. So, indeed, the situation does not occur. We are talking primarily of non-profit and cooperative groups. They usually have a different interest than that of a landlord.

Senator McIlraith: Honourable senators, at the conclusion of the second reading debate Senator Manning asked a question. I notice he is not in the chamber at present. I undertook to answer the question during the committee stage. I believe the question has been fully answered in the replies given to Senator Flynn's questions.

The Chairman: Shall clause 8 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 9 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 10 carry?

Senator Grosart: This is the maximum liability clause. I am not questioning the increase from $600 million to $650 million. I wonder if the minister would explain the necessity for this kind of clause, which, in effect, says that when the aggregate of the loans by the corporation has reached a certain level, no one else who has lent money under the provisions of the act will have a claim. How would people who are contemplating lending money under the act know that the limit had been reached? What would happen?

Hon. Mr. Danson: Basically it is a provision to impose a limit, so that we have to come back to Parliament for further expansion or approval. This is a clarifying amendment, to some extent, by inserting the word "any" in the phrase "in respect of loss." The aggregate principal amount of guaranteed home improvement loans and guaranteed home extension loans payable under this section is increased from $600 million to $650 million. We are up to $591 million now.

May I take the opportunity to refer to a previous question, in answer to which I said we are overdrawn? I meant we are overdrawn in respect of commitments, not expenditure; but we are getting very close to the limit.

The Chairman: Shall clause 10 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 11 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 12 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 13 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 14 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

[Senator Cook.]

The Chairman: Shall clause 15 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall clause 16 carry?

Senator Flynn: The minister has already commented on these loans for sewerage projects. The minister has answered questions on this matter.

The Chairman: Shall clause 16 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Should we revert to clause 1? Shall clause 1 carry?

Senator Grosart: There was some reference to existing legislation which will expire on March 31. Could the minister inform us what legislation it is, involved in this area, that will expire on March 31?

Hon. Mr. Danson: This is the forgiveness portion of the sewage treatment loans. As you are aware, this has been limited to the sanitary sewers. This legislation adds the storm sewers, but it removes the deadline of March 31 on the forgiveness provisions of the sewage treatment loans. There is a cut-off date on the new aspect of it, which is the storm sewers. In providing a reasonable period of time, five years, we have a chance to reassess it. If it is working successfully, presumably we would remove any restrictions there; if not, it gives us an opportunity to look at it again.

Senator Grosart: Would the minister describe briefly the degree of public protection provided by the warranty provisions?

Hon. Mr. Danson: The warranty is not covered in these amendments, but I would be pleased to comment on it.

Senator Grosart: It is covered in the amounts required.

Hon. Mr. Danson: This is an independent group which has been established after long negotiation so that no one group dominates it. A great deal of initiative was taken by the industry itself through HUDAC, the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, who were obviously concerned about those in the industry who were not meeting high standards, and also to satisfy concerns among home purchasers.

It was thought by many that, as this is largely a provincial jurisdiction, we had to consult with our provincial colleagues. They had to arrange separate provincial dealings. It would seem to be generally accepted that there should not be one group that would be in control.

It was a rather protracted negotiation, which resulted in the establishment of an advisory council of 35 members—ten from the provinces; three from the federal government; 13 from the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, one of whom is in the home manufacturing field; one from the suppliers; two from the lenders; one from the mortgage insurers; and, most importantly, five representing the Consumers Association of Canada, which we were particularly interested in seeing satisfied. I believe that totals 35. The first meeting of this council will take place on April 11 in Ottawa. It is an independent council without domination by anyone. We are acting as host in the sense of bringing them together, but the interests of all parties will be fully respected.

● (1220)

Senator Grosart: I have a final question, Mr. Chairman. Would the minister indicate how serious, or otherwise, is the problem of these LD units that have come back into the hands of the department?

Hon. Mr. Danson: I have just been handed some figures, Senator Grosart, which indicate that out of 91,533 limited dividend units that have been built under section 15, a total of 9,123 have come back to us, which is under 10 per cent. These units, of course, have remained in operation. Some of them required refurbishing. We are operating them in many cases, and we will also consider selling them to private investors.

The Chairman: Clause 1. Shall clause 1 carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Shall the title of the bill carry?

Hon. Senators: Carried.

The Chairman: Honourable senators, on your behalf I thank the minister and his officials for the very helpful information they have given us.

Shall I report the bill without amendment?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

The Hon. the Speaker: The sitting is resumed.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Senator Bourget: Madam Speaker, the Committee of the Whole, to which was referred Bill C-46, to amend the National Housing Act, has considered the said bill and has the honour to report the same without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator McIlraith: With leave of the Senate, now.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators have heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, I should just like to put on record that the exercise of the Committee of the Whole has been rather interesting and beneficial. I suggest we might use it again.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear.

The Hon. the Speaker: It is moved by the Honourable Senator McIlraith, seconded by the Honourable Senator Cook, that this bill be now read the third time. Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 5.45 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

ROYAL ASSENT

NOTICE

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that the following communication had been received:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
OTTAWA

March 26, 1975

Madam,

I have the honour to inform you that the Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, in his capacity as Deputy Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 26th day of March, at 5.45 p.m. for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to certain bills.

I have the honour to be,
Madam,

Your obedient servant.

André Garneau

Brigadier General

Administrative Secretary to the
Governor General

The Honourable

The Speaker of the Senate,
Ottawa.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Langlois tabled:

Copies of a statement entitled "James Bay Hydro-Electric Project" relating to environmental concerns and recommendations for protection and enhancement measures, dated March 24, 1975.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

REPORT OF COMMISSIONER TABLED

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, I have the honour to table the Report of the Commissioner of Official Languages covering the period from April 1, 1973 to December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 34(2) of the Official Languages Act, Chapter 0-2, R.S.C., 1970.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Orlikow has been substituted for that of Mr. Brewin on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Leave having been given to revert to Notices of Motions:

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Tuesday, April 8, 1975 at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Honourable senators, before the question is put, I should like to give a brief outline of what we can expect when the Senate resumes after the Easter adjournment.

As honourable senators will have noted, there are three bills from the other place on the Order Paper for second reading, namely: Bill C-48, to amend the Railway Act; Bill C-33, respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states; and Bill C-26, to amend the Civil Service Insurance Act. We will proceed with these bills on the evening of Tuesday, April 8, and then continue with other items on the Order Paper. It is expected that Bill C-13, to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act, and Bill C-19, the two-price wheat bill, will have reached us by the time the Senate resumes on April 8.

With respect to the committee, it is difficult at this time to give a complete schedule for the first week after the adjournment. However, I understand that the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy will meet at 9:30 a.m. on April 8, and on the same day at 2 p.m. there will be a meeting of the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs to consider Bill C-43, to amend the Law Reform Commission Act. Also at 2 p.m. on that day the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture will meet to consider the annual submission of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

So far there are no committee meetings scheduled for Wednesday, April 9, but on Thursday, April 10, the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance will meet at 9:30 a.m. to continue its study of the Manpower Division of the Department of Manpower and Immigration, and the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy will meet at 3:30 p.m. on that day.

Motion agreed to.

LEGAL AND CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED TO SIT DURING ADJOURNMENTS OF THE SENATE

Senator Langlois, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(i), moved:

That the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs have power to sit during adjournments of the Senate.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 6 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

ROYAL ASSENT

The Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, having come and being seated at the foot of the Throne, and the House of Commons having been summoned, and being come with their Speaker, the Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to give the Royal Assent to the following bill:

An Act to amend the National Housing Act.

The House of Commons withdrew.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to retire.

The sitting of the Senate was resumed.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, April 8, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, April 8, 1975

The Senate met at 8 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Brewin has been substituted for that of Mr. Orlikow on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report of the Canadian Livestock Feed Board for the crop year ended July 31, 1974, including its accounts and financial statement certified by the Auditor General for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to section 22 of the Livestock Feed Assistance Act, Chapter L-9, R.S.C., 1970.

Copies of Report entitled: "Price Effects—Removal of Federal Sales Tax on Clothing and Footwear", issued by the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

Capital Budget of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1976, pursuant to section 70(2) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter F-10, R.S.C., 1970, together with a copy of Order in Council P.C. 1975-527, dated March 6, 1975, approving same.

Report of the Anti-dumping Tribunal for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 32 of the Anti-dumping Act, Chapter A-15, R.S.C., 1970.

Report on operations under the Bretton Woods Agreements Act and the International Development Association Act for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 7 of the first-mentioned Act, Chapter B-9, and section 5 of the latter Act, Chapter I-21, R.S.C., 1970.

Report of the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation, including its accounts and financial statements certified by the Auditor General, for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 46 of the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation Act, Chapter C-3, R.S.C., 1970.

Capital Budget of the Royal Canadian Mint for the year ending December 31, 1975, pursuant to section 70(2) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter F-10, R.S.C., 1970, together with copy of Order in Council P.C. 1975-574, dated March 13, 1975, approving same.

Report of Statistics Canada entitled "Private and Public Investment in Canada, Outlook 1975", dated April 1975, published by authority of the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce.

Copies of Report of the Minister of Justice, pursuant to section 3 of the Canadian Bill of Rights, with reference to Bill S-10, intituled: "An Act to amend the Feeds Act".

Report of the Tax Review Board for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 17 of the Tax Review Board Act, Chapter 11, Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72.

Report of The Canadian Wheat Board for the crop year ended July 31, 1974, including its financial statements certified by the Auditors, pursuant to section 7(2) of the Canadian Wheat Board Act, Chapter C-12, R.S.C., 1970.

Copies of Tables relating to the breakdown of the cost of fertilizer production, issued by the Department of Agriculture.

LAW REFORM COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Senator Goldenberg, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-43, to amend the Law Reform Commission Act, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Perrault moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

AGRICULTURE

CHANGE IN COMMITTEE MEMBERSHIP

Senator Petten, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(i), moved:

That the name of the Honourable Senator McDonald be substituted for that of the Honourable Senator Benidickson on the list of senators serving on the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture.

Senator Flynn: Have you consulted Senator Argue? Is there unanimous consent?

The Hon. the Speaker: Is there unanimous consent, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.
Motion agreed to.

UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING FORCE

METHOD OF DEALING WITH PENSION BENEFITS OF DEPENDANTS OF CANADIAN SOLDIER KILLED IN CYPRUS— QUESTION

Senator O'Leary: Honourable senators, I would like to ask a question of the Leader of the Government. Could he tell the house whether in the case of the Canadian soldier killed in Cyprus last week his pension to his widow or whatever other pensions his dependants may be entitled to will be paid by the so-called army of the United Nations or by the people and the Government of Canada? I believe the people of Canada are a little confused in this respect and would like to have the facts.

Senator Perrault: I would think that the pension would be paid by Canada. However, I will take the question as notice and attempt to provide an answer for the honourable senator as soon as possible and as completely as possible.

RAILWAY ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

Hon. Eric Cook moved the second reading of Bill C-48, to amend the Railway Act.

He said: Honourable senators, Bill C-48, being an act to amend the Railway Act, is a short bill. It has only one purpose. In view of this fact, one wonders why, when it was read a first time in the other place on December 19, 1974, it did not receive third reading until March 21, 1975, a period of three months. However, having read the debate in the other place, and the proceedings of their Transport and Communications Committee, it is apparent—

Senator Flynn: It was sidelined.

Senator Cook: Oh, I see. Well, while it was being considered, it is apparent that some honourable members seized the opportunity to air their complaints against our railways, even though their complaints had nothing whatever to do with the subject matter of the bill itself. I merely make this observation in passing to possibly forestall those of my colleagues from the East and the West who may wish to deal with issues beyond the scope of the bill. It is hard not to dwell on the many terrible problems which arise daily in our regions because of the tariffs imposed by the railways, not to speak of the terribly poor service from which we may suffer. However, I just wish to point out that my duty tonight is to try to explain the bill, and should the debate wander away from the principles of the bill itself, I cannot promise to attempt to explain or defend the operations of the different railway systems.

This legislation is a direct result of the western provinces expressing a wish for such legislation. This is yet another example of an attentive Liberal government responding to the wishes of a particular region.

As you know, at the Western Economic Opportunities Conference, the Prime Minister promised the western provinces disclosure of railway costs on a confidential basis. However, the legislation is not restricted to the western provinces but has been extended to apply to all provinces in an effort to put all Canadians on an equal footing.

[The Hon. the Speaker.]

Until now, the railways have not had to disclose the financial details of their operations unless the Canadian Transport Commission decided specifically that disclosure was in the public interest. The passage of this bill would make provision of such information, on a confidential basis, mandatory. Such information has, in the past, been made available to the Federal-Provincial Committee on Western Transport when needed for major studies. The federal government, through the Canadian Transport Commission, has also, since the Western Economic Opportunities Conference, arranged for cost information to be provided to the provinces for the purpose of policy making. However, ministers from the West have pressed to have cost disclosure provisions included in the Railway Act, and therefore the purpose of this legislation is to ensure that the federal government will be able to continue to fulfill its commitments in this regard to the provinces. Of course, the legislation we are considering today is primarily an interim measure which would be superseded when a transportation information act is introduced to take in the whole transportation system, including all modes.

The sections to be added to the Railway Act are: section 331.1, which is a direct result of the Western Economic Opportunities Conference and provides for disclosure of railway cost information to a province on a confidential basis. Cost is defined as the cost of "transportation services and operations" or "costs of a specified movement of a specified commodity," such as a carload of cattle from Calgary to Toronto.

Section 331.2 stipulates that the minister also has the right to obtain such information from a railway company. While this provision does not spring from the Western Economic Opportunities Conference commitment, it can be readily appreciated that the minister should be able to obtain information which the provinces can obtain.

In section 331.3 we recognize our responsibility to the railways and stipulate that cost information cannot be communicated or published other than to the concerned ministers and public servants in the federal and provincial governments. However, the section goes on to say that such information furnished to the federal or provincial governments may be published if it is relevant to a proceeding under specified acts.

Section 331.4, the final section, is designed to ensure compliance by the railway companies on a request from the minister. Upon failure to comply, the minister may turn to section 82 of the National Transportation Act.

The minister, under section 82 of that act, may summon witnesses, enforce their attendance and compel them to produce any materials or testimony required, as is the case with any court in civil actions.

Honourable senators, I commend the bill to your attention.

● (2010)

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, as Senator Cook has indicated in his explanation of the bill, C-48 deals with some rather technical subject matters. The main purpose of the bill, of course, is to force railway companies to produce evidence when needed in the public interest. As Senator Cook further indicated, the other place took a good deal of time in dealing with it.

In order to hasten consideration of this bill by the Senate, I feel it should be read a second time now, following which it can be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications, where it can be dealt with much more thoroughly.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Cook moved that the bill be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications.

Motion agreed to.

CULTURAL PROPERTY EXPORT AND IMPORT BILL

SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Maurice Lamontagne moved the second reading of Bill C-33, respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states.

[Translation]

He said: Honourable senators, I am pleased to sponsor this bill for I am thus reverting to the subject which was of considerable interest to me as Secretary of State. When I assumed that responsibility in February 1964, for the first time all federal cultural institutions were placed under the authority of one minister. The Department of the Secretary of State thus became an actual department of cultural affairs.

That administrative reorganization made way for the development and enforcement of a more aggressive and better co-ordinated federal cultural policy. In the past ten years, under the leadership of my successors, that policy has kept growing and acquired new dimensions. Such progress had become necessary, for it has become increasingly obvious that affluent and post-industrial societies like ours have to insist on the quality of life if they are to preserve their energy and their vitality. Within that framework, the cultural policy of a nation becomes a matter of utmost importance and should deserve priority attention.

Before dealing with the study of this bill proper—which I shall do just after this—let me stress that no detailed, public and objective analysis of or enquiry into the cultural life of our country and the institutions and policies serving it has been carried out in over 25 years, that is since the study of the Massey Commission whose report was published in 1951. A number of individuals and agencies agree that it is time to proceed with a new systematic examination of that essential tenet of our national life. Those individuals and agencies also believe it might be better to have that study carried out by a special committee of the Senate instead of a royal commission. I received several oral and written representations in that respect, and I know several other senators did too. I for one have come to the conclusion that such an inquiry would greatly benefit Canada as a whole and the Senate in particular. I hope we will soon be in a position to have it under way.

[English]

Bill C-33, which is now before us, deals mainly with the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of similar objects illegally exported from other countries. I am sure it will be of interest, as far as its content and purpose is concerned, to many of my colleagues who are collectors of such items. I refer perhaps more particularly to Senator Paterson. The bill has been in active preparation over the last three years in response to the growing need to ensure better the preservation in Canada of our country's heritage in movable cultural property.

The substance of the bill and the control system it proposes were the subject of detailed consultations with provincial governments, all of whom voiced their approval and active support. It was also discussed thoroughly with the various groups concerned; that is, custodial institutions, collectors and the trade. As soon as the bill was introduced in the other place, these groups in the private sector had an opportunity to consider it in detail and it has met with a remarkable degree of support from all quarters. Furthermore, as a result of suggestions received during this consultation process, amendments were proposed and adopted during its consideration in the other place. The point I wish to establish with honourable senators at the outset is that while a few people raised some objections with respect to the provisions dealing with cultural objects of foreign origin, and the maximum delays imposed on their rather exceptional circumstances, most of the individuals and groups concerned agree that the legislation is fair and represents a workable compromise between the public interest and the legitimate private interests of persons who will be affected. For instance, the Professional Art Dealers' Association of Canada, the Canadian Antique Dealers' Association and The Council for Business and the Arts in Canada have given it their support. I should also mention that the proposed legislation has received the unanimous approval of the other place.

I wish to emphasize that this bill does not establish any world precedent in terms of the restrictions it imposes on the export of cultural property. A great number of countries have sought, through similar measures, to protect their national heritage. Indeed, it can be said that while the bill creates a system corresponding to our own needs, it is very similar to provisions which have been enacted already in such countries as the United Kingdom and France and which have worked reasonably well in practice over the years.

There is no doubt, however, that the proposed legislation will to a certain extent infringe upon existing rights of a number of individuals and organizations, that it will interfere with the free international movement now prevailing in Canada of certain outstanding cultural objects and that it contains provisions which will lend themselves to a good deal of subjective interpretation. While I believe that the bill represents a serious attempt to minimize these unavoidable difficulties created by legislation of this kind, I feel it is my duty to underline them so that we will have a closer look at the possible vagueness and subjectivity which is contained in the legislation. That is why I want to make a rather detailed presentation of the proposed legislation and, for that purpose, to divide it into five main parts. I will first deal with the export control provisions which constitute the main as well as the most complicated portion of the bill.

● (2020)

The System of Export Control:

The control system establishes two procedures under which a permit for the export of cultural property can be obtained.

The first and usual method may include several possible steps, and this is where the difficulties begin. Initially, it is based on a Canadian cultural property export control list to be established by order in council. The list will cover domestic and foreign objects deemed to constitute the national heritage in Canada, but the bill provides for the following exclusions:

1. Foreign objects imported into Canada within 35 years before an export permit is requested;
2. Canadian decorative art less than 100 years old and other items less than 50 years old;
3. Objects made by a person who is still living;
4. Items having a fair market value below certain minimums varying from $500 to $3,000 according to the category to which they belong, except for objects recovered from the Canadian soil and waters, in which case no minimum is provided.

Thus, the composition of the list will be based mainly on age and value, which are considered to be the easiest criteria to apply. Moreover, the system provides for broad exceptions so as to detect those things which may be of real national significance without making the net so tight that too much is caught and the system becomes oppressive and unworkable.

Under this proposed procedure, the exporter will be required to apply for a permit at a customs office in the appropriate province. If a customs officer decides that the object is or might be included in the list, he will refer the application to a designated local expert examiner. If the examiner determines that the object is not included in the list, he will advise the officer to issue a permit. Otherwise, he will further determine forthwith whether the object is of outstanding significance and of significant national importance. If the examiner finds that the item does not meet one of these two tests, he will advise the officer to issue a permit.

When an export permit has been issued by the customs officer, either on his own initiative or on the examiner's advice, the minister will have the authority to amend, suspend or cancel that permit. However, the bill does not provide any compulsory procedure designed to keep the minister informed that such a permit has been issued. Moreover, the minister's decision to amend or cancel a permit is not subject to appeal.

If the examiner determines that the object meets the two tests just mentioned, he shall advise against the issue of a permit. The customs officer will then send to the applicant a notice of refusal, giving the examiner's reasons for such refusal. If the applicant accepts this decision, no export permit shall be issued for at least a period of two years from the date a notice was sent, but after the expiration of that period he will be allowed to make a new application. However, the applicant may appeal the examiner's refusal, within 30 days, before the Canadian Cultural Property Export Review Board to be established under the legislation.

[Senator Lamontagne.]

In reviewing the application, the board, like the examiners, will have to determine whether the item is included in the control list, and whether it is of outstanding significance and of significant national importance. The board will be required to render its decision on these issues within four months. If the board upholds the examiner's appraisal and is of the opinion that a fair offer to purchase the item might be made by a Canadian custodial institution or public authority, it shall establish a delay period of not less than two and not more than six months, and notice shall be given of such a delay to the applicant and to those potential buyers.

When an offer is made and refused by the applicant, the board shall, upon the request of the applicant, or of the custodial institutions willing to buy, determine the amount of a fair cash price. If it is satisfied that such an offer has been made, the notice of refusal will be maintained and no export permit will be issued, at least during the remainder of the period of two years from the date the notice was given. In all other cases, that is, if the board disagrees with the examiner's refusal, if no offer to purchase is likely to be made or if one is made but the cash price is not fair, the board will direct the customs officer to issue an export permit and the notice of refusal will be rescinded.

As honourable senators will realize, this first control procedure provided by the bill can be cumbersome and time-consuming. Under this system a potential exporter may have to wait for about a year before he is allowed to export an outstanding cultural object, and if he has received what the board considers as a fair purchase offer he will not get the export permit. In my view, such limitations can only be imposed in the name of the public interest and be justified only because it is highly desirable for a country to try to preserve the most significant objects of its national heritage.

Senator Everett: Could I ask the honourable senator a question? You made the point that the country should preserve the most significant objects of its national heritage. How do objects brought in from foreign countries come under that definition?

Senator Lamontagne: Well, because some of these objects which have great intrinsic or outstanding value, like a Picasso or other items of a similar nature, if they have remained in Canada for a period of over 35 years, may gradually, by age, become part of our national heritage. That is why they would come under this legislation.

I am inclined to agree that the full sequence of the procedure just outlined will apply to a relatively small number of items and that it will not unduly infringe upon the rights of Canadian owners of cultural property.

The bill also provides for an exceptional control procedure, as opposed to the usual one which I have described. This second method could be faster, more flexible and presumably designed to meet the particular needs of dealers who have traditionally imported for export purposes, and who can be expected to make a large number of export transactions. According to this second approach, the minister may issue to any resident of Canada a general export permit or he may, with the concurrence of the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce, issue generally to all persons a general permit to export any objects within any class included in the control list. These appear to be very broad and discretionary powers.

I understand that the British legislation has similar provisions. This other procedure is not intended to circumvent the review board but to expedite matters in cases where there is a strong presumption that it would authorize the export. The issue of those ministerial permits or bulk licences, as they are called in Great Britain, will presumably be restricted to reputable dealers who undertake to give all the information required by the minister about their transactions and to draw to his attention any object that might be of significant importance, in which case he could request that the usual procedure be followed. Thus, this exceptional procedure will be largely based on mutual trust. If the minister were to find that the applicants are not worthy of his confidence, he would refuse or cancel the permit immediately and report any wilfully false or misleading information or misrepresentation that has been given to him.

● (2030)

Senator Flynn: To whom?

Senator Lamontagne: To the courts, because the bill provides for the reporting of any misleading information to the courts.

Financial Assistance to Custodial Institutions:

The bill also establishes a financial assistance program for custodial institutions. The purely negative system of export control which I have just described cannot be very effective in the long run if prospective exporters cannot find a domestic market where they can sell their cultural property at a fair price. To achieve this objective, the financial position of Canadian custodial institutions must be strengthened. Two different methods of assistance are proposed.

First, the minister may make grants and loans to such institutions as museums and art galleries for the purchase of objects for which export permits have been refused or which are located outside Canada but are related to the national heritage. Secondly, a Canadian heritage preservation endowment account will be created for the same purpose. This fund will be constituted of gifts and bequests received from private individuals and corporations.

While it would be unrealistic, in my view, to expect that the proposed fund will make a substantial and continuing contribution, it will allow individuals, groups and corporations to participate financially, if they so desire, in the preservation of the Canadian heritage. The only danger I see is that the two methods may tend to be mutually self-defeating. If there is money in the fund which has been given without restrictions, the minister will undoubtedly be told by Treasury Board to use that money first rather than his own appropriations to make grants, so that there may not be any accumulation in the account. As this strategy becomes evident, prospective donors will realize that they are in fact helping the government rather than custodial institutions and they will decide not to contribute to the fund. If the government really wants to encourage private donations, a better arrangement than that provided in the bill will eventually have to be made, through the setting up of non-lapsing appropriations or otherwise. But the minister has already stated that he could live with the proposed financial assistance program for the time being. In the meantime, let us hope that he will be able to get sufficient appropriations to meet the real needs and to devise a workable and fair system, enabling him to determine when to make a grant or a loan, when to use his own appropriations or the fund, and what custodial institutions deserve financial assistance, in what form and to what extent.

Tax Incentives for the Sale or Donation of Cultural Property to Canadian Custodial Institutions:

I come now to tax incentives which are provided for in the bill. Indeed, this bill is not only intended to increase the purchasing potential of custodial institutions, as I have just explained, but it also provides for tax incentives designed to encourage owners of valuable cultural property to sell or give it to such institutions as designated by the minister.

These incentives will be limited to all objects which have been identified by the review board as being of outstanding significance and of significant national importance. But they will not be restricted to the items included in the control list or for which an export permit has been refused. One tax amendment will exempt from the capital gains tax all those objects which are disposed of to designated custodial institutions. The other amendment will permit a taxpayer to make a deduction of up to 100 per cent of his income in any given year and in the preceding year when he gives these outstanding objects to designated institutions. At present this deductibility feature is limited solely to agencies in the right of the Crown.

These are very important provisions which will greatly encourage private owners of outstanding cultural property, whether or not it is covered by the control list, to sell or give it to appropriate Canadian custodial institutions rather than to attempt to export it. These incentives have been warmly welcomed by collectors, by the trade associations representing dealers in art and antiques as well as by the custodial institutions. They will help in a significant manner to preserve and improve our national heritage, to spread it more equitably on a regional basis and to make it more accessible to the public.

The Review Board:

As I have shown previously, the bill assigns very important and complex functions to the review board. It will determine in the last resort whether or not a cultural object is of outstanding significance or of significant national importance and what is its fair value. This appraisal, in a number of important cases, will serve to decide whether or not a cultural object can be exported, when custodial institutions are eligible for a public grant or loan and when a private owner of cultural property is entitled to the tax exemptions provided in the bill.

Senator Choquette: What is this review board? How is it constituted?

Senator Lamontagne: Do you mean the composition of the board?

Senator Choquette: Yes. I would like to know how they would be appointed.

Senator Lamontagne: The composition of the board must be seen and appraised in the light of these important and complex responsibilities which will inevitably involve a good deal of value and subjective judgments regarding the disposal of private property and public funds. It would seem to me that the membership of the board, under ideal conditions, should reflect two different requirements: expertise and impartiality. It is all the more important for the board to be and to appear to be impartial in order to have credibility in that its hearings will be held in camera, unless an applicant for an export permit requests that they be held in public.

The bill provides for a chairman and not less than six or not more than twelve members. But the minister will be obliged to choose these members in equal number from officers and employees of custodial institutions on one side, and from art and antique dealers and collectors on the other.

● (2040)

It seems to me that such a provision unduly restricts the freedom of the minister to select competent and impartial persons who do not actually belong to either of these two communities. For instance, as the bill stands, the minister would not be able to select, except as chairman, an expert who has retired from an art gallery, a museum, or from the art and antique business, or who is an art critic, or a teacher in a university, without being directly associated with one or the other of the two fraternities. I find this provision too restrictive. While all the board members should be recognized for their professional knowledge in their respective fields, I feel that the minister should have a much wider range of choice, so as to be able to establish a more balanced and more widely representative body.

I intend, at the committee stage, although I am the sponsor of this bill, to move an amendment which would accomplish this purpose. I am prepared to give that greater freedom to the minister, because he should be the first interested in creating a board which will have credibility both in terms of expertise and impartiality and in ensuring that quorums are adequately representative, not only of diverging interests but also of the disciplines and the professional knowledge involved in the particular application before the board. Eventually, if the minister makes bad appointments under these wide powers, he will have only himself to blame when he is criticized either by Parliament, the public at large or the organizations immediately concerned.

Prohibition of Illegal Exports into Canada:

I would like now to refer briefly to the fifth and last portion of the bill, which deals with the illicit international traffic in cultural property. There has been a growing concern in recent years over such movements. The proposed legislation would make it illegal to import into Canada any cultural property illicitly exported from a country with which we have a treaty to that effect, or which is a party to an international agreement preventing this illicit traffic. A UNESCO convention approved in 1970 covers such movements. When this bill is enacted, if it is enacted, and the appropriate consultations with the provinces are completed, it is the intention of the Canadian government to ratify that convention.

[Senator Lamontagne.]

The bill provides that action may be taken in the courts to recover cultural property illegally imported and return it to the country of origin. However, the object will not be returned until its bona fide Canadian owner has been paid a just compensation as determined by the courts.

In conclusion, I would like to emphasize again that the main intention of this bill is to retain in Canada the outstanding cultural objects which constitute the core of our national heritage and to help our custodial institutions across the country to acquire these objects so that they will be accessible to the public at large. In its attempt to achieve these objectives, the proposed legislation relies to an important extent upon fiscal incentives, which is highly desirable.

In so far as administrative export controls are concerned, I believe that the bill is, on the whole, both fair and realistic. It is fair because export delays and constraints will apply only to owners of cultural property of exceptional significance, which is more than 50 years old, made by a person no longer living and, in the case of a foreign object, which has been in Canada for 35 years or more.

Senator Choquette: And the artist not living?

Senator Lamontagne: Yes; the controls will not apply to objects made by a person still living.

In those rather limited cases, and I believe, indeed, that they will be rather limited, the maximum delay possible provided by the bill will be about 12 months, but very likely much less in practice. Ultimately, the owner will be denied an export permit only if he receives a fair cash offer as determined by a review board upon request. If he accepts that offer he will be further entitled to an exemption from the capital gains tax. Such controls and compensations seem to me to be reasonable, especially if delays can be kept to a minimum, which will undoubtedly be the case with a large board able to sit with a small quorum.

This bill is also realistic. It does not seek to impose a tight and rigid system of controls which would undoubtedly require a large bureaucracy and paralyze the trade. This would surely be most undesirable. However, the high degree of flexibility and freedom remaining means that the proposed controls could not be effectively enforced in many cases without the active cooperation of custodial institutions, dealers and collectors, who will be subjected to this legislation. This is why the minister has been so anxious to secure that cooperation and why the bill provides for a large degree of self-regulation. As I indicated before, in my view it goes even too far in this direction.

On the whole, the bill will greatly help us, if we so wish, as Canadians to keep in Canada the outstanding objects of our national heritage and to make them more accessible to the public, even on a wider regional basis than if these outstanding objects could only be given or sold to national institutions located in Ottawa, as happened so often in the past. It strikes just the right delicate balance, in my view, between restrictions and incentives, which is necessary for its successful implementation.

For all these reasons, I hope that the second reading of this bill will be approved by all honourable senators. If it is approved, I intend to move at the appropriate time that this proposed legislation be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Health, Welfare and Science.

Senator Choquette: May I ask the sponsor a question? This law and these restrictions have existed in France and, I believe, in Great Britain for years. What prompts our present administration or government now, at this late date, to emulate these countries and to enact such legislation?

Senator Lamontagne: I agree that it may be late in doing so, but the government considered this question for approximately three years, after reviewing the British experience. I do not know for how long the French experience has lasted, but I believe that the system in these two countries was established about 35 years ago and has worked reasonably well during that period. Also, I suppose the government was impressed by the fact that a great deal of pieces and objects, which could have been interpreted as being part of our national heritage, had been exported in the past because we did not have the proper procedure to prevent such exports. In my opinion, it is time for us to follow other nations and try to protect in this way our national heritage. I hope we will do it as quickly as possible.

● (2050)

Senator O'Leary: Honourable senators, as one of a vanishing breed of small "I" liberals in this country, I would like to move the adjournment of this debate.

Senator Hicks: Honourable senators, may we ask a few questions before the debate is adjourned?

Hon. Senators: Yes.

Senator Everett: I have a question for Senator Lamontagne. He referred to the fact that the British legislation was the precedent on which this legislation was established. Can he tell us whether the British law deals with non-indigenous cultural properties as does the Canadian law? If it does, what value and number of years of ownership are required to bring the items under the British act?

Senator Lamontagne: I am quite sure the British legislation deals with this and covers those objects. I understand it does not cover items which have been imported within less than 50 years, as opposed to the 35 years provided in this bill. I am told that the reason for this difference is that after the Second World War, we became more important importers of such objects and it would be desirable for us to be a little more restrictive than the British have been.

Senator Everett: Does the honourable senator know what value restriction is placed in the British legislation?

Senator Lamontagne: With regard to imported objects? There is no minimum with regard to imported objects. There is none here either.

Senator Everett: Am I to understand that, regardless of any item which is imported into Canada—

Senator Lamontagne: For imported objects, the rule of 35 years applies. Of course, the customs officer will have to go further and see if the imported object is included in the control list. All the exclusions which I have described would apply to those imported objects. On the whole, the system proposed for Canada would be relatively similar to the British system, with the exception that in certain cases objects of less than 100 years old are not covered in the United Kingdom, while here most items less than 50 years old would be exempted.

Senator Everett: Did I not understand that one of the criteria was that the object had to be worth more than $3,000?

Senator Lamontagne: It is not that simple. In some categories where the objects have been recovered on Canadian soil or in Canadian waters, there is no minimum value imposed by the legislation. It would cover all those objects whatever their value. Then, according to the various categories described in the bill, the minimum values would vary from $500, for manuscripts and things like that, up to $3,000, to be included in the control list.

Senator Everett: That is what I am asking. What is the comparison with the British legislation?

Senator O'Leary: Order, please. I moved the adjournment of this debate.

Senator Everett: There was a request that we be permitted to ask questions.

Senator O'Leary: Not several questions.

Senator Flynn: It now turns out to be a discussion.

Senator Everett: Indeed, it is not a discussion. I am merely trying to elicit an answer to my question. I have asked one question and I am still trying to obtain an answer to it. I think that is perfectly fair. I propose to proceed and ask Senator Lamontagne if the values in the British act—which was part of my original question—are similar in this respect to the Canadian act.

Senator Lamontagne: Regarding the values, I really could not say. I presume we will have to wait until we reach the committee stage to obtain that kind of detailed information.

Senator Hicks: Honourable senators, I should like to question the sponsor concerning the definition of "institution" in clause 2. Can he assure me that this includes museums, galleries, and educational institutions, a great many of which are owned by boards of trustees? I question whether they come under the definition in clause 2, which says:

"Institution" means an institution that is publicly owned and is operated for the benefit of the public and not for the benefit of a private person, that is established for educational or cultural purposes—

I think that is a further restriction on the meaning, not an addition of an extra category.

—and that conserves objects and exhibits them or otherwise makes them available to the public;

I should like an assurance, either from the sponsor of the bill now or from the committee to which the bill is referred, that this will in fact include institutions such as museums and universities which are owned by private boards of trustees.

Senator Lamontagne: I cannot give you any formal guarantee of that, because I will not be the minister administering or interpreting the bill. However, I am told by the Department of Justice that private museums which are publicly owned and available to the public will be covered. This would include your museum at Dalhousie University which is not owned by a private individual.

Senator Flynn: It is non-lucrative.

Senator Lamontagne: It is a private institution which is publicly owned. I understand from officials of the Department of Justice that this definition—and I do not necessarily agree with it—would include private museums like the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, museums in universities, and others.

Senator Connolly: Perhaps the question I wish to ask should be asked in committee, but since I am not a member of that committee, perhaps someone would ask it. The honourable senator has spoken about the export of art objects and of the restrictions which the bill proposes to place upon such export. I take it that what he is talking about generally is export for permanency. I am wondering whether there is any latitude to be provided for exports for exhibition purposes, and also for appraisal purposes, because people and even institutions in Canada who have valuable art objects might not be able to obtain satisfactory appraisals within Canada.

Senator Lamontagne: I am sure that if the honourable senator reads the bill he will find there a specific provision which makes it compulsory for a customs officer to issue automatically and forthwith an export permit exactly for that purpose.

Senator Paterson: May I ask senator if there is a list of cultural objects?

Senator Lamontagne: There is no such list at the moment, but this list will have to be produced by the Governor in Council. What this legislation provides is the broad criteria which will be used by the Governor in Council to compose such a list.

● (2100)

On motion of Senator O'Leary, debate adjourned.

CIVIL SERVICE INSURANCE ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Azellus Denis moved the second reading of Bill C-26, to amend the Civil Service Insurance Act.

[Translation]

He said: Honourable senators, before attempting to analyze this bill, I feel it might be well to give you a brief summary of the history of the Civil Service Insurance Act.

This act, passed in 1893, is not a new act. It was intended as a complement to the Pension Act. It guarantees the families of civil servants an insurance upon their death.

[Senator Hicks.]

In 1954, with the advent of the Public Service Superannuation Act, new policies ceased to be issued as early as in January 1955.

To that date, 19,000 insurance policies had been issued; of that number, 7,500 are still in force. This bill therefore applies only to those 7,500 policies.

The changes proposed by Bill C-26 can be summarized thus:

First, where the present act mentions "children", adopted children are now being included.

Second, at the present time, sharing of the proceeds of the insurance to the beneficiaries is governed only by such statements as are included in the insurance policy or annexed to it; the present amendment will also authorize sharing, among others, by will or codicil.

The purpose of the third amendment is to give equal rights to man and wife as the insured. At the present time, the legislation does not allow a woman to designate her husband as beneficiary, due to the fact that when a female employee would get married she would cease to work and the policy would expire. She could then receive a paid up policy through an annuity, or the cash surrender value. Thus, this amendment which applies, as I said, to 7,500 insurance policies now in force enables an unmarried woman to take out insurance on behalf of her future husband and future children.

This proposed legislation will give authority to the government to amend the present tables used in the calculation of payable annuities. As everyone knows, these annuities, determined a long time ago, are far from being adequate from an actuarial point of view.

Finally, the amendments to this proposed legislation do not apply to insurance policies whose proceeds have become due before the passing of this new legislation.

[English]

To summarize, honourable senators, this bill, if adopted, will allow the designation of beneficiaries and the apportionment of insurance money to be made by means of a will. It will modify the meaning of "children" for purposes of the act to include adopted children. In addition, it will preserve, for a woman who marries, her rights under the contract as a single woman and permit her to designate her husband as a beneficiary. It will also allow for the fixing and updating of tables used in the calculation of annuities payable under the act.

I am sure all honourable senators will agree that this bill, if enacted, will benefit the remaining holders of policies issued under the act, and I commend it for your approval.

[Translation]

Honourable senators, may I add that in the other place there was no discussion on this bill and it was unanimously adopted. That is why I wonder if it is really necessary to refer this bill to a committee. However, as always, the decision is yours.

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, I am sure that this bill was not as eloquently sponsored in the other place as it is here. I feel therefore that we should wait at least until tomorrow to read the pieces of wisdom we have heard today. Then we shall see whether there is anything that can be added.

[English]

On motion of Senator Flynn, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, April 9, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report of Uranium Canada, Limited, including its accounts and financial statements certified by the Auditor General, for the year ended December 31, 1973, pursuant to sections 75(3) and 77(3) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter F-10, R.S.C., 1970.

Report of exemptions authorized by the Minister of Transport under section 134 of the Canada Shipping Act in cases where no master or officer was available with required certificate and experience, for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 134(2) of the said Act, Chapter S-9, R.S.C., 1970.

Green Paper entitled "Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest", dated July 17, 1973.

UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING FORCE

METHOD OF DEALING WITH PENSION BENEFITS OF DEPENDANTS OF CANADIAN SOLDIER KILLED IN CYPRUS—QUESTION ANSWERED

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, a question was posed on Tuesday, April 8 by Senator O'Leary relating to a Canadian soldier killed in Cyprus. The essence of the question was whether in the case of that Canadian soldier killed in Cyprus the pension to his widow or, as the honourable senator stated:

... whatever other pensions his dependants may be entitled to will be paid by the so-called army of the United Nations or by the people and the Government of Canada?

The pension, I have been informed, will be paid by the Government of Canada under the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act. No pension will be paid by the United Nations. The widow may be entitled to other benefits, depending upon what insurance had been taken out by the deceased through the armed forces.

This information was obtained from the office of the Minister of National Defence.

Senator O'Leary: Thank you very much. That is what I expected.

LAW REFORM COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—THIRD READING

Senator Perrault moved the third reading of Bill C-43, to amend the Law Reform Commission Act.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CULTURAL PROPERTY EXPORT AND IMPORT BILL

SECOND READING—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from yesterday the debate on the motion of Senator Lamontagne for second reading of Bill C-33, respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states.

Hon. M. Grattan O'Leary: Honourable senators, my first word must be to congratulate the sponsor of this measure in this house, because he was able to apply his own thoughts to the bill and not be chained to the ghost writing of some faceless bureaucrat.

My second thought is that I—I am sure like most people in this country—favour, let us say, the intention of this bill. What I am afraid of is that in seeking the goal, the government is not seeking it in the right way, and that we are here again with a thing that bothers, me and must bother every liberal with a small "I" left in the country, and there are not many of them, especially on that side of the house. However, I have been going over the Orders of the Day for the last five weeks or so, and the astonishing thing to note is that in a country such as this, a so-called free enterprise country, 75 per cent of the proposed measures have been measures enthroneing the state, putting the state above all else.

Yes, we talk about freedom; we talk about free enterprise; we denounce socialism and the authoritarian states, but the fact is that in Canada—and there is no escaping it—day after day, month after month, year after year, we are falling into the belief that the state must look after us from cradle to grave. More than that, and even more dangerous than that, we are falling into the belief that the state must control, must tell us whether we should turn east or west, and why; that the state must tell us what we should do, how we should do it, when we should do it, and so forth. This is not the political faith that I was brought up in, nor is it the political faith and belief that most of us in this house, whether on this side or the other, held to be the right life for people like ourselves. This is what I am afraid of. I have been in this house now for 12 years, and more and more I find the people of Canada, through their legislators, falling increasingly into the dangerous belief that the state must look after the individual.

What does this bill do? It creates a new bit of bureaucracy. What frightens me are the discretionary powers given to the minister in administering this legislation. My honourable friend Senator Lamontagne, in his speech last evening, referred to some doubts he had in this connection, but curiously enough, having expressed his doubts in relation to one part of the bill, he went on to say that in certain other areas the minister should have more discretionary powers. I am prepared to say that if in the administration of a bill of this kind we could have ministers of the civilized mind of Senator Lamontagne, I would probably be willing to accept it.

Senator Lamontagne: I can go back.

Senator O'Leary: But unfortunately, very unfortunately, very strange people get into cabinets these days. We are not always going to have Senator Lamontagnes running things. When I think about some of the ministers we have today—and I am not looking at the Leader of the Government in the Senate—frankly, I would not trust them to give advice as to how this legislation should be carried out. I am sure most senators on both sides of the house would agree with me. I know of ministers who would not know a Krieghoff from some cartoon, and other ministers who would not know a Picasso from a pickaxe. And I object. I am afraid of people of that kind being given such discretionary powers to determine what I should do about a Krieghoff I might own. I do not own a Krieghoff, but let us suppose I did, and let us further suppose that I had a friend in New York who knew I owned it and knew I was short of money—he would probably be right—and because of that he offered me $50,000 for my Krieghoff. Are you meaning to tell me that I would have to apply to some bureaucratic board which would determine whether or not I should sell that Krieghoff to my friend in New York for $25,000 or $50,000 in order, say, to put my daughter through university?

We are coming to the point in this country where the individual is disregarded; where his hopes, his views, his aspirations for his family, for himself, are limited and determined by someone sitting in a bureaucratic chair.

I appeal to this house to guard against this type of thing. I have mentioned this often in this house. Sir Clifford Sifton, a great Liberal chieftain in his day, when talking about the responsibilities and functions of the Senate, said that the chief function of the Senate in days to come would be, not to look after minorities and not to look after the provinces but to see to it that the bureaucracy does not interfere with the free thought, not only of the legislatures but of the government itself. This is true.

● (1410)

Undoubtedly we have come to the point where the bureaucracy is the real government in this country. Don't tell me that Parliament is free, that Parliament can do this and can do that. True, it can, but it is not doing it. Today the Government of Canada is not being controlled and not being directed by the two legislative Houses of Parliament. It is being controlled and directed by the bureaucracy. These are very able men. Some of them are my long-time personal friends and I have great regard for them. But that is not the point. The point is that when the two Houses of the Parliament of Canada lose control of the Government of Canada we have then lost control of the thing we call our democratic or parliamentary government. There will be no such thing as parliamentary control and parliamentary government if we continue week after week and year after year with bills of this kind in this house and have people accept them.

There is something else I want to say. This bill has in it an element of chauvinism. It is the same sort of bill as the one we had about the beaver being the symbol of Canada. What nonsense! It is the sort of bill talking about seeking for a Canadian identity. What do we mean by a Canadian identity? Do you think the British people built up their great position in the world by looking at their identity? Do you ever hear Englishmen today talk about seeking for the identity of Englishmen in England?

Culture cannot be imposed from the top. Culture can exist in this country only if we give our people education of the right kind, if we educate them to love truth and beauty for their own sakes. If we do that, if we give our people that kind of education, culture will take care of itself. I am not afraid of people talking about culture. I believe that the Canadian people probably have as good an idea of what is good for cultural education as any people in the world. I am not one of those who continually compare us with our neighbours to the south and say that we are better than they are. I am not one of those like Vincent Massey, who did more harm to the securing of cultural thought in Canada than any man of his time. He did for Canadian culture what a certain gentleman in the United States did to thought and education in that country. I do not go for that, and I do not think the young people of Canada go for it.

I believe that there is now a revolt against this nonsense of Canadian national sentiment, of giving our newspapers and magazines a nationalist crutch to rest upon. I was horrified the other day when I heard people in Canada lamenting the fact that Saturday Night was going to be lost to us. My friends, the death of Saturday Night will not diminish me spiritually one iota, nor will it diminish any other person spiritually. The death of Saturday Night took place when B. K. Sandwell, a civilized man, ceased to be editor, and that is all there is to this sort of thing.

This business of going around saying that we must get a Canadian nationalism is nonsense. Let us be ourselves, true to ourselves; let us be true to Canada, and let us do it not as anti-American and not as anti-British. Goodness knows, if there is any man in this house who would be anti-British it would be me. But I am not. I was brought up as an Irish rebel, but when I went to Britain for the first time I discovered who were the best people over there. Whatever may be said against England, at least let it be recognized that in the last two world wars she made one of the most magnificent recompenses for whatever may have been her sins of the past.

These are the things we must avoid in this country, this narrow nationalism, and this business of letting the government, the state and bureaucrats, determine for us how we should live, where we should live, when and why.

In the name of common sense, is there anything in Canada, either in thought or in any sphere of human life, that is helped by my being told: "O'Leary, if you have a Krieghoff, you cannot sell it without getting the permission of some bureaucrat or some minister"? I am sure my friend Senator Lamontagne, in his better moments, would agree with every word I have said. I think he is one of the few men on that side of the House—I might include Senator McIlraith, but that is a fleeting thought—one of the few Liberals entitled to spell that label with a small "l". Indeed, I sometimes think, I sometimes fear, that I am the only liberal left in this country, or one of the few, entitled to spell the word with a small "l". This was my party, The Liberal Conservative Party—until some people had the crazy notion of calling it The Progressive Conservative Party. I did not vote for that. I stood up and voted against it and spoke against it in Winnipeg. Not that there is anything antagonistic between the two, because we are the progressive party. However, let it go at that.

My friends, I am against this bill. I am against it, not because of the goal but because of the philosophy by which they are trying to reach the goal. It is the wrong philosophy: the philosophy of control, control of my life, of your life, of the lives of every Canadian. Let us try to avoid that. Let us get away from the idea that some bureaucrat or some bureaucratic organization or some government is going to control our lives—and I do not care whether it is a Liberal or a Conservative government. I would be just as much opposed to, and would fight just as hard against, the Conservative government doing the sort of thing proposed by Senator Lamontagne as I would against the so-called Liberal government.

My friends, that is all I have to say today; but I will vote against this bill because I am a "liberal".

Senator Buckwold: Would the honourable senator allow a question?

Senator Choquette: Oh, yes, you must try to straighten out this "liberal" question.

Senator Flynn: I am sure he would be a big help.

Senator Buckwold: I might surprise you.

Senator Smith: He is a former "progressive."

Senator Buckwold: I do have a serious question to pose to the last speaker.

Senator Flynn: You do not have to say that.

Senator Buckwold: What should I say?

Senator Flynn: I mean that you do not have to preface your question.

Senator Buckwold: Does Senator O'Leary feel that there should be absolutely no restrictions on the export of indigenous, valuable, historical Canadian art or artifacts?

Senator O'Leary: I do not think we need it at all, to be quite frank. But just listen to me. One of the greatest relics of any nation, and certainly a fine example for the Canadian nation, is the Book of Kells in Ireland. I hope you have seen it. If you have not, I suggest that you go to Trinity College in Dublin and look at the Book of Kells. It is a magnificent treasure which has never been equalled. Did Ireland need a law to keep that Book of Kells in Ireland? For God's sake, what is all this nonsense!

There are some lines I had intended to quote to you, but my friend Senator Hicks used them as we were leaving the dinner table today so I put them aside. These are the lines:

The wise nation preserves its records, gathers up its muniments, decorates the tombs of its illustrious dead ... and fosters national pride and love of country by perpetual references to the sacrifices and glories of the past.

That was Joseph Howe. He did not say, however, that one must have a law to do that. It is an invitation to common sense, to common patriotism. He did not say there had to be a law to prevent Grattan O'Leary, or my friend Senator Buckwold, from selling a painting in New York. For God's sake, give us some freedom on this earth!

[Senator O'Leary.]

On motion of Senator Everett, debate adjourned.

● (1420)

CIVIL SERVICE INSURANCE ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from yesterday the debate on the motion of Senator Denis for the second reading of Bill C-26, to amend the Civil Service Insurance Act.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, as I told you last night, I was subdued by the eloquence of the sponsor of the bill and I wanted to have an opportunity for sober second thought. In other words, I wanted to be able to read today what he said yesterday. I did that this morning, and after reading the bill I find I have nothing to add to what has already been said. What the good senator had to say, I must add, is much more comprehensible when read. Senator Denis, you know, has a way of charming you and one is always well advised to be guarded about agreeing with him too quickly. I support the bill and do not consider that it needs to be referred to a committee.

Senator Denis: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: I wish to inform the Senate that if the Honourable Senator Denis speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate.

[Translation]

Hon. Azellus Denis: Honourable senators, I just want to say a few words to thank the Leader of the Opposition for his congratulations. If as a result of my convincing arguments the bill is not referred to a committee, I will always try to be as charming as possible in a debate. I hope that in the future I will please the Leader of the Opposition.

[English]

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

The Hon. the Speaker: When shall this bill be read a third time?

Senator Denis moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

SENATE (INTERSESSIONAL AUTHORITY) BILL

SECOND READING—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from Wednesday, February 26, the debate on the motion of Senator Flynn for the second reading of Bill S-22, to provide for the internal economy and administration of the Senate between sessions of Parliament and between Parliaments.

Hon. Raymond J. Perrault: Honourable senators, there seems to be a rare spirit of cooperation and brotherly love here this afternoon. I enjoyed very much the speech made by the Honourable Senator O'Leary in his usual eloquent way.

The purpose of the bill under discussion, Bill S-22, is to provide for the internal economy and administration of the Senate between sessions of Parliament and between Parliaments.

The Leader of the Opposition should be thanked for bringing this bill to the attention of the Senate, and he should also be thanked for the moderate approach he took during his very useful second reading remarks. Let me assure the honourable senator that I intend to be equally moderate in anything I have to say this afternoon about the bill.

The subject matter appears to be important in at least two main respects. As those who have studied the proposed measure are aware, in the first place it would provide a statutory basis for the administration of the internal economy of the Senate between sessions and Parliaments. Secondly, it would permit, subject to certain stated safeguards, a Senate committee to meet for the taking of evidence between sessions and Parliaments.

In reviewing some of the background of this proposal, it is my understanding that at least the first of these suggestions has been before the Standing Senate Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration for some time, but as yet no recommendation has been forthcoming. Accordingly, while perhaps it could be conceded that these proposals are of potential importance, it can also be conceded that it may be more difficult to regard them as involving any element of pressing urgency. As I recall it, the Leader of the Opposition indicated that he did not regard this as being an urgent matter but rather as a matter which should be given consideration by the Senate.

Honourable senators, the Senate has been functioning since Confederation without the adoption of either proposal, and no insurmountable difficulty appears to have arisen. We certainly need not and probably should not rush into legislation of this kind at this time, but in saying this I am not suggesting we should dismiss the proposals as being in any way irrelevant. They are useful and interesting.

There are, moreover, certain legal problems which arise in connection with these proposals which, while they may or may not provide insuperable barriers to the passage of this legislation through both houses, certainly merit serious consideration before we accept the principle of this bill. There are one or two considerations that should perhaps be set before the Senate.

One of these is that it could be argued, if not in this chamber at least in the other place, that this could be regarded as a money bill in that the Intersessional Authority is to be empowered to make expenditures of public money. Since there is no appropriation involved, I would not agree that this is a money bill. My position accepts the stance taken in the Ross Report of 1918, which the Senate has consistently taken on numerous occasions since that date, so really all I am saying is that another view might be taken elsewhere, and this is a consideration to be borne in mind.

Secondly, a further difficulty which could be rather awkward could arise from the existence of section 18 of the British North America Act, which reads as follows:

18. The privileges, immunities, and powers to be held, enjoyed and exercised by the Senate and by the House of Commons, and by the Members thereof respectively, shall be such as are from time to time defined by Act of the Parliament of Canada, but so that any Act of the Parliament of Canada defining such privileges, immunities, and powers shall not confer any privileges, immunities, or powers, exceeding those at the passing of such Act held, enjoyed, and exercised by the Commons House of Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and by the Members thereof.

It will be noted that by this section the powers that may be conferred on the Senate are limited to those enjoyed by the House of Commons at Westminster. It is clear that the House in England has no power of continuation of committees between sessions and Parliaments such as would be conferred by this bill. Here I would refer honourable senators to May, Eighteenth Edition, page 256. It is true that the Parliament of Canada may amend the British North America Act in regard to federal matters, and here I refer to section 91.1 of that act. Although conceivably the present bill could be reworded so as to override the aforementioned section 18, in its present form it does not purport to make a constitutional amendment of any kind.

Finally—and there may be other points of which I am not presently aware—Her Majesty's prerogatives may be affected by this bill. These, of course, could not be affected by statute without the prior consent of the Crown. It is essential to mention this point because the proclamation dissolving Parliament discharges all members and senators "from their attendance and duties." If senators continued to sit as members of Senate committees between sessions and Parliaments, they would surely be exercising certain of their duties. Most, if not all, of these difficulties would, of course, be resolved if the present bill were a government bill introduced in conjunction with whatever prior royal consent was required, as the Honourable Leader of the Opposition is aware.

● (1430)

I wish to say this afternoon that I am prepared to discuss with my colleagues in cabinet the possible introduction of a government bill along the lines of the present one. However, this is a private member's public bill, which may be vulnerable to some of the difficulties I have set forth. In light of my comments and of my assurance, which I give again, of cabinet consultation, I hope that this bill, after it has been given second reading, will be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs, because it certainly merits thoughtful consideration.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I have nothing profound to add to the remarks made by Senator Flynn and Senator Perrault. However, I have perhaps a contribution to this discussion arising out of my own experience with the problem which Senator Flynn has envisaged.

In a practical way, in my opinion, it has been found through the years, as the note contained in Senator Flynn's bill indicates, that the internal economy problems which have faced the Senate have been satisfactorily resolved by the rather informal arrangement which has prevailed. The arrangement is that towards the end of a session, the Senate authorizes the Leader of the Government, or his nominee, and the Leader of the Opposition, or his nominee, and another senator to be appointed by the Leader of the Government, to do whatever is necessary by way of—

Senator Choquette: Light housekeeping.

Senator Connolly (Ottawa West): Light housekeeping is a very good word. Senator Choquette is very familiar with it, because he served on the committee a good many times. To formalize it more than that, of course, does involve going to the House of Commons and I am of two minds as to whether we wish to go as far as that. Frankly, I am a great believer in making the rules work in a practical manner. I am sure no one is more convinced of the wisdom of this course than is Senator Flynn, because when we were responsible for the leadership here together no one cooperated in a more complete manner than he. That is very important.

I rather deprecate the tendency on our part to stick to rules, to try to govern ourselves strictly by rules. I know we cannot run an organization as big as this without rules, but for many years there were few senators who knew what the rules were, yet the place worked very well. In my opinion, when our arrangements are functioning to the optimum, then the Senate runs smoothly and to the satisfaction of both sides of the house. So, for what it is worth, I would like to see a continuation of the present system.

We have, of course, the right to authorize committees to sit during adjournments of the Senate for the purpose of taking evidence, and so on. We have exercised this right from time to time, and the arrangement has worked out very well. However, I would not like to see arrangements whereby Senate committees would sit after the dissolution of Parliament. I do not think it would be wise for committees of an appointed chamber to sit during an election period—regardless of what party is in office—particularly if the election is especially controversial. There would always be the possibility of partisan members or partisan chairmen of committees using their position to stir up a controversy or to intensify one that has been going on in the country at large. This would not be a good thing for a chamber such as this.

Honourable senators, I put these views on the record for what they are worth.

Hon. J. Harper Prowse: Honourable senators, I should like to refer to one specific point. It is possible that what I have in mind could be covered by the informal arrangements to which Senator Connolly made reference. I agree with him that it might be undesirable for a Senate committee to hold open meetings when an election is in progress, because certain things could happen which could be construed as interfering with the election.

Let me point out something which caused us a great deal of concern when our Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs was studying the parole system in Canada. During the entire period of our study there was a minority position in Parliament, and because of this we expected Parliament to be dissolved at any moment. This meant that it was impossible for us to enter into medium or long-term contracts for research work which we deemed to be necessary. This work would ordinarily have been commissioned by way of contract with schools of social work or schools of criminology in local universities. Had we proceeded with the type of research we had in mind, a number of graduate students and others would have been employed for the summer or perhaps for a minimum of six months. That would have been fine and dandy, but if suddenly on May 1 or May 15 or May 31 Parliament had been dissolved, these people would have been given two weeks' notice and would have been out of work for the summer. In all probability it would have been too late for them to obtain alternate employment. Thus we had to proceed with our study and produce a report without benefit of this particular research work. This is something which is going to apply particularly to special committees from time to time.

● (1440)

We could have made an arrangement whereby any government department could have taken up our contracts and covered them for us, but that would have prejudiced our position in carrying out independent research. It would have been the department's research, not the committee's. It would have interfered with our independence and left us subject to the charge, and properly so, that we had been content to use research arranged for us by the departments.

If it is possible, as apparently it is, for various departments and ministries of government to have research undertaken by them during that period, I would think that would fall within the limitations mentioned by both speakers. We could do as much as the House of Commons is able to do through the cabinet. This is being done now by the cabinet. Certainly it seems a shame that during an election period this house should be in complete—

Senator Flynn: Limbo.

Senator Prowse: Yes, limbo, where we cannot do a thing because of this type of regulation. There are all kinds of things we could do, including holding meetings in camera. After all, each of us is not needed on the hustings. As a matter of fact, many candidates look upon us—for better or worse—as though we were dinosaurs, representatives of another day. Well, although we may appear to be like dinosaurs, many of us have a store of knowledge that could be made available to them. In any event, I would like to see some arrangement whereby our committees could engage the services of well-intentioned young people to do research work, without our being concerned that simply because of an anomaly in our regulations they may suddenly be left high and dry without summer employment.

On motion of Senator Petten, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Thursday, April 10, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

CHANGE IN COMMITTEE MEMBERSHIP

Senator Petten, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(i), moved:

That the name of the Honourable Senator Barrow be added to the list of senators serving on the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Motion agreed to.

NATIONAL FINANCE

COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED TO MEET DURING SITTING OF SENATE

Senator Petten, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(a), moved:

That the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance have power to sit while the Senate is sitting on Wednesday next, April 16, 1975, and that rule 76(4) be suspended in relation thereto.

Motion agreed to.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Tuesday, April 15, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Before the question is put, I should like to give a brief outline of the work schedule for next week. Starting with the committees: On Tuesday the Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs will meet at 11 a.m. and again at 2 p.m. to hear witnesses on Bill S-19. At 8 p.m. on Tuesday there will be a meeting of the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service. The Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce will meet on Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. to continue its study of competition in Canada. The National Finance Committee will meet at 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday to continue its examination of the Manpower Division of the Department of Manpower and Immigration.

On Thursday at 9:30 a.m. the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service will hold another meeting. Also at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, the Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications will meet to consider Bill C-48, to amend the Railway Act. The Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy will meet at 8 p.m. on Thursday.

In addition to the items already on the Order Paper, it is expected that on Tuesday next we will receive from the other place Bill C-13, to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act and Bill C-34, to amend the Farm Credit Act, and possibly later in the week we will have Bill C-44.

Motion agreed to.

● (1410)

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

GREEN PAPER REFERRED TO STANDING SENATE COMMITTEE ON LEGAL AND CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Senator Perrault, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(e), moved:

That the Green Paper entitled "Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest," tabled in the Senate on Wednesday, April 9, 1975, be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

The Hon. the Speaker: The house has heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Motion agreed to.

ENERGY

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF OIL-PRODUCING AND OIL-CONSUMING COUNTRIES—QUESTION ANSWERED

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, on March 10 Senator Desruisseaux directed a question in the Senate concerning the International Conference of Oil-producing and Oil-consuming Countries. By way of response, may I say that, speaking in the other place on March 5, the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources pointed out that the meeting being held in France this week between a limited number of participants is only a preparatory meeting to establish an agenda for a later full conference, assuming that the preparatory meeting is successful.

Canada has been in favour of a meeting between the producing and consuming countries, and the developing countries as well, and has sought to participate in the preparatory meetings being held in Paris this week. It was felt, however, that the conference should be confined to a limited number of participants in the three categories: oil producers, industrialized oil consumers and the developing nations. While the Government of Canada would have preferred to have participated in the preparatory meeting, the increase in the size of the meeting, with Canada and all other countries participating, would have perhaps hindered the making of effective arrangements in the preparatory meeting. We therefore agreed not to participate.

Canada is not the only country not represented directly at the preparatory meeting. Some members of the International Energy Agency—Austria, New Zealand, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey—did not have direct representation in the discussions, but the chairman of the agency, Viscount D'Avignon, attended the meeting as an observer, along with representatives of OECD, OPEC and the United Nations. The meeting was convened by the French Government, which is not a member of the IEA. Invitations were issued to countries suggested by Mr. Ahmed Zaki Yamani in June of last year. These are as follows: for the oil producers—Iran, Saudi Arabia, Algeria and Venezuela; for the industrialized oil consumers—the United States, the European Economic Community and Japan; for the developing nations—Brazil, India and Zaire.

Should this preparatory meeting be successful, then a full conference should take place later this year. The Government of Canada will be keeping in close touch with these discussions and with the participants at the conference of the International Energy Agency, and we will, of course, make our views known. We have been assured that should there be a full conference, Canada will be a full participant.

Senator Desruisseaux: Honourable senators, I thank the Leader of the Government for giving a thorough explanation. My wish is that the media should report rightly and fully what has to be reported, and so avoid what may sometimes cause disturbance in the minds of Canadians. I am very pleased to hear that Canada will be represented at the conference, because I think it may be one of the most important conferences of the year.

CIVIL SERVICE INSURANCE ACT

BILL TO AMEND—THIRD READING

Senator Denis moved the third reading of Bill C-26, to amend the Civil Service Insurance Act.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

MEXICO

VISIT OF CANADIAN PARLIAMENTARIANS—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Muriel McQueen Fergusson rose pursuant to notice:

That she will call the attention of the Senate to the visit of a delegation of Canadian Parliamentarians to Mexico, 6th to 10th January, 1975.

She said: Honourable senators, perhaps because Spanish, with which most Canadians are unfamiliar, is the official language of Mexico; perhaps because formerly the distance between our two countries presented almost insurmountable transportation barriers which no longer exist; in the past Canadians have in their minds linked Mexico with the Latin American countries of Central and South America, which also have Spanish as their official language and which, geographically, are much closer to Mexico than is Canada.

Although Mexico is a Latin American country, it is also a North American country and has much in common with the other two North American countries, Canada and the United States of America. Quite possibly, Mexico and Canada have more in common with each other than either has with the great, powerful and rich neighbour which lies between them. Indeed, there is similarity in the common history of our two countries, for both have experienced poverty and misery. The income of some of the citizens of both countries does not provide them with a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of themselves and their families as set out in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Both countries are now making up for lost time in a determined effort to meet those standards. Both countries are heavily dependent on the United States of America for trade and are seeking additional sources; both are seeking additional outlets for their own products.

Canada and Mexico are influential middle powers which also have much in common in the field of international policy. That would include the desire for peace and disarmament, the record of their relations with the People's Republic of China, the support they gave each other in the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference held in Caracas, Venezuela, last year and the desire of both nations to be independent in national affairs. With these and other common interests, it would be of mutual benefit if knowledge in each country about the other could be increased.

Senators are aware that for the past 17 years there have been annual meetings between the Canada-United States Interparliamentary Group, and another such meeting is to take place in Canada in Quebec later this month. These are not meetings for confrontation; they are to find ways to cooperate, so that members of Parliament and members of Congress of the United States will know more about each other and will have a better understanding of each other's policies. For some time there has been a feeling, both in Canada and in Mexico, that similar meetings between those two countries could provide more understanding and communication, and would result in a closer relationship.

There was an expansion of Canadian-Mexican relations when a joint ministerial committee met for the first time in 1971. Even prior to that, in 1970, a Canadian-Mexican businessmen's committee was formed, which, since then, has held meetings in Mexico City and also in Toronto. Regular youth exchanges are taking place between the two countries, and tourism, which takes citizens of each country into the other, is expanding.

The visit to Canada in 1973 of Mexico's dynamic President Echeverria and his wife, Senora Echeverria, during which he addressed the two Canadian Houses of Parliament in the House of Commons chamber, did much to make Canadians generally aware of the possibility of a meaningful bilateral relationship between Canada and Mexico, and that such a relationship could be of great value to both countries.

On the occasion of the visit to Ottawa of His Excellency, President Echeverria, an invitation for a visit by Canadian parliamentarians was extended. This invitation was accepted, and in January last I was fortunate enough to be a member of the parliamentary delegation to Mexico, together with two other senators and eight members of the House of Commons. The delegation was ably led by the Speaker of the House of Commons, the Honourable James Jerome.

I do not know how familiar you are with Mexico, but I thought I would just give you a few facts about it. Mexico is 762,500 square miles in area, about the same as the combined area of our three Prairie provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. We were told while there that the population of the urban area known as Mexico City is 10 million, which would make it the sixth largest city in the world. About one-fifth of the population of the whole country of Mexico live in the capital city, which is both beautiful and historic.

When we arrived in Mexico City we received a friendly welcome from a delegation from the Congress, designated by the Chamber of Senators and Chamber of Deputies. It was very heart-warming, and we were delighted to see such strong evidence of goodwill and empathy between our two countries. The excellent plans that had been made for our visit gave us adequate time for extensive discussions on topics of mutual interest, and also gave us opportunities to see and learn much about the historical, cultural, economic, technological and social background of that country. This led to a much greater understanding of national policies and should broaden the cooperation that now exists between our two countries.

● (1420)

It was of great interest to all of us to learn that the Mexican political system is very different from our own, although they also have a Senate and a Chamber of Deputies. In Mexico, one party has been in power for over 40 years and that same party always gets re-elected at the polls.

Senator Perrault: Good organization.

Senator Fergusson: There are 64 members of the Senate, two coming from each federal state and all belonging to the Institutional Revolutionary Party. Two members of the Senate are women, and one of them was appointed to the delegation named to meet and entertain our group. Senators are elected for a six-year term and cannot be re-elected.

The Chamber of Deputies has 233 seats, of which 196 are filled by direct election. But to assure that there are always some members to speak for the opposition, 37 additional seats are awarded to minority parties on the basis of their electoral performance in the previous election. Roughly speaking, five members are appointed to the Chamber of Deputies from opposition parties for every 1½ per cent of the vote which was polled by them in the most recent election. The term for members of the Chamber of Deputies is three years, and they cannot be re-elected immediately, but I gather that they can be re-elected after they have been out of the chamber for at least a term.

To be considered legally constituted, a party must have a registration of at least 65,000 members. There are four such parties in Mexico. Of the 233 members presently in the Chamber of Deputies, 189 belong to the PRI, the Institutional Revolutionary Party, which is the party now in power. Each one of these members was elected directly at the polls. Then you have the PAN, the National Action Party, which elected four at the polls but which also has 21 diputados de partido who are appointed on the basis of the number of votes received by the party in the last election. Then there is the PARM, the Authentic Party of the Mexican Revolution, which elected two members in the last election but has six diputados de partido. Finally, there is the PPS, the Popular Socialist Party, which, while it did not have any members elected at the polls, has been assigned 10 seats based on the votes they polled in the election.

This seemed to me, honourable senators, to be a very ingenious method of providing that there is always an opposition in the Chamber of Deputies. I might add, however, that there were no members from the opposition parties on the Mexican delegation which entertained us, although our own group of delegates from Canada had members from three of our Canadian parties.

I was pleased, of course, that one of the members of the Mexican delegation appointed by the Chamber of Deputies to meet us was a woman, and another woman on that delegation represented the Senate. I was also pleased to learn that a woman holds a very important position as Minister of Justice in the Mexican Cabinet. There are 18 women in the Chamber of Deputies.

The President of Mexico is elected by direct popular vote for a term of six years, the same period as senators are elected for, but he, like the senators, cannot be re-elected.

Due to this ban on re-election, the President and the members of both houses really cannot make a career of politics as is done in so many countries. It would seem that in Mexico such service for Members of Congress is regarded as a training ground from which, if they have done well, they may go on to other service in the country, such as becoming governors or filling other important positions.

The delightful climate of Mexico and the warm and friendly attitude of the Mexicans toward visitors has led to a rapid growth of tourism. Last year some 170,000 Canadians visited Mexico, but only about 25,000 Mexicans visited Canada. However, we were told that Mexican tourists spend much more in Canada than Canadian tourists spend in Mexico, so that perhaps balances it somewhat. This interchange of tourists is considered to be very valuable by both countries and considerable discussion took place at our meetings as to what each country might do to encourage this interchange. The more the peoples of our two countries know about each other, the more they will be interested in visiting each other's country. While we were there our delegation visited the marvelous pyramids at Teotihuacan outside Mexico City, about which most of us had known little or nothing. We visited the world famous Anthropological Museum and spent some time in the National Palace viewing the murals painted by Diego Rivera, which depict so vividly the history of Mexico. This morning during the meeting of the Special Committee of the Senate on the Clerestory of the Senate Chamber it occurred to me that we might make use of similar murals in our own chamber to depict the history of Canada. They certainly were vivid, and after we had seen them all we really felt we knew some background of the history of Mexico. Both the Canadian and Mexican delegations agreed that mutual awareness and understanding between the two countries could be promoted by sending to Canada a major exhibition of Mexican culture and art representing the pre-Columbian up to and including modern periods. This exhibition had been sent to a number of countries in Europe, with great success. I am sure it would be of interest to Canadians and would give us a much better idea of Mexico and its culture.

[Senator Fergusson.]

Mexico is now Canada's most diversified trading partner among the so-called Latin-American countries. Trade has increased both ways between the two countries, and we were told that it is possible it may reach a total of approximately $300 million this year. Discussion of bilateral trade made it plain that, although such trade between the two countries now favours Canada, there is willingness on both sides to increase trade and bring it more in balance. One matter that interested me and was discussed was an agreement between our two countries regarding seasonal agricultural workers, which permits migrant farm workers to come to Canada for certain specific periods of time to assist in agriculture in this country. This agreement has been in effect for only one year and only between 100 and 200 workers were involved, but it seems to have worked satisfactorily for both the Canadian employers and the Mexican workers. If it is proposed to continue it, these numbers will probably increase. The Canadian government has taken strict measures to see that these Mexican workers receive the same wages as Canadian workers doing the same job. Although this arrangement is considered valuable because it brings foreign currency into Mexico, we were told that one of the chief reasons for its support in Mexico is that it is a means of obtaining better training for the individual agricultural workers.

● (1430)

Honourable senators, because I had not visited Mexico previously, I remained in the country for several days after the conclusion of the parliamentary visit. I would like to tell you a few things I learned during that time, which gave me an opportunity to visit some very beautiful parts of the country outside Mexico City.

You might suspect that I would be greatly interested in the position of women in Mexico where the ancient cult of machismo—or male superiority—had prevailed for many years. This cult overvalued one of the personality characteristics that for a long time defined Mexican women—that is, submission or denial of her personality to men. This had resulted in women's main function being the care of home and children which, although fundamental work and a basic responsibility, was given little social recognition.

Mexico, which is faced with the problem of unequal development, realizes that the help of women beyond work in the home is necessary for the improvement of general living conditions in their social context. Women are now being brought into national programs such as family planning, responsible paternity, community development, rural promotion, practical nursing and other fields, and this necessitates legal reforms and changes in mental attitudes toward women. Under this program, the Ministry of Health and Social Security Institute provides family planning information, but not on abortion, to anyone requesting it.

More than 100,000 women have been trained to work in social improvement. In 36 centres for Development of the Community, state financing and the volunteer work of interested women are teaching knowledge of new foods that are cheaper and more nourishing than those formerly in use. They are helping to establish nurseries, kindergartens and playgrounds. These centres are known as INPY. I visited one of these centres, and felt that many countries, including our own, could well benefit through similar centres. I was impressed that the wives of the Mexican section of our group—the parliamentary group from Mexico—were all involved one way or another with this work to improve living conditions in their country and that each gave many hours a week to this service. Much of the success is due to the inspired leadership of Senora Echeverria, the wife of the President.

This participation by women in social improvement brought about an acute consciousness in the country that a legal frame should be provided to stimulate and increase the full integration of women into contemporary life.

In 1974 President Echeverria introduced into the Chamber of Deputies legislation aimed at granting women complete equality before the law and to facilitate the participation of women in all aspects of national life, including broader educational opportunities, equal pay with men in the job market and greater participation in political affairs. It was approved by the Chamber of Deputies this year and it is hoped it will be in operation when the United Nations International Women's Year Conference takes place in Mexico City in June of this year.

It is my hope that when our Canadian delegates go to that United Nations Conference in Mexico, they will be able to give as good a report of what Canada has done to implement the objectives of International Women's Year.

Because of my concern about senior citizens, I found it interesting that many retired Canadians are making Mexico their permanent home, attracted by the climate and regulations that provide exemption from income tax for those on pension. I was told that such an expatriate can take into Mexico a reasonable amount of furniture without paying customs duties, and if they have a minimum income of $240 and are not working they do not have to pay income tax.

I should mention, before closing, that at the conclusion of the formal meetings between the two groups of parliamentarians, an invitation was extended by the leader of the Canadian delegation, the Honourable Speaker James Jerome, for Mexican parliamentarians to visit Canada in 1976.

I am grateful for having had the opportunity to visit Mexico, and I hope that the Mexican parliamentarians, whom we trust will accept our invitation to visit Canada next year, will find their visit to our country as instructive and pleasant as I found my visit to Mexico.

On motion of Senator Choquette, for Senator Flynn, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, April 15, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, April 15, 1975

The Senate met at 8 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

THE LATE HONOURABLE THOMAS A. CRERAR, P.C.

TRIBUTES

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, Senator T. A. Crerar died in Victoria, British Columbia, on April 11 last. I know it was a very sad occasion for those in this house who knew him.

Senator Crerar last spoke in this chamber on May 25, 1966, just before his retirement. On that occasion he spoke on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. He spoke for about 45 minutes without notes, with good material, a completely faithful memory and with vigour of voice. He was then just short of his ninetieth birthday. As a matter of fact, that afternoon was a unique occasion in that the three surviving parliamentarians who had been elected to Parliament in the general election of 1917 were in this house that day, and all of them spoke. In addition to Senator Crerar, there were Senator Power and Senator Vien. To add to the interest of the occasion, Senator Roebuck, who was with us at that time, also spoke. He, too, had run in that election but had been defeated.

In addition to those speakers, we heard from Senator Brooks, who was then Leader of the Opposition, and who had known Senator Crerar in the House of Commons since 1935 when they both came to Ottawa after the general election of that year.

It is unnecessary, of course, to repeat what was said on that occasion, but I think the Senate would want to mark the conclusion of the life of one of our former colleagues, who was truly a great Canadian statesman.

Senator Crerar would have been 99 on June 17 of this year. He was the senior Privy Councillor in Canada by many years. In fact, he was a member of the Privy Council for over 58 years. He was elected to the House of Commons on five different occasions between 1917 and 1940. He served in the Borden Government in the First World War as Minister of Agriculture. He served in the King Government during the Second World War in what ultimately became the Department of Mines and Resources.

He sat in this chamber for 21 years, between 1945 and 1966. He said in his last speech here that he liked the Senate better than the House of Commons, and he used this language:

—the atmosphere is . . . more congenial to me.

I think this illustrates as much as anything can the rather non-political, non-partisan quality of Senator Crerar's character.

Honourable senators will know that he was the president of United Grain Growers for many years, with headquarters in Winnipeg. He had been the leader of the Progressives in the House of Commons in the twenties.

When Senator Power spoke that day in 1966, he used three adjectives to describe Senator Crerar's career. He said it was marked by integrity, honesty and conviction and he proceeded to illustrate what he meant. He said, for example, that Senator Crerar originally left Laurier to join the Borden government and after some time he left the Borden government because he disagreed with the tariff policy; he disagreed with tariffs not because they were wrong in terms of economics but because they were morally wrong.

When Senator Crerar came to the House of Commons as leader of the Progressives so many years ago, he was head of the second largest party in the house, but he would not accept the office of Leader of the Opposition. He was not interested in power. It was for that reason that Senator Power commended him for the honesty and integrity of his position.

Despite the fact that Senator Crerar had served in three different political parties, as Senator Power pointed out that day, there was never any cheap criticism of him based upon the proposition that he was a political trimmer.

Senator Crerar had one of the most cultivated minds ever to grace this chamber; it was fed upon the lore of the books in the great library in his home. I understand that in recent years he gave that library to the University of Manitoba. I hope that, as the "Crerar books," his library will be kept segregated because it could be used by future historians to determine the kind of mind Senator Crerar had, and the materials which went into the making of that mind.

Mr. G. K. Chesterton once said of the Christian ethic that the soul of it was common sense, devastating common sense. I think, honourable senators, that that is rather true of T. A. Crerar's approach to government and public policy.

Senator Crerar knew the grain business. He knew the problems of western farmers. He had a large view of trade. He understood the importance to Canada of world markets, and so he abhorred tariffs. He believed in honesty, in hard work and in thrift for individuals, and he had great confidence in the common sense and judgment of the common man. He believed in personal initiative and so, with alarm, would warn of the welfare state and its debilitating effects.

Out of his conversation there emerged a high moral sense and a complete acceptance of spiritual values. Yet there was no religiosity about T. A. Crerar. On the record he was a Presbyterian, but his public performance was not sectarian in any way. He was a great Christian. He revered Saint Paul. He liked to talk about Saint Paul, and in his valedictory he quoted a passage from the Epistle of Apostle Paul to the Philippians, which I think might very well epitomize a good deal of his approach to life and his philosophy:

—whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

● (2010)

He used that passage particularly to refer to the kind of news comments that were emanating from the CBC at the time. It is hardly a bill of rights for the media, for the newscasters, but perhaps that is a sad commentary on the newscasters and the news media.

More than half of Senator Crerar's adult life was spent in public service, yet he had a keen business sense and was successful in business. When he was in his late eighties I played golf with him, and his game, even at that advanced age, was very respectable. Senator McIlraith can testify to that.

Above all, however, Senator Crerar was a Canadian. He was no stranger to any area of this country, or to the peoples or problems of those areas. I remember one time when he told me about a conversation he had had with Senator Meighen, after both of them had banked their political fires. They were discussing who was the greatest Canadian they had known in their time. It is rather revealing, I think, to know that Meighen nominated Laurier, and Crerar, who had been a great friend of Laurier's before he ever joined a political party, agreed.

Personally, I have great reason to be grateful to Senator Crerar for help, encouragement and advice when I first came to this chamber many years ago, and I am sure this is true of a great many other senators who knew him here.

He was truly a great Canadian, and his career can be an inspiration to future generations of young Canadians.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, there is little I can add to what Senator Connolly has said about Thomas Alexander Crerar, who was, very simply, an outstanding human being, a man of extraordinary intellectual and administrative ability. He was one of an unfortunately vanishing breed of classical liberals who firmly believed that the government that governed least was best. He never ceased to believe that Canada was overgoverned.

His interest in politics was born of a concern for people and not for power. He was concerned with the welfare of Canadians in general, and with Canada's farming community in particular. He was so suspicious of power, as historians claim, that he turned down the opportunity of being Premier of Ontario in 1919, Premier of Manitoba in 1922, and, as will be recalled by everyone, federal Leader of the Opposition in 1921 when he headed the second largest group of members in the House of Commons.

Senator Crerar is a giant of Canadian history. He was a man of incredible depth, sterling principles, and ineffable strength of character. He was an individualist and a laissez-fairist who was firmly convinced that Canada's love affair with statism could do us nothing but harm.

In his last speech in the Senate, on May 25, 1966, Senator Crerar warned us against accepting some of the more popular economic heresies. He warned us against tolerating even 1½ to 2 per cent inflation per annum, as he so accurately itemized what would be the vicious consequences of continued high inflation. He worried about the welfare state and growing governmental bureaucracies.

Honourable senators, a great defender of freedom has passed away and all those who cherish personal liberty feel the loss profoundly.

I close by offering to his family, and to all those who felt a philosophical kinship for Thomas Alexander Crerar, my most heartfelt condolences. But since, in the Judeo-Christian tradition, death is not meant to be an occasion merely for sadness but one of hope, I leave you with this thought from Senator Crerar about society and government: "If we could intern the statesmen of the world for 10 years and chloroform the experts for 15, we might get back to normal."

Hon. Raymond J. Perrault: Honourable senators, I, too, rise to pay tribute to the late Thomas Alexander Crerar, who was, as Senator Connolly has noted so eloquently, Canada's senior Privy Councillor and a political figure for over half a century. He was a man of integrity, and one who never lost sight of the fact that Parliament has no money of its own to spend. There have been a number of quotations from Senator Crerar's valedictory in the Senate on May 25, 1966, and as part of that valedictory he said, and I quote him directly:

I am old-fashioned enough to hold the view that no government should take a penny out of the taxpayers' pockets that it does not need. I say that there is no greater obligation resting upon a government than that of conducting its business prudently so that it spares the taxpayers these burdens as far as possible.

He was a kind man and a man who held strong views, but these views were born of his desire to see this country the Canada that he believed it could be.

Senator Crerar was very much a man for all seasons, a man to be admired by Canadians everywhere and of all political parties, and we are the poorer for his passing.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

REFERRAL OF GREEN PAPER TO STANDING SENATE COMMITTEE ON LEGAL AND CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS—QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE

Senator Croll: Honourable senators, I rise on a question of privilege arising out of a motion passed by this house on Thursday last.

Last Thursday, April 10, when I was not in the house, the following motion was passed:

SENATOR PERRAULT, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(e), moved:

That the Green Paper entitled "Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest", tabled in the Senate on Wednesday, April 9, 1975, be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

Rule 45.(1) reads:

One day's notice shall be given of any of the following motions:

Then, under (e) we find the following:

for an instruction to a committee;

The motion was passed without discussion and without debate, and at the present time it is stored away in the Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee of the Senate for a period of at least six weeks, if not longer, because of the great number of matters which that committee still has to deal with and which have already been arranged for. I merely bring this point to the attention of the Senate to indicate that for some reason or other there was an urgency which I do not understand.

For three months, to the knowledge of this house, the leader has resisted my requests for such a committee. I indicated my displeasure again recently, and on Wednesday last he told me that he would introduce a motion to establish such a committee within two weeks. I agreed with that course. I then sent him a copy of a notice of motion that I was prepared to introduce some time before the end of the month, and it would naturally follow that I would be speaking to that motion if I hoped to get any place at all with it. Nevertheless, without a word to me, and after he spotted my absence from the house on Thursday—and Thursday, honourable senators, is normally a quiet day and I must confess a day when I am rather tired and try to get away early—he introduced this motion and it was expeditiously passed.

● (2020)

In doing so he deprived me and others of an opportunity to discuss so important a motion as the conflict of interest which has plagued this Senate for generations. He knew I would speak to it and he had a fair idea, in part at least, of what I intended to say on the floor of the Senate and what needed saying. So, I rise on the question of personal privilege in part because I am concerned, because of the urgency, which is unexplained, that an attempt may be made to load the committee and deprive me and perhaps others of the right to speak. I wanted to speak because I felt it was a scandalous situation that the Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce, in making an advance study of the Combines Investigation Act, in which there was surely a conflict—

Senator Walker: Well, there is certainly a conflict now. You are out of order. This is a question of privilege and you are not entitled to debate it.

Senator Croll: I am not debating it.

Senator Walker: Oh, no? You are making a speech which you should not make, and we should have a ruling.

Senator Croll: I am stating on the question of privilege that this is what I wanted to say and was deprived of saying it.

Senator Walker: Let us have a ruling.

Senator Croll: In 1963 the Atlantic Sugar Refineries Limited—

Senator Walker: Madam Speaker, this is a question of privilege and with the greatest of respect I submit to you that we should have a ruling. My submission is that this is not a question of privilege and the honourable senator is entirely out of order. He is making the speech that he wanted to make and was not here to make. He had an opportunity to do so at that time if he had been here, and this is no time to make it. He knows that I have no axe to grind here. He is out of order and he should take his seat and wait for the ruling.

[Senator Croll.]

Senator Croll: I am not making a speech at all. I am bringing to the attention of the Senate a few matters, which will take me a few minutes. The speech I will make at another time, in another place.

Senator Riley: Honourable senators, I rise on a point of order. As Senator Walker said, this is not a question of privilege. Senator Croll is definitely making a speech, and an argumentative speech, too.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, further to that, I rise on a point of personal privilege. It is utterly in contempt of the Senate to impute motives to any member of the Senate. A number of statements have been made with respect to my alleged conduct and the actions taken by me, which defy every parliamentary tradition.

Some Hon. Senators: Hear, hear!

Senator Perrault: I do not intend to stand in this house and listen to this said by Senator Croll. Senator Croll had every opportunity to be here on Thursday, together with other members of the Senate. He chose to go home to Toronto. The fact that he did not have an opportunity to speak at that time is not a responsibility which rests on the Leader of the Government in the Senate nor, indeed, on any other senator. I do not intend to stand here in this place to listen to a diatribe of the type to which we have been subjected.

Some Hon. Senators: Hear, hear!

Senator Croll: Honourable senators, I made it quite clear that the Leader of the Government hurriedly asked that the rules be waived in order to pass the motion on that particular day, when there was no other business. There was no other business and it was, of course, granted to him. There was not the slightest reason for it, and there it is on the record.

Some hon. Senators: Order, order.

Senator Walker: Sit down. You should be ashamed of yourself.

The Hon. the Speaker: Rule 33 reads as follows:

33. When a matter of question directly concerning the privileges of the Senate, of any committee thereof, or of any senator, has arisen, a motion calling upon the Senate to take action thereon may be moved without notice and, until decided, shall, unless the debate be adjourned, suspend the consideration of other motions and of the orders of the day.

Senator Croll: Honourable senators, I do not quite understand what the ruling is.

Senator Walker: Go back to Toronto and think it over.

Senator Croll: I thought it over before I presented it. I do not quite understand the ruling that has been made by the Chair.

The Hon. the Speaker: Does the honourable senator have a motion?

Senator Croll: I have no motion. I do not know that there is any need for it.

Senator Walker: Perhaps before my friend continues, he should apologize to the house.

The Hon. the Speaker: Does the honourable senator have a motion to move? Does the honourable senator want to move a motion?

Senator Croll: No, I do not want to move a motion.

Senator Walker: Then sit down.

EMPLOYER-EMPLOYEE RELATIONS IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that messages had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. MacLean has been substituted for that of Mr. Baker (Grenville-Carleton) and that the name of Mr. McCleave has been substituted for that of Mr. MacLean on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Caccia has been substituted for that of Miss Nicholson on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

FARM CREDIT ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-34, to amend the Farm Credit Act.

Bill read first time.

Senator Perrault moved, with leave of the Senate, that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

● (2030)

FORT-FALLS BRIDGE AUTHORITY ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-367, to amend the Fort-Falls Bridge Authority Act.

Bill read first time.

Senator Petten moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Thursday next.

Motion agreed to.

THE HONOURABLE DAVID WALKER, P.C., THE HONOURABLE DANIEL A. LANG, THE HONOURABLE J. CAMPBELL HAIG

FELICITATIONS ON RETURN TO CHAMBER

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, before tabling certain reports and documents, I want to comment on the presence in the chamber this evening of three senators who have suffered ill health in recent weeks.

We are delighted to see Senator Walker, Senator Lang and Senator Haig restored to their usual buoyant good health.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Copies of statements on the Economic Situation and on The Consultations on Inflation, made by the Minister of Finance to the Conference of First Ministers, held in Ottawa April 9th and 10th, 1975.

Copies of Report by the Minister responsible for the Canadian International Development Agency on Canada's Food Aid Program: Allocations for 1975-76, dated April 11, 1975.

Report of the Independent Review Committee on the Office of the Auditor General of Canada, dated March 1975.

INDUSTRY

CANADIAN TEXTILE PROBLEMS—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Paul Desruisseaux rose pursuant to notice:

That he will call the attention of the Senate to Canadian textile problems.

He said: Honourable senators, I want to make it clear, first of all, that I am not connected in any way, shape or form with the Canadian textile industry.
[Translation]

Honourable senators, after having given notice to the Senate, some three weeks ago, that I would speak today on the problems of the Canadian textile industry, I read an editorial in the Gazette, which I feel is slanted, on the hoped-for systematic disappearance of the textile industry in Canada. This article was followed by a rebuttal from Mr. Allan D. Gray, also published in the Gazette, on April 8, 1975, under the heading: The Case for Textile Protection, as well as by a new editorial in the Gazette which corrected some of Mr. Gray's data.

I therefore feel totally at ease this evening in speaking to you about this important matter of current interest.

The protection often required by this industry, which is extremely sensitive to all economic reactions, is given explicitly to all the signatories to the 1973 General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade more commonly known as GATT. In fact, they specify in detail what means the member countries should resort to in the fight against the dumping of foreign textile and clothing. I shall come back to this when I discuss generalities.

I will here and now state the position of GATT in an area which seems to fit well into our needs, and I quote:

In the case of those countries with limited markets, and an exceptionally high level of imports and a low domestic production level, special care will be required to avoid any harm to the minimum viable textile production of those countries.

In 1970, a new policy was introduced by the then minister, the Hon. Jean-Luc Pepin, and I quote:

In order to take into account the vast complexity of our domestic and international interests.

That program was the result of a long study of the Canadian textile and clothing industry. That philosophy was to prevail in our agreements in those areas. Mr. Pepin then declared, and I quote:

The aim of that policy is to create conditions allowing for the progressive development of clothing and textile industries within production conditions which will remain viable in a context of growing international competition.

Need I recall our political pledge to support Canadian ownership of Canadian businesses, and the fact that the vast majority of textile industries are under Canadian ownership, and that the percentage of Canadian ownership in clothing industries virtually amounts to 100 per cent?

According to Mr. Gray's article, less than 90 per cent of our textile imports do not fall under restrictive control. Only 10 per cent of those imports come from the Far East and from behind the Iron Curtain.

Imports from the United States and Europe are subject to the protection of ordinary tariffs.

If we consider the total imports on a per capita basis, we find that Canada's tolerance is the highest in all industrialized nations. Our per capita import basis in 1973 was $1,050, compared to $875 in West Germany and $300 in the United States. The latter is, in fact, the lowest.

The international trade deficit, by the way, went up from $709 million in 1973 to $876 million in 1974. The deficit in clothing trade, for its part, climbed from $244 million to $323 million. Seventy-five per cent of textile companies employ fewer than 100 workers, while the total of jobs depending on them is about 189,000.

Statistics Canada reported last October that the average wage paid in the textile industry is $3.53 an hour, and $3.04 in the clothing industry, a very low average according to our standards.

I shall speak, in a moment, about the massive flood of certain textile products on to the Canadian market at prices inferior to the domestic cost price.

● (2040)

[English]

The textile industry is a basic and essential industry for any industrialized nation. As an industry in Canada it is very unstable. Nevertheless, its disappearance would be economically disastrous. A large sector of Canada would be deeply affected. Our textile industry is in want of better government support. The high standard of living set in our country has resulted in high textile production costs. In spite of our automatic machinery and our high productivity, we are no longer competitive on the world textile markets. All our Canadian ingenuity and innovation can no longer assure us of the necessary competitiveness against a constantly increasing inflow of textile imports. The Canadian textile industry has consequently lost an important part of its domestic market to cheap imports, and it has now become a very sick industry.

[Senator Desruisseaux.]

In the Canadian concept we would not normally allow such things to happen to most of our industries. I now ask whether the textile industry is treated with fairness through our present textile policy. Do we not disregard the employment it gives Canadians in normal times under normal conditions? Has the government decided to sacrifice most of the divisions of the textile industry for international trading possibilities? These are but a few of the questions that now need to be answered.

At the outset, let me say that I was born and raised in the District of Wellington, which I have the honour to represent here. It covers a good section of the Eastern Townships, a well-known textile area. From my earliest years I have heard there about the complex Canadian textile problems. I have seen some of our regional federal representatives dramatically abandon their political allegiance and their party because of the Canadian textile policy of those days. The area in which I live has suffered more, and for longer periods of time, from unemployment than, I believe, any area in Ontario or in the West. Our regional unemployment average has been, and still is, much higher than the national average.

The Canadian Textile Commission, established some five years ago, had a definite mandate. It was to find ways to help our textile industry survive and expand. I have studied the textile reports that were released last February. The comparative cumulative textile import figures over the last three years explain to a large extent the current prevailing textile situation. These reports of the Canadian Textile Commission were requested by the Honourable Alastair Gillespie in 1974. All parties interested in some phases of the textile situation were given the opportunity to present their briefs and discuss their views. A most important joint brief was presented to the commission by the Canadian Textiles Institute, the Canadian Federation of Textile Workers, the United Textile Workers, the United Textile Workers of America and the Union of Textile Workers of America. Some hearings were in camera, to permit supplementary explanations from one and the other, but the aloof conclusions and recommendations did not, in my opinion, consider thoroughly the effects of the government's textile policy, or the pleas and recommendations of the textile workers and the textile industrialists.

It remains a fact that the Canadian textile industry is sick. The Canadian Textiles Institute blamed the flow of textile imports that were increasing and absorbing the market—the result of a policy that was letting in, much too freely, imports to be sold in Canada, in some cases at prices below the Canadian costs of raw material alone. The Canadian producers represented that they would have to restrict their operations and release their workers at an ever-increasing rate, in spite of a serious reduction in the normal working hours, and that they would have to put off any further capital investment in the textile field. The institute mentioned data that were controllable, showing the actual low rate of utilization of their production capacity, the disquieting dwindling of textile orders necessary to keep the plants open, and the high inventory build-up that had to be disposed of before work could be resumed for a good percentage of their workers.

In admitting that problems also existed elsewhere, the institute underlined that no other important industry here had to face such competition from imports arriving on the Canadian market at prices below those of two or three years ago, and somewhat startling but incontestable evidence of wholesale dumping of foreign textiles at depressed prices. I thought the point was well made by the Canadian Textiles Institute that the primary cause of the problem of the textile industry was not so much the diminishing demands for textiles from the Canadian consumers—this was shown by evidence of the total retail sales figures of domestic and imported textile products—as the resulting effects of disturbances in the market caused by dumped foreign textile products at exceptionally low prices. Three textile unions expressed concern that such large quantities of textiles should be allowed to be imported so easily at depressed or low prices. They were further concerned that such importation was causing unemployment in concentrated areas, particularly in Quebec in the Eastern Townships. They stated that from January 1974 to January 1975 it had been necessary to lower by 15 per cent the employment rolls of Dominion Textile. More recent figures show an even greater drop.

● (2050)

On January 24, 1975, Dominion Textile announced that it would have to close 14 of its production plants for one week and that, as a consequence, many of its employees would be jobless for an indefinite period of time owing to the prevailing situation in the textile industry. Figures taken from manpower centres in the affected areas substantiate most convincingly the fact that there is a very high rate of unemployment among textile workers in those areas.

An examination of the statistics having to do with polyester and cotton-mixed tissues—an area which reflects the entire pattern for all divisions—will show that textile imports in this division alone increased from 7,551,000 pounds in 1971 to 16,062,000 pounds in the 11-month period from January to November, 1974. With those statistics in mind, how could anyone then say that textile imports have not been large or that the increase has been negligible, has not required any immediate action or has been merely a small percentage of the division's production?

On the contrary, in my opinion even an importation percentage figure of 4 per cent of the production in any textile division is likely to create in Canada a noticeable and disturbing unemployment situation among textile workers. And the point is that at the present time textile imports comprise far more than 4 per cent of the industry.

Honourable senators, with this background in mind let me tell you that the Textile Commission simply rejected the demands, representations and recommendations it had received from the unions. It could not be convinced that importations were the principal cause of the problem; nor did it have any counterproposal for correcting other problems that it could obviously see existed. It was the commission's stand that the violent rises in prices of raw cotton and the substantial differences in prices of certain fibres had been the principal causes of the disturbances. That position is, of course, repudiated by the facts presented by the Canadian Textile Institute.

Of course, the commission admitted that when goods become scarce, the accumulation of inventory does play a part in these problems, but some analysts prefer to believe that the problem is caused to a far larger extent by the wholesale importation of cheap textiles which can compete beyond any degree of fairness. However, the commission made no mention of the major role played by the importation of cheap textiles other than to say it did not consider itself justified at the present time to apply any special measures with relation to textile imports. Indeed, in its report on polyester fibres, dated February 6, 1975, it proposed only selected measures for the improvement of the situation.

With respect to the other important divisions of the textile industry, the commission recommended in its report that measures be taken to assure that in 1975 textile imports from certain countries should not exceed the specified limits, which, in any event, were most generous. Indeed, the commission did not consider it appropriate to apply surcharges to imported products when such imports were subject to limited quantitative importation.

On page 18 of its report, the commission set out the limitations for countries in which the limitations had been set very high or had been left entirely up to the decision of those making trade arrangements with the particular countries.

In its report on polyester and cotton tissues, the commission recommended that imports be watched closely. It pointed out that those imports on which there had been no curtailment of entry had doubled between 1971 and 1975.

On January 22, 1975, the commission published its report on the inquiry on sheets and pillows, but that report contained no other recommendation than that surveillance should be maintained. In answer to the pressures, representations and recommendations of the concerned workers, textile labour leaders and textile producers, the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce made an important statement on March 6, 1975. For anyone concerned or affected by the federal textile policy of the last few years, that was an amazing and, yes, even shocking statement. There are those who found it downright hostile and defiant. It plainly rejected the textile industry's appeals and recommendations. It simply refused to consider the textile workers' recommendations. It flatly refused to help inhibit the highly competitive dumping of imports. Rather, it called on the industry to be more efficient and innovative—as though the industry had not been completely efficient and innovative in these last few years in its continuous fight to survive.

The minister stated that the government would seek to renew and to extend the troublesome existing export restraint agreements with supplying countries—the precise policy that was being attacked so severely—because the government assumed that those agreements were contributing to the instability in textile production and because the government felt that they were grossly overgenerous in this present economic regression.

● (2100)

The minister announced that his department would indeed monitor a wide range of basic imports to watch for violations of what the textile industry believe to be restraint arrangements of too limited a character. The minister refused to consider establishing import quotas or urging restrictions on textile imports. He rejected the recommendations of the industry that the market situation may become critical, and this in spite of the present public knowledge of wholesale textile unemployment figures that ran sometimes as high as 25 per cent. Many in the industry felt it was a judgment of clear condemnation on at least six primary textile products, and on the sheets and pillow cases range of finished products. I could not agree with this judgment.

The commission's negative rulings on one of the reports will now have the effect of removing restraints against imports from nine Asiatic and East European countries.

The commission, on whose reports the minister had based his statement on textile policy, is the very body that had been set up five years ago to advise the government on ways to improve the textile industry. This commission gave the distinct impression to many of those affected by this situation of having worked in reverse, and having sought ways to admit cheap imports more widely, by allowing dumpings of textiles at depressed prices, and establishing most generous import quotas in a time of crisis within the industry and in a time of a general regression in the national economy. There is really very little in the decisions and recommendations of the commission that showed a deep concern for the survival and improvement of the industry.

One of the rare constructive recommendations made by the commission in the case of polyester yarns was to impose a tariff surtax to help the industry in fighting imports dumped at depressed prices, but the government rejected it flatly. It would have run against the textile policy used in making our trade arrangements. The minister said the government would watch import trends in the market in the case of polyester cotton. There were, however, no commitments to take corrective action wherever necessary in that textile division that would help the industry.

The minister repeated the statement, "Because the textile board found no damage to Canadian industry from U.S. imports, Canada is obliged under its international trade agreements to end all quota restraints negotiated with Asiatic and Eastern European suppliers of low cost, lower quality sheets and pillow cases." I will comment here that this appeared to me somewhat incomprehensible as a policy to help the textile industry. Will this now fully open the floodgates? Whoever introduced these most unfavourable and awkward guidelines to our already unsatisfactory textile policy, by which Canada finds itself handcuffed and enslaved, did us a great disservice. Some have said, more harshly, it was pure stupidity in action.

The minister said that the government considered trade obligations and consumer interests in making its decisions. How are these now to be weighed and valued? Without denying any good intention in the goals of the minister, whom we recognize as one of our hardest working and sincerest ministers, after reading the evidence contained in the briefs and in these reports I find this quite hard to swallow. It was more like the kiss of death to the worried laid-off textile workers—anyone who does not believe me can ask them—who had been expecting the support and help of the government in regaining the employment taken away by the government's disadvantageous textile trade concessions to a large number of countries.

Critics are saying this commission made absolutely no constructive and positive recommendations, and submitted, instead, to textile policy guidelines which in no way help the industry out of its troubles. In no way could its imposed submissive and limited consideration assist the industry in its fight for better competitiveness.

Union critics, on their side, are claiming that the commission's decisions leaned heavily toward the eventual actual dismemberment of the Canadian textile industry by favouring so freely the wide and massive admittance of dumped low-priced textiles to favour some foreign trade possibilities.

More accurately, the commission's decisions have, in fact, lost thousands of textile workers their jobs, and created wholesale unemployment in the area where the industry is principally located. Assuredly, the government's textile policy is now forcing the federal manpower division to find other jobs for the unemployed textile workers, to organize more retraining, and to provide for more movement to other fields of work, with the consequence that more Canadians will be in the available labour force at a time when that is surely not required or called for. To me, any policy leading to these consequences is totally unacceptable, unsatisfactory, unwise, negative and even destructive.

My own appraisal is that the actual treatment of Canadian textiles through the enforcement of what appears to me, to say the least, to be a biased textile policy, should have been the main target of the commission's attack, and its main object of correction. A greater effort towards correcting the industry's problems should have preoccupied this commission. Frankly, this was not the case.

Up to now, this policy respecting textiles has produced deep concern among textile producers, and resulted in the wholesale unemployment of textile workers. It is mostly responsible for the resulting economic disadvantages to a large sector of Canada. It failed to reach the constructive objectives it had said it wanted to reach. It did not hold down the prices of textiles for our Canadian consumers as it was supposed to do. One has only to compare our textile retail prices with those of our neighbour. It has not justified the admission of the allowed cheap textile imports. It has caused damages to the textile industry which will be very difficult to repair.

● (2110)

I find that no favourable comments can be made on the government's textile policy of the last decades. To me there is an apparent betrayal of the commission's well-defined purpose and mission, which was to help assure the survival and development of our Canadian textile industry, to find ways and means to help, not to hurt, the textile industry of Canada.

I must reserve my personal comments on the extraordinary stand and the noticeable aloofness of the minister's comments on textiles, because he stated he had to rely on the commission's recommendations. I fail to comprehend why it was not observed that the present textile policy was hurting Canadian textiles quite deeply and was working systematically toward the destruction of some of the industry's divisions.

I am stunned to see the government on the one hand help generously by grants, subsidies and export assistance facilities our Canadian agriculture, our commodities producers, and our manufacturers generally, while at the same time rejecting nearly every one of the joint recommendations of the textile workers and textile producers which had the clear purpose of stabilizing the industry's production, of assuring greater employment for our textile workers and of reaching the higher necessary productivity.

After a brief review of the textile imports allowed by other countries of the world, I believe, with some of the analysts, that Canadian textiles can be much better protected and the industry can be expanded without injury to our normal trading arrangements. Intelligent controls by import quotas, improved restraint policies, realistic dumping policies that can be adhered to in the trading arrangements would have contributed so much more to the advancement and to the prosperity of all connected with this basic industry.

I now say to you that the kind of treatment given textiles invites the displeasure of those adversely affected by it. The job could have been much better done, but it was not.

Let me deal briefly with the kind of work done that can eventually destroy certain divisions of the Canadian textile industry. The allowed limit under the present textile imports policy of shirts priced at less than $30 a dozen, or at $1.25 a shirt, is now over 15 million. We are now importing 15 million shirts a year in that price range alone. Now, who among those responsible for this allocation could make you or me believe that such imports do not cause damage to our Canadian textile industry, to its productivity and to its workers, in these days of economic adversities and recession? Who among those responsible for this obvious mess would make anyone believe that this does not contribute directly and importantly to the highest rate of unemployment in the industry and one that finds no duplication anywhere at this time in our industrial world? I condemn strongly the stand we are taking in this connection. As a citizen, I resent the disregard shown the recommendations made by the textile workers and the producers.

There are other fields I could mention of harmful and negative import policies that affect adversely important industrial fields and our Canadian taxpayers. They are all based on the same kind of thing.

Senator Bourget: Would the honourable senator permit a question? I am very interested in the problem as raised, but I have been wondering throughout the discussion if perhaps GATT has something to do with this situation, and if the actions of the government were not limited by GATT in certain circumstances.

Senator Desruisseaux: They are, but to me it is important that the government should establish the policy that we need—and that was mentioned briefly in the quotations I gave from the Honourable Jean-Luc Pepin—and that the policy should be based so as to protect the textile industry in Canada where our production is small and the imports are large. However, I shall be speaking further on this point. But the government is responsible for GATT just the same as any other government would be in a similar situation.

Senator Bourget: But I was wondering if in the circumstances the government was taking any action; if not, then the government should be blamed. On the other hand, I thought that under GATT we had some general agreements on tariff and trade and so we had to go along with GATT.

Senator Desruisseaux: This was not the question; it was an argumentation. I will answer in this way: When the GATT arrangements were made, they were discussed and they were made to serve the country as much as it was possible to do so. In my view they failed in the case of textiles, and I believe that the whole situation of the textile industry is looked at as being an inferior one and one that we must get rid of. I mentioned the editorials published in the Gazette condemning the textile industry and saying we should drop it or "phase it out," as they said. But that is not my opinion, and it is particularly not my opinion when it concerns a large section of Canada, and it is not at all my opinion when it concerns my own area where we find unemployment running higher than it has for years, and where it is running higher than anywhere in Canada. This is so because the textile industry is the principal industry in our area.

● (2120)

Senator Bourget: Mind you, I am not against you.

Senator Desruisseaux: I am not saying you are.

Senator Bourget: I am just asking a question to find out the exact reasons.

Senator Desruisseaux: You asked the question and I gave my answer.

Senator Bourget: Yes, thank you.

Senator Desruisseaux: Do you wish me to clarify it further?

Senator Bourget: No, it is quite all right.

Senator Desruisseaux: I condemn strongly the stand we are taking in this connection. As a citizen, I resent the disregard given the recommendations made by the textile workers and producers. There are other fields I could mention of harmful and negative import policies that affect adversely important industrial fields and Canadian taxpayers. I will only mention sheet glass, in which I must say to you I have some interest, being a director of a glass company.

The import policy and the present trading arrangements policy of the government—this is GATT—finally forced the recent closure of a large Ville St. Laurent glass plant, again situated in my province, and reduced the production in the other glass plants in Canada. True, the reduction in the construction industry played a part in the reduction of glass production but, bitterly, what hurt more were the sharp increases of glass imports allowed through our trade arrangements with countries to whom Canada extended the benefits of the generalized system of preferences at the worst time. There was a known worldwide surplus of flat glass, of which the department had been pre-warned by the industry; there was a recession under way which was recognized by all economic advisors to the government; and there was reduction in the Canadian construction industry and a known general increase of all imports of flat glass. The glass industry had no alternative but to close the Ville St. Laurent plant, resulting in a loss of 800 jobs for Canadians, because of the refusal of the department to consider the glass industry's briefs and the decision to ignore the warnings and recommendations of the industry.

Possibly, as my good friend Senator Bourget mentioned, it could have been because of the GATT arrangements, but my point, which I will not allow anyone to persuade me to forget, is that the GATT arrangements are our arrangements. If we did not want GATT, we could have made some exceptions for Canada.

The briefs had advised the department that the combined effects of the unfavourable factors enumerated would result in a steadily worsening position on orders received during the last half of 1974 and that in the last three months of the year the orders of this firm dropped by 58 per cent over the comparable period of 1973.

In July 1974, in spite of the industry's warnings, the government enacted legislation which we, of course, passed: "To fulfil Canada's obligation under the generalized system of preferences to developing countries." The partial result of that has been to eliminate completely the tariff on sheet glass imports into Canada from some 140 eligible countries.

During the five-month period between July and November 1974, thin sheet glass production declined by 17 per cent, and that company's share of the market declined from 61.1 per cent to 56.7 per cent during that same period. Imports increased their share of the market from 38.8 per cent last year to 43.3 per cent during July through November 1974. In particular, duty-free imports from countries eligible for the general preferential tariff have almost doubled in market share to 12.4 per cent since the tariff has been eliminated, compared with 6.4 per cent during the corresponding period last year. The high cost of fuel and our increased scale of wages and generous fringe benefits, combined with the further high cost of ingredients, at a time of recession, are making the Canadian glass industry and many of the other industries very unstable, with no protection against import abuses.

Senator Thompson: May I ask the honourable senator which countries are the major competitors in sheet glass?

Senator Desruisseaux: I could give one example, which I believe is the most remarkable. It is one that has arisen recently. I refer to Romania, which is behind the Iron Curtain. They are shipping glass to the West, and when it arrives in Montreal it is farmed out to the markets that we have in that area. Of course, that Ville St. Laurent plant was of no more use, as it could not compete with those prices. However, there are other countries from which we obtain glass, and the fact that we lifted the import duties made it more competitive. Also, the fact that we pay more in wages and for ingredients come into play, together with the cost of transportation.

Senator Thompson: I was thinking that the cost of transportation would be much higher.

Senator Desruisseaux: It is not at the moment. They compete very easily at their prices. There is now a world surplus of flat glass and if they dump it on the market and are allowed to do so, as they are, it really competes. It makes it hard to compete with them; it makes it hard to maintain capacity production; it makes it impossible to reach high productivity. The competitiveness which is necessary is gone; there is no possibility of it.

● (2130)

The glass industry now has to meet duty-free imported products from, in some instances, countries behind the Iron Curtain. My reference was to Romania.

Senator Bourget: And Czechoslovakia.

Senator Desruisseaux: I would assume so. I do not know the quantity. I know the Romanian situation. They were warned of it. They could not do much. The whole philosophy is what I am trying to get at, and I will, I hope, with your permission.

The glass industry now has to meet duty-free imported products produced, in some instances, in countries behind the Iron Curtain under totally different conditions on a forced low-cost basis, as is the case of the glass imported from Romania.

If we want to preserve what industrialization we have established in Canada by hard work, I personally believe that among other things it will be necessary to review the types of crude policies we are using, which give benefit to all other countries but which keep imposing taxes and expensive conditions on Canadian industry.

In my view, there cannot be employment security and progress in Canada on that basis, and I suggest that we will have to stop making those kinds of mistakes and work alongside industry more than we do now. In other words, if industry had been consulted at the right time, some of these things would not have happened.

[Translation]

It is now time to review the Canadian textile policy which is harmful and jeopardizes our economic life, the stability of employment of textile workers and the very survival of an industry which in my opinion should remain an essential Canadian industry, which centers in the important area of the Eastern Townships, and expressly relies on its good performance for a normal and acceptable economic life, as generally happens with prosperous Canadian regions.

Of course, like anybody else in Canada our textile workers are entitled to employment protection and stability. For over fifty years, and in unparalleled proportions, Canadian citizens in my area have suffered from insecurity and instability of employment resulting almost entirely from the textile policy which was and still is unfair, and frequently hostile to them. Today, I can feel to what extent citizens in my area are really fed up with the periodic resulting changes, which for decades have slowed them down, kept them back, disadvantaged them with respect to salary scales, as well as the number of weekly employment hours, because they sacrificed them to enable the textile industry to better fight the actual flood of imports allowed by our Canadian policy—textile imports at bargain prices with which no one in Canada can in any way compete. As a result of this, they place us, unjustly perhaps, in lower economic brackets and classes than those of other Canadians who do not have to face such hostilities in their industries or jobs. It is with sadness that I heard a few days ago blame being put on the textile policy for steering young textile workers of this country towards separatism because they did not see in the federal textile attitude any hope of being fairly treated, of being treated on an equal economic basis with other Canadian workers; any hope of receiving, not rebuffs as they just did from Ottawa but more humane consideration of the problems affecting them economically and socially; any hope of being heard like others on the constructive recommendations they make. Indeed, in their representations and recommendations they remained totally realistic—more I would dare say than those before whom they voiced their grievances.

[Senator Desruisseaux.]

Honourable senators, I suggest that we in this federal government, this central government, have to take responsibilities towards our textile workers and producers. It is our textile policy that so adversely affected the people in my area, that was detrimental and hostile to them. The Canadian textile policy now contains the element of systematic destruction of that industry, an industry which did seem essential to Canada and certainly to the normal economic life in a whole area of this country, the Eastern Townships.

In the face of industry shut-downs, of thousands of unemployed textile workers, of the help needed to partially compensate unemployed textile workers, of federal assistance to an unsatisfactory regional economy, the people responsible should understand the inherent and far-reaching errors in that kind of policy, the results of which are self-evident to our people.

How is it possible for a federal commission, whose aim is to help the textile industry solve its problems, to find in Ottawa that generally there is no evidence that the textile industry is harmed by massive imports causing a high rate of unemployment?

A policy that does not care for the evident difficulties caused mainly by its guidelines is bound to result in the methodical destruction of that industry's production and high productivity rate.

Mr. Gillespie, with his apparent high intelligence and learning, is thought by our people to have been duped by an old theory of 50 years ago that never could prove itself in the Canadian textile industry. He should not therefore expect to receive high marks, in my area, for the formulation of his views on our textile problems, on whose solutions we so narrowly depend for our economic and community welfare.

As it is getting late, I will not talk about the GATT situation.

How is an agreement like GATT made? We have certain concessions to make and we want concessions from the other countries.

I believe that it is wrong to concentrate on textiles, as we are doing, when this affects an important area in the province of Quebec—a large area of Quebec—to obtain concessions that will apply generally.

Economically, this makes no sense, and this is why I am saying that the Senate could still be of use by examining realistically in a committee, or even a subcommittee, the major problem of textiles in Canada, our national textile policy in our dealings with other countries as concerns dumping, its effects and consequences on the industry and the economy in general, our policy of tolerance, of massive flooding of imported products admitted on our market at depressed prices, as well as the means to help more efficiently and directly our textile industry. It would still not be too late to rectify certain wrongs and to give back to Canadian textile the vitality of a normal and efficient economic production which would allow it to set more competitive prices and would ensure its survival and general prosperity, especially in my area, the Eastern Townships.

● (2140)

[English]

On motion of Senator Deschatelets, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, April 16, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Orlikow has been substituted for that of Mr. Brewin; that the name of Miss Nicholson has been substituted for that of Mr. Caccia; that the name of Mr. Gray has been substituted for that of Mr. Guay (St. Boniface); and that the name of Mr. Caccia has been substituted for that of Mr. Prud'homme on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

LIBRARY OF PARLIAMENT

JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Fairweather has been substituted for that of Mr. Jelinek on the list of members appointed to serve on the Standing Joint Committee on the Library of Parliament.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report of the Export Development Corporation, including its accounts and financial statements certified by the Auditor General, for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to sections 75(3) and 77(3) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter F-10, R.S.C., 1970.

FARM CREDIT ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald moved the second reading of Bill C-34, to amend the Farm Credit Act.

He said: Honourable senators, Bill C-34 makes a number of changes in this particular act in order to meet the long-term credit needs of our farmers in the late 1970s. The act was originally passed in 1959. Since its inception it has made approximately 120,000 loans to farmers across Canada for a total of approximately $2.75 billion.

The number of the loans and the amount of money involved are a sufficient indication of the need for this particular piece of legislation and of the good it has accomplished in the agricultural community of this country. The record of repayment of the loans is an indication of the desire of Canadian farmers to take loans from the national government and, to some extent, is an indication of their ability to meet the obligations of these loans. Certainly, the record of payments shows that there has been a loss of only four cents per $100 since the program came into being.

There is no doubt, therefore, that the act as presently constituted has helped many young people enter farming activities in Canada since 1959. However, I believe the record indicates that despite the fact it has been helpful, in its present form it is not able to cope with the problem that exists in 1975.

Five years ago, 35 per cent of those farmers who made loans under this act were under 35 years of age. Last year, 53 per cent, or nearly 5,000 loans, were granted to borrowers under 35. In other words, the number of young farmers that are able to borrow under the act has been increasing, which is a desirable thing at a time when the need for food, not only at home but abroad, is constantly increasing. It seems to the department, and it should be obvious to all of us, that there is a necessity to attract more younger people into farming activities across Canada.

There are three main provisions in the amendments before us in Bill C-34 which will help young farmers.

The first provision makes it possible for the maximum loan for farmers under 35 years of age to be increased from $100,000 to $150,000. This is because of the ever-increasing value of land prices, and the increased cost of livestock, machinery, buildings, and all capital assets necessary to a modern agricultural enterprise. Not only are capital costs increasing very rapidly, but farm operating costs are also increasing due to the tremendous increase in the price of such items as fertilizers, weed sprays, chemicals, wages, and municipal taxation. And, of course, as operating costs increase, less and less profit is left to put into the capital structure for a farm. This is the reason that we are seeking, in the first amendment in this bill, to increase the maximum loan to farmers of 35 years or under from $100,000 to $150,000.

Some people have suggested that we ought not to put an age limit on the increase in this maximum loan. Undoubtedly, there are people over 35 who could use additional credit. However, it is the feeling of the department, and I agree with them, that we must attract more young people into the farming business throughout Canada, and these young people find it much more difficult to raise capital than the farmer who has been farming for a few years and has built up some capital assets. If you were to make this provision available to groups of farmers regardless of their age, you would be defeating the efforts of the department to attract more young people into agriculture.

The second change comes about in Part II of the act, which is the part under which most of the loans are made. At the present time it is possible to lend up to only 75 per cent of the productive value of the borrower's real estate, and this bill will allow loans to be made for amounts up to 90 per cent of the productive value of the real estate. In some cases the market value of land is much higher than its productive value, and this disparity is increasing every year because of urban spread and other reasons. It seems that we have arrived at a point when there is need for a national land policy. The day is long past when we should have stopped taking some of our richest agricultural land to build urban communities on. I believe that a decision has to be made as to whether we are going to have three, four or five huge metropolitan communities in Canada, many of them located in areas centred in some of the best productive land in this country, or whether we are going to have a greater number of urban communities of lesser size spread out right across Canada in an effort to save some of that very valuable agricultural land.

● (1410)

In those areas where the mortgage value is much above the productive value, the amendments in this bill will make it possible to exceed even 90 per cent of the productive value in cases where a young farmer has demonstrated the ability to repay his loan and his interest commitments. In other words, if his farming record is such that the corporation is convinced he has the ability to repay the loan, then a loan could be made in excess of 90 per cent of the productivity value of the land.

The third change with respect to young farmers comes under Part IV of the act. At the present time the only young people who can get a loan from the Farm Credit Corporation are those whose principal occupation is farming or whose principal occupation will be farming once the loan has been granted. I can understand why in the past some people were of the opinion that a person should be wholly occupied in farming before a loan of the magnitude we are talking about could be granted. Yet, experience has proven to many of us that this has been a hindrance and detriment to many young people. A young married man with a family may be able to purchase a half section of land—and here I am speaking of Western Canada—but it can be very difficult for him to earn a living from that half section and at the same time repay his loan. Furthermore, in many instances a young person who has started out in farming with a limited amount of land and livestock is under-employed. So, the amendments to this act will make it possible to make loans to farmers of 35 years of age and under, and let them continue to hold another job. I cannot speak of other parts of Canada, but I know that in my own province of Saskatchewan it is perfectly feasible for a healthy young man to farm a half section of land and hold down another job as well. He can do his farming after 5 o'clock in the afternoon and before 8 o'clock in the morning, and on Saturdays and Sundays. He can take a week or 10 days off in the spring for seeding, and another week or 10 days off in the fall for harvesting. So, provision is made here to allow him to engage in full-time employment outside his farming activities and he will be given five years to become a full-time farmer. It is my experience that in that five-year period, if he is a good young farmer, he will probably be operating as much as a section and a half. I think this amendment is ideal to meet our needs in Western Canada, and I have no reason to believe that it will not also meet the needs in the rest of Canada. It will certainly meet those needs much better than they are being met today, when it is insisted that to get a loan an applicant must be a full-time farmer without outside activities or income.

Under Part IV of the Farm Credit Act, which is being added by this bill, a young farmer, as I mentioned, will be able to continue either full-time or, at least, part-time occupation other than farming and be eligible for a loan up to a maximum of $150,000. Bear in mind, however, that many young farmers starting at the bottom of the ladder will not be taking full advantage of the loan. I want to emphasize that no half sections of land will cost $150,000, and the equipment and livestock, together with the land, will not reach that figure. However, if a young person has been working in the labour market and has been able to accumulate enough capital to begin with a bigger unit, he will be able to borrow the maximum of $150,000 under this act and a further $50,000 under the Farm Improvement Loans Act. This will give him access to $200,000, guaranteed by the federal government.

I wish to repeat that there have been many requests to make these provisions available to people over 35. However, as I said, this would only continue the competition with which the young man cannot cope today. I agree with the department that the young man must be given additional help, an additional lift, so that he can compete with those who have been farming for five, 10 or 15 years and have been able to build up considerable assets.

Another point is that if these provisions were extended without an age limit, the amount of money provided under the bill would not be sufficient to meet the needs. To date the Farm Credit Corporation has had a capital limit of $66 million. This bill proposes to increase that to $100 million and, of course, the corporation can borrow 25 times its capital from the Department of Finance. The additional funds that are being made available will help to attract young people to the farming industry. We must induce more and more young people to farm, lowering the average age of the Canadian farmer, otherwise we will fast approach the day when there will not be enough people engaged in farming to meet our domestic needs, let alone our markets abroad.

To date, a person borrowing from the Farm Credit Corporation has had to give a first mortgage on his property. In many instances he may have started his farming career with a loan, we will say, at 5 per cent. Then he might have decided to expand his operations. He returned to the corporation for an additional loan, not having taken the maximum amount in the first instance. However, he found that the interest rate had increased to 8 or 9 per cent. Under the act he had to pay off his old loan at 5 per cent and negotiate a new loan at the new interest rate. This has seemed ridiculous.

● (1420)

There is a provision in the bill under which the Farm Credit Corporation will be able to take not only first mortgages, but second and third mortgages as well. So, any farmer who has a loan at a low rate of interest, whether from the corporation or private lending institutions, will not be penalized for attempting to expand. I believe this is an excellent provision and, so far as I am concerned, will meet the needs of many farmers throughout Canada.

The amount of capital being invested in agriculture today is extremely high. It has grown by leaps and bounds over the past 20 years. In 1951 about $9.5 billion was invested in agriculture. By 1971 that figure had grown to $23.7 billion.

The productivity of farmers has increased at a greater rate than any other activity in Canada or abroad. Our farmers are among the best, if not the best—if they are not the best, they are close to it—of any agricultural group in the world at increasing productivity. As a matter of fact, in the last 10 years, productivity in Canadian agriculture per man-hour has increased by 100 per cent, while in the same period productivity in industry and commerce has increased by 40 per cent. In other words, farmers are outgrowing the rest by two and a half times. This is a record worth supporting. It is a record we should be proud of and one that should encourage us to support legislation which will help those who have had a good record in the past—a record which I am confident will improve in the future.

The demand for agricultural products today is greater than the world has ever known, and there are more hungry people in the world today than the world has ever known. It seems to me that we in Canada make a dreadful mistake when we attempt to curtail production. The only reason for curtailing production is that we do not have the means of distribution and sale. The demand exists in the world. Many of those who need our food the most have the least capacity to pay for it. I believe we should be not only helping our farmers at home by passing legislation such as Bill C-34, but we should be making plans to help others in the world increase their productivity in agriculture.

I have had limited opportunity to visit other parts of the world, but in those that I have visited I was astounded by the inefficiencies I saw in agriculture. Throughout a great part of the world, agriculture is a disgrace. There are huge areas of land which can produce, if only the people who occupy them had the ability, the know-how and the technical knowledge of Canadian farmers. We should be making a greater effort to educate those people so that they are able to produce at home at least some of the foodstuffs they need for their everyday existence, rather than sending our produce abroad as a gift. In my view, we should be imparting technical knowledge and know-how to the underdeveloped countries of the world to enable them to produce for themselves.

I realize that I am getting away from the provisions of Bill C-34. The legislation before us will be of great help to Canadian farmers. It will assist the agricultural industry to produce in abundance, and perhaps at the lowest price anywhere in the world.

Our farmers are good farmers. They are productive, and they want to own their own land. Although some provincial governments seem to think it is the order of the times that they should own land, that is not my belief. I do not support any provincial policy aimed in the direction of state ownership of land.

[Senator McDonald.]

Our forefathers came to this country because they had the right and privilege to own land—a right and privilege not existing in many parts of the world today. Our productivity is so much greater than that of most countries of the world today because of the fact that the vast majority of Canadian farmers own the land, and want to continue owning it.

Senator Molson: May I ask the honourable sponsor of the bill a question? In his remarks he said that 90 per cent of the productive capacity is the basis for these loans. What is the accepted definition of "productive capacity"? Is that the gross value of the products of the farm?

Senator McDonald: If I may go back just a little, not too many years ago lending institutions, both governmental and private, based loans on how much the land was worth—in other words, the value of that land if it were put on the market. They refused to look at the ability of customer A vis-à-vis customer B to make money and repay his loan. There has been a move away from that concept. Today loans are made on the productive capacity of the land—in other words, what that land will return in dollars per acre.

Lending institutions today are looking at a section of land and deciding whether it will produce sufficient to allow the farmer to enjoy a decent standard of living and have enough left over to pay his principal and interest. That interpretation of "productive capacity" is being taken more and more today, not only by governments but by private lenders as well.

Senator Laird: May I ask the sponsor a supplementary question? Would that exclude, for example, wooded land and marshland? This becomes important in my region where, as you know, the value of land per acre is probably the highest in Canada. I note with interest that clause 10 of the bill speaks of "appraised value," not "productive value."

Senator McDonald: These are questions that can best be answered by officials of the department. If the bill receives second reading, it is my intention to move that it be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture.

I am aware of the problem you face. As well as having some of the most productive land in the world, you also have some bushland, some swamps, and so forth. I imagine the same principle applies in your region as applies in my part of the country. In other words, if you have a section of land of 640 acres, 500 acres of which is cultivated, the cultivated acreage will be assessed separately. The lender will look at the average return per acre over a period of, say, 10 years. If the average return was 40 bushels of wheat per acre over a 10-year period, the land would be assessed at a certain value; if the average return over that period was only 20 bushels per acre, it would be assessed at half that value.

A certain portion of your acreage will contain your farm buildings, and so on, and you may have a number of acres on which you run a small dairy or beef herd. That acreage will be assessed on the average number of pounds of beef produced per acre, or the average number of pounds of milk produced per acre. In other words, the assessment would be broken down according to land use, and the average return that could be expected from the use which is being made of that particular piece of land.

● (1430)

Senator Burchill: What about interest rates?

Senator McDonald: I cannot answer that. I do not know what interest rates are today.

Senator Argue: Eight per cent.

Senator McDonald: That is today's rate, is it?

Senator Argue: That is right. The repayment rate over 30 years is 9.2 per cent; that is the way it works out.

I should like to ask a question of the honourable sponsor. Would he say that one of the reasons for this welcome amendment is the fairly universal criticism voiced by farmers, that when a son wanted to start farming the Farm Credit Corporation, acting under the law, very often required the farmer to put up a good deal of his land, in addition to the land the son was buying, as security? In other words, the criticism has been that far too much security was required, and the father might almost have to forego his retirement because he would have to tie up his own land with his son's in order to enable the son to farm. Would Senator McDonald agree that this measure is a response to that criticism?

Senator McDonald: This is exactly the case. For instance, if a young farmer wanted to buy a half-section of the land, in many instances the Farm Credit Corporation wanted a mortgage on more than that half-section; it wanted a mortgage on the father's half-section. If the borrower did not have a father the corporation wanted a mortgage on a neighbour's half-section. If he happened to come from the city and wanted to move to the land to begin farming, I don't know who he would get to sign the note. This was a fact of life.

Today, there are people who want to farm, and who are moving from urban areas to the country to do so. Under the present act it is virtually impossible for them to do that unless their bank manager friend on Bay Street in Toronto will sign a note. The corporation will now say, "If you can show us that you can farm and make money, we will lend you the money you need without all this collateral." I think this is a step in the right direction.

I believe that over the last number of years the financing of most activities has generally moved in that direction. It is my understanding that today, when considering loan applications, they look at the record of the individual asking for the loan and decide whether he can repay it. They do not consider how much the applicant has got in the bank, how much his father owns, or whether a neighbour will repay if he does not. The Farm Credit Corporation is moving in that direction, and I think this is long past due.

On motion of Senator Macdonald, debate adjourned.

INDUSTRY

CANADIAN TEXTILE PROBLEMS—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from yesterday the debate on the inquiry of Senator Desruisseaux, calling the attention of the Senate to Canadian textile problems.

[Translation]

Hon. Jean-Paul Deschatelets: Honourable senators, I moved the adjournment of the debate last night when Senator Desruisseaux finished his speech, because I thought I would be making my comments next week after having been able to consult various documents relating to this important matter. However, it so happens that I must make them today; I was advised only an hour ago and that will surely be to your disadvantage in the sense that next week I would have made a better prepared presentation. On the other hand, you will benefit because I shall be much briefer today than I would have been next week.

Last night, Senator Desruisseaux talked about a problem which is far from being new and which has always been very complex, but he talked about it in a way that I thought remarkable, and his speech can be summarized by saying that yesterday he sounded the alarm concerning the textile industry. I believe that what Senator Desruisseaux said about the textile industry also applies to the whole secondary industry which is concentrated mostly in Quebec and in some parts of Ontario, as well as in the Maritime provinces.

What is the textile industry asking today? I believe that it would like to see, at least in some areas, measures to restrict importation which would include quotas, higher rates and import surtaxes.

I must say that in general the textile industry has always held a reasonable position. It understands that Canada must export for the general good of Canadians and, as far as I can recall from my discussions with certain manufacturers, the textile manufacturers are prepared to bear a part of the burden of importation, but they would not like to bear all of it. I would like to use an example to explain the complexity of this matter.

About three years ago, we received a delegation from the U.S.S.R. which came to Canada with the admitted objective of finding markets, and their position was very simple. This is what they told us: We buy wheat in Canada for considerable amounts. Our trade balance with your country is unfavourable. This concealed the threat that Russia could purchase wheat from other countries than Canada, and perhaps at lower prices than in Canada. This is why they said that we must compensate for the wheat they purchase in Canada by opening up sectors of our Canadian market.

This shows the difficulties which the government must face because it must see to the best interests of Canada. Canada must export and we must therefore in many cases accept imports at rates with which we cannot compete.

● (1440)

However, I understand from what Senator Desruisseaux said that over 200,000 people are employed in the textile industry, particularly in the Eastern Townships, but the same might be true, to a lesser extent, of Cornwall. But the fact is that over 25 per cent of workers in that industry are currently unemployed.

I will not go back on any of the points raised by Senator Desruisseaux. His speech was very clear, and he spoke as a man with a perfect understanding of the problem, far better than I myself might have. Still, to elaborate on his remarks, I would like to deal with two aspects of that matter, which follow from the suggestion of Senator Desruisseaux that the textile industry, which now has a number of grievances to voice, should be provided with an opportunity to submit them to a special Senate committee or sub-committee.

Before dealing with that aspect, may I mention here some of the efforts carried out particularly by the former minister, the Honourable Jean-Luc Pepin who, you will remember, was very famous as a minister not only in Canada but also abroad. He was the member for a riding in the Eastern Townships which was severely affected by that problem, and in fact I think the only plausible explanation of the electoral defeat of Jean-Luc Pepin lies precisely with that matter of unemployment arising from the textile industry's problems.

Therefore, on May 14, 1970—and I advise honourable senators who would like to get more information on the present problem, which remains extremely serious, to refer to the House of Commons Hansard for May 14, 1970, page 6952—the minister tabled a document in the House of Commons introducing a new government policy aimed at keeping the textile industry viable.

After this document was tabled, a bill was introduced in the House of Commons on January 21, 1971, and later passed by both Houses of Parliament. Bill C-215 brought entirely new measures to help the textile industry, among others the establishment of a textile commission. This was something new in the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, a commission composed of experts in the field of textiles. Its function was to advise the minister on and recommend various measures to promote a healthier textile industry.

It must be emphasized at this point, honourable senators, that this commission's function was not to make decisions. Decision making remains at the policy level, ministerial and governmental. But the commission should make suggestions. I quote from Hansard, page 2651, these remarks by Mr. Pepin:

Hon. members will recall that this policy includes a whole range of measures dealing with the industrial, social and commercial aspects, with financial assistance, promotion on the domestic and international markets, technical assistance, and many other provisions.

Mr. Pepin went on to say:

Officials of my department have re-negotiated and come to an agreement on the voluntary restraints applied by Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Singapore, Mexico and Greece. New arrangements have been concluded with Romania, Poland, Trinidad, Tobago and Macao. Arrangements have also been made with the People's Republic of China and Taiwan.

Later on in his remarks, Mr. Pepin added that these quotas, these agreements negotiated with various countries would bring results, and that if the results came short of expectations, he would not hesitate to impose unilateral restrictions.

This being said, may I come back to the suggestion by Senator Desruisseaux. What does he say? We have here a regional industry employing a considerable amount of labour, now strangled by an influx of dumped goods from industrialized countries, underdeveloped countries or iron curtain countries. A commission was set up four years ago to advise the government on the textile issue. We can ask ourselves today: What are the advantages of such a commission? What has been its role? What steps did it suggest to the government?

[Senator Deschatelets.]

It would be, I imagine, an opportunity for the Senate to obtain that information, because in 1971 we passed a bill authorizing the establishment of such a textile commission and I think that it could be quite interesting to hear it.

I feel that the primary role of the Senate is to consider the legislation coming from the House of Commons, but we can play an additional role and this is why I will conclude with the following comments: I endorse the suggestion made by Senator Desruisseaux that we should give the textile industry an opportunity to come before a special committee of the Senate to voice not only its grievances, but also to make recommendations which it now deems essential to prevent that industry from sinking any deeper. However, I would do so, subject to a few conditions, and I draw this to the attention of the Deputy Leader of the Senate, Senator Langlois.

Two or three years ago television artists in Montreal complained of unfair competition in television commercials. I think we decided at that time to set up an ad hoc committee. I like that kind of committee, and I hope one day that such will be the approach.

That committee chaired by the Honourable Senator Bourget held three or four meetings as I understand, to allow those artists to come and submit their grievances to it. They were given the floor, and much more than that, because CBC authorities were invited to come and comment on the grievances submitted by that Montreal Association; I think there were very good results.

Senator Bourget: So was the CRTC, on the suggestion of Senator Buckwold.

Senator Deschatelets: That is correct. It was excellent because the work was efficient, because it was not too elaborate; a few sittings did the job. As regards textiles, I think that if we invited the Textile Manufacturers Association, their delegates would come down one afternoon to submit their grievances and make recommendations. Then we could ask the textile commission, set up in 1971 precisely to help this industry, for its suggestions.

After that, we might have a meeting with the appropriate unions and possibly also with the minister involved. I think that nobody expects those special committees to accomplish a miracle. The solution is a political one, at the governmental level, but we still can give a platform and submit, as they are, the representations which have just been made. I believe that such an endeavour by the Senate could be remarkably efficient.

Honourable senators, I will end my remarks here; they are somehow desultory because I have not had time to prepare them. However, I think that we—at least the senators of Quebec and those who are concerned by this problem—do have a certain responsibility to see whether, before the end of these discussions, we might give Senator Desruisseaux a chance to submit a formal motion of this kind. I would be very glad to support it.

● (1450)

[English]

On motion of Senator Asselin, debate adjourned.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, before I move the adjournment I would remind you that the National Finance Committee will meet in room 356-S when the Senate rises, and that the sub-committee on internal economy will also meet at the same time.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Thursday, April 17, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

REGULATIONS AND OTHER STATUTORY INSTRUMENTS

NEWSPAPER ARTICLE—QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE

Senator Laird: Honourable senators, I rise on a question of privilege having to do with an article in today's Toronto Globe and Mail headlined, "Parliament committee's red tape prompts resignation of Forsey."

I am pleased to report that when this article came to the attention of Senator Forsey late this morning, he was good enough to come to see me concerning it. I should now like to set the matter straight so that there will be no possible question in anyone's mind of what the true situation is. First, let me make it plain that Senator Forsey had nothing whatsoever to do with this article. In fact, he refused to be interviewed by the writer from the Globe and Mail. Second, I am pleased, in view of the tremendous contribution Senator Forsey has made to this chamber, to report that he has assured us he will continue as Joint Chairman of the Standing Joint Committee on Regulations and Other Statutory Instruments.

Having in mind what appears in this article, particularly with reference to the use of the expression "red tape," perhaps it would be appropriate if I explained, in few words, that in the normal sense no red tape was involved whatsoever. As the article states, the present arrangement is that the expenses for the Standing Joint Committee on Regulations and Other Statutory Instruments will be borne one-third by the Senate and two-thirds by the House of Commons; but the original arrangement, which made sense and was arrived at on an ad hoc basis, was that the House of Commons would bear the expense of the printing—which, as you know, is extensive—and the Senate would bear all other expenses, including salaries.

Unfortunately, the matter of salaries, and their magnitude, was not foreseen, because do not forget that this new joint committee is in a very different category from any other committee that I know of, offhand, in that, really, it is a permanent committee. What happened was that, in line with the agreement that was made, a budget was submitted to the Standing Senate Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration. This budget included salaries in amounts which naturally gave us pause, because they were considerable. For that reason it was not possible for us to give carte blanche and say, "This is fine." The Internal Economy Committee is designed to make sure that every cent spent by the Senate is spent in a proper fashion. That is exactly what we were doing.

Along this line, one of the non-Senate employees working for the committee wanted an arrangement whereby he would be hired on a yearly, contractual basis. In no way, of course, has the Internal Economy Committee, or the Senate, the power to approve of any expenditure beyond a session. That is the best we can do. We do this based upon a budget which is scrutinized carefully by a subcommittee on budgets, and believe me, its members are a hard-boiled bunch. If I named them you would appreciate what I mean. I am looking at some across the way now—Senator Flynn, Senator Grosart, and Senator Molson. These items are scrutinized very carefully by the subcommittee on budgets, and afterwards, of course, must be passed by the whole committee. Obviously, therefore, when we are doing exactly what we are empowered to do, and restricted to, by the rules, we are able to approve a budget, which I may say has been done, carrying this committee on until the end of September. Beyond that we cannot go. This created a problem, and those of you who read this article in the Globe and Mail this morning will not, of course, find the exact facts stated in that connection.

So, I was most anxious that all honourable senators should understand clearly what the procedural matters involved require to be done. Frankly, I cannot think of any other way that we can keep expenditures within reason. We are not here to spend money like water; we are here to make sure we do not spend money like water. In any event, there you have the "red tape" so-called in the headline of this article.

The permanent solution to the situation of this committee may very well be as we have in fact suggested to them. First of all, let me point out that the Committee on Regulations and other Statutory Instruments is really different in the sense that it does have to be a permanent committee. That in itself makes it entirely different from our ordinary standing committees. Because of that, the probability is that in due course, and perhaps the sooner the better, a special act of Parliament will be passed to set up a permanent commission, as was done in the case of the divorce committee. In the meantime I want to emphasize that in no way did Senator Forsey have anything to do with this article in the Globe and Mail, and furthermore he is definitely going to carry on as joint chairman of that committee.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, we are all grateful for the explanation given by Senator Laird. May I say that we have been unable to determine at this point where all of the information for this article was obtained by the by-lined author Mr. Hugh Winsor. However, Mr. Winsor contacted me yesterday afternoon and I suggested to him that he should speak to the chairman of our Internal Economy Committee, Senator Laird, before writing his article. Apparently he was not able to do so. In any case, he has not allowed the facts to stand in his way, and the story has appeared without our chairman being consulted.

Senator Flynn: I just want to add, honourable senators, that I was speaking a few minutes ago to Mr. Bob McCleave, the joint chairman from the House of Commons, and he confirmed Senator Laird's statement that Senator Forsey did not intend to resign, nor does he intend to resign, and that he was satisfied with the way things were proceeding.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Guay (St. Boniface) has been substituted for that of Mr. Gray on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

NORTHERN CANADA POWER COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-13, to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act.

Bill read first time.

Senator Perrault moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Tuesday next.

Motion agreed to.

● (1410)

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Copies of financial statement on the operation and maintenance of the Great Slave Lake Railway for the year ended December 31, 1974, together with a statement showing the net capital investment as at December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 9, Chapter 56, Statutes of Canada, 1960-61.

INTERNAL ECONOMY

COMMITTEE ON NATIONAL FINANCE—SUPPLEMENTARY BUDGET TABLED

Senator Laird, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, tabled the committee's report approving the supplementary budget presented to it by the Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance for the proposed expenditures of the said committee with regard to its examination and consideration of such legislation and other matters as may be referred to it, authorized by the Senate on December 5, 1974.

COMMITTEE ON LEGAL AND CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS—BUDGET TABLED

Senator Laird, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, tabled the committee's report approving the budget presented to it by the Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs authorizing the said committee to incur special expenses for the payment of fees and travelling expenses of expert witnesses in connection with its examination of the Bill S-19, intituled: "An Act to amend the Food and Drugs Act, the Narcotic Control Act and the Criminal Code," as authorized by the Senate on February 13, 1975.

COMMITTEE ON SCIENCE POLICY—SUPPLEMENTARY BUDGET TABLED

Senator Laird, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, tabled the committee's report approving the supplementary budget presented to it by the Chairman of the Special Senate Committee on Science Policy for the proposed expenditures of the said committee respecting the holding of a special meeting to determine the feasibility of establishing a Commission on the Future as authorized by the Senate on November 21, 1974.

COMMITTEE ON REGULATIONS AND OTHER STATUTORY INSTRUMENTS—SUPPLEMENTARY BUDGET TABLED

Senator Laird, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, tabled the committee's report approving the supplementary budget presented to it by the Joint Chairman of the Standing Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Commons on Regulations and other Statutory Instruments for the proposed expenditures of the said committee with respect to its review and scrutiny of statutory instruments pursuant to the report adopted by the Senate on October 29, 1974.

RAILWAY ACT

BILL TO AMEND—REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Senator Haig, Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-48, to amend the Railway Act, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Cook moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

NATIONAL FINANCE

COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED TO MEET DURING SITTING OF THE SENATE

Senator Langlois, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(a), moved:

That the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance have power to sit while the Senate is sitting on Wednesday next, April 23, 1975, and that rule 76(4) be suspended in relation thereto.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, you have heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Motion agreed to.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Senator Langlois: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Tuesday, April 22, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Honourable senators, before the question is put I would like to remind you that on Tuesday morning there will be a reception in the Railway Committee Room in honour of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. It therefore at first seemed reasonable for the Senate to sit Tuesday afternoon rather than wait until the evening, as is usual. However, after consultation with the Leader of the Opposition and other senators, it was decided to sit in the evening because two committees will sit in the afternoon.

I should like to give you a brief outline of the work schedule for next week, and I will first deal with the committees.

On Tuesday, the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy will sit at 9.30 a.m. and the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service will sit at 11 a.m. This might have to be changed or cancelled because of the reception. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs will hear a witness in connection with Bill S-19. This morning Senator Molson made arrangements for the Rules Committee to sit on Tuesday and it will meet at 5.30 p.m.

On Wednesday, the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce will meet at 9.30 a.m. to continue its study of competition in Canada. At 3.30 p.m. there will be a meeting of the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance, to deal with the Manpower Division of the Department of Manpower and Immigration. The Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy will meet also at that hour.

On Thursday, the National Finance Committee will meet at 9.30 a.m. At 10 a.m. the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture will consider Bill C-34, an act to amend the Farm Credit Act, should the bill be referred to it, and at 10.30 a.m. the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs will continue its inquiry into Canadian relations with the United States. In the afternoon, the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service will meet at 3.30 p.m., and on Thursday evening at 8 p.m. there will be a meeting of the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

On Tuesday, the Senate will proceed to second reading of Bill C-13, to amend the Northern Power Commission Act, and continue with items now on the Order Paper. Bill C-19, on two-price wheat, should reach us before we meet Tuesday next, and we also expect to have Bill C-44 some time next week.

Having outlined this heavy work schedule, I have to inform the house that I shall be away from Ottawa the next two weeks on an official visit to Italy.

[Senator Langlois.]

Senator Flynn: You will have to work twice as hard.
Motion agreed to.

NATIONAL FINANCE

PROPOSED REFERRAL TO COMMITTEE OF REPORT ON OFFICE OF AUDITOR GENERAL OF CANADA—QUESTION

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, may I ask the Leader of the Government if he has considered the idea of referring to the National Finance Committee the report of the Independent Review Committee on the Office of the Auditor General of Canada?

Senator Perrault: I want to assure the Leader of the Opposition that the condition of national finances and efforts to save Canadian taxpayers as many dollars as possible remain as important considerations in the minds of the members of the government at all times. His suggestion will be considered.

Senator Flynn: Very reassuring.

FARM CREDIT ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from yesterday the debate on the motion of Senator McDonald for second reading of Bill C-34, to amend the Farm Credit Act.

Hon. John M. Macdonald: Honourable senators, before making a few remarks on this bill, perhaps I should mention, in case some senators may not be aware of it, that I do not have an agricultural background. Any remarks I make about farm credit will not be the result of any practical experience or knowledge of it, but merely the observations of a sympathetic observer of the farming industry. I can say that I have nothing but admiration, respect and good will towards those engaged in agriculture. I do not envy them. I admire their knowledge, ability, fortitude and perseverance. I am pleased to support this bill and hope it will accomplish its objectives.

● (1420)

As I understand it, the Farm Credit Act was first set up to make loans to farmers who could not obtain them elsewhere. That was, and is, its first priority, and that condition must be satisfied, as I understand it, before loans will be made to farmers. That being so, there must have been a need.

As was mentioned by Senator McDonald, about 120,000 loans, amounting in total to almost $2.75 billion, have been made to farmers since the act was first passed about 15 years ago. I have not worked out the average loan, but it cannot be too high. Indeed, I am left wondering whether the loan policy followed was sufficiently generous. I am left in even more doubt as to the policy followed when I see that the loss caused by non-repayment was very small. The sponsor of the bill mentioned this and he, too, did not regard it as praiseworthy. It caused him to wonder, as I do, whether the objectives of the act are being carried out, or whether too strict a lending policy has been followed. In light of the loan-loss ratio, I am concerned that perhaps too many applications were turned down, or that the lending policy followed was too strict with not enough risks being taken.

When I see a loss of only about 4 cents on every $100 loaned, I am left with the conclusion that some worthy farmers, who could not get loans elsewhere, were unable to obtain loans under the Farm Credit Act. Perhaps I am wrong in making that assumption. I hope I am. In any event, I trust that the true intent and objectives of these amendments will be carried out in a beneficial and generous manner. It is important that a liberal interpretation be given to the clauses of this bill.

Of the five amendments proposed, three relate to assisting young people in getting started in farming or in returning to farming. It may well be, of course, that some of us are of the opinion that the definition of "young people" is a little too narrow. After all, 36 is not so old; yet, the cutoff age is 35. Surely, it could be raised to at least 40. Men and women between the ages of 35 and 40 have an excellent chance of making a success of farming, if that is what they want and are qualified to do.

A great deal of discretion will be given to the lending authority. The ability and character of the applicant is to be taken into consideration as security for a loan, in addition to any other security which may be offered. That is a good thing. I should be helpful if properly administered, and will be of great benefit to young people on farms in addition to attracting back to farming those in the 25 to 35 age group who left to take up some other occupation. I hope this will work. We must remember, however, that for many years the trend for young people has been to leave farming, to work in industry or to enter the professions.

The financial obligation contemplated by this bill will be a great responsibility for a young person to assume. It is a responsibility which the young person must wish to assume. Under the act, an applicant could—at least, in theory—borrow $150,000 and a further $50,000 under another act. The interest alone would be a very heavy obligation. However, I expect that there will be few applications from young farmers for the maximum amount in their first borrowings.

I should like to hear more about the land that is available for these young people. Is it land already under production being sold by older persons who wish to retire or leave farming, or is it new land, as it were, not now in production? In other words, where is the young farmer to get his land? It is interesting to note that the total amount of farm land in Canada remains relatively stable, although there are wide variations from region to region. I notice that a recent study states that the total area of farm land in Canada increased substantially between 1921 and 1951, from about 141 million acres to about 174 million acres. It then declined slightly from 1951 to 1971 to about 170 million acres. However, the average of improved farm land has continued to increase.

While there has been relative stability in the total amount of farm land, there have been marked changes in its location. There has been an expansion of acreage in the western provinces and a contraction in the other provinces, so I expect that many of the anticipated applications for loans under this bill will come from the western provinces.

I have not seen any figures showing the number of loans granted under the present act in each of the provinces. I do not believe there are many in the eastern provinces, and I personally doubt if efforts made under the provisions of this bill, and by other means that are being followed and used, will induce many young people in Nova Scotia to return to the farm. I may be wrong about this, and I hope I am. There are other senators here from Nova Scotia who have a better knowledge of this than I have. I do know that farmers in my region have worked hard for very small returns over many years, and I doubt if their sons are prepared to follow the same kind of life. However, I am not at this time speaking particularly of agriculture in Nova Scotia.

For those who know more about it, I would recommend that they read the proceedings of the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture of December 3, 1974. They will find an interesting and informative discussion of farming in Nova Scotia by farmers and other knowledgeable people from that province. I may add that this hearing was arranged by Senator Norrie.

I do not wish to make any detailed references to various clauses of the bill. The sponsor, who is well qualified to do so, gave a very comprehensive explanation of it. It is a good bill and merits support. I only hope and trust that those who will have the responsibility for carrying out its terms will interpret their mandate in a broad and generous manner, and that they will put more trust in the character and ability of the applicant for a loan than in other security he may offer. I hope they will not be afraid to take risks, and that in doubtful cases they will give the applicant the benefit of the doubt. By so doing, I think they will have carried out the intention of Parliament in proposing these amendments.

On motion of Senator Michaud, debate adjourned.

CULTURAL PROPERTY EXPORT AND IMPORT BILL

SECOND READING—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed on Wednesday, April 9, the debate on the motion of Senator Lamontagne for second reading of Bill C-33, respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states.

Hon. Douglas D. Everett: Honourable senators, I would first like to congratulate the sponsor of the bill, Senator Lamontagne, for his detailed and concise explanation of it. I would also like to apologize to him for the delay in carrying on with the debate. All I can say is that his explanation was so complete and so concise that it took a little time to fashion the kind of criticism I thought the bill deserved.

• (1430)

In order to criticize the bill, honourable senators, I will have to examine once again with you the operation of the act. I will try to do that as briefly as possible.

The Cultural Property Export and Import Act empowers the Governor in Council to establish a control list of items which will preserve Canada's national heritage. The items that are to be included in the control list are: archaeological and other items of any value; ethnographical objects of a fair market value in Canada of over $500; decorative art made in Canada and over 100 years old, which, in the case of glassware, ceramics and textiles, et cetera, is over a value of $500, and other items of decorative art over a value of $2,000; collections of archival material with a Canadian fair market value of over $1,000 for the entire collection; drawings, engravings, original prints and water colours with a Canadian fair market value of over $1,000; and any other objects with a Canadian fair market value of over $3,000.

The act does permit general exclusions from its operation; it excludes all objects less than 50 years old and any items made by a natural person who is still living. The act covers additionally, though, all cultural objects imported into Canada during the previous 35 years.

How do you go about exporting a cultural property under the terms of the act? First of all, you take your property to the customs office. If it is not on the control list or is among the exclusions I just mentioned, then an export permit issues; otherwise, the matter is referred by the customs officer to an expert examiner. The expert examiner determines if the object is of outstanding significance and is of such national importance that its loss would significantly diminish Canada's national heritage. If the expert determines that this is so, then no export permit issues.

The applicant may, within 30 days, appeal to the Canadian Cultural Property Export Review Board, which is to be established. The board employs the same determining criteria as the expert examiner. If the board decides that objects come within the criteria, the board may delay the issue of the export permit for from two to six months, provided it is of the opinion that a fair offer may be made for the object by an institution or public authority. The minister at that time notifies all institutions and public authorities of the fact that the particular cultural object is available. If an institution or public authority makes an offer, but the offer is not accepted by the owner, the board may then be called upon to set what is called a "fair cash offer price." If the institution or public authority makes an offer equal to the fair cash offer price, but the owner does not accept that, then no export permit is granted.

It appears that in this case two years must elapse before the owner may make another application, and it is rather doubtful whether at that stage he would be able to obtain an export permit.

There does not appear to be in the act any criterion for the definition of "fair cash offer," other than the fact that it mentions in the control list that it will be based on Canadian fair market value. Thus, the fair cash offer determined by the review board, around which the whole process turns, will be that fair market value which would exist in Canada, but not in the rest of the world.

I now raise the question whether this legislation is in Canada's best interests. Our indigenous cultural property is not in heavy demand in the rest of the world. Let me underscore the word "heavy." It is true that there are many countries in Europe which have this sort of act, but those countries are in a different position because they have built up a store of cultural property over many centuries. That store of cultural property is in demand all over the world. Interestingly enough, great portions of the cultural properties to be found in European countries are not indigenous to them but were imported. Much of the treasure to be found in the United Kingdom was imported into the United Kingdom.

It seems to me that Canada's first objective should be to build up its store of cultural property from other countries. In my opinion it is totally insular to say that we are going to Canadianize our cultural heritage. Surely, there are objects of great interest and value to the Canadian heritage—as there are to the British heritage and to the French heritage—which are not indigenous.

Senator Lamontagne: The bill does not prevent the importation of outstanding objects from abroad.

Senator Everett: No. You are quite right. The bill does not prevent the importation of such objects, but perhaps I can point out to you what the bill does do.

Senator Grosart: The bill encourages it.

Senator Everett: I say that the bill may well have the reverse effect. Indeed, I think it will have the opposite effect, because the bill says that if you import cultural objects and those objects remain in Canada for 35 years they then become part of the cultural heritage of Canada and are subject to the terms of the act.

I suggest to you that people who would ordinarily import such objects might well take one of two courses: they might decide not to import objects, in order to prevent their coming under the control of the act; alternatively, they might import the objects, but, within the 35 years, decide to let them flow out of the country before the act could take effect. I would not go so far as to suggest that that is a probability, because I do not know, but I would suggest that it is a real possibility.

It seems to me that we should not have such a rule in relation to imported cultural objects. We should allow them to come in; we should not in any way restrict their going out. I say this because I believe that if we do restrict their going out then we will cut down on the number of objects that come in.

In that regard it is significant that the United States does not have any legislation of this sort; in fact, I will go further to say that in general terms the best Canadian stance is not one which would have legislation restricting the movement of trade and commerce throughout the world; if anything, the stance of Canada should be one of free movement, not of restricted movement. That would be in our own best interests.

Admittedly, there is some justification for the control of our indigenous national heritage; but what should be controlled and how far should we go in that direction?

● (1440)

I would like to refer to statements by the Secretary of State which I think give us some idea of what he had in mind—in principle, if not in the actual effect of the act.

First of all, the Secretary of State referred to the Waverley report as the basis of the act in the United Kingdom, and we have based our act largely on the British act. The Waverley report said, "Export control should be confined to limited categories of objects of high importance." In respect of this report the minister said, "These are recommendations which we believe should inspire a Canadian system of control."

The minister, in another statement, said:

After examining export control systems in force abroad, we concluded that all of them have some inherent defects which become greater as the number of objects it is sought to control increases.

Again, the minister said:

The system I am proposing, therefore, is the control of objects which are in the national treasure category. We want to catch things that should be controlled without making the net so tight that we catch too much, and the system becomes oppressive, or unworkable, or both.

He also said:

Its operation will only affect objects considered to be of a high degree of national importance, and so it could not seriously interfere with normal trade, nor infringe unduly upon personal rights.

And:

The application of broad criteria of age and value offers the simplest and most efficient way to apply control. Age is a factor that helps to establish rarity; value, on the other hand, helps to establish quality.

So it is clear from the minister's statements that what we wish to control are cultural properties of rarity and quality, of outstanding significance, and of such importance that their loss significantly diminishes Canada's national heritage.

Since we have modelled our act on the British act, let us compare ours with theirs. In the area of works of art and antiques, which was the only area that I was able to get information on but which is one of the main areas covered by this bill, the United Kingdom excludes all items less than a hundred years old. Canada, other than in the case of decorative art, excludes all items under 50 years old. In the realm of values, the United Kingdom excludes all items under two thousand pounds—that is roughly $5,000. In Canada the act excludes decorative art between $500 and $2,000 in value, drawings and water colours under $1,000, and other objects under $3,000. In the United Kingdom, imported objects less than 50 years in the country are excluded, whereas in Canada it is 35 years.

So it is clear that the Canadian act is much more restrictive than the British act. When the minister's statements are considered there appears to be no justification for being more restrictive than the United Kingdom; indeed, if anything, I believe that we should be considerably more liberal.

What, then, is the theory behind the control list and its value limits? It appears to be this: Make the limits restrictive; we can always relax them. In fact, what should be said is, "Make the limits as high as we possibly can, and if we find that we are not properly controlling the outflow of Canadian cultural property, we can then come back to Parliament and lower those limits." I think that is an important distinction that does not detract one bit from the very worthwhile purpose of this act.

When we consider not only the low value limits, but take into consideration the type of control that has to be applied, we see that we will have an extremely large bureaucracy, consisting of permit officers, expert examiners, a cultural property review board, as well as a staff to support that board. If you think that is going to be small, listen to what the minister said about one of those elements, namely, the expert examiners:

The customs officer will have a list of these institutions, and in some cases the names of individual expert examiners not connected with them. From the description of the object in the application form the customs officer will be guided as to which institution or individual he should approach to get professional advice.

I suggest that this bill is going to precipitate us into a large, and largely unnecessary, bureaucracy. Export licences are going to be required on a vast number of objects that do not fit into the minister's description. There is also the possibility of a considerable amount of delay on objects for which, eventually, a licence will be issued, because the values are too low and the act is too restrictive.

I am, therefore, opposed to this act on very practical grounds, but I am also opposed to it on one other general ground, namely, this tendency to control. Many actions that we have to take in government are worthwhile because they are in the best interests of the public, and this act has an element in it that is in the best interests of the Canadian public. However, it used to be that we carefully balanced the rights of the individual with the rights of the community, whereas nowadays the good of the community is the overriding consideration. Very often little concern is shown for individual rights in the enactment of legislation. I am old-fashioned enough to believe—I guess I would call myself an O'Leary liberal—that individual rights and the preservation of them are of high importance, and that, in fact, the rule should be: do not infringe on those rights unless you absolutely have to.

I can understand that it is possible to be indifferent to legislation where it does not concern you, but only a very few people, as this legislation does. I happen to be in that position. The legislation does not affect me. The danger, however, of taking that position is that you are allowing legislation that increases bureaucratic control. This creeps forward, and eventually there will be legislation that does affect you. There is nothing new in this statement I am going to make now, but there is nothing wrong with saying it over and over again, namely: It is possible, in fact, it is the most efficient way to legislate your freedom away.

I am of the opinion that if the Senate, in its reform, wanted to do something that was really worthwhile, it would cut out for itself publicly that area of individual rights, and say, "If we exist for nothing else, we exist for the protection of individual rights. The fact that legislation coming to us, either directly from the government or from the other place, benefits the community is fine, but the Senate's function is to protect individual rights, and to pass only that legislation which preserves a balance between those two considerations."

Therefore, I am of the opinion that this legislation, while dealing with a narrow part of society and affecting a restricted number of people, is nevertheless just as important as any other incursion into the freedom of the individual. I think the Senate should stand on this legislation and say, "No. You must increase these limits to a reasonable amount, because you are interfering with the rights of the citizen more than you have to, and more than is necessary for the government of this country."

On motion of Senator Langlois, debate adjourned.

● (1450)

NATIONAL DEFENCE ACT AND CRIMINAL CODE (TOTAL ABOLITION OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT)

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Hazen Argue moved the second reading of Bill S-23, to amend the National Defence Act and the Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment).

He said: Honourable senators, I am pleased to move second reading of this bill which stands in my name, the explanatory note of which reads:

The sole purpose of this bill is to amend the sections of the National Defence Act and the Criminal Code so as to remove all references to capital punishment.

The bill would thus remove the death penalty for treason, murder, piracy, mutiny and various military offences.

Canada, in step with progressive nations around the world, has over the years been moving towards the total abolition of capital punishment. However, we find ourselves in a most difficult position today, in my view, because capital punishment has been abolished except for the murder of policemen and prison guards. So there is not quite total abolition. The government, and many people in this country, are on the side of total abolition, and the Cabinet has the right, the authority and, indeed, the duty to consider commutation, and this it has done and continues to do. Following upon the consideration of each individual case on its own merits, in the years during which this law has been in effect no person has been hanged in this country. But when there have been murders of policemen there have been, understandably, outcries that the person found guilty should in fact be executed.

I make no apology for moving this measure at this time, believing, as I do, that we should go all the way. Some senators, whose integrity I respect, have supported a measure designed—whether it would accomplish its design or not is certainly debatable—to prevent the Cabinet from using its power to commute death sentences. They—and, as I say, I respect their sincerity tremendously—have taken a different position. I am doing what I am in the hope of adding some weight, some additional argument, to arguments already advanced by those in favour of total abolition.

Honourable senators, we find ourselves in a very difficult position in this country time after time—and this arises from the fact that we have not gone all the way—when the question of whether somebody, some particular person, will in fact be executed is before the Cabinet, and in the minds of the people. As is well known, we are in such a situation at this time, in that a man named René Vaillancourt has been convicted of murdering a Toronto policeman named Maitland some years ago and, unless action is taken to prevent it, he will be hanged. His execution is scheduled for May 13.

The Solicitor General has made his position quite clear, that he is opposed to capital punishment. The record of the government, I think, is clear in that it has taken a stance in opposition to capital punishment. I express here and now the hope that the Cabinet will commute this particular sentence, and that this man will not be executed.

I was pleased to read in the press that former Supreme Court Justice Emmett Hall led a delegation to present a submission to Justice Minister Otto Lang and Solicitor General Warren Allmand asking that the death penalty be totally abolished. The delegation, which was assembled by the Canadian Civil Liberties Association, included Anglican, United Church, Presbyterian, Catholic and Jewish representatives, executives of the Canadian Labour Congress, the United Auto Workers, the United Steel Workers of America, prominent broadcasters and authors—a very distinguished delegation to make this representation to the Cabinet.

I oppose capital punishment, honourable senators, on exactly the same grounds as others oppose it. I feel that the state really should not have the right, and morally does not have the right, to take a life; that in consequence of one murder, it does not help in any way to deter future murders—as I think statistics show—to have an additional murder by the state of somebody who has been found guilty. As I read the evidence, it appears that the continuation of capital punishment, or the restoration of capital punishment, wherever that may have taken place, if anything leads to an increase in the murder rate. Violence breeds violence, and violence by the state will breed further violence. By looking at those countries in the world where there is violence, I think we can see quite clearly that that kind of thing feeds on itself.

As to the effectiveness of capital punishment as a deterrent, I read that many years ago when people in Britain could be executed for many crimes, pickpocketing being among them, that a chaplain, whose duty was to give sympathy and encouragement to those facing execution, said that of 167 persons that he had contact with, and who faced execution because of the crime of pickpocketing, 164 had picked pockets among the crowds witnessing public executions. So the deterrent was there for them to see, but it did not deter them. It did not deter them from murder, because that was not the crime. It did not deter them from picking pockets.

● (1500)

I think the statistics show that there is no deterrent in capital punishment. Most murders are not premeditated, not committed in cold blood, to use that expression, but arise from quarrels, usually between people who have been friends or members of the same family, caused by the use of alcohol or drugs, and the availability of firearms. Of course, there are instances in which homicide has resulted from mental or emotional instability and derangement.

We have had now for a number of years no hangings, no executions, in Canada. Those who want executions say that policemen must be protected; that to carry out an execution would in fact be a protection for the police. Well, statistics show that over the period of time when no executions have taken place in our country, the annual rate of killing of policemen has varied between two and six. There is no statistical indication that the number of slayings of policemen has increased any more than the general increase in violent crimes. There has been some general increase in crimes of violence, but the rate of murders of policeman in Canada has remained similar. Statistics, in fact, bear this out.

There are those who feel that the occupation of a policeman or a prison guard is especially hazardous. It is hazardous, as this rate of slaying of perhaps one policeman per 10,000 indicates. The rate naturally varies from year to year, but it is two or less per 10,000. It was pointed out in the House of Commons, when the debate on abolition was taking place some years ago, that there are occupations in this country which are more hazardous than that of a policeman. The likelihood of a policeman or a prison guard losing his life on the job is, as I said, one or two in 10,000. The likelihood of a miner losing his life on the job is about 11 in 10,000. The likelihood of a farmer losing his life while working in a field with power equipment is about six in 10,000. So, while being a policeman is hazardous, there are other hazardous jobs, and the death penalty does not in my judgment reduce the hazard attached to that particular job.

The trend throughout the world, I believe, is toward abolition. More and more countries are abolishing the death penalty. The United States, by a decision of the Supreme Court, has outlawed death sentences. In the last few years it has been pointed out, and I point it out, that the number of offences for which the death penalty can be imposed has been greatly reduced. Further, the proportion of executions to sentences has been reduced, and is going down. Statistics show that of 32 persons in Canada sentenced to death in 1931, 25 were executed—some 78 per cent. In recent years, as we know, that percentage has been zero, and this is a trend in many other countries of the world.

The last time capital punishment was being discussed in this chamber, Senator Hastings impressed me with some statistics he placed on the record. I have somewhat similar statistics but more up-to-date, because time has gone on and they obviously cover a longer period of time. Anyway, statistics published by the National Parole Service show that between January 1920 and September 1974, a total of 182 persons who had death sentences commuted were granted parole. Only 14 had their parole revoked by reason of their not adhering to parole conditions, and only nine persons forfeited their parole upon conviction for indictable offences. Between 1867 and 1974, a period of 107 years, only one person who had his death sentence commuted committed a second murder. I do not think the state is taking an undue chance by commuting sentences for murder to life imprisonment.

I have some further information with respect to the temporary absence program in the penitentiaries. During 1974, 1,019 temporary absence permits were issued to inmates convicted of capital murder. All but one returned on time. During the same period, 2,106 temporary absence permits were granted to inmates serving life sentences for non-capital murder, and all but six returned on time. From a very quick calculation it seems that only about one-third of 1 per cent of those out on temporary absence permits failed to report back on time. This, I think, is further evidence that the state really is not risking very much by totally abolishing the death penalty.

Police associations in Canada have been campaigning for some time, strongly and vigorously, on the side of restoration of capital punishment. However, I suggest that this type of action by our police forces is not necessarily the most farsighted. It is not necessarily in the interests of the police themselves. Some years ago a police association in Austria came out against the death penalty, believing that it contributed to the risk of their job. The Police Association of the United Kingdom in the last few months has come out in favour of abolition, because they feel that it is safer for them to operate in an atmosphere where there is no possibility of a death penalty.

● (1510)

There is at present before Cabinet a case which has to do with the murder of a Toronto police constable, Maitland, by a man who is now under sentence of death. Unless the Cabinet acts to commute the death sentence—and I hope the Cabinet will act—this man will be hanged. I would like to read something which impressed me greatly. I quote from a speech made by Mr. R. Gordon Fairweather, member of Parliament for Fundy-Royal, in the House of Commons on May 24, 1973, dealing with the particular point I am now making. Mr. Fairweather said:

I wonder whether in all the words which have been spoken—and I certainly include the words I will say—in this and in other debates on the subject, the case for abolition has been put more shortly, more convincingly and with more personal feeling than did Mrs. Pauline Maitland, a brave widow of a brave Toronto policeman brutally murdered in February, 1973 while on duty. This young woman, facing not the strident and blood-curdling outcries of constituents which make many of us cringe, but the terrible tragedy of her husband's death said, "I don't believe in capital punishment. Taking another life would not bring my husband back."

Mr. Fairweather went on to say:

I think really that that says it all.

I do not speak as a lawyer, but as a layman. It would seem to me that if the widow of the murdered policeman feels that the life of the man who murdered her husband should be spared, it should carry great weight with those who are considering all the circumstances surrounding this case and the sentence.

In my opinion, we are on the road to total abolition. I hope that in the Senate more and more voices will speak out in favour of abolition. I hope that the bill I have presented will be voted on this session and will be passed. If it is not passed this year, I hope to be able to introduce it again in the next session. The Senate will be making a useful contribution by giving consideration to the abolition of capital punishment, and by supporting total abolition.

If we were able to bring about total abolition, it would clear the air; it would make the kind of consideration that comes up every so often, on an almost continuous basis, unnecessary, and perhaps the country could turn its attention to the removal of the basic causes of crime.

Perhaps we should be doing such things as providing more adequate training for policemen. Perhaps there should be greater effort in attempting to prevent crime, to prevent addiction to alcohol and drugs, and to remove other contributing factors. We should give consideration to doing everything we can in a humanitarian way to reduce the murder rate, to bring about less and less violence in our nation. I commend Bill S-23 to the Senate.

On motion of Senator Macdonald, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, April 22, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, April 22, 1975

The Senate met at 8 p.m., Honourable Muriel McQueen Fergusson, P.C., Speaker pro tem in the Chair.
Prayers.

CANADIAN RADIO-TELEVISION AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION BILL

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker pro tem informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-5, to establish the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, to amend the Broadcasting Act and other acts in consequence thereof and to enact other consequential provisions.

Bill read first time.

Senator Petten moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Thursday next.

Motion agreed to.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Petten tabled:

Report of the Minister of Transport on the administration of the Motor Vehicle Safety Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1974, pursuant to section 20 of the said Act, Chapter 26 (1st Supplement), R.S.C., 1970.

Report on operations under the Regional Development Incentives Act for the month of January 1975, pursuant to section 16 of the said Act, Chapter R-3, R.S.C., 1970.

RAILWAY ACT

BILL TO AMEND—THIRD READING

Senator Cook moved the third reading of Bill C-48, to amend the Railway Act.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

FARM CREDIT ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from Thursday, April 17, the debate on the motion of Senator McDonald for second reading of Bill C-34, to amend the Farm Credit Act.

[Translation]

Hon. Hervé J. Michaud: Honourable senators, on the 16th of this month, Senator A. H. McDonald introduced this bill now before us with a very thorough and comprehensive summary of all its aspects. I now wish to add a few important and pertinent considerations on one specific aspect of the question under review.

Very appropriately, the mover of this bill pointed out that the purposes of this legislation are such that they will provide assistance especially to the young farmers of this country. Indeed, all the recommendations incorporated in this bill are directed towards assisting young Canadian farmers.

The three main amending provisions of Bill C-34, now before us, provide assistance to young farmers. The first authorizes the increase, from $100,000 to $150,000, of the ceiling on loans granted farmers under 35 years of age.

The second change to be effected by the amendments proposed by the bill will allow most farm loans, which now amount to 75 per cent the actual productive value of the borrower's real estate, to henceforth amount to 90 per cent of that value.

It is an additional benefit which the legislation will provide to young Canadian farmers.

The third amendment also deals with young farmers in the sense that the only young people who can now obtain a loan from the Farm Credit Corporation are those who are fully devoting themselves to farming.

[English]

The Hon. the Speaker pro tem: Honourable senators, the translation of Senator Michaud's speech is not coming through at all.

Some Hon. Senators: Yes, it is.

The Hon. the Speaker pro tem: It is not audible in my earphone, and Senator Cameron is having difficulty also.

Senator McDonald: I cannot hear it.

The Hon. the Speaker pro tem: Perhaps, Senator Michaud, you could repeat your last words.

[Translation]

Senator Michaud: I regret that inconvenience, but I wanted to make a few remarks and I had written them in French.

Some Hon. Senators: Very well. Agreed.

Senator Michaud: As I said, the third amendment concerning young farmers under that legislation was that the only young people who can now obtain a loan are those who are interested in full-time farming. However, through that amendment, this clause, which was an obstacle for many young people, will be altered to enable them to work full time outside their farm for a 5-year period before becoming full-time farmers. Young farmers in our country will therefore derive a third advantage from the legislation before us.

I think we should stress the fact that this is a timely piece of legislation considering the agricultural problems we are now faced with. As the mover of the bill, Senator McDonald, aptly pointed out a few days ago when he introduced that measure, it would be untimely now to reduce agricultural production levels, considering the huge worldwide need for food products. A number of countries today do not have enough food products to meet the needs of their population. I think it would be unwise, considering our opportunities in this country, not to have our programs aiming at a maximum agricultural production in order to help those countries which urgently need food for their people.

I would now like to stress another aspect of that measure before us: the Senate Committee on Agriculture, in a report read by its chairman, Senator Argue, on December 21, 1973, stressed the needs of Canadian farmers in the very same way as they are in this legislation today. Senator Argue made the following statement, recorded in the December 21, 1973 issue of Hansard:

● (2010)

That the federal and provincial governments give serious consideration to the revision of their policies, particularly to drastically reducing for the prospective farmer the initial cash payment or other security presently required.

That was the first recommendation in that report of that date.

The second recommendation in that interim report read as follows:

That the eligibility criteria for purchasers under SFDP be widened to include operators not principally occupied in farming at the time of application, if the Farm Credit Corporation at the time of approval considers that the loan will materially assist the applicant to become principally occupied in farming.

The Farm Credit Corporation considers that the loan will materially help the applicant to eventually become principally occupied in farming.

Third recommendation:

That the special credit conditions provided for under the SFDP be available to eligible purchasers for land transactions with any vendor and for the purchase of any suitable agricultural land.

This measure was also incorporated in the report I just quoted from, and submitted by the Senate Committee on Agriculture, which made almost exactly the same recommendations as those we are now studying in the bill before this house.

I might also add that the bill now before us seeks to support the Small Farms Program introduced in December 1971. Moreover, here is what Minister of Agriculture H. A. Olson said on December 6, 1971, when he presented this program, and I quote:

Unless we develop new concrete programs, many Canadian farmers and, indeed, the entire rural community, will be endangered . . . According to economic studies and practical experience, the family farm is the best form of agricultural operation, and it is with this in mind that we developed a comprehensive program designed to help the small farms of Canada become profitable family enterprises.

[Senator Michaud.]

Later on, and I quote:

The Prime Minister, the Right Honourable Pierre E. Trudeau emphasized how important this was to the federal government, in a speech before the Coopérative fédérée de Québec on February 2, 1972. I quote:

I would even say the small farms assistance program we are now preparing is our last chance. It must succeed, otherwise everything (our rural society) will crumble. We put all our hopes in this program, the importance of which cannot be overestimated.

On this same subject, Minister of Agriculture Eugene Whelan spoke in the same vein when he appeared before the Senate Committee on Agriculture, and I quote:

I still believe that the small farms development program has everything to offer, especially in areas such as Kent County and other similar areas in Canada.

At the beginning of the hearings held by that committee in Moncton in June 1972, I made the following comments on this same subject:

As far as the small farms development program is concerned, I believe with reference to Kent County's present situation that this legislation is one of the most vital ever introduced by us.

In the report submitted on December 21, 1973, committee chairman Senator Argue stated the following concerning the small farms bill:

We did not believe it was a magic wand to be used by federal and provincial governments to change poverty into prosperity, but rather that they have a specific role. The committee came to the conclusion that the program is not capable of fulfilling this role in areas such as Kent County, New Brunswick.

● (2020)

The main characteristic of the small farms development program is the transformation of small, economically poor family businesses into economically profitable family businesses. Its principal objective is to develop small farming businesses without making them enormous.

Therefore, as I wanted to say to this assembly, while everyone seemed to have great expectations about the small farms assistance program, especially in those parts of the country where it could have been beneficial, we must unfortunately admit that this program did not give the results that we would have been entitled to expect. In this interim report submitted by our chairman, statistics proved these allegations as of November 21, 1973.

Indeed, after two years of operation, precisely in that area where we should have expected promising results from this legislation, this report said that there had been during that time only five offers to purchase under the small farms assistance legislation. In the area of Kent specifically, where we had made a very special study of the problems of small farms, there had been only one offer to purchase made under this legislation.

It is therefore obvious that some amendments like those contained in the bill now before us were necessary to complete this other measure providing small farms assistance, to make them more functional, more practical and more easily available to those who should benefit from them.

I merely wanted to stress, on this occasion, while this bill is before us, that the Senate Committee on Agriculture did a very constructive job in pointing out to the government some real needs to which solutions must be brought.

Finally, I believe this committee can still help the farmers, as it has in the short time it has been functioning, by studying, as it has done to date, such urgent problems as that of the financial assistance to be given the owners of small farms to enable their operations to be profitable again and contribute to the economic well-being of our country.

[English]

Senator Burchill: Honourable senators, I am sure our colleague from New Brunswick, Senator Michaud, gave a very interesting address on agriculture in New Brunswick. Unfortunately, some of us who are not proficient in the French language could not hear the interpretation. I think that is a great loss.

Senator Norrie: May I ask the honourable senator a question? Can he tell the Senate whether there was a concerted effort on the part of the agriculture representatives to present this program to the French-speaking people in their own language and through French language literature?

Senator Michaud: Honourable senators, the point raised by Senator Norrie is well taken. However, I did not think this was the proper time to elaborate on it, since we hope to have an opportunity to discuss this when we present the report of the Agriculture Committee on the study that was made in Moncton, New Brunswick, two years ago. That report will be presented shortly.

There is no doubt that the whole question of what we call in French "vulgarisation," the whole question of disseminating information by the government and, particularly, the Department of Agriculture to the rural people, more particularly to the people in the area of the country from which both Senator Norrie and I come, is one of vital importance and concern. Both the government and the Department of Agriculture will have to give more serious consideration in the future than it has in the past to this whole question. It is my view that these programs are lacking in that area. They simply have not been sufficiently explained to those who are supposed to benefit by them.

Hon. Hazen Argue: Honourable senators, I should like to add a few words to what Senator Michaud has said in pointing out the advantages of the measure before us, and of some of the activities of the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture.

My main purpose in rising at this time is to remind honourable senators once again that, in large measure, the initiative for changes in farm credit legislation to assist young persons entering the occupation of farming is attributable to Senator Michaud. A few years ago he raised this question in the Senate, and made a proposal which was referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture. That resulted in a study by that committee of agriculture in Eastern Canada but, because of the situation we found there, we were able, in our interim report, to make recommendations which, while applying to Eastern Canada, apply to all of Canada. The situation we found in Eastern Canada is typical of the situation generally in Canada.

The first recommendation in the committee's interim report, presented on December 21, 1973, was that the federal and provincial governments give serious consideration to the revision of their policies, particularly to drastically reducing for the prospective farmer the initial cash payment or other security presently required.

A substantial part of this measure is aimed at drastically reducing the cash requirement. As a matter of fact, a very liberal interpretation of the act might result in no cash payment at all being required by a prospective farmer. This demand for easier loans to enable young people to engage in farming was voiced dramatically at a meeting of the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture in Moncton, New Brunswick, and that meeting can be attributed to the initiative of Senator Michaud.

● (2030)

The second recommendation of the committee was that the eligibility criteria for purchasers be widened to include those not principally occupied in farming at the time of application, if the Farm Credit Corporation at the time of approval considers that the loan will materially assist the applicant to become principally occupied in farming. Under this measure, as Senator McDonald pointed out, the government has done precisely that. Young persons now do not have to be principally occupied in farming. As a matter of fact, under the terms of the bill they may be eligible if they are not farming at all but can merely establish their intention to be principally engaged in farming within a period of five years.

So often the Senate is downgraded; so often we are criticized, and I think it is important to point out that this legislation is being brought forward following initiatives taken in the Senate, recommendations made in the Senate, and correspondence exchanged between senators and the government. Obviously, we cannot claim the full credit for this bill, but we played our part. We were a forum that was used, certainly in Eastern Canada and in Ottawa, to put forward these very proposals.

Senator Michaud has continued to demand that small farmers be given a chance, that the little guy be given a chance. The press continually condemns senators generally as being a lot of big businessmen who have wide representation on the boards of directors of corporations, as a lot of multi-millionnaires doing the work for big business. I do not think that is a fair criticism at all. I think this bill is certainly an answer to that kind of criticism. It demonstrates that senators are capable of doing a job—and, in fact, do a job—in the interests of ordinary Canadians and, in this particular measure, in the interests of the little person who up to this point has not had a chance. Senator Michaud took the initiative. We all recognize that, and we acknowledge the excellent work he has done in this regard.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear!

Senator Argue: I have one further point to make along the lines of the question put by Senator Norrie, as to whether this legislation is presented as it should be to the French-speaking Canadians in New Brunswick. Senator

Michaud has always been conscious of the fact that French Canadians in New Brunswick who wished to take up agriculture professionally were not able to go to a university in that part of Canada, where they could receive their training in the French language. Because of his initiative—I think more than that of any other single person—and undoubtedly because of help from many others, there have been established a certain number of scholarships and grants which, however they have been provided, have resulted in a substantial number of young French Canadians from New Brunswick, and from the Maritimes generally, being enrolled in agricultural courses at Laval.

Honourable senators, I think we can support this legislation wholeheartedly. The government has not gone all the way that we recommended they should go. Senator Michaud would point out that our third recommendation, which has to do with the small farm development program, has not been fully carried out. We would like to see new farmers eligible to obtain land from not only retiring small farmers going out of production, but from those who have large farms and are going out of production, no matter where the agricultural land comes from. The point is that a young farmer should have a chance to purchase that land. We went even further, and said that farmers should be able to purchase land not necessarily in agricultural use at this moment, provided it could be demonstrated that the land, following good agricultural practice, could be put into effective economic production. Although this third initiative of Senator Michaud's has not borne fruit in exactly the way we hoped it would at this time, we are confident that it is the kind of thing where, if the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture pursues it, we can obtain the same kind of results that we are witnessing in the broader field of this bill before us tonight.

Senator Buckwold: May I ask the honourable senator a question? I recall that during the debate last week one of the members of the opposition raised what I thought was a very important point, namely, the limitation for farmers over the age of 35. Does the committee feel there should be this age limitation, or should it be raised to 40? Is there anything the committee can do to have that age limit raised?

Senator Argue: I suppose the committee could always look at it, and make a recommendation. I appreciate the difficulty in making an arbitrary cut-off. Perhaps 35 is too arbitrary. Perhaps the emphasis should be on providing loans to younger farmers without any age limit, but I cannot be too critical of the 35 age limit. At least it is being emphasized that the loans should be made available to younger farmers but, in a sense, they may have gone overboard in setting the age limit at 35.

If I may say so, I know a particular farmer who is a new farmer but who will soon be 35, and he is worrying that he may not be able to take as much advantage of this bill as he would like. However, as I understand it, the cut-off is for $50,000. In other words, if you are under 35 you can get up to $150,000, but if you are over 35 you can get up to $100,000. When you get to 35 you are not eliminated altogether. The feeling is that there does not need to be quite so much money provided. They may feel that if you have been fairly active and successful as a farmer you may have got $50,000 along the line in building up your own capital. However, I understand the problem, and I am sympathetic to the question.

Senator Buckwold: Would the honourable senator permit a comment on this? Perhaps you should get the higher amount at age 40, because by that time you will have had an opportunity to find out where you are going in farming, and will have had some broad experience. I hope the chairman will raise this point with the department when the bill is before the committee.

Senator Argue: Perhaps I may ask the honourable senator a question? Would he cut it off at age 40? Would he raise the age limit by adding another five years? Would he say 45?

Senator Buckwold: I agree it is an arbitrary limit, but as I get older it seems that someone aged 40 is still a young man.

Senator Flynn: Of course, you are speaking as a senator now.

Senator Asselin: I agree with that.

Senator Norrie: I agree with Senator Buckwold. I think that 35 is a terrible age at which to cut off a farmer from his line of credit.

Senator Flynn: You are going to create a conflict of interest here.

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker pro tem: I wish to inform the Senate that if Senator McDonald speaks now his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on second reading of this bill.

● (2040)

Senator McDonald: Honourable senators, I want to thank all of those who have taken part in the debate on second reading of this bill. I especially thank Senator Argue for his participation this evening. I regret to say I was not able to hear any of the comments made by Senator Michaud this evening. Consequently, I am not in a position to answer any of the questions he may have posed, or present any arguments for or against any propositions he may have made.

Senator Grosart: You are sitting on the wrong side of the house.

Senator McDonald: That could be, but sometimes those on this side of the house do better, even when they do not hear, than some of those on the other side when they do hear.

Senator Flynn: You are able to do that quite easily anyway.

Senator McDonald: Honourable senators, I should like to answer the questions posed by Senator Macdonald when he spoke in this debate on April 17 last.

Senator Macdonald asked whether the land being purchased under the Farm Credit Act was new land, land recently brought into production, or old land changing hands from people who were retiring from farming for one reason or another. The answer to that is that in Canada as a whole there is little new land coming into production in any part of the country. As far as my knowledge goes, there is a limited amount of land that can be brought into production. Most of the land exchanging hands under the Farm Credit Act falls into the category of old land being purchased from farmers going out of business, either because they are retiring or because their farms are too small and they are going into other occupations, and are selling their lands to new farmers or to farmers who are only partially established. To repeat, the vast majority of the land passing from one hand to another under this act is old land going from one farmer to another.

[Senator Argue.]

The second question raised by Senator MacDonald had to do with the fact that applications for these loans were probably far more numerous in the Prairie provinces than anywhere else. This is true, according to the Annual Report for 1973-74 of the Farm Credit Corporation. Pages 28 and 29 of that report show the Farm Credit Act loans disbursed during 1973-74 under Part II and Part III of the act. The total figures under both parts for the various provinces are as follows:

	Number of Loans	Total Amount $
British Columbia	291	15,462,532
Alberta	1,350	59,323,966
Saskatchewan	2,422	99,969,810
Manitoba	702	25,743,864
Ontario	2,103	92,410,785
Quebec	925	34,198,423
New Brunswick	61	2,121,911
Nova Scotia	27	1,265,587
Prince Edward Island	70	2,177,549
Newfoundland	9	538,453

That information does confirm the fact that the majority of loans are made in Ontario, Quebec and in the Prairie provinces. The Farm Credit Act has not been used extensively in the Maritime provinces, and not to any great extent in British Columbia.

Senator Buckwold raised a question with respect to the age limit of 35. I suppose that if there is to be an arbitrary age cut-off, it makes little difference what that age is. The purpose in setting the age limit at 35 is to attempt to establish as many young people in farming as possible. Surely by the time a man is 35 years of age he will have accumulated some assets. He ought to have been able to establish himself to the extent that he has some resources other than credit under the Farm Credit Act. In my opinion, the emphasis here is in the right direction, because the farmer who is 35 years of age, or less, can obtain a loan of $150,000 under this act and a further $50,000 under the Farm Improvement Loans Act. On the other hand, the farmer who is 40 years of age can borrow only $100,000 under this act, but surely such a person has some other assets to turn to.

The average age of farmers across Canada is close to 60. That to me is a strong indication that if we do not see an increase in the number of young farmers, the time will come when there will be no farmers at all. Surely that should be sufficient indication to everyone that we must make farming more attractive to young people, and encourage them to become actively engaged in the farming industry.

It must be remembered that when land becomes available the young person is less able to compete for it than the older man. For that reason I am in favour of seeing some advantage given to the younger person.

Another point is that this legislation increases the amount of money available to the Farm Credit Corporation from $66 million to $100 million. This is necessary because the $66 million limit is just about exhausted. Obviously, farm costs are rising, as are all other costs in the society in which we live. They are going up continuously. Consequently, we must do two things: we must make more money available, and we must make it available to those who need it the most. If we were to make the same sums available to all farmers, regardless of age, that would have two effects. It would no longer give any benefit, or additional consideration, to young people with limited access; it would exhaust the supply of money much sooner. It is for those reasons that the bill proposes to raise the total from $66 million to $100 million. In my opinion, as I have said, the emphasis is in the right direction.

Of course, we would all like to see more money being made available to more people, but it is apparent that $100 million is the maximum amount of money which can be put into this corporation at this time. Moreover, the young farmers are entitled to their share, which, I believe, is all they are getting under this bill.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The Hon. the Speaker pro tem: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator McDonald moved that the bill be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture.

Motion agreed to.

NORTHERN CANADA POWER COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Maurice Bourget moved the second reading of Bill C-13, to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act.

[Translation]

He said: Honourable senators, before bringing in the bill to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act, I would like to recall briefly what the commission is today and what it has realized since it was established 27 years ago. I would also like to emphasize an aspect of the commission's policy, such as it was outlined by the minister some months ago.

The Northern Canada Power Commission is a crown corporation, which was established in 1948 under the "Act respecting the supplying of Electrical Power in the Northwest Territories". At the beginning, it was called "The Northwest Territories Power Commission". In 1950, it was extended to the Yukon. In 1956, the act was again amended and the commission took on its present denomination.

The commission is allowed to assess its needs in public services, to build and operate facilities of public utility in Yukon and in the Northwest Territories.

Under the existing act, every facility under the commission's jurisdiction must be self-sufficient. The rates it imposes must allow it to draw enough income to ensure the payment of interests, the refund of principal over some years, the payment of its operation and maintenance costs, as well as the constitution of a reserve for contingencies. For its 27 years of operation, the commission has been entirely financed through its sales and it did not receive any subsidy or other form of help from the Canadian taxpayers for its activities.

● (2050)

[English]

As a crown corporation the commission is accountable to Parliament, through the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. In practice this means that the actions of the commission receive the scrutiny of the House of Commons Standing Committee on Indian Affairs and Northern Development, and also their Public Accounts Committee.

Commission members are appointed by the Governor in Council, who also approves the power rates charged to consumers and the terms of crown loans made to the commission for capital outlays.

Canada owns, through the commission, more than 80 per cent of northern generating capacity. Three private utility companies control about 10 per cent of this capacity, and the remaining 10 per cent is owned and operated by private organizations, primarily mining companies.

Let us for a few moments consider some facts with regard to the growth of the power commission. During its first fiscal year, its operating budget was $231,000. This year its budget will exceed $24 million. In the 10-year period between 1964 and 1974, the generation of electric power by the commission more than trebled from 178 million to 650 million kilowatt hours. During the same period, the number of plants operated has increased from 12 to more than 50, the gross revenue from $5 million to $16 million per year, and the gross investments from $41 million to $110 million.

[Translation]

To meet the growing needs of communities and industries, the possible energy output of several streams in various areas of the Yukon and the Northwest Territories is under study.

With respect to those projects and other constructions, capital investments last year amounted to more than $40 million and they will exceed $30 million this year.

Before dealing with the proposed amendments to the Northern Canada Power Commission Act, I would like to review with you some aspects of the commission's terms of reference.

The government has decided that the Northern Canada Power Commission will henceforth be responsible for the construction of facilities of the Canadian power transmission network in northern Canada. This will make the integration of existing power lines into a well designed and rational network and will enable the commission to offer consumers lower rates.

[Senator Bourget.]

With respect to hydroelectric energy, which is a renewable resource, it is proposed that the Northern Canada Power Commission be the sole body responsible for the development of those resources and the main producer of thermal energy. In spite of that policy, it is acknowledged that limited output plants have been and still will be built and operated by the private sector, especially mining corporations and local energy suppliers.

The Northern Canada Power Commission will always be willing to consider, in concert with officials responsible for the production and transmission of electric energy in contiguous provinces, the advantages of inter-connecting the territorial network and northern extensions of the provincial network, provided its fundamental responsibility to produce and provide electric energy in the territories is not jeopardized.

Thus, in the future production and transmission of electrical power will be more incumbent on the commission but that will not necessarily be the case for distribution. Indeed, territorial ordinances indicate clearly that municipalities have the right to grant distribution franchises at the local level. The government thinks that option should continue to exist as long as territorial governments will want to. In fact, it is even possible some municipalities will want to operate their own franchises.

The commission's major plants serve the larger cities and their populations of new residents but a good number of the 56 plants developed throughout the territories supply native hamlets and cities with electrical power.

Native users pay special preferential rates; some even have lower domestic rates than those in southern Canada.

When the commission undertakes construction work, inasmuch as it is possible it takes steps to give part of the work to natives or native organizations.

In addition, the staff of the commission is always looking for natives who want to work on a permanent basis to operate the facilities. At present, 20 per cent of field employees are natives who, with the required training, should become craftsmen and even competent supervisors.

[English]

With the rapid expansion and developments North of 60, the Northern Canada Power Commission Act has been amended twice. It now needs further revision to enable the commission to keep pace with current and future needs.

The main amendments are as follows:

First, to increase the number of commission members from three to five so as to include representation from the Yukon Territory and the Northwest Territories. Each member is, of course, appointed by the Governor in Council, but one shall be appointed on the recommendation of the Commissioner of the Northwest Territories and one shall be appointed on the recommendation of the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory.

● (2100)

Second, to remove the requirement for approval of the Governor in Council for contracts in excess of $50,000.

Third, to establish broader rate zones and, in particular, to define the Yukon Territory as a separate rate zone. This rate structure at the moment is outdated and was abandoned long ago by most public utilities, including provincial utilities. Rather than setting rates tied to costs of individual plants, the commission would in future set up separate zones and base its rate on the costs of each zone, thereby working towards some measure of rate equalization.

Finally, it is designed to enable the financial records and procedures to be maintained in accordance with accepted accounting and Treasury Board practices, such as are defined in the Financial Administration Act.

[Translation]

The Northern Canada Power Commission is one of our important means of expansion in the north. It ensures that electricity is supplied at the lowest possible rate to domestic, commercial, industrial and native users. By distributing power at cost, it helps improve the standard of living of northerners and promote industrial development.

The commission recognizes that hydroelectric project planning must take into consideration environment, social and economic factors, and therefore it carefully weighs such factors before choosing a proposed site.

Finally, the commission must also endeavour to supply efficient service and meet the needs of individual and industrial users in the north. So the commission must concern itself equally with future development, northern people welfare, and northern land and water protection.

[English]

Those, honourable senators, are the few remarks I wanted to make on Bill C-13. If and when it receives second reading I shall move that it be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce.

On motion of Senator Flynn, for Senator Choquette, debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, April 23, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

CULTURAL PROPERTY EXPORT AND IMPORT BILL

SECOND READING

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the motion of the Honourable Senator Lamontagne, P.C., seconded by the Honourable Senator Connolly, P.C., for the second reading of the Bill C-33, intituled: "An Act respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states"—(Honourable Senator Langlois).

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, when Senator Langlois moved the adjournment of this debate it was his understanding that certain other senators wished to speak. I understand now that Senator Grosart wishes to participate in this debate, and that it is the wish of the Senate that he should do so.

Senator Flynn: Are you sure that Senator Langlois has no objection?

Senator Petten: He has no objection. It is agreed.

Senator Flynn: Did you send him a wire?

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators, that Senator Grosart speak now?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, in my view this is a very important bill. If I had any major criticism of it, it would be that it has been much too long delayed in coming to us. This is understandable, perhaps, because Canada is a young country. We naturally have only just begun to think in terms of our national heritage, particularly those physical objects which may have something of importance to contribute to our national heritage. We have, as I say, been a long time in coming to the realization of the importance of this, although some other countries have long understood it. Anyone who has travelled abroad to any extent would recognize immediately that there is a very specific value in the recognition, internationally and domestically, of a cultural heritage.

There is, of course, the relationship of cultural heritage to national identity. Very often the stature of nations among the countries of the world is determined much more by their cultural background and contribution over the years than by their economic status or other matters.

Secondly, there is a definite economic value in the preservation of a national heritage in the terms of the bill before us. One has only to think, for instance, of the economic values of the Louvre in Paris, La Scala, the British Museum, the Tate Gallery, the British National Art Gallery, and so on, to know that a very definite economic value can be attached to the preservation of the national heritage of any country.

Of course, in some respects our own heritage is not of long standing. On the other hand, there is recent evidence that we may have a heritage of long standing and of great international economic value. I need only refer to the apparent discovery quite recently in the extreme north of Newfoundland of what is said to be an ogham stone—ogham being an old system of writing of Ireland, of the Druids. There is said to be a stone there which has ogham inscriptions on it which, if validated—and the evidence is that they will be validated—will prove that Irish monks were in Canada as we know it now as early as the fifth century. There have been recent discoveries in the Eastern Townships indicating a special Canadian heritage of Phoenician days. These are much older heritages than those to which we are accustomed when we think of our paintings, artifacts, items of art, and so on, as are indicated in the bill. However, this alone would indicate to me the importance of this bill being enacted at the present time.

It is perhaps unusual for me to be in the position of defending a government bill which has been the subject of criticism from our group, and also from the other side. In fact, the majority of those who have spoken on this bill in the Senate have tended to be, if not totally opposed, at least highly critical of some aspects of it.

We had an excellent explanation of the bill by the sponsor, Senator Lamontagne, who is a former Secretary of State. In my opinion, it is not going too far to say that he should be regarded as the father of the development of a ministry of culture, such as it is, in the Department of the Secretary of State today. From the time he assumed that important post, he made it his obvious objective to make this a real Canadian department of culture. I think it is true that his objective has to a considerable extent been realized, despite the stops and starts, the inadequacies and inadequacies, and the departmental rivalries, errors and omissions, all of which are met along the way toward the creation of anything of any significance in the government structure in Canada.

The kinds of objects which a bill such as this purports to protect are almost impossible to outline item by item. Mention was made by Senator Lamontagne of a Picasso that might be in Canada. I personally would not regard that as having anything to do with our national heritage, although I can understand his reason for thinking that if at a particular time someone had been wise enough to find a Picasso and maintain it in Canada, it might in time become part of our cultural heritage. The minister mentioned a Paul Kane painting. There could be some discussion as to whether any single Paul Kane painting is all that important.

One senator mentioned a Krieghoff. There are various views about Krieghoffs. They have perhaps a higher value today than any other Canadian painting, but personally I would not spend very much money on one. There are other paintings which I think are better, even though they may have less historical interest.

The Champlain astrolabe was another example mentioned by the minister as being outstanding, which it is because it was a scientific instrument having a tremendously important place in scientific discovery, navigation, and so on. That has been lost to Canada. I am sure we all wish it were not.

Mention has been made of the Borduas collection. It would be a matter of judgment as to whether the Borduas collection's going abroad is all that important. I would not think it is, because I am not a collector of abstract paintings. I could go on.

This points up the criticism which has been made of the bill, that the judgments made at any level will be subjective—and, of course, they will be. There is no other kind of assessment that I know of in the art business than that which is highly subjective. Even the economic values which may from time to time be placed on objects of art are mainly subjective. It depends on who wants them and how badly they want them.

I am glad that Senator Lamontagne said it was his intention to move an amendment to this bill—at least one, and I hope more—when it goes to committee. His amendment refers particularly to the composition of one of the boards, and I shall have something more to say about that in a moment. Other reservations which have been put forward here and in the other place are interesting and substantial, but I do not find too much validity in any of them. Each person who has spoken on this bill, both here and in the other place, has agreed with the principle of the bill. Everyone agrees that we must control important objects of significance to our Canadian heritage. Then they immediately say, "But I don't like the controls." How can you have both? There is only one way we are going to control the export of heritage objects of importance, and that is by having controls. I do not think that needs to be argued.

Then those who object become a little more specific about the controls. They point out the particular kinds of controls they do not like. One is that the bill seems to impinge on the rights of individuals to own, sell, make a dollar on an object of art or archaeological interest. Opposed to that, of course, is the right of all Canadians to preserve these objects of heritage. Surely there are both rights. My impression is that the bill cleverly protects both rights. It seems to me there have been misunderstandings about the wording and the intent of the bill in this connection.

● (1410)

In discussing this phase of the bill, Senator Lamontagne used the phrase, "It is a workable compromise between the public interest and the legitimate private interest of persons who will be affected." I agree. In the present context of my remarks, I would be inclined to say that it is a compromise between the interests of Canadians as a whole and the legitimate private interests of persons who will be affected. I do not make that kind of distinction between private and public interests. The collective interests of Canadians as a whole can be just as much a private interest as that of any one individual, or any small group of individuals.

I support this bill because, in my view, it completely supports the right of all individuals to maintain their heritage, as well as supporting the rights of the collector, the dealer, the official custodians of our heritage, and others, and, I am glad to say, it completely supports the rights of all private individuals to make a dollar. In fact, as I read the bill, I am convinced that it will actually increase the dollar value obtainable for a Canadian object as described in the bill. There are reasons for that which I shall mention in a minute. It should be said that no individual is denied for one minute the right to sell an object described in this bill at the highest possible price he can get. The bill makes it very clear that the intent is to ensure that he gets that price.

Honourable senators will be aware of the general structure of the process by which an export permit is granted or denied. The customs officers, who are purely administrative, will determine, in the first instance, whether the object in question comes under the specified items in the control list, and there will be expert examiners to whom the decision of the customs officers may be referred. I shall return to this matter of expert examiners in a few minutes.

If the decision of the expert examiners is to be tested, an appeal can be taken to a review board. The review board, under the bill as it is presently drafted, will consist of an equal number of representatives of the custodial institutions, on the one hand, and the dealers and collectors, excluding the chairman. It is in this area that Senator Lamontagne has suggested he will move an amendment, the purpose of which, as I understand it, is to expand the kinds of persons who may be members of this review board so that it will not consist entirely of people who might be regarded as having some kind of particular vested interest in maintaining an object of art in Canada to the detriment of the private individual who might own that object of art. I agree entirely with that suggestion. The bill should be amended to make the judgment of this review board much broader than it is under the bill as it stands.

This, of course, raises the matter of whether there should be an appeal from the decision of the review board. I can understand that the departmental officials and the minister might take the position that since there are two appeal procedures provided for, one being to the expert examiners and the other to the review board, it is a little tiresome, perhaps, to have another appeal.

My own feeling is that there should be a further appeal, an appeal through the courts. Obviously, most of the determination will be made in the earlier stages on the facts of the case, but it is quite possible that bureaucrats—and I use that word in its best sense—may tend to be less precise about the legal implications of their decisions than others might be, and certainly than a judicial review board might be. I would therefore suggest to the committee that it might consider persuading the minister that it will be in the best interests of the minister himself, as well as those who might be affected, to permit an appeal at law to the appropriate court—possibly the Federal Court.

The reason I say it would be in their mutual interest is this: As far as the minister is concerned, what can he lose? If the judgment is wrong, it should be so determined, and surely the minister would be the first to say, "If these decisions have been wrong, of course they should be put right." From the point of view of the individual, it would make him a little happier to know that the decision had not been made by what to him would be a succession of bureaucrats. I leave that to the good judgment of the committee.

I have spoken of the protection and rights of the private individual, by which I mean the owner of the object or the dealer in objects. It is quite amazing, and much to the credit of the department and the draftsmen, that this protection has been made as complete as it is. For example, no owner of an object is denied the right to sell at the highest price, because the bill makes it very clear that when the owner has gone through these various stages—if he has been denied the right to export by the customs officer, and he has been denied by the expert who says that the object comes within the control list—he is not put in the position of being forced either to retain it in Canada or to sell to anybody, because the bill provides a delay period. I think the delay period is too long, because if you add up the two components it comes to 10 months. Again the committee might carefully consider whether this 10-month period should not be decreased, although there are pros and cons in that respect.

The purpose of the 10-month period is, first, to provide a time during which some Canadian institution or Canadian individual can pay a fair price for the object. What is a fair price? In most cases, because it is a matter of a permit to export, somebody will have offered a price, somebody somewhere in the international market. It seems to me that this will obviously be the essential ingredient of fair price that will be determined under the bill by the review board.

I would like to see the word "international" written into the bill. The bill now speaks of a fair price, but there seems to be doubt about the ingredients of determining what a fair price would be. It should be clearly stated to be based on the international fair price, which is something that is not hard to determine, particularly in the specific case, because obviously there has been an offer to pay so much, otherwise the item would not normally be under consideration for export. It would seem that the dollar interest of any individual is fully protected here.

Additionally, there is provision, first of all, for a general ministerial permit. This is to remove the endless bureaucracies in the bill. The minister may, in the case of a dealer who is exporting and importing all the time, and who is a reputable dealer, say, "I will give you a general permit. Although some of the items you are proposing to export are on the control list, I am quite prepared to trust your judgment and honesty. I will give you either a general permit or what is called an open permit"—which is a little more extensive. I mention these things because I see this deliberate intention in the framing of the bill to protect the rights of individuals, which too many people have misunderstood.

[Senator Grosart.]

Then there are the other incentives. There are two funds, one proposed to Parliament and one which is set up under the bill, the purpose of which is to provide money to custodial institutions to meet the export price. They can, if they wish to purchase a heritage object under the bill, apply to this fund and say they need a certain sum of money to keep this item in Canada. They may or may not get it. If they do not get it, what happens? If no Canadian institution or person offers a fair price, an export permit is automatically granted under the bill. So, I say that there is a tremendous degree of protection of the individual, collector or dealer, which I approve.

● (1420)

Then there is a requirement that in a review board hearing the person who has appealed may ask that the hearing be a public hearing. That is a further protection to the individual.

It has also been said that this bill sets up a tremendous new bureaucracy. This is a criticism which is often made of bills, and, in my view, one that is often valid. In the case of this bill, however, it is clearly not. The customs officers are there and they are paid to do their job. I do not think anyone will complain much about their being given a little more work to do at the same hours and the same rate of pay. The expert examiners are not, as some people have thought, another group of bureaucrats. On the contrary, these are experts, a cadre of approved persons, who will be called in from time to time. As I understand the bill, only their expenses will be paid. They will not be bureaucrats. Of course, the review board itself will be, in this sense, a bureaucracy, a bureaucratic forum. It is to consist of seven members, and perhaps it will be expanded, but the addition of a body of people to administer an act of this importance does not in my view provide ground for a legitimate criticism.

Criticism has also been made of some definitions. There is the control list itself. It will be difficult to set up a control list. It will obviously be by categories rather than by specific items. The bill says that the control list will contain those items which the minister "deems necessary to control in order to preserve the national heritage of Canada." I doubt if any senator would quarrel much with that.

Criticism has been made of the definitions of age and value, which are important because, of course, it is necessary to set out criteria of age and value in order to determine whether an object is a heritage item. A set of values has been set up, ranging from $500 to $3,000. It is not terribly important what they are, but there have to be age limits. An item must be 50 years old and not be the product of a living artist or artisan, and so on. These criteria should be looked at. Senator Everett raised this question, and I think it is worth considering. My own view inclines to be that the 50-year period is too short. One can say we are a very young country and therefore a heritage object or item becomes important in a much shorter time; or one can argue it the other way and say that 50 years is too short a time in which to decide that an object is a heritage item. If we were to go back, say, to the year 1650 in Britain we would discover that many objects 50 years old, which would have been regarded as heritage items then, are now in the ashcan—and rightly so. I hope the committee will discuss this matter in some depth.

The review board, however it may be constituted, has three jobs to do. One is to review the decision of the customs officer and decide whether he was right, and whether the particular object comes under the controls. That is the only consideration at that level. Then there is need to determine a fair price, and I have already commented on that.

There may be a bit of a loophole here, in that a review board which, as presently constituted, has a specific interest in keeping the item in Canada, might very well come up with what it considers a fair price but which the appellant would not consider a fair price and which the international market might not. I hope that will be given careful consideration.

Another reason why I support this bill is that, as many of us have remarked on occasion, there has been complete consultation with the provinces. Obviously, the provinces have their own interest in their heritage. Viewed from a provincial point of view, the judgment may not always be the same as that when heritage is considered from a national point of view, but the provinces have been consulted and, together with their agencies involved in this field, have agreed to the bill. The Professional Art Dealers' Association of Canada has been consulted and has agreed to the bill; the Canadian Antique Dealers' Association has been consulted and has agreed to the bill; and the Council for Business and the Arts in Canada has also been consulted and has approved the bill. Incidentally, I do not know who they are. I have never heard of them, but apparently they are important enough to have been consulted.

In addition to the amendments to the Income Tax Act to provide the special funding, another aspect of the bill deals with our obligations in respect to imports into Canada from other countries. I need say little about that. We have an obligation under the UNESCO convention of 1970 to implement that convention. I understand that if this bill is passed and receives royal assent we will immediately ratify and implement the UNESCO convention, both of which actions are necessary to make it effective.

Honourable senators, the provisions with respect to offences and penalties which are necessary to put some teeth in the act, are not in my view excessive. The penalties are modest. They are sufficient, however, to deter most offences against the act.

I certainly hope that the committee will look carefully at the suggestions that I and others have made. I refer, for example, to Senator Lamontagne's amendment, which I am quite sure he will go forward with, which has to do with the composition of the review board; the matter of appeal, which I think is important; and the question of the time, age and value limits which I also think should be looked at.

It would be useful if we could obtain some information from the minister in committee with respect to how the ministerial discretion will function in the two cases—the general discretion and the open discretion. Unless there is some clear statement from the minister with respect to how he sees the discretion, there could be some reason for concern because, obviously, it means that there is a clear discrimination against various individuals. The minister will be required to say, "I will give the 'open sesame' type of permit to one individual or group of individuals but not to the other."

I hope these matters will be discussed in committee. If amendments are necessary I hope they will be made, and that in due course the bill will be passed by the Senate.

● (1430)

Senator Lamontagne: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: I wish to inform the Senate that if the Honourable Senator Lamontagne speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate.

Senator Lamontagne: Honourable senators, I certainly do not intend to try to compete with Senator Grosart's excellent speech. I think he covered the subject matter very well and raised some very interesting points, which I hope will be considered by the committee.

I just want to say at this stage that I prefer Senator Grosart's liberalism to that of Senator O'Leary's.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Lamontagne moved that the bill be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Health, Welfare and Science.

Motion agreed to.

NORTHERN CANADA POWER COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the motion of the Honourable Senator Bourget, P.C., seconded by the Honourable Senator Petten, for the second reading of the Bill C-13, intituled: "An Act to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act".—(Honourable Senator Choquette).

Hon. Lionel Choquette: Honourable senators, I was not in the chamber a few minutes ago when the first Order was called, and stood by my leader. If I have the consent of all honourable senators, I should like to proceed with Order No. 1 on the Order Paper.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Choquette: Honourable senators, we are beholden to Senator Bourget for having given us some valuable background information on the nature of the Northern Canada Power Commission and its mode of operation. There are so many government commissions, agencies and what have you that it is useful to be reminded, when we are discussing one in particular, what it is meant to be doing.

However, all my words cannot be words of praise. I found myself wishing, as I read what Senator Bourget said last night, that he had spent more time on the provisions of the bill under discussion. It might have been useful to know what the problems are, the solution of which seems to require two new commissions.

We very much favour the idea that recommendations for new commissioners should come from the Commissioners in Council of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, but we would have liked to have heard some explanation of the magnitude of the difficulties faced, in order to make an initial judgment as to whether an increase of two members is sufficient. This matter, of course, can be gone into in more depth in committee. We surely do not want to increase the size of governmental bureaucracy unnecessarily, but we do believe in providing organizations with the manpower and tools required to do an efficient and creditable job. So in committee the first thing we shall need to have explained to us precisely is why these additional people are required. We shall also need the assurance that the addition of two new commissioners will suffice.

The next point on which we need explanation, because it was not forthcoming last night, is why the government finds it necessary to repeal section 6(3) of the act. Section 6(3) reads:

The Commission shall not with respect to any project undertake or enter into any contract, other than for maintenance or repairs, for the construction, making, erection, purchase or installation of any works, excavations, undertakings, equipment or facilities, involving a total estimated expenditure exceeding fifty thousand dollars unless the undertaking of the project by the Commission has been approved by the Governor in Council.

This requires the commission to account to the Governor in Council for certain expenditures over the limit of $50,000. The amendment proposed would remove the requirement of accountability and allow the commission to act on its own, to make expenditures of any magnitude without having to answer to either the Governor in Council or to Parliament. When you consider that this commission, as Senator Bourget said last night, will spend something in excess of $30 million this year, I think we owe it to ourselves to maintain some sort of control over what it does.

This commission is a creature of Parliament. It acts in the public name and spends huge sums of public money. Parliament has a right and duty to keep a close check on how these funds are spent. If control is still maintained, even after this subsection is repealed, I will be satisfied, but I would want it pointed out to me how this is assured.

As I see it, after this subsection is repealed, the commission becomes perfectly autonomous. It will no longer be necessary for the government to make provisions for estimates for the operation of the commission, so Parliament will not have to be asked to approve estimates for this commission, and that check will be lost to us. It is a situation which gives rise to legitimate queries, and I should hope clarification will be provided at the committee stage.

If the only reason for dropping section 6(3) is that the present figure of $50,000 is unrealistic, and requires the commission's having to come too often to have its projects approved by the government, then certainly a compromise can be reached. We are not wedded to the figure of $50,000—we could see that increased to $500,000, if necessary—but we are wedded to the idea of government's maintaining some control over the expenditures of this commission.

[Senator Choquette.]

I come next to the matter of rate zones. I would tend to agree that the rate structure used is in need of revamping, but I am puzzled as to why, in this matter of rates, the government is not decentralizing authority. Under this bill, the establishment of rates will continue to be done by the commission with the approval of the Governor in Council, but are there not any public utilities—boards in the Yukon and Northwest Territories? And should the matter of adjustments in rates not be submitted to them for approval? I think the whole matter of the commission, and the powers it has and does not have, must be gone into thoroughly.

We are all interested in assuring efficient operation of the Northern Canada Power Commission. To date, it has a good record and we do not want to jeopardize it. However, we do have a problem. On the one hand, we want to give the people of the North more autonomy, more say in the administration of their own affairs. On the other hand, we must remember that this commission is a creature of Parliament, and as such we have a responsibility to oversee its operations.

The ultimate solution to the political problems that beset the Yukon and Northwest Territories probably resides in greater constitutional authority for the local councils. But that is an argument that is beyond the scope of this bill, and will have to wait for another occasion.

Hon. Maurice Bourget: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: I wish to inform the Senate that if the Honourable Senator Bourget, P.C., speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading of this bill.

Hon. Maurice Bourget: Honourable senators, I am not in a position at this moment to answer all the questions asked by Senator Choquette, but I would like to give him at least two answers.

He said, if I understood him well, that we are creating two commissions by this bill. As a matter of fact, we are not creating two commissions. The purpose of the bill is to add two new commissioners. Both will be appointed by the Governor in Council, one on the recommendation of the Commissioner in Council of the Yukon Territory, and the other on the recommendation of the Commissioner in Council of the Northwest Territories.

Senator Asselin: Will there be any Conservatives appointed?

Senator Bourget: I suppose so. This is a liberal government, and we are open, and always willing, to appoint good men when we see them.

Senator Flynn: Very often you are blind, however.

Senator Bourget: Well, I think the people of Canada, for the last 50 years, have had their eyes open, and that is the reason why for 75 per cent of the time a Liberal government has been elected.

● (1440)

Honourable senators, I believe that at the moment I am out of order. However, I hope my honourable friend understands that we are not creating two new commissions, but two new positions of commissioner. The purpose of this also is to give an opportunity to the people of the Yukon and the Northwest Territories of having a better say in the affairs of the commission.

In his second question, if I remember correctly, Senator Choquette made reference to the fact that there is an amending clause relating to projects over $50,000. I would like to remind my honourable friend that this commission is accountable to Parliament through the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, so that its budget will be scrutinized by the Standing Committee on Indian Affairs and Northern Development of the House of Commons. Moreover, the budget of the commission will have to be submitted to the Treasury Board, and then approved by the Governor in Council. It was for these reasons that it was found unnecessary for the commission to obtain approval by the Governor in Council of projects involving the expenditure of more than $50,000. There will be, therefore, less bureaucracy involved, which was the expression used in the other place.

These are the two answers I can offer my friend with respect to his particular remarks. With respect to his other points, as he said, we shall have a better opportunity in committee when the officials of the department will answer the questions he posed.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Bourget moved that the bill be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce.

Senator Smith: Honourable senators, I rise on a point of order. I am sure there must be a good reason for this motion, but why is this bill not being referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications?

From my reading of rule 67(1)(i), which is to be found at page 32 of the Rules of the Senate, it seems that inquiries, and so on, relating to pipelines, transmission lines and energy transmission should be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications. I am wondering if Senator Bourget has some special reason for moving that this bill be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce.

Senator Bourget: Honourable senators, I asked myself the same question earlier. I was advised by an authority that it should be referred to the Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee. When there is doubt concerning the jurisdiction of two committees, a bill can be referred to either one. I made this inquiry of the authority, who advised me that in the circumstances this bill should be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce.

Senator Flynn: We can always move an amendment. Motion agreed to.

SENATE (INTERSESSIONAL AUTHORITY) BILL SECOND READING

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the motion of the Honourable Senator Flynn, P.C., seconded by the Honourable Senator Quart, for the second reading of the Bill S-22, intitled: "An Act to provide for the internal economy and administration of the Senate between sessions of Parliament and between Parliaments".—(Honourable Senator Petten).

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, when I moved the adjournment of this debate it was to enable any other honourable senator who wished to take part to do so. Since no one has indicated that he or she wishes to continue the debate at this time, I request that Senator Flynn be allowed to close the debate on second reading.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it agreed, honourable senators?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, I suppose that this expression of agreement means that you consider yourselves as having been warned that in speaking now my speech will have the effect of closing the debate.

I wish to thank Senator Perrault, Senator Prowse and Senator Connolly (Ottawa West) for their observations with respect to this bill. As I said when I introduced it, the main problem concerns the administration of the Senate between Parliaments, rather than between sessions, and is mainly the problem of the operations—

The Hon. the Speaker: I must advise honourable senators that if the Honourable Senator Flynn, P.C., speaks now his speech will have the effect of closing the debate of the motion for second reading.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear.

Senator Flynn: I thought this would have been deemed to have been said.

As I was saying, the problem is, of course, the administration of the Senate between Parliaments and the operations of the Senate committees during that time. The practical problem has been discussed by Senator Connolly and Senator Prowse. Senator Connolly expressed some reservations, and Senator Prowse approved the idea that we should be able to do something. In my opinion, part of the answer, anyway, to Senator Connolly's reservations is that we should deal with this problem of the operations of Senate committees between Parliaments, especially during election campaigns, by means of our rules. In any event, this is one practical problem which can be resolved in committee.

Senator Perrault's observations, in my opinion, are well taken. I am not, however, entirely sure that we should worry too much about the objections he has raised, but I am convinced we should deal with them in committee. It is important that if we do anything about this problem we be on safe ground. Therefore, I agree entirely that the questions Senator Perrault raised should be examined thoroughly in committee.

For those reasons, if this bill receives second reading I shall move that it be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Flynn moved that the bill be referred to the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs.

Motion agreed to.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, before the motion to adjourn is put, I should like to inform the Senate that the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance will meet in room 256-S at 3.30 this afternoon. The Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy will also meet at 3.30 this afternoon in room 356-S.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Thursday, April 24, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that messages had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Ritchie has been substituted for that of Mr. Friesen and that the name of Mr. Friesen has been substituted for that of Mr. Ritchie on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

ST. LAWRENCE PORTS OPERATIONS BILL, 1975

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-59, to provide for the resumption and continuation of longshoring, checking, cargo repairing and related operations at certain ports in the Province of Quebec.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. Raymond Perrault: With leave, I move that the bill be given second reading now.

The Hon. the Speaker: The house has heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, before I make a few remarks on Bill C-59, I wish to table:

Copies of Reports on the dispute affecting the Maritime Employers Association and the International Longshoremen's Association (Chief Judge A.B. Gold, Conciliation Commissioner).

This measure, which is entitled an act to provide for the resumption and continuation of longshoring, checking, cargo repairing and related operations at certain ports in the province of Quebec, is a measure which does not indicate that the government has lost faith in the collective bargaining process as the most satisfactory means of determining wages and conditions of work. Indeed, the collective bargaining process in this nation has, on the whole, been an extremely effective procedure in both federal and provincial jurisdictions. However, as honourable senators are aware, bargaining in this very important dispute was discontinued more than three weeks ago, and although Judge Gold, the experienced and respected mediator in this matter, used his best efforts, the parties did not agree to return to the bargaining table.

In situations of this kind, the government could have allowed the dispute to continue waiting for the eventual loss of wages and loss of business to compel the parties to seek an agreement. Parliamentary action in this dispute between the Maritime Employers Association and the longshoremen would not be a necessity if the longshoremen's activities had not interfered with employees in other organizations not on strike; that is, those employees engaged in the movement of grain at waterfront grain elevators. This is very much a situation where a private right becomes a public wrong, and on points of this kind it is the view of the government—indeed I think of most of us in public life—that Parliament must act to bring about a settlement.

This is the second occasion in recent times that legislation comparable to Bill C-59 has been introduced in Parliament. Let me say that it is not the intention of the government to establish a pattern of government intervention. Rather, this instance of government intervention has been caused by the particular circumstances and demands of this dispute. We are not establishing any kind of precedent. Parliament will not, and certainly should not, become an extension of the collective bargaining process, and those who think that Parliament can be used in this way are going to be disappointed.

The subject matter of this legislation relates to a dispute between the Maritime Employers Association and the International Longshoremen's Association, local 375 Montreal, local 1739 Quebec City, and local 1846 Trois-Rivières. I will refer in a moment to the secondary dispute which this legislation concerns.

In the prior dispute, the respective collective agreements expired December 31, 1974, in Montreal, and January 15, 1975 in Quebec City and Trois-Rivières. Prior to the expiry of the old collective agreement, the parties met in direct but unsuccessful negotiations on a number of occasions. As a result, on December 24, 1974, my colleague the Honourable John Munro appointed Judge Alan Gold of Montreal to be conciliation commissioner, pursuant to section 164 of the Canada Labour Code. Judge Gold was authorized, among other things, to commission an independent study into the longshoremen's job security plan. Between December 30, 1974, and February 24, 1975, Commissioner Gold met separately with the union and the employers, and also held a number of hearings. His report was received a few weeks ago, on March 14, 1975, and was accepted by the Maritime Employers Association but rejected by the workers at the three ports involved.

As a result, the Honourable John Munro, the Minister of Labour, appointed Mr. Charles Poirier to be mediator, pursuant to section 195 of the Canada Labour Code.

Despite Mr. Poirier's best efforts, the longshoremen commenced a legal strike on March 31, 1975. This is the strike which is continuing, and it is damaging now to a severe degree the local economy, and more particularly the agricultural sector dependent on feed grain importation.

The second part of the legislation involves the Maritime Employers Association and local 1657 Montreal and local 1605 Quebec City of the ILA, the latter representing 320 checkers and cargo repairmen. The parties were unable in this instance to negotiate revisions to the collective agreement expiring December 31, 1974. As a consequence, on March 10, 1975, Judge Gold was appointed as conciliation commissioner and his report was filed on April 9 last. In this case the employers' association accepted the report, but the union did not. The union commenced its strike on April 17, and that strike remains in effect today.

● (1410)

Chief Judge Gold, on whose report this legislation is founded, is a person known to many in this chamber, a person whose knowledge in the field of industrial relations, especially as practised at the St. Lawrence River ports, is absolutely unquestioned. Judge Gold is respected by both sides in this dispute, and it is clear from the government's legislative proposals that the government has the utmost confidence in Judge Gold's abilities and in his judgment. Without this confidence in Judge Gold, the government would not propose to embody his recommendations in an act of Parliament.

The St. Lawrence Ports Operations Act, 1975, consists of two parts, dealing separately with the longshoremen and with the checkers and cargo repairmen. To simplify the explanation of the legislation, perhaps I should outline the provisions as they affect both parties.

The bill provides for the immediate resumption of longshoring, checking, cargo repairing and related operations and for an immediate return to work by employees, under the conditions outlined in Judge Gold's reports. For longshoremen, the passage of this bill means a change in job security from a weekly to a seasonal guarantee with provision for weekly wage payments. The job security clause outlined by Judge Gold operates in two parts. It is based on a seasonal guarantee of paid hours rather than a five-day week guarantee. Each employee is guaranteed 40 hours of pay every week, whether he works or not. If he is offered work he must be available, or he will lose the call and eight hours of guaranteed work for the season. If he works more than 40 hours in the week and does not owe any time under the guarantee, he keeps all his hourly income for that week. For example, if a worker puts in 32 hours in a week, he will be advanced an 8-hour credit and be paid for 40 hours for that week, but he will owe the fund 8 hours of work. If in another week he works 48 hours he will get 40 hours of pay and the extra 8 hours will be used to cover the advance received in a previous short workweek. He will also add to his week's income the overtime premium rate of pay, the difference between the normal 40 hours and the 48 actually worked.

The second phase of the proposal by Judge Gold is computed at the end of the season. If an employee has not been offered 1,600 hours of work, the employer will pay the difference at the appropriate hourly rate. Should the employee receive an advance during the season and that advance has not been made up later, he will owe the fund those hours at the end of the season. He will then have to make a refund to the guaranteed plan in a lump sum or make the payment from vacation pay or from other money owed to him.

Regarding the commissioner's wage proposals which, in the government's view, adequately compensate the employee for the loss of the weekly guarantee, a Montreal longshoreman, for example, will receive a guaranteed minimum wage by the end of the contract; that is, the guaranteed minimum wage of $12,800 a year. This rate of pay compares favourably with hourly rates paid at any port in North America.

It is proposed that the current base rate of $5.10 an hour be increased in four stages to a maximum of $8 an hour, effective January 1, 1977, with intermediate increments of 90 cents to $6 as of January 1, 1975, of 40 cents to $6.40 as of October 1 next, and of $1 to $7.40 as of January 1, 1976.

Put in percentage terms, the increases will amount to 19.6 per cent for the first year, 15.6 per cent for the second year and 8.1 per cent for the third year, thereby giving a cumulative total of 43.3 per cent over three years. This compares well with the average settlements in all industries, excepting construction settlements covering 500 or more employees for the periods January to December 1974, and January to March 1975. So this is not an inordinate amount of money in comparison with other settlements across the country.

The government did not come to the decision to introduce legislation of this kind without considerable discussion and thought. The free collective bargaining process must not be interfered with lightly. However, recourse to the people's representatives in Parliament is vital to our democratic system, and this government will continue to seek the advice and consent of Parliament when circumstances of a clearly grave nature demand it.

It is to be hoped that the circumstances giving rise to parliamentary action of this kind do not arise as frequently in the future as they have in the recent past, because the record over the past 10 or 15 years indicates that parliamentary action of this type is extraordinary.

Certain press reports this morning have indicated that legislation ordering a resumption of longshoring would not be of aid. The disappointment of both employees and employers at being the subject of parliamentary intervention is understandable. However, while one can understand the sentiments which lie behind the newspaper reports from the St. Lawrence River ports, most of us share the view of the Minister of Labour that common sense will prevail, and that the longshoremen involved in this dispute will go back to work under terms which compare favourably with any in the longshoring industry in Canada and in North America as a whole.

I urge your support for the measure before us.

● (1420)

[Translation]

Hon. Martial Asselin: Honourable senators, I think it is appropriate that a senator from the province of Quebec should answer the statement and the introduction of this special legislation by the Government Leader.

[Senator Perrault.]

Once again we are dealing with emergency legislation. The Government Leader said at the outset that this bill should not be considered as a precedent in the history of labour relations, and that the government only resorts to this kind of legislation in specific cases.

But looking back on the last two years we notice that every time a labour dispute drags on, and is not settled to the satisfaction of the parties to it, the government presents special legislation, emergency bills. That is what happened on March 29, 1975, with bill C-56, on October 10, 1974, with bill C-72, on August 31, 1973, with bill C-217, in July 1972, with bill C-230 and on September 1, 1972, with bill C-231. In other words, within two and a half years, five special bills were passed, five emergency pieces of legislation which were passed by Parliament and introduced by the Cabinet to bring labour disputes to an end. With that record the Government Leader will assure us that the present government is opposed to compulsory arbitration.

However, I feel that all those bills are compulsory arbitration measures, and it is not surprising that some cabinet ministers object to parliamentary action and as I said earlier, in the past two and a half years, five of them at least were passed. That explains why recently the Honourable Jean Marchand openly objected to the introduction of emergency bills to settle labour disputes.

Such bills obviously are undemocratic. The Government Leader suggested that. Moreover, and what is even worse, it results in disruption of the whole collective bargaining system and it denies the workers the use of necessary pressure to support their claims.

By these words I do not want to indicate that strikers now are entirely right. If you look at their demands, you find they are asking for wages of $17,000 to $20,000 a year. I say that is not reasonable.

As to their demands concerning job security—and they would want job security for twelve months when they work only seven to eight months a year—again I say strikers are not being reasonable. I submit that we are not striking at the root of the problem with the special pieces of legislation we pass.

When the last special legislation was passed the Leader of the Opposition asked that the government consider other formulas to avoid those conflicts that drag on and on. Particular emphasis was placed on the fact that the government should consider a continuing bargaining mechanism, with binding powers vested in an arbitrator, to avoid conflicts such as the one we now have to solve. The government did nothing. That was the action suggested a month ago—in March—by the Opposition, which asked the government to set up a continuing bargaining system or mechanism to prevent those conflicts from taking place. And they will still take place in increasing numbers within five or six months.

The government did not move. Again, today, they would rather let a situation rot and ask parliamentarians to vote special legislation to order the strikers back to work. I submit that the government did not know enough about the situation that prevailed in the ports of Quebec City, Montreal and Trois-Rivières.

If we look at Hansard for April 8, page 4593, the Minister of Agriculture said:

[English]

Mr. Speaker, according to information I have received today most people still have some stocks of grain and there is no real loss of feed stocks. That is, no livestock or poultry are going without feed. We are watching the situation very closely and moving as much as we possibly can by all means, as I have said.

[Translation]

Two days later, on the 10th of April, as shown at page 4672 of Hansard, the Minister of Agriculture had this to say:

[English]

Mr. Speaker, the condition is rapidly deteriorating and unless injunctions are obtained to disallow the picketing at the elevators in Quebec City and Trois-Rivières, there will be some loss of poultry and livestock. We know people are being asked to share the feed that is in the area and feed is being trucked in from Montreal and Prescott. We do not think, however, that this will be sufficient to look after the needs that will be there in the next day or two.

● (1430)

[Translation]

This happened on April 8, while on April 10, in the port of Quebec City, the grain reserves were down to 150,000 bushels and shipments of about 800,000 bushels were expected from Thunder Bay to try to meet the demand.

Worse than that: the chairman of the APU, Mr. Couture, came to Ottawa the week after the statement by the Minister of Agriculture to say that the farmers and millers were in a bind and were asking the government for special legislation to resolve immediately the situation of Quebec producers and millers.

I believe that a minister of the government, whose name I do not recall, simply said to Mr. Couture that they should solve their own problems, and this was reported in the newspapers. What has been done to supplement the responsibilities that the government had to assume at that date?

The manufacturers and the millers went to court to request injunctions to gain access to the docks at Trois-Rivières and Quebec City so as to obtain the grain they needed to feed their animals.

As a matter of fact, on April 10, Judge Côté granted the millers an injunction which allowed them to go to the port of Quebec City and obtain grain supplies. The injunction was issued. I believe it was two days later that the strikers blocked access to the ports and the injunctions could not be applied. This happened on April 12.

The same thing happened in the port of Trois-Rivières. Injunctions were issued, but the strikers refused to obey. Moreover, in the ports of Quebec City and Trois-Rivières even the police did nothing to apply the court injunctions.

In view of these trying circumstances which resulted in considerable losses for the millers and for the hog and poultry producers, the problem was put to Parliament, to the members of the Opposition and to the government. Then, last Wednesday—I believe it was April 16—the members for Joliette and Bellechasse asked for an emergency debate to urge the government to take some action.

The Speaker agreed to this debate, which was held last Wednesday, and honourable members in the other place explained to Parliament and to the government the critical and difficult situation that farmers, hog and poultry producers were facing.

Following this debate, Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Ouellet contended that the Opposition was exaggerating, that the situation was not that bad, that there would be grain stocks coming from Ontario and that feeders could get their supplies in the ports of Quebec City and Trois-Rivières, but it was not true. I repeat, as the situation deteriorated we decided to impose an emergency measure to say to the people: You must go back to work. But, honourable senators, the farming industry and particularly the cattlemen had already suffered extensive damage.

Yesterday, April 23, we were told that hog breeders in Beauce and the Quebec City area had been so affected that instead of bringing as usual 4,000 hogs in one day to the regional slaughterhouses they brought there last week 40,000 hogs. Someone also said that when you change the diet of the livestock it disturbs their system and causes considerable losses. This happened in Quebec and it is still going on. This means that in the province of Quebec in the near future, because of the strike and because this government failed to act in time upon request—the APU did ask the government—many poultry and hog breeders will have to go bankrupt. And once more it is the consumer who is going to pay for all that because the price of pork meat and eggs will continue to rise as the livestock will diminish.

But who is going to repair those damages? Who is going to help Quebec farmers as well as hog and poultry producers so that they will not go bankrupt because this strike has caused considerable financial losses? The government does not say anything in this bill. In his statement to the house yesterday, the minister did not say the government would intervene and pay subsidies to the people who will lose considerable amounts of money. The strike now in progress will merely be settled. Not one word was said about the way in which this legislation would be used to help those people come out of their financial difficulties as a result of the strike. I say, that is a negative way of approaching the problem.

Of course, we of the Opposition will accept the bill. We will also vote for it, precisely because of the present hardships of cattle, hog and poultry producers. But, by the way, I would like to ask this: where are we now going with this system of injunctions and special legislation?

As I said a while ago, some of the injunctions served by our courts are not respected today; the police force is hesitant about enforcing them. We now have emergency legislation ordering the strikers back to work. In this connection, two days ago, a union spokesman said that the strikers will never go back to work, even if special legislation is passed, and specially if it is based on the recommendations of Judge Gold. I say to you, honourable senators, we are playing with fire. When things come to a point where people within a certain society do not abide by and laugh at injunctions issued by the courts, I say we are playing with anarchy.

Furthermore, should the government make a practice of creating precedents—the Leader of the Government said it was not a precedent—but when five or six laws of that kind are passed within two years and a half, it does become a precedent and employers and employees having collective agreements, instead of negotiating honestly and sincerely, rely on the passing of a special law to solve their problem. Here again, I say that it is a complete denial of our whole collective agreement system. Therefore, I repeat that by passing special legislation of that kind, compelling strikers to accept rules they had not accepted before in spite of all possible mediations and negotiations, we are shifting the scale towards anarchy. I am warning the government about that. It is for that reason also, I repeat, that there is not complete unanimity in the Cabinet whenever it comes to introducing legislation of that kind.

We members of the Opposition are being asked to accept this legislation. We do so because public interest, the interest of our society, requires the passing of such a measure. We are doing it reluctantly because the government did not go to the trouble of taking the necessary steps to avoid the introduction of such legislation. And as public interest is above all that and as we wish to spare Quebec producers and farmers greater losses, we are going to vote for this legislation. But still we hope, and here I wish, on behalf of the Opposition members, to appeal to the strikers to abide by the law that will be passed so as to prevent our society from sinking into chaos and anarchy, which would prove detrimental to all the elementary rules of a democracy.

I also hope that the strikers will understand that this legislation is being passed in the interest of both parties concerned that Parliament wished to give justice, not only to the strikers but to the employers as well. I honestly wish and hope on behalf of the Opposition that this will be the last piece of legislation on which we shall be called upon to vote in order to settle labour disputes.

[English]

Senator Neiman: May I ask the honourable government leader a question for purposes of clarification? In the example that was given of a minimum income for 40 hours of work per week, he went on to say that if an employee were to work only 32 hours, for instance, during the first week he would be paid at the 40-hour rate. If that employee were then to work 48 hours during the second week, he would still receive an income on the basis of the 40-hour week and, in addition, the overtime rate for eight hours.

Senator Perrault: That is correct.

Senator Neiman: I wonder if that would lead to some type of absurdity unless a restriction of some kind were placed on it? Would it not be the case that if an employee did not work during one week, but chose to work 80 hours during the next week, he would receive 40 hours of overtime pay for work he was supposed to have done in the first week? Surely he would not be entitled to overtime in addition to his basic wage.

[Senator Asselin.]

● (1440)

Senator Perrault: I want to assure the honourable senator that this is one of the concerns of the employee organization—to make sure the work is properly shared among available longshoremen. In actual fact, a situation of the kind contemplated by Senator Neiman could not arise.

Incidentally, my reference to the minimum yearly income for longshoremen did not indicate the current levels of income of these workers. They are considerably above that figure at the present time.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, I am sure there is general agreement among members of the house that this is a most unpalatable duty, but it is a duty that we are asked to perform today. I must say I am very much afraid that if the method of handling such crises, as we have before us in this bill, is continued by the government, it will prove a most inefficient, if not a very dangerous, way of attempting to settle problems such as this.

My honourable colleague, Senator Asselin, made it clear that the statement by the Leader of the Government that this is not a precedent—that this is extraordinary, not ordinary, legislation—bears some examination. He indicated the recent occasions on which Parliament has been asked to intervene in this way in a labour dispute.

The situation is roughly this, that in the period from 1972 to 1974 we had three interventions by Parliament out of a total of nine in the history of this matter; and now we have two more in the last month. Today is April 24—incidentally, Shakespeare's birthday—and the last time we were asked to perform this kind of duty was, as I recall, on March 24. That is twice in one month. Yet the Leader of the Government tells us this is not ordinary. My fear is that it will become ordinary, and largely because of the unpredictability of what the government will do in a situation like this.

Unpredictability, of course, is the one thing that will lead to additional problems between two parties in conflict, as they are in this matter. I say that because here we have an entirely different pattern, and possibly a dangerously innovative pattern, from, let us say, the last time we were asked to look at a bill such as this. On that occasion, as I recall, there was a conciliation report. The government, in advance of any such action as this, indicated it supported the conclusions of that report. I am not critical of that per se, but this time we go a step further and we have the conciliation report included in the bill.

One wonders—because on the previous occasion the government appeared to side with the workers, the employees, and in this one they appear to side with the employers who accepted the report which was rejected by the employees—whether the people in this kind of dispute in the future may expect the government to say, "All right, this one will come down on this side, the next one will come down on the other side," so that we have a situation which I am told applies with some National Hockey League referees, who do the same thing in relation to penalties.

I say this with some seriousness because this innovation imposes on Parliament something more than an emergency decision to say, "You have to go back to work, you have to keep on negotiating until you reach some kind of a conclusion; and if you cannot, there are various ways the government can intervene and perhaps eventually appoint an arbitrator."

Here we are at this time, after the experts—the industrial experts, the employers and employees themselves having lots of experience, and one of the most distinguished conciliators in this whole business of labour and management relations—have all failed, and failed not merely to settle the strike but failed to decide what would be fair terms of settlement. This is the situation facing the government.

No one here can decide what are fair terms. The government, in what appears to me to be an innovation in these nine cases, now says, "We have decided. We are going to tell you this is fair, and we are going to ask Parliament—which with few exceptions has little expertise in labour relations—to judge the situation now. Here is the Gold report. We want Parliament to decide that this is a fair basis for the settlement of this dispute." One wonders whether this is to be the pattern of the future. If it is, it might be wise for the government to so announce; to say that if in any future dispute there is a conciliation report presented to both parties in more or less the final hours, such as this, we are going to impose that. That may not be the right way, but it would remove some of the uncertainties that certainly cause these kinds of confrontations.

Another aspect of this is, of course, that we are asked now to make this very important decision on a report which I doubt more than one or two senators have read. As a matter of fact, when the bill was introduced and debated in the other place, a member, actually the spokesman for the official Opposition—who would have greater access than others to the document—said this:

How am I to get through the Gold report between now and committee of the whole—

This was on second reading:

—and how are other members to become au fait with the argument?

This is the kind of criticism of government action in a situation like this which should certainly be called to the attention of the government. They could say, "This was a last-minute thing." Of course it was, but one is entitled to ask why was it a last-minute thing?

The Leader of the Government has given us one very good reason. I will not quote his words exactly, because I am not able to do so. The sense of what he said was that this crisis has been caused by the interference by one party to the strike—in this case the longshoremen—with the natural rights of third parties. That is why the crisis has occurred.

That did not happen just today, or yesterday, or a week ago. This has been the fact of the matter for some time, and this, of course, raises the question as to whether the real problem here is not the inability of the government, of Parliament, of the courts, to enforce the law as it stands, but the inability of society—I say society because I do not lay the blame entirely on the government—to get ordinary citizens like ourselves to keep the law. What is the use of passing another law and saying, "You must keep this one. We are going to insist you keep this law because you did not keep the other one"? This to me does not make sense.

● (1450)

I know it is not fashionable these days to use such a term as "law and order", but I use it without any apology. Surely the time has come to seek an alternative to this kind of government settling of disputes, an alternative based on the determination of the government, whose responsibility it is in the last instance, to see that the law is kept.

I would be most interested to have somebody tell me why it was not possible in this particular case to force those who refused to obey the several injunctions of the court to comply with the law. I do not know. We have seen other examples of this, but I have never heard anybody explain why our society, organized as it is with police forces, even armed forces—although I am not suggesting that that might be a solution here—is not able to insist on enforcement of the law, and why we have to put ourselves in what is to me the ridiculous position of saying, "Because you won't keep this law we are going to pass another law." That seems to me exactly the situation we are in.

I should make it clear that in speaking on this bill I am taking no sides. Obviously it would be utterly foolish of me—and the same can be said of almost any other senator or member of Parliament, with perhaps a few exceptions—to say that I am competent to reach the kind of decision the government is asking us now to reach, which is that Judge Gold's conciliation report, great as it may be, is the proper temporary solution. I am not sure whether it is or not, and I have no way of knowing. Having to speak or vote on it, I would have liked to have had at least 24 hours or so to look at it. This would have been helpful. I will be quite honest in saying that try as I did to get through the report from the time a copy reached me, as it did other senators, I was not able to, and the part of it that I did get through I must say I did not completely understand. However, I am not in any way an expert in labour law.

The Leader of the Government says the government is determined that this is not going to be regarded as a precedent. In that connection he made what to me was a most interesting and hopeful statement. He indicated that the government had decided that this is not going to become a pattern. As I took down his words, he said, to paraphrase him, "It is not the policy of the government to establish a precedent with this bill. Parliament is not going to be used in this way. Those who think so will be disappointed." I think I am quoting him more or less correctly. That seems to indicate the very exciting prospect that the government now really has a policy. They said, "We are not going to be used this way, and anybody who thinks so is going to be disappointed."

I hope, either in this debate or very soon in the future, that the Leader of the Government will explain that statement, and tell us what magical, certainly worthwhile, policy decision has been arrived at. I hope there is one, as I gather there is from listening to the Leader of the Government, who is a member of the Cabinet and who spoke somewhat affectionately of his colleague the Minister of Labour. He was there, and if such a policy has been decided upon it will be the best news that this house has heard in a long time.

[Senator Grosart.]

Naturally when one is critical of an action such as this, one is entitled to be asked, "What other way is there?" I am afraid, not being an expert in this business, I have only two possible answers, which I have already indicated. One is that a greater effort be made to deal with the cause rather than the effect of this situation. As the Leader of the Government said, the cause was the interference by one side in this dispute with the rights of third parties. That is the cause. The effect is this impasse and the emergency situation with which we are faced.

The second answer, which I have already indicated, is the hope that the government will tell us what the policy is, if there is one, and give us a general indication of the attitude it will take towards conciliation reports. I am sure this would help anybody struggling, as both sides no doubt did, to avoid this impasse—a situation in which they say, "What will the government do? Will it come out in advance and support the conciliation report, as it did in the last longshoremen's confrontation of this sort, or will it embody the conciliation report in a bill and ask Parliament to pass it?" I am sure the Leader of the Government would agree with me, having had, I know, some experience in this field, that if there can be some consistency in government policy on these matters it would go a long way—or at least some way—towards preventing this kind of situation.

The bill, as we are told, calls for both the immediate resumption of work, with which I think we all agree, and the implementation of certain terms of the report. I would be interested to be informed before long what the situation is with respect to the last longshoremen's strike. My recollection is that an arbitrator was appointed. He was to make a report, and the terms of his report were to be retroactive to, I think, January 1. It would be interesting to have a progress report on that now that we are embroiled in a similar situation.

It would be useful to all of us, to our judgments and perhaps our consciences, if the Leader of the Government were able to tell us whether the government reached a definite conclusion that it was impossible to prevent the rejection of these injunctions. In many ways this is the crux of the matter, because we have to believe that if the government reached the decision, "Yes, we can; of course we can," then it would have done that. If, as the Leader of the Government has made clear, that is the cause of the crisis, surely the cause would not have existed if the government had decided it could do that, and had done it.

Honourable senators, in spite of what I have said, and what Senator Asselin, our official spokesman on this bill, has said, we are prepared to support the bill, with the reservations we have both made, in the hope—I trust not merely a pious hope—that with this escalation of these crises the government will before very long inform us of what it intends to do to make reasonably sure that we will not have another on May 24.

Hon. J. J. Greene: Honourable senators, I will take but a moment of your time but I believe we would be remiss in this place if someone did not draw the attention of the Senate to what I believe to be a very harmful feature of this bill. I quite agree that the government had a responsibility to respond to a general public need by introducing this bill, as they had to rectify a very difficult situation in the ports of Quebec. They have acted for the majority, for the country as a whole, which the popular assembly, and the government which answers to that assembly, should be able to do.

● (1500)

I have heard much discussion in this place and elsewhere as to the function or the need of the Senate in our constitutional makeup, but if there is one need for it, it surely is to represent minority rights, to represent individual rights, even in a case where they might not be concomitant with the majority desires or the majority rights represented adequately in the other place at any given time.

If in fact Parliament is to be the main safeguard and protector of our individual liberties—and I believe our Constitution so indicates—then it is quite possible that the Senate, which is not responsible on a day-to-day basis for what the majority would do—the tumbrells will not roll for us tomorrow morning if we do not please the majority—should be, for that very reason, the repository of individual rights and liberties.

In that vein, honourable senators, the penal section of the bill disturbs me greatly. Clause 16 begins as follows:

Upon application made on behalf of Her Majesty in right of Canada, the Superior Court in and for the Province of Quebec shall make an order directing any employer or employee organization named or described in the order—

In other words, the courts are to be used as an instrument for carrying out the will of the executive at any given moment. To me this is an extremely dangerous precedent indeed, that the courts shall be a rubber stamp to force some group of individuals to carry out what the executive deems to be needed at any given time.

Surely the courts in a free society must always be the instrumentality that stands between the executive and the individual. If the courts have a judicial function to perform in all this, if they must judge whether someone has in fact broken a law or not, that is fine; but to have a clause in the bill say that the courts must do what the executive tells them to do at any given time would be one of the most dangerous precedents ever to go through a free Parliament. I hope that we in the Senate will agree to delete that provision. I think it is a most injurious one.

If there is to be a penalty, let it be named in the law. It may not be very popular, but I believe that is our system. Let it be named in the law, and if the courts are to adjudicate then let them adjudicate as between the accuser and the accused in the normal judicial fashion. But let it not be a clause in a bill that makes the courts the rubber stamp instrumentality of the executive. I suggest that would be a foot in the door to the type of arbitrary enforcement of the law by the courts that free men have always fought and inveighed against.

Surely here in this Senate we can very properly endorse the principle of the bill, accede to the government's right to do what they have deemed in the other place to be in the general interest of the majority of the people of Canada, while still preserving the individual right and liberty of the subject, and the proper function of the courts, which certainly should not to be used as an arbitrary instrument to arbitrarily enforce the law on behalf of the executive.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear.

Hon. Sidney L. Buckwold: Honourable senators, I think all of us appreciate the point which has been made by our distinguished colleague. We are delighted to hear Senator Greene draw this to our attention. I am not standing up in any way to respond to his point, but I feel that that provision is to prevent the very thing that Senator Asselin pointed out, namely, to minimize the kind of anarchy that "possibly" might evolve if it were not there, and to allow the courts to go into action very quickly. However, I am not in any way trying to justify that.

Honourable senators, I rise because I come from a Prairie region where we have felt very deeply the effects of strikes by those who are employed in industries that involve the grain trade. We have had the support of our colleagues across the way, in both houses, in doing the best we could as a Parliament to ameliorate the problems created in getting the grain moving. For this reason I stand as one who is reciprocating, because I am fully aware of and understand the problems of Quebec farmers who are adversely affected by this strike and by industry as a whole in the province of Quebec.

In listening to the addresses by Senator Asselin and Senator Grosart, I was disappointed that not once were the words "public good" mentioned. We heard about the rights of employers and about the rights of employees, but I would like to feel that the great general public of Canada must also be a very important consideration in the decision-making process when the stage is reached in any strike that the good and welfare of the Canadian public is seriously affected. I feel that the public weal must always be predominant, even in a society such as ours which respects free collective bargaining, a process which is supported by this government, and supported generally by the people of Canada, but I think it has to be controlled when the effects of such strikes, legal or illegal, are such as to create a serious problem for the people of Canada.

I feel that this situation we have now has created such a problem, and I am relieved that the government has seen fit to act in a firm way, even though we feel badly that it was this particular form that the settlements had to take. I am sure both parties to the strike were well aware that the final settlement would have to come in due course from the Parliament of Canada by the enactment of a law if the two parties were not able to agree.

● (1510)

I agree with Senator Asselin that we are likely to experience a period of deep labour unrest in the near future. With respect to labour relations, this is a critical period in the development of our country. We see evidence of recession, growth of unemployment, and inability to meet wage demands and, indeed, profit demands on either side of the bargaining table. We are likely to experience in the coming year a series of confrontations between management and labour, between government and government employees—federally, provincially and locally. Perhaps these confrontations are necessary, but they promise rather serious and trying days ahead.

Part of our problem is that the people on both sides of the bargaining table are caught up in the luxury of growing and continuous expectations. The wage settlements and settlements of other conditions of employment will have to be more realistic to enable the economy to absorb them.

Wage settlements accelerated sharply in the latter part of 1974. They were running roughly double those in the United States. For quite some time now Canadian wage rates, generally, have been rising much more rapidly than those in the United States. Between the first and fourth quarters of 1974 average weekly earnings in the United States rose at an annual rate of 8.2 per cent. The Canadian increase was 11.8 per cent.

The United States average non-farm weekly earnings per worker at December 1, 1974, were $159.80. That was 15 per cent below the Canadian industrial composite weekly earnings of $184.10. In other words, the industrial earnings per worker are now 15 per cent higher in Canada than in the United States.

Using the same basis of comparison a decade ago, the United States weekly earnings were $95.06 while the Canadian earnings were $91.01. The difference that represents between then and now is even more pronounced when one realizes that at that time, 1964, the Canadian dollar was worth 92.75 U.S. cents, compared to the present rate of 99 cents.

In other words, honourable senators, our American friends have already gone through the crisis of bringing wage levels down to meet the ability of the country to absorb them on the basis of productivity and growth of the gross national product, and other factors which affect the ability of a country to maintain itself and its standards of living.

In making these remarks in no way do I intend to detract from the rights of labour to a full and honest day's pay for a full and honest day's work. That is a fundamental right. I am simply suggesting that to be realistic we must consider the ability of the country as a whole to absorb the kinds of increases we are looking at. I make these remarks in the light of the uneasy months I am sure lie ahead of us. I hope the chaos or condition of anarchy depicted by Senator Asselin will never come to be. If it does, it will be up to the government and the courts to maintain the law within the bounds of reason and justice.

I can think of no alternative to the measure before us. Whether or not we like settling strikes this way, it is in the interests of the general public to do so at this time. There is no alternative. For these reasons I hope the Senate will support this bill in its present form.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, Senator Greene raised a point concerning clause 16, the enforcement aspect of the bill. Since he has put the matter before the Senate, perhaps it would not be inappropriate if I were to say a few words on it now.

According to Senator Greene, the application of clause 16(1) may give rise to an arbitrary imposition of the view of the executive with respect to any violation of the act. I must disagree with that view.

First of all, assuming the bill is passed, it will be an act of Parliament that is sought to be enforced. Obviously, an arbitrary decision of the executive would not be involved in a violation of a statute. In the second place—and I think Senator Greene might agree with me—on a careful reading of the bill, it is clear that the order, made by the Superior Court in the province of Quebec in this case, must be made after evidence is heard, because the order would ultimately show, if the evidence justified it, that an employer or employee organization had failed or refused to comply with a provision of the act. The decision of the court in this case must be made after evidence is presented to the court. If an order is then made, and there is continued failure to comply, the party who violates the provision of the act may be cited for contempt. This is a clear case of the law operating in the normal way to avoid the kind of lawlessness, and even anarchy, envisaged by Senator Asselin in his opening remarks. Incidentally, I thought Senator Asselin's remarks were quite good and to the point.

[Senator Buckwold.]

Senator Deschatelets: Senator Connolly, you might also add that there is an appeal provided under this measure.

Senator Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes, clause 16(2) allows for an appeal in any event.

Senator Cook: But that is the normal provision one finds in any act, I believe.

Hon. Edward M. Lawson: Honourable senators, first, I should like to touch on the point to which Senator Connolly has just addressed himself. Initially, I was concerned about the need for any penalty provision, because the Canada Labour Code contains specific penalties for specific offences. Indeed, they are not too dissimilar to what we have here. My concern was with the point Senator Greene raised, and to which Senator Connolly has alluded. I now find myself in agreement with what Senator Connolly has said, however, and my concern is somewhat dispelled.

As I read it, the bill does provide that whoever fails to obey may be cited and punished by the courts for other contempts of court. In my view, the court, on the one hand, has the discretionary authority to deal with the matter, while, on the other hand, the offenders—either the unions or the employers—have the opportunity to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt and why no penalty should be applied. Therefore, I will dismiss that from my concern.

In reference to this legislation, Senator Grosart made some allusion to its being unpalatable. I can assure honourable senators that it is no more palatable to me to have to deal with the matter. There are many things I would rather be doing than speaking to this particular legislation. I would even prefer to absent myself or sit silent, but that would not be the honest thing to do. I must be concerned, because in another arena I represent the workers and the rights of the workers. We must be concerned also with the rights of the employers involved. In other words, we have to acknowledge that there are two sides to the dispute and we have to acknowledge that both sides, both of these groups, are well represented in protecting their concerns. I think we have to objectively direct some attention to the welfare and rights of those who have no one to speak on their behalf, and who may be affected.

● (1520)

You may ask, "What is this mythical group you are talking about?" I think it includes those who are being injured, or who are suffering, as a result of this work stoppage and those who have no recovery power. Many of the workers themselves are future losers, because I know that as a result of strikes of longshoremen—and certainly we have had examples of this on the West Coast—the international reputation of ports in this country is suffering to such a large degree that many hundreds of thousands of tons of freight that would be directed to Canadian ports are being directed to American ports. This results in a direct loss of many thousands of jobs. Therefore, I make no apology to anybody for advancing the views that I propose to advance in support of this legislation, because I think there has to be a concern about what we are doing to jobs, certainly in this period of very high unemployment—and I speak of present jobs, future jobs, and the future reputation of our ports.

Another thing I have to ask myself, before I say I am in favour of, or opposed to, this legislation, is: Has the minister or department involved exhausted every remedy available in trying to effect a settlement? I have to ask myself that, because if there is a too hasty intervention by government—and Senator Grosart expressed his concern about this—it almost becomes a lack of bargaining in good faith, with both sides merely going through a ritual dance while waiting for an intervention, waiting for a third party to come along and resolve the dispute. There should be a clear assurance from the government that this remedy is not to be made readily available on every occasion. It should be put forward with great reluctance. Both sides in any dispute should be assured that this remedy is not readily available if they fail to bargain in good faith and resolve their differences.

I am satisfied from the reports I have read, the history of attempts at conciliation, and the appointment of officers from the department, that every method and every remedy available has been exhausted to find a settlement. Perhaps the only matter that has not been exhausted is the possibility of someone discovering a mine of goodwill, fairness, understanding and communication. That seems to be the major missing ingredient in these labour-management disputes, but no one has found an abundant supply of it. In the absence of a declaration that such a mine of goodwill has been found, it seems to me that there is no alternative other than what we are talking about here.

There is one alternative, of course. We could fold our arms and let the economics of the situation take their course, with the result that in perhaps three months or six months from now we would be attempting to repair the irreparable damage that had taken place. I do not see that as a very satisfactory alternative.

At a time like this, as a result of our concern for the whole situation, not only do we have to ask ourselves whether we have sufficient collective courage to deal with the immediate problem, but we must also direct a considerable amount of attention to finding new and better methods of dealing with this kind of difficulty. For those of us who come from British Columbia it is not a very pretty sight to look out every now and then on the harbour and see what many people think is a new third crossing, since you can almost walk across Burrard Inlet on the decks of ships.

I have met with representatives of various shipping conferences, jointly with representatives of the longshoremen, and we have appealed to them to direct more freight and more tonnage to the West Coast and to other ports in Canada. The answer is always the same—"This will happen when your country can give us a guarantee of a speedy turnaround, and not a loss, as in the case of the last longshoremen's strike."

I understand that the demurrage incurred on the last occasion as a result of the problems with regard to the movement of wheat, and so on, was something like $30 million. This benefits no one. It does not find jobs. It does not benefit the economy. It is like pouring money down a sewer. The groups I mentioned say, "When you can assure us of speedy turnaround, and that we are not going to be penalized with all this demurrage, we will direct many more tons of freight to your ports." Needless to say, this would mean the creation and establishment of many more jobs for Canadian workers.

I would rather be out in the hallways than speaking on this legislation, I assure you, but I think it is time for people who have any understanding or concern with regard to these matters to stand up and be counted. I do not think the exercise of the rights of any individual group or any individual union, including my own, confers the right also to interfere with the nation's commitments in world trade, its reputation internationally, and the protection and preservation of future jobs.

It is with great reluctance that I stand in support of the legislation.

Hon. Eugene A. Forsey: Honourable senators, I had not intended to take part in this debate, and I am very reluctant to do so, especially as the ground has been covered pretty thoroughly by those who have already spoken; but I am still somewhat anxious and disquieted about the point raised by Senator Greene, and I am not entirely clear that the reply made by Senator Connolly disposes of the question.

I speak with great diffidence and deference, because I am not a lawyer, but I cannot help wondering whether the provisions of clause 16 might not lead simply to an ex parte order by the Superior Court. I am not entirely sure that the evidence pro and con would be presented.

I sought Senator Greene's advice on this, and he appears to share the same doubts that I do about whether in fact any evidence would be heard except the evidence of the representative of the Government of Canada. I could not help feeling, as I listened to Senator Greene's speech, that it would have been better if the clause had said, "may make an order", rather than "shall make".

I know that there are all kinds of legal discussions about the meaning of "may" and "shall", but the imperative as it stands there makes me uneasy, and I cannot help wondering whether we can be perfectly sure that in fact the evidence on both sides will be presented, and that there will not simply be an ex parte application which the court will be required to grant.

I should be most grateful for some reassurance on this point beyond what Senator Connolly has already provided, and I apologize if I am merely revealing my own ignorance of legal processes, but it is a serious matter in my judgment. I venture, thereof, to ask the question, and ask for further enlightenment.

Senator Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I do not know that I can be definitive about this, and here I am subject to the criticism of members of the bar of the province of Quebec. I happen to be a member of that bar myself, but I do not practise there as actively as some other members of this chamber. I do not think, however, upon an application being made by the Attorney General on behalf of Her Majesty in right of Canada for an order, that the imperative "shall" makes any difference. Whether it is "may" or "shall" does not matter. I think if an application were made to the court in the circumstances envisaged by clause 16, and if the application had not been served upon the parties affected before the court heard the application, the court would direct service, and I think that would ensure the presenting of evidence in the presence of the opposing party.

Hon. Raymond J. Perrault: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: I wish to inform the Senate that if the Honourable Senator Perrault, P.C., speaks now, his speech will have the effect of closing the debate on the motion for second reading of this bill.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, first of all, as the sponsor of this bill, may I express my appreciation for the thoughtful and constructive remarks made about this proposed measure which have come from all parts of the house. This is a difficult bill for any government to advance and, as I said in my preliminary remarks, it is hoped that no precedent is being set by it. Each case in the past has been dealt with on the basis of the facts available at that time, and on the merits of each particular dispute in the light of public concern.

In this particular case, one of the most persuasive reasons for having the recommendations of Chief Judge Gold incorporated in the legislation before us—an action which certainly differs from the government's action with respect to the West Coast issue—is his great expertise. He undertook, of course, an exhaustive study of this extremely complicated and vexatious problem. It is rather difficult to imagine any other stage beyond the report brought down by Chief Judge Gold, who has done an extremely thorough job and has established a reputation over a long period of years, as I think all honourable senators who have been involved in labour relations will agree.

● (1530)

There is no question whatever—and Senator Grosart and Senator Asselin have quite correctly put forward this point—that we have to seek better solutions to labour-management differences of this kind. To me it would be unthinkable that in the ordinary course of events reference to Parliament should be expected to be the final stage in those labour-management negotiations which come within federal jurisdiction. If we come to the point where either the employee or the employer looks to Parliament as the inevitable final forum to improve upon their last negotiated position in any dispute, then the whole collective bargaining process would be distorted and misused. I think all honourable senators are in agreement on that point. However, no one disputes at all the point made by a number of speakers this afternoon, that there is a continuing need to improve our procedures in both the legislative and non-legislative areas, and that we must perfect, insofar as perfection may be possible, better ways to conduct our industrial relations, especially in a current economic climate which is difficult for all nations, and from which our own nation is not excluded.

[Senator Forsey.]

I would remind honourable senators that the minister has indicated his intention to establish a consultative mechanism which would involve representatives of labour, management and government to assist in the search for new directions. This is a commitment that has been made by the Minister of Labour, and may I say on behalf of the minister that any ideas that honourable senators have on this subject would certainly be welcomed both by the minister and by the government. I think we can all agree on one point, and that is that no one party has a monopoly on all the good ideas and all the beneficial solutions to the problems in our society. And so, as I say, we would certainly welcome constructive suggestions.

Some honourable senators have deplored, and quite rightly so, the necessity for Parliament to act in a number of cases of this kind in recent years. But may I point out that on the positive side lies the fact that the vast majority of all contracts within the federal jurisdiction have been concluded without work stoppages of any kind. Indeed, the figure exceeds 90 per cent, and it seems to me that that fact can be regarded as being quite encouraging in pointing to the general success, the normal success, of the collective bargaining process.

There have been renewals of some very important agreements. One of those resolved the Lakehead Terminal Grain Elevators dispute at Thunder Bay. Then there was the agreement between Air Canada and the International Association of Machinists which was concluded through the normal process. There were renewals of railway agreements at the beginning of the year. All of these settlements were the result of direct negotiations, and the end products of the collective bargaining process. I might also add that all were in industries where crisis bargaining has occurred. This could, perhaps, be regarded as a sign that the parties have seen the benefits of hard but reasonable bargaining.

Reference was made by Senator Asselin to grain supplies in the province of Quebec. The government has, however, continued to receive mounting protests from agricultural producers and livestock farmers in Quebec concerning the gravity of the situation. Reference was made to injunctions by a number of speakers, but injunctions have not been sufficiently effective, and hence the bill which is now before Parliament.

A further reference was made—I think it was in the form of a question—to the hours of work and the members of the International Longshoremen's Union. Pressure to share work equitably among members of the work force should, in the view of the government, ensure that no exaggerated hours are worked by any one individual or small group of individuals. The whole concept of a premium rate includes a built-in discouragement for employers to make excessive use of overtime workers. So, there is a safeguard.

A further reference was made to the obtaining of injunctions. No injunctions were obtained by the government in the course of this dispute; all injunctions were obtained by private interests.

Reference was made to clause 16 of the bill, and here I want to thank particularly Senator Connolly (Ottawa West) and Senator Lawson for their accurate and lucid explanation of this particular clause. The penalty provisions apply to employers' and employees' organizations and trade unions, but not to individuals. The individuals would be dealt with by prosecution under Part V of the Canada Labour Code. That part contains the section under which individuals would be dealt with.

Honourable senators, I hope that the explanations which have been given in the course of this debate on second reading, together with the answers I have given this afternoon, will allay any fears about the measure before us. I want to emphasize the fact, known to many of us, that the situation has now become very acute. It is hoped that in the normal course of events it will be possible for the Senate to give full consideration to this measure this afternoon, so that the Deputy Governor General may give it royal assent later today.

Honourable senators, I ask you to support second reading of this bill.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

● (1540)

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(b), I move that the bill be read the third time now.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, is it agreed?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

ROYAL ASSENT

NOTICE

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that the following communication had been received:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
OTTAWA

April 24, 1975

Madam,

I have the honour to inform you that the Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, in his capacity as Deputy Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 24th day of April, at 5.45 p.m. for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to certain bills.

I have the honour to be,
Madam,
Your obedient servant,
André Garneau
Brigadier General,
Administrative Secretary to the
Governor General.

The Honourable

The Speaker of the Senate.

Ottawa.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN SENATE MEMBERSHIP

Senator Petten, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(i), moved:

That the name of the Honourable Senator Godfrey be substituted for that of the Honourable Senator Benidickson on the list of senators serving on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy; and

That a message be sent to the House of Commons to acquaint that House accordingly.

Motion agreed to.

NATIONAL FINANCE

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Senator Petten, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(a), moved:

That the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance have power to sit while the Senate is sitting on April 30th, May 7th, 14th and 21st, 1975, and that rule 76(4) be suspended in relation thereto.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, you have heard the motion. Is there unanimous consent?

Senator Grosart: No. Honourable senators, I regret to say that I cannot give unanimous consent.

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, I could give an explanation. This motion is moved merely because usually on Wednesday afternoons the Senate has a reasonably short sitting, rising at approximately 3.30 p.m. However, in the event the sitting should be prolonged, and in view of the fact that this committee has some witnesses who must travel from some distance, the committee would like the consent of the Senate in order to accommodate them in such an event. It is very unlikely that the authority would have to be used.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, I have to say that although it may be unlikely, I object to the principle. I have objected previously, and we are now in a position where no attention whatsoever is being paid as far as action on those objections is concerned. Objections have been voiced over and over again by this side, that we should not have these arbitrary decisions as to when committees will sit.

At 5 o'clock last Tuesday four committees were sitting. On Tuesday next week, in spite of all assurances that have been given, this very committee will be sitting at 9:30 a.m., and the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs at 10 a.m. I say that is a contravention of assurances that have been given. I happen to be a member of both committees, and I will not give leave until we receive some action and are told here that no chairman of any committee can set a date for a meeting without clearing it through someone. I do not know who that someone will be, but the time has come when it is utterly impossible for those of us on this side to discharge our duties in attendance at committees.

I am sorry to say at this time that I cannot give leave for such an extension over a period of a month. We have been told over and over again that it is one emergency, a particular case. I knew that this would be extended. We are now asked to grant permission for a month, which is against the principle which has been stated here and against the assurances that we have been given. I regret very much that I cannot give leave.

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, I wish to make just a brief observation. In my opinion, it is a great tribute to the Senate that it is doing so much work that these committee scheduling difficulties have arisen. I regret the fact that it is not possible for the honourable senator to give his consent to this particular motion, but I believe he does welcome the increased work in the Senate.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Senator Petten: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate and notwithstanding rule 45(1)(g), I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Tuesday, April 29, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Before the question is put, I should like to give the customary brief summary of what we can expect for next week. First, the scheduling of committee work: on Tuesday the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs will meet at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. to hear witnesses on Bill S-19. The Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs will meet at 2:30 p.m. to continue its study of Canada-U.S. relations.

On Wednesday the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service will meet at 8 p.m., and the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce will meet at 9:30 a.m. to consider Bill C-13, to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act, after which it will continue its study of competition in Canada. The Standing Senate Committee on National Finance has scheduled a meeting for later that day to continue its examination of the estimates of the Manpower Division of the Department of Manpower and Immigration. I understand that also on Wednesday the Standing Senate Committee on Health, Welfare and Science will meet to consider Bill C-33, respecting the export from Canada of cultural property and the import into Canada of cultural property illegally exported from foreign states. The time for this meeting has not yet been fixed.

● (1550)

On Thursday, the Special Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service will meet at 9:30 a.m.; the National Finance Committee will continue its examination of the Manpower Division of the Department

[Senator Grosart.]

ment of Manpower and Immigration at 9:30 a.m.; the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs will examine Canada's relations with the United States at 10 a.m.; and at the same hour the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture will meet to hear a witness from the Alberta Crop Insurance Commission.

Next week the Senate will continue the debate on the second reading of Bill C-5, and deal with other items now on the Order Paper. It is likely that a bill which we have been awaiting for some time may reach the Senate on Wednesday or Thursday. However, I make no promises in that regard.

Senator Carter: Honourable senators, I wonder if I may be permitted to add to what has already been said, and inform you that it is quite possible that the Standing Senate Committee on Health, Welfare and Science will also meet on Wednesday morning at around 9:30 a.m. The clerk of the committee is trying to clear this with the coordinating committee. The best information I have indicates that it seems to be the only time slot that is acceptable.

Senator Grosart: I wonder if I might ask Senator Carter where he found the coordinating committee? I have been looking for it.

Senator Carter: I understand there is a committee working on this problem. I do not know whether they have yet finalized arrangements. I asked the clerk of the committee to find out whether there was a coordinating committee, and to check with that committee before we fixed a time. He sent me a note a few minutes ago saying that the only possibility that showed up for next week was Wednesday morning at around 9:30 a.m.

Senator Forsey: Honourable senators, perhaps I should add that to the best of my belief the Joint Committee on Regulations and Other Statutory Instruments will meet again next Thursday, although I do not yet know at what time.

Senator Argue: We need more senators.

Senator Haig: Honourable senators, I have raised this question before, of several committees meeting at the same time. I have found out, in the short time I have been around, that you ask the clerk of the committee to find you a room. Next, he looks for reporters. He then gives you the date and the time, and that is what you take. That is the coordinating committee. We have raised this question before. Why cannot the chairmen of committees sit down together and say, for instance, that the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce has preempted Wednesday morning by reason of custom? Why can we not set aside certain days of the week for certain committees? Committees could sit on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings. That could be done easily, with the staff that we have in this Chamber. I do not understand why the chairmen of committees, plus officials, cannot get together and work out some way by which three, four or five committees can meet at the same hour.

Senator Perrault: May I remind Senator Haig, who has been absent from the Senate for a few days and may not be aware of this fact, that an all-party committee of the Senate has been formed, made up of Senator Bourget and Senator Cook, and Senator Macdonald representing the Opposition, to evolve precisely this kind of schedule.

Furthermore, it is my hope to meet with the Leader of the Opposition next week to resolve some of the scheduling problems which arise from the fact that such a volume of work is now coming to the Senate. The agenda has been drawn up for that meeting, and a report has been prepared with respect to suggested days for the various committees to meet. I hope we can offer some useful solutions by this time next week.

Senator Haig: Thank you very much. You anticipated me by two or three weeks.

Senator Grosart: With leave—otherwise I might be out of order in speaking twice in the same debate—I would like to make a comment—

The Hon. the Speaker: Is leave given?

Hon. Senators: Yes.

Senator Argue: Of course. I hope Senator Grosart speaks three or four times. I think it is good.

Senator Grosart: Any schedule, in my view, will be useless unless there is a clear directive to chairmen of committees that they cannot arrange a meeting until it is cleared by someone. This week I asked the chairmen of two committees whose meetings conflicted, "Did you ask anyone what committees you might be conflicting with?" In both cases they said no—and that after all the talk about this.

Motion agreed to.

QUEBEC OFFICIAL LANGUAGE ACT

DECISION OF GOVERNMENT ON PETITION—QUESTION

Senator Forsey: Honourable senators, I would like to ask the Leader of the Government a question, which I think he will have to take as notice. I sent it to him beforehand. But I realize it is impossible for him really to reply today. The question is:

1. Has the government made any decision in regard to the petition of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards and other interested citizens, submitted on February 17 last, for a reference of the Quebec Official Language Act to the Supreme Court of Canada, or alternatively for the disallowance of the said act by the Governor General in Council?

2. If not, when may such decision be expected?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, I would like to take that question as notice.

CANADIAN RADIO-TELEVISION AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION BILL

SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

On the Order:

Second reading of the Bill C-5, intituled: "An act to establish the Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, to amend the Broadcasting Act and other Acts in consequence thereof and to enact other consequential provisions".—(Honourable Senator Petten).

Hon. Eugene A. Forsey: Honourable senators, Senator Petten has confided to me the task of moving the second reading of this bill, and I accordingly so move.

The Hon. the Speaker: It is moved by the Honourable Senator Forsey, seconded by the Honourable Senator Heath, that this bill be now read the second time.

Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion?

Senator Forsey: Honourable senators, having a very vivid recollection of the tribulations of Senator Laird when he described a certain bill as a simple bill, I shall not yield to the temptation to use that unfortunate word again. I think, however, that I may call this a relatively uncomplicated bill in essence. There is a good deal of it, but essentially the bill is not really very complicated. There are certain preliminary observations that I wish to make about the bill in general, before turning to somewhat detailed, although I hope not too detailed, consideration of it.

One is that this is only part of the government's policy on communications. The minister has made that very clear. The parliamentary secretary has, I think, also made it very clear. I emphasize it here because in the other place and in the committee of the other place I think there was a disposition on the part of members to survey mankind from China to Peru, a disposition to go into the whole question of telecommunications policy, every aspect of it, to consider what had taken place in the past and what was likely to take place in the future if this bill went into effect.

I can understand that and I don't suggest that it is entirely illegitimate, but I suspect that we can save the time of the house if we postpone the consideration of some of these large questions of policy until the further part of the government's policy on this subject, the more essential policy part of that policy, is before us.

This bill is really only an administrative measure. Essentially what it does is, first of all, very simply, to rename the Canadian Radio and Television Commission, leaving the same initials. I have forgotten what the proper term is now. It is one of these new words which I haven't succeeded in acquiring. I think the French word is "sigle" but I do not know what the English is. I say, by way of excuse, that all the documentation that came to me from the department on this subject seemed to be in French only. That is why I happen to know what the word is in French but haven't got the English word. That is the first thing it does: it renames the Canadian Radio and Television Commission.

In the second place it provides—there are really three changes here—it provides for an enlargement of that commission, for reasons which will appear in a moment, and in the third place it transfers the jurisdiction over telecommunications other than broadcasting, a jurisdiction which now rests with the Canadian Transport Commission, and more particularly the Communications Committee of that commission, to the new CRTC. It transfers that jurisdiction to the new and enlarged Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission. That is essentially what it does, and the various other provisions of the bill are really consequential on that and involve certain consequential amendments to a number of acts, notably the Broadcasting Act, the Railway Act and the National Transportation Act, if I remember correctly.

● (1600)

I should also say, in view of certain questions that were raised elsewhere, that the provinces have been fully consulted about this bill and have raised no objections to it; very naturally, because it still leaves all the policy questions in the air. Nobody is yet aware, outside the inner circle of the government itself of course, what the rest of the government policy on the subject will be. This mere administrative transfer has not raised any objections at all from the provinces. I can quote the exact statement of the minister on that subject if anybody wants to have it, but I think it is quite sufficient just to summarize what he said.

One of the consequential changes—I think it might be called a consequential change—is that, whereas under the Broadcasting Act at present the Canadian Radio-Television Commission reports to Parliament through the Secretary of State, it will henceforth, if this bill goes into effect, report through the Minister of Communications. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will continue to report to Parliament through the Secretary of State.

Extra members will be added. At present there are five full-time members of the CRTC and ten part-time members. Under this bill there will be nine full-time members and ten part-time members, the extra members being required, of course, essentially to perform the functions now performed by the Communications Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission. That committee consists, I believe, of three persons. What is happening here is that four people are added. I do not know precisely why they added one extra, but anyway that is what they have done. The terms of office are much the same as they are for the present members of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission. They are appointed during good behaviour. The full-time members are appointed for a term of seven years and the part-time members for a term of five years. They all retire automatically on reaching the age of 70, and they are eligible for reappointment, the part-time members being eligible for two consecutive terms, although after that they are not eligible again for a period of twelve months. The present members of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission will continue to carry on for the period of their appointment, the period for which they hold commissions, and that particular feature of the legislation is, of course, simply, as it were, a consequential part of it.

The question of proceedings that are taking place before the present CRTC and the Communications Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission is provided for. In effect it amounts to this. In general, whether they are new proceedings or otherwise, they will be transferred to the new commission, but if something has already been heard by, for example, the Communications Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission but not decided upon, it will continue to be looked after by what the bill calls the "former authority" for these purposes.

[Senator Forsey.]

There is also provision for the Governor in Council to make exceptions in the case of other matters. That is in clause 16, which perhaps I had better read, as it is somewhat complicated. I shall abbreviate. It says:

Where . . . any proceedings relating to any telecommunication matter are pending before the Canadian Transport Commission or any proceedings are pending before the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, which Commissions are in this section referred to as the "former authority", the proceedings shall be taken up and continued before the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission; but where on the coming into force of this Act any such matter is in the course of being heard or investigated by the former authority but no order or decision had been rendered thereon, the former authority shall, subject to subsection (2) but otherwise notwithstanding this Act, complete the hearing . . . and make an order or render a decision, as the case may be.

And for such purposes the former authority shall continue to exist. Subsection (2) provides that:

The Governor in Council may, by order, direct that any matter specified in the order that is in the course of being heard or investigated by the former authority . . . but on which no order or decision has been rendered shall, notwithstanding subsection (1), be taken up and continued before the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission on such terms and conditions as are specified in the order for the protection and preservation of the rights and interests of the parties to the matter and of the general public."

There will be not, as now, a vice-chairman of the commission but two vice-chairmen. The intention, I think, is to have the commission operate very largely in three committees, one of which will deal with broadcasting, one with other telecommunications; for the moment I have forgotten what the third one is expected to deal with. In any event, this is the idea. There will be panels that will consider various aspects of matters which will be entrusted to the commission. That is to be found in clause 6.

There will be, as at present, an executive committee consisting of the full-time members. Its powers and position will be very much the same as at present. Under subclause (2) of clause 12, dealing with the executive committee, the number will go up from three to five, and the quorum will be increased from its present figure to a majority of the nine full-time members of the commission.

There is a small change with regard to the head office. The head office of the CRTC at present is in Ottawa. The head office of the new commission can be in either the National Capital Region or anywhere else in Canada that the government may direct. The intention apparently is, from what the minister said elsewhere, to keep the head office in Ottawa and have the new commission, where and when necessary, travel round the country for hearings, as the present CRTC has, of course, conspicuously done.

There is provision for bylaws and for the creation of special or standing committees, as might be expected.

Clause 14 deals with the powers of the new commission, which I think one might say are substantially the same as those of the present commission in relation to broadcasting and in relation to other telecommunications, substantially the powers of the present Canadian Transport Commission and its Communications Committee.

I have not attempted to go into much detail, because presumably the bill will go to committee, where evidence will be heard and where the officials will be present to answer questions. However, there are one or two things I should like to say about this bill in conclusion.

One question that has been brought up elsewhere is the possibility of having provincial government representation by appointees of the provincial governments on the new commission. The minister said he had suggested to the provincial governments that a certain number might be appointed after consultation—or words to that effect—with the provincial governments, but apparently that is one of the matters still hanging in the air; no decision has been taken upon it. I am myself a little bit leery of direct provincial representation on this commission. I think we already have enough divisive, or potentially divisive, things in our public affairs without adding to them by having provincial representation on this commission which it seems to me should be concerned rather with the whole overwhelmingly national aspects of this subject.

● (1610)

As far as broadcasting is concerned, it seems to me to be quite clear that the jurisdiction lies exclusively with the Parliament of Canada. As far as other telecommunications are concerned, of course, with interprovincial telegraphs, telephones and so on, again the jurisdiction clearly lies exclusively with the Parliament of Canada.

There are of course provincial enterprises in the telecommunications field, operating solely within the limits of a province, which come, as I understand it, entirely within provincial jurisdiction, and no doubt it is desirable that there should be some kind of co-ordination of policy, if at all possible, between the provincial governments concerned, dealing with the purely provincial enterprises, and the national government and the agencies responsible to it for the enterprises which are under exclusively Dominion jurisdiction.

I am a little uneasy about the possibility of the provinces getting rather too large a share of this. I notice that the Official Opposition in the other house appeared to be uneasy about their not getting a large enough share and seemed to be very strong on the desirability of having provincial representation. This is a matter of policy and it remains to be seen what policy will actually be followed. The government may succeed in arriving at a “juste milieu”, a happy medium, a golden mean, between the two positions, and may see to it that there is adequate provincial representation without having too much provincial representation. People's opinions will differ about what is adequate and what is too much.

Another point raised in the other place was that there is no provision in this measure for consumer representation or any kind of consumer advisory committee or anything of that sort. The minister's reply to that was to the effect that in considering appointments to be made to this commission it would be the policy to try to see that consumer representation was provided and that differing interests as well as different regions were adequately represented. Again, of course, we do not know exactly what will happen there. That will depend on the choice of the people who will go on the commission.

There will be the four new positions to fill and I believe that several of the present commissioners on the CRTC are approaching the end of their term, so that within a year or two there may be other positions to fill. I have heard it suggested that one danger may be that on the new commission there will be too much representation of what might be described as the technological part of the whole business and not enough representation of the public interest as contrasted with the narrowly technological aspects of the thing. Again I think we shall have to see what kind of appointments are made. I hope we can take it for granted that the government will be very careful in making these appointments and will appoint people of standing and capacity, people with a reasonable knowledge of the subject or capable of acquiring a reasonable knowledge within a short time. I hope very much that we can count upon the government disregarding to the greatest possible degree partisan considerations in making appointments. I hope we shall not see loyal party organizers and loyal party supporters of one kind or another rewarded by appointments to this commission. I think it would be very unfortunate, especially in view of the fact that this body will have control over the whole field of data processing and that sort of thing, if the new appointments to the commission appear to have a partisan tinge to them. I trust very much that the government will repel any temptation of that sort and will resist any pressures which I know any government is always subject to, to look after “poor old so and so who is perhaps a little bit past his best but after all has done an immense amount for the party.” I think that in certain instances in the past governments of both parties have been perhaps a little too open to pressure to appoint people who were politically desirable.

There is one final remark I have to make, and that is that I hope very much that the new commission, when it deals with applications from Bell Canada, will show itself a little more stiff-necked, shall I say, than the Communications Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission has done, I have felt very uneasy over and over again about the way in which the Canadian Transport Commission has handled applications from Bell Canada. I may be perhaps a little prejudiced, I don't know, but I have felt uneasy about the way these things have been handled. There have been widespread protests. I notice that in the other place a variety of people, while not enchanted with this bill, nevertheless were inclined to say that a changing of jurisdiction over the telephone companies from the Transportation—I do not know why I keep stumbling over these things; you would think I had been imbibing freely but the strongest thing I had today was Sanka coffee—any change from the communications committee of the Canadian Transport Commission was almost certain to be a change for the better. Hopes were expressed, which I entirely share, that the new commission, in dealing with applications from Bell Canada, or any interprovincial telephone system, would be a great deal stiffer and a great more searching in its inquiries and give much more opportunity to consumers to be represented in the hearings, than the Canadian Transport Commission has shown a disposition to do.

I hope that is an adequate summary of the bill. I hope honourable senators will agree that it is a relatively uncomplicated bill in effect, though there are a variety of provisions which make it a fairly long one. If there are any questions which honourable senators wish to ask, I shall do my best to answer them, though I think they could more profitably be directed to the minister and his officials when this bill goes to committee, as I assume that it will.

If I do have to answer from the brief which has been provided to me by the department, a massive brief, I am afraid I shall have to answer by quoting from the French text, rather than try my hand at an amateur's translation. I know some of the perils of translation, even in the hands of professionals. I am a very poor amateur at the job and I should very much hesitate to try my hand even at translating from French into English. So if someone wants information and he does not understand French, he had better get his little earpiece in and listen to the translation of whatever I read from the departmental brief. But personally I think it is very unlikely that anyone would get much information out of me that he or she would not get very much better from the officials when the bill goes to committee.

I trust that is a sufficient dissertation on this really administrative and technical measure which involves essentially no policy change whatever.

Senator Grosart: Honourable senators, I move the postponement of the debate.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, it is moved by the Honourable Senator Grosart, seconded by the Honourable Senator Macdonald, that this debate be adjourned until the next sitting of the Senate.

Senator Choquette: Senator Grosart has moved that it be postponed, rather than adjourned.

The Hon. the Speaker: Postponed, until when?

Senator Grosart: The next sitting.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion?

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 5.45 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

ROYAL ASSENT

The Honourable Wishart F. Spence, O.B.E., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, having come and being seated at the foot of the Throne, and the House of Commons having been summoned, and being come with their Speaker, the Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to give the Royal Assent to the following bills:

An Act to provide for the resumption and continuation of longshoring, checking, cargo repairing and related operations at certain ports in the Province of Quebec.

An Act to amend the Law Reform Commission Act.

An Act to amend the Railway Act.

An Act to amend the Civil Service Insurance Act.

An Act to repeal the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act and to amend the Trade Marks Act.

The House of Commons withdrew.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to retire.

The sitting of the Senate was resumed.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, April 29, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, April 29, 1975

The Senate met at 8 p.m., Honourable George McIlraith, P.C., Speaker pro tem in the Chair.

Prayers.

IMMIGRATION POLICY

SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker pro tem informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Prud'homme has been substituted for that of Mr. Caccia on the list of members appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee on Immigration Policy.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Report of the National Energy Board for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 91 of the National Energy Board Act, Chapter N-6, R.S.C., 1970.

Copies of a contract between the Government of Canada and the Town of Devon, Alberta, for the use or employment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, pursuant to section 20(3) of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, Chapter R-9, R.S.C., 1970 (English text).

Report relating to the administration of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1975, pursuant to section 41(2) of the said Act, Chapter F-5, R.S.C., 1970.

Document entitled "Communications: Some Federal Proposals," issued by the Minister of Communications and dated April 1975.

Copies of Order in Council P.C. 1975-879, dated April 22, 1975, appointing Robert Broughton Bryce, Esquire, a Commissioner under Part I of the Inquiries Act to inquire into, report upon and make recommendations concerning the concentration of corporate power in Canada.

Copies of Order in Council P.C. 1975-963, dated April 25, 1975, appointing Mr. Justice Willard Zebedee Estey a Commissioner under Part I of the Inquiries Act to inquire into and report upon the system of financial controls, accounting procedures and other matters related to the fiscal management and control of Air Canada.

Copies of a document entitled "Economic Review, April 1975," issued by the Minister of Finance.

LABOUR CONDITIONS

STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN IN QUEBEC—BACK-TO-WORK LEGISLATION—QUESTION

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, may I ask the Leader of the Government what the situation is at the St. Lawrence ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivières and Quebec in relation to the back-to-work legislation passed by Parliament last week? Has there been a return to work as yet at those ports; if not, is anything being done to get the men back to work?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, it is my hope that before the Senate rises this evening I will be in a position to report on the situation at the St. Lawrence ports. Some information is coming in.

Senator Asselin: That was my prediction. Too bad!

NATIONAL DEFENCE ACT AND CRIMINAL CODE (TOTAL ABOLITION OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT)

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from Thursday, April 17, the debate on the motion of Senator Argue for second reading of Bill S-23, to amend the National Defence Act and the Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment).

Hon. John M. Macdonald: Honourable senators, it is not my purpose this evening to speak at any length on this bill. I have spoken on the subject of capital punishment many times in the past, and I think my views on that subject are well known. The fact that we have two bills before the Senate dealing with the subject of capital punishment is, I think, an indication of the strong feelings that are held regarding capital punishment. The objectives of these two bills are directly opposite, one seeking to have the death penalty carried out when it is imposed without a recommendation for mercy, and the other, Bill S-23—the bill on which I am speaking this evening—seeking to abolish capital punishment altogether.

Personally, I am opposed to capital punishment on principle and, therefore, support this bill. It is my hope that my remarks this evening will perhaps have some influence on those who do not now hold strong views on the question. May I say at once, honourable senators, that I understand and appreciate the viewpoint of those who wish capital punishment to be retained. Indeed, they make a very strong case for its retention. Their arguments are oftentimes convincing and, of course, their sincerity cannot be doubted. However, while I concede and acknowledge their sincerity, and the sincerity of their beliefs and their principles, I only hope that they in turn will do the same for those of us who are abolitionists. They hold sincere convictions on this question, and so do we.

I confess I have become a little tired of hearing that we who are for abolition have been swayed by sentiment, that we are do-gooders, that we think only of the criminal and not of his victim—the widow and the children. Indeed, oftentimes the impression is left that we who favour the abolition of capital punishment are either soft-hearted or soft-headed, or both. It has been stated, and stated in this chamber, that we who are categorically opposed to the death penalty are persons who have very little contact with the criminal element, and that if we had more contact we might alter our views. I suppose in a way such a statement is a compliment to us, although not in the view of those who are in favour of the retention of capital punishment.

Practically all the discussion on capital punishment is about the punishment for murder, but if we look at Bill S-23 we see that clauses 2 to 8 inclusive do not deal with murder or, indeed, with any crime to be found in the Criminal Code. These clauses are amendments to the National Defence Act. It is not my intention to deal with each of those sections of the National Defence Act which we hope to have amended, but some reference should be made to them as there is wording that is common to them all.

Clause 2 would amend section 63 of the National Defence Act. What does this section say? It reads:

Every officer in command of a vessel, aircraft, defence establishment, unit or other element of the Canadian Forces who

(a) when under orders to carry out an operation of war or on coming into contact with an enemy that it is his duty to engage, does not use his utmost exertion to bring the officers and men under his command or his vessel, aircraft, or his other material into action;

(b) being in action, does not, during the action, in his own person and according to his rank, encourage his officers and men to fight courageously;

(c) when capable of making a successful defence, surrenders his vessel, aircraft, defence establishment, material, unit or other element of the Canadian Forces to the enemy;

(d) being in action, improperly withdraws from the action;

(e) improperly fails to pursue an enemy or to consolidate a position gained;

(f) improperly fails to relieve or assist a known friend to the utmost of his power; or

(g) when in action, improperly forsakes his station;

is guilty of an offence and on conviction, if he acted traitorously, shall suffer death, if he acted from cowardice is liable to suffer death or less punishment, and in any other case is liable to dismissal with disgrace from Her Majesty's service or to less punishment.

Other sections to be amended by eliminating the death penalty deal with matters of national security, prisoners of war, spying and mutiny. However, it should be noted that in the multitude of offences under sections 63, 64, 65 and 66 of the National Defence Act, the person charged must have acted traitorously to be liable to the death penalty, while this is not so in the case of the other sections mentioned in the bill.

[Senator Macdonald.]

● (2010)

Honourable senators, let us consider just for the moment the vile implications of these sections. They imply that the Canadian Forces contain people who are traitors or who are cowards. What a wicked, what a vicious, what an ignoble insinuation. I believe these sections to be a base and dishonest slander on the Canadian Forces past and present. Anyone who served in the armed forces knows that. May I mention the fact that I was in the army during World War II and served overseas. I will tell you that the armed forces are not composed of men who are great sinners or great saints, although both are to be found there. The forces are and were composed of ordinary Canadians—people who do the job they are supposed to do to the best of their ability.

Yes, honourable senators, in the Canadian Forces could be found both saints and sinners but you would never find traitors and you would never find cowards. The Canadian forces have always served with honour and with distinction. They may have been criticized for many things, but I have never heard it stated, nor have I even heard it implied, that there were either traitors or cowards among them.

The National Defence Act is not one which comes under frequent public scrutiny. Its provisions are not of widespread public interest. This is evident from the fact that the provisions I have mentioned are still in the act. I believe that to allow the implication to remain that in the ranks of the Canadian Forces there are traitors and cowards is an insult. It is an insult not only to the present members of the forces but to those who served in days gone by. It is an insult to those who died while upholding the highest traditions of the Canadian Armed Forces—yes, upholding to the death the traditions of honour, of service and of dedication—proving, if any proof were needed, that the Canadian Forces were composed of brave men and women for whom the words “traitor” and “coward” were foreign and had no place in their vocabulary.

To leave these provisions in the National Defence Act is not only an insult to the living members of the Canadian Forces, present or retired, but is an outrage and a blasphemy against the dead.

Regardless of what we do with bills dealing with capital punishment, let us in any event do away with those sections of the National Defence Act which directly or indirectly imply that any members of the Canadian Forces could be either traitors or cowards.

Honourable senators, at various times in the past I have expressed my opinion that capital punishment should be abolished. Indeed, I have sponsored bills to that effect in previous sessions. Being of that opinion, I am pleased to support this bill. Senator Argue put forward most of the arguments used by the abolitionists. I will not repeat them now. I am certainly familiar with the arguments usually held forth by the retentionists. These same arguments have been used over the years: An eye for an eye; let the punishment fit the crime; we must deter others from committing similar crimes.

In days long gone by the landlord said, “Stop others from stealing my sheep.” Now the retentionists claim that to hang the man or woman who kills the policeman or prison guard will prevent others from doing the same thing. Well, perhaps it will. Who knows? It is not capable of proof one way or the other. But in days gone by the death penalty did not deter the murderer; it did not deter the thief; it did not deter the pickpocket or the sheep stealer. I point out, honourable senators, a fact which I think is often overlooked, and that is that capital punishment is a punishment. It is how the murderer is to be punished for his crime. It is a punishment to be inflicted on persons who are convicted for various offences under the National Defence Act. The theory that it serves as a deterrent was developed to justify that type of punishment when, in a more humane time people had begun to question it. Death, as a punishment for murder, was understandable when all judicial punishments were harsh and brutal, although I have read that in civilizations less advanced or enlightened than ours the murderer was not killed, but was made to work and support the widow and other dependants of his victims.

Honourable senators, one can understand the attitude of the prison guard. His duty is a dangerous one. He feels that a murderer can kill him with impunity. But does his apprehension that prison security measures may not be sufficient justify the death penalty? Personally, I think it would be more reasonable to tighten the necessary security measures for the protection of prison guards.

In any event, I think we must look at this question from the point of view of society as a whole. Is the community or the human family, or whatever we call it, better or worse if capital punishment is left, or if it is abolished? We have seen that over the years capital punishment has been wholly abolished in some countries, and partially in others. In Canada it has been abolished in most cases, in fact, if not in name. Personally, I believe that the next logical and progressive step to be taken is the total abolition of this punishment. I believe that such an action would be good for our society. I believe the retention of capital punishment to be a bad thing. It has an unwholesome effect on society in general. I think it has a bad effect because it continues to allow, and so to encourage, the use of violence. By allowing violence in the administration of justice, the state shows that violence is an acceptable thing. There is an old saying, yet a very true one, that violence begets violence. We have become so accustomed to violence that it no longer has the power to shock or to horrify us. By meeting violence with violence we will not create an environment which will allow people to live and work in tranquillity and peace.

For those who feel that the death penalty is necessary as a deterrent, may I quote a statement issued in 1973 by the Canadian Catholic Conference—an association of the Roman Catholic cardinals, archbishops and bishops of Canada. It may be helpful to those who are still uncommitted, as it were, in the matter. The statement is this:

There is also a pragmatic, statistical question whether the death penalty is an effective deterrent. We will not enter this debate. Our question is not whether the death penalty is an effective deterrent; our question is whether it is an absolutely necessary deterrent, required by good order in Canada today. Unless you are convinced that it is, then we feel that the presumption should be for suspension. Furthermore, in our opinion, the case for retention of the death penalty has not been proven.

To strengthen further the argument for abolition I refer to the paper entitled Theology and the Death Penalty, which was circulated to all members of this house just a few days ago, and which is signed by W. Clarke MacDonald, chairman of the Task Force for Abolition of Capital Punishment, of the Canadian Council of Churches.

Honourable senators, Bill S-23 can be divided into two parts, one dealing with offences under the Criminal Code, and the other with offences under the National Defence Act. Let us face facts. One has to take a realistic view of the reception that this bill will receive. From the debate on the other bill, Bill S-21, we know that there probably are strong objections to the passage of this bill, and looking at the situation in a practical fashion we should realize that even if the bill should pass in the Senate, its passage in the other place is highly debatable. There is further doubt of its passage in view of the fact that the present law on capital punishment still has some years to run before it is to be reviewed. Nevertheless, if by chance the passage of this entire bill is not possible at the present time, then it is my hope that it should be suitably amended so that at least those clauses dealing with the National Defence Act could become law, because I would anticipate that there would be very little, if any, objection to their passage either here or in the House of Commons.

Honourable senators, I ask you to support the passage of this bill.

● (2020)

Hon. L. P. Beaubien: Honourable senators, it is not my intention to contradict anything that my distinguished colleague has said, but I must state that in my view the one problem that faces Parliament today is that of keeping order and peace in this country. The crime record of the last 12 years shows a marked increase in the number of kidnappings and murders, not to mention the increase in the number of marauding armed gangs. About 20 times as many people are being shot by these gangs today than in 1963. In my view, this underlines the fact that we have to look at the entire situation. I am not saying that capital punishment is the one thing that is needed, but I am saying that we have to find an effective deterrent.

History tells us that when the Roman legions marched back from the four corners of Europe to try to keep the barbarians from sacking Rome, which they were unsuccessful in doing, great walls sprang up everywhere all over Europe. People built moats and drawbridges, and nobody dared to go out unless he was armed to the teeth and accompanied by a band of bold retainers. Everything turned to what has been so well described as the Dark Ages. We have a similar situation now in Montreal. There have been five instances this year when bank managers or their wives have been kidnapped and threatened. In one case a bank paid a $400,000 ransom to have the victim released. We have arrived at a point where murders are being committed every day. It is not my intention to stress the importance or significance of statistics, because they can be terribly warped. But let us take a look at the crime of armed robbery. If a man walks into a bank and holds up a teller, whether he shoots that teller frequently depends on the teller himself; if he tries to resist, the robber kills him. The amount of crime that is being committed today is 50 times what it was in 1963.

Honourable senators, the first responsibility of any government is the keeping of the Queen's peace, or however you want to term it. This is a tremendous responsibility. If our citizens cannot walk the streets without fear; if a person with something of value in his possession is not safe, can we say that we are fulfilling our duty? I am just sick and tired of those who parade around full of good intentions, telling us that we have to do everything possible for the poor criminals. They are birds that we let out on weekends to get married, to go running off anywhere they choose. When they are hard up and need a little money they put on a mask and rob the first bank they find.

I do not pretend to have a solution but I do contend that many of you are talking through your beards. Look at the problem in a way that will make some sense, and try to come up with something other than being nice to them and allowing them to end up shooting someone. I am not speaking of the person who goes after his poor grandmother with an axe, or gets up on a building and shoots a lot of people he doesn't even know. I am speaking of people who have declared war against our type of civilization, people who belong to organized gangs and go out armed to the teeth, and at the first drop of a hat shoot a policeman or anyone else who gets in their way. It is war. Why should certain murderers be subject to the death penalty, while others are not? It doesn't make sense. These criminals have declared war, and are waging war against society. Crime is well organized; it is big business. If I could come home every Monday or Tuesday with $5,000 or $6,000 in my pocket—money which I have taken at gunpoint while wearing a mask; money on which I do not pay any taxes—do you not think I could live high on the hog? It is time that Parliament got down to looking at what is the problem. It is not whether a policeman or a prison guard is shot, or whether a man goes berserk and shoots his wife or does something horrible like that. Perhaps we cannot deal with those people. However, if I am a member of a gang and I go out and hold up somebody at gunpoint and threaten his life, I am fighting civilization and everything it stands for. If capital punishment is not the solution, then we must find the solution. Sentencing men to 18 months and allowing them out on weekends when they are tired of being in jail has not worked as a solution. Stop talking all this nonsense about your conscience and everything else. Remember that you are here as legislators and that you have a responsibility—and meet it. That is the only thing I ask of you.

On motion of Senator O'Leary, debate adjourned.

● (2030)

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S YEAR

DEBATE CONTINUED

On the Order:

Resuming the debate on the inquiry of the Honourable Senator Quart calling the attention of the Senate to International Women's Year—(Honourable Senator Fergusson, P.C.)

[Senator Beaubien.]

Hon. Margaret Norrie: Honourable senators, in the absence of Senator Fergusson, I ask leave to resume the debate.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Norrie: Honourable senators, International Women's Year has started off in a lively manner, signifying that a large percentage of women all over Canada are intensely hopeful of brighter days ahead, while others remain understandably cynical and cannot believe that any real improvement in the quality of opportunity between men and women will ever take place.

All this tremendous interest by women, and for women, is taking place because the United Nations General Assembly has proclaimed 1975 as International Women's Year. It will be devoted to intensified action.

I would refer honourable senators to Senator Quart's speech on March 19 last in which she stated the three main objectives of International Women's Year. I would like to re-emphasize those three main objectives, as repetition does no harm. The first is to promote equality between men and women; the second is to ensure full integration of women into the total development effort, especially by emphasizing women's responsibility and important role in economics, and social and cultural development, at the national, regional and international levels; and third, to increase the contribution of women to the development of friendly relations and cooperation among states and to the strengthening of world peace.

The key words are "intensified action." This is a desire to focus attention on the unsatisfactory status of women in the world, and to make a concerted effort to improve conditions and attitudes which have been taken for granted and considered normal for centuries.

The dignity and worth of the individual person, and the equal rights of men and women, are explicitly stipulated in the Charter of the United Nations adopted in 1945. The principle of equal rights was reaffirmed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948, in the Declaration on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women of 1967, and in many other international instruments. But despite formal acceptance of the principle, its implementation has been extremely slow and discouraging.

Helvi Sipilä is Assistant Secretary General for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs for the United Nations. A native of Finland, a lawyer and judge, she has worked in international organizations since 1943, and is the highest ranking woman in the United Nations. She says:

Until now the political will to promote equal rights, opportunities and responsibilities between men and women has been missing. It is now agreed that a unified approach to development requires all individuals to participate in the development process, including the planning and decision making. All individuals also must have the right to share in the benefits desired.

In many countries women are still legally inferior. In Italy, for instance, the woman is undoubtedly the boss in the home, but the wage earner is the husband. That field has been considered the masculine province. Opinion polls show that 72 per cent of Italian women are not interested in politics, and only 5 per cent are enrolled in a political party. If given an allowance of 25,000 lire per month, four out of five women would prefer to stay at home. I contacted the bank to find out how much a lira was worth, and found that 606 lire equals $1. That means that for $40 a month the Italian woman would gladly stay at home.

Only 20 per cent of the working population are women. There appears to be no interest in a law on women's rights, which has been languishing in parliamentary files in that country since 1971. On the whole, Italian women are happy in their role as homemaker and wife.

In Denmark, women have been very progressive. The Danish National Women's Union was formed in 1871. The KS, as it is called, began fighting for legal equality and the right to vote. They were less violent and spectacular than those led by English and American suffragettes, but just as stubborn. One hundred years later, their pace slowed, but in 1973 three women were included in the Social Democrat cabinet, and one woman was in the Department of Finance. At the present time, the KS does not think things are moving fast enough. Many controversial subjects have divided the voters, such as an enlarged European Economic Community and total freedom to obtain abortions, and have alienated many members of KS.

In Holland, the Dutch working women began to manifest themselves in the 1960s. Today, women represent a quarter of the entire work force, but only a third of those hold full-time jobs. Men are in favour of social emancipation for women. A recent study undertaken for IWY shows that 20 per cent of Dutch women who work outside the home are skilled, as against 7 per cent of men. Twelve per cent of top executives are males, whereas 3 per cent are females. Women feel they receive less pay for equal work.

In Belgium are encountered somewhat the same problems as those we have in Canada. A protest group called Equal Jobs, Equal Pay is one of the most dynamic of women's movements. More women are entering universities, accounting for 35 per cent of current university enrolments. In the March elections there were 26 women in Parliament out of a total of 390 members. Only one woman is a minister out of a total of 29.

In Sweden, laws made women equal to men as far back as 1932. The latest of these laws gives women the exclusive right to decide, up to the twelfth week, whether they want to terminate a pregnancy. Once embarked on a career, the Swedish woman is in complete control of the money she earns, and files her own income tax return, even when married. Discrimination is forbidden in job advertisements, although it continues in practice when it comes to filling a post. There is still much to be accomplished. Ideal equality is not found in the Riksdag—the Diet—where there are only 74 women out of 350 deputies, or in the cabinet, or “at the top.” From January 1, only male heirs can succeed to the throne.

● (2040)

The image of German womanhood is traditionally summed up in three words, “Kinder, Küche, Kirche”—children, cooking, church. During the war, and the years immediately after, German women assumed an essential role in keeping the economy moving and in helping to rebuild the nation. The war thus managed to integrate women much more quickly into German political and social life than the 1919 law which gave them the right to vote.

In 1925, 42 per cent of German women had jobs. In 1973, 38 per cent of the women in West Germany, as against 80 per cent of the women in East Germany, had jobs. Prejudices against working women in West Germany are hard to dislodge. There are not enough day-care centres and kindergartens to meet the demand, and until 1980 there will be a shortage. Since 1962, contraception has been legal in Germany, and is used by 25 per cent of women between the ages of 15 and 45. Along with the abortion law passed by the Federal Diet last spring, state reimbursement of contraceptive costs and family planning fees was instituted.

In France, President d'Estaing has Simone Veil, aged 47 and mother of three, as Minister of Health. France has had an anti-abortion law since 1920, when the country was trying to make up the terrific loss of life in World War I. In recent years, however, the number of illegal abortions has increased 500,000 a year, and deaths from bungled abortions has risen to approximately 500 a year. The government, in a desperate effort to stem this terrible practice, asked that abortions during the first ten weeks of pregnancy be legalized. Health Minister Veil presented the case so intelligently and forcefully that the vote was 284 to 189 in favour of abortion, and Senate approval is expected shortly. This is a great victory for women.

In this International Women's Year, I cannot overlook or ignore the Asian and African families living a daily fight for survival. The women are tied down by bonds of drudgery, male domination, illiteracy, and continuous child-bearing. Until the day she dies, the woman's lot never changes. In my opinion, her brain has become deadened and confined to the problems in her environment of her survival and that of her children. She is caught in a trap. If she can see any salvation, it is possibly through a man, and she tries in every way to please him. Men get the top treatment. Little boys are preferred to little girls, and so the vicious circle is complete. There are no magic formulae to help these people. Each nation has to tackle its own problems with intensified action.

There is a food crisis. Women are traditionally the homemakers and, therefore, mainly responsible for food consumption habits in the whole world. In questions of food consumption, it is quality and quantity as well as wastage of food which makes their role decisive, although mostly ignored. Women are also producers of food. In Africa, 70 per cent of agricultural work is done by women. Their methods are old and outdated, and add to the drudgery, not to mention the cost to their health and that of their children.

In many countries women are still inferior to men in the legislation which affects them most—marriage laws, inheritance laws, guardianship laws, legal capacity, property rights and other fields of civil law. In most countries, women constitute the large majority of the unskilled labourers and the least trained professionals.

The role of women in agricultural activities varies widely among developing countries. However, in none of these countries are any efforts made to help women improve productivity in agriculture. If men are going to leave an increasing share of agricultural work to women, it is important for the development of agriculture that women be trained to make an efficient contribution, and given a sufficient income to continue in agriculture.

In Canada, we are fortunate to have the Honourable Marc Lalonde as the minister responsible for the status of women. A mammoth effort is being made to accomplish real advancement in equality of opportunity between men and women. Mr. Lalonde has stated:

While women's rights in our society can, in some areas, become fact through legislation, the true equality of women will remain a fiction, a hoped-for Utopian dream, unless prejudicial attitudes towards women can be eradicated.

As more Canadians become aware of the true status of women, they will want to work for improvements both in our laws and in our attitudes. It was back in the early 1900s that Mrs. Nellie McClung fought for, and won, the vote for women, and this year, with 72,000 persons having written for more information concerning International Women's Year, one realizes women are hungry for direction.

Women's equality has had much publicity in recent years, and because of this I think many people believe that the status of women has just "naturally" improved. I refer back to Mr. Lalonde's mention of the "fiction of equality," and point out that the statistics show most clearly in which areas equality is just that—fiction.

Honourable senators, if women's status is getting better and better, it is not reflected in labour force statistics on women's earnings. In 1962 a man working a full year in this country was earning $5,014, whereas a woman working a full year was earning $2,634. Women were earning an average of 47.4 per cent less than men in 1962. What progress has been made? In 1971, the average woman's salary for a full year's work was $4,755; for a man, $8,513. Women were still earning 44 per cent less than men.

What does that 44 per cent mean when translated into hourly wage rates? Let us look at some 1971 examples. They have not changed appreciably since that year. A male sewing machine operator received $3.11 per hour; his female counterpart, $2.11 per hour. A male department store clerk earned $2.32 an hour; a female department store clerk, $1.60 per hour. A male textile spinner earned $3.41 per hour; his female co-worker, $2.45 an hour. The ultimate irony is in wages paid to sales clerks in women's ready-to-wear clothes. In this area a male clerk earned $2.71 an hour; a woman, $1.80 an hour. And it does not end there. Figures from Statistics Canada reveal that pay discrepancies exist in virtually every occupational area.

To rationalize such figures, one might assume that women do not have the same educational background as men. However, while 50 per cent of all Canadian women in the labour force have completed their high school education and gone on to take post-secondary training, only 39.3 per cent of men have done so. Even when women and men are on an equal footing at graduation, the inequities of hiring practices are apparent. A 24-year old man leaving university with a degree earns, on the average, 19 per cent more in his first job than a woman of the same age with equivalent education. A male high school graduate earns an average of 34.2 per cent more than the female graduate.

[Senator Norrie.]

• (2050)

Finally, honourable senators, International Women's Year will not be complete if Canadian women do not voice their objection to the inclusion of the abortion law in the Criminal Code.

In summing up, it will be interesting to learn what results will come from the world conference of the United Nations in International Women's Year, to be held from June 19 to July 2 in Mexico City. At that conference representatives from all countries will have the opportunity of expressing their countries' opinions and policies for deliberation.

On motion of Senator Carter, for Senator Fergusson, debate adjourned.

LABOUR CONDITIONS

STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN IN QUEBEC—BACK-TO-WORK LEGISLATION—QUESTION ANSWERED

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, earlier this evening I undertook to provide a report on the situation in the St. Lawrence River ports. I now have a current report on the situation which, with leave of the Senate, I should like to give at this time.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Senator Perrault: This morning the Minister of Labour sent investigators to Montreal to ascertain the following: first of all, whether there is currently work to be done; secondly, what the maritime employers have done with respect to the matter of calling for workers, namely, whether they have processed their dispatches in the usual way; thirdly, whether the workers have placed their names on the computer as being available for work, as is the established practice in the ports affected—Montreal, Trois-Rivières and Quebec City; and fourthly, whether the workers, if in fact they have been called by the Maritime Employers Association, have responded to the dispatch orders.

As a result of today's investigation, Department of Labour officials are at this very moment in the process of completing a factual report. After this report is completed there will be consultations with the Department of Justice.

I can say that if there appear to be breaches of Parliament's order to resume longshoring, appropriate action will be taken—action which will be taken, as the minister stated, very shortly. I have been advised this evening that such action could include resort to the Criminal Code and individual maximum sentences of up to two years in jail should it be proven that the act of Parliament has been disobeyed by either side. There is as well a possibility of action under the Canada Labour Code, with penalties against employers or trade unions of up to $10,000 for each offence, and against individuals of $1,000, should it be proven that illegal strikes or lockouts have occurred. The minister stated today that the order of Parliament stands, and that both sides are expected to comply shortly.

I can also report that the minister met today with a delegation from the International Longshoremen's Association, representatives of the various locals involved in these three ports, who expressed a wish to place before the minister a number of alleged grievances. The minister has informed the workers that no action will be taken with respect to their allegations until they are back on the job. They were specifically requested to join with the Maritime Employers Association to determine, in conjunction with a referee who has been provided for both sides, the manner in which the findings of the Gold report are to be implemented in contract terms.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, April 30, 1975

The Senate met at 2 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.
Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Senator Perrault tabled:

Capital Budget of Air Canada for the year ended December 31, 1974, pursuant to section 70(2) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter F-10, R.S.C., 1970, together with copy of Order in Council P.C. 1975-736, dated March 27, 1975, approving same.

Capital Budget of Canadian Arsenals Limited for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1976, pursuant to section 70(2) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter F-10, R.S.C., 1970, together with copy of Order in Council P.C. 1975-871, dated April 17, 1975, approving same.

NORTHERN CANADA POWER COMMISSION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—REPORT OF COMMITTEE PRESENTED

Hon. John J. Connolly, on behalf of Senator Macnaughton, Acting Chairman of the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-13, to amend the Northern Canada Power Commission Act, and had directed that the bill be reported with the following amendment:

Page 1: Strike out lines 22 to 27, inclusive, and substitute therefor the following:

"(7) A meeting of the members of the Commission may not be held unless

(a) notice of the meeting is given to each member of the Commission at his ordinary place of residence one clear day before the meeting; or

(b) all the members of the Commission are present and waive notice of the meeting."

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Senator Connolly (Ottawa West) moved that the report be placed on the Orders of the Day for consideration at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

LABOUR CONDITIONS

STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN IN QUEBEC—BACK-TO-WORK LEGISLATION—QUESTION

Senator Flynn: Honourable senators, may I ask the Leader of the Government if he has any up-to-date report on the situation at the St. Lawrence ports?

Senator Perrault: I have no further report beyond the information that I was able to give to the Senate yesterday, but if there is any further information I hope it can be given to the Senate before it rises.

NATIONAL DEFENCE ACT AND CRIMINAL CODE (TOTAL ABOLITION OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT)

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from yesterday the debate on the motion of Senator Argue for second reading of Bill S-23, to amend the National Defence Act and the Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment).

Hon. M. Grattan O'Leary: Honourable senators, I rise to support the motion moved by Senator Argue. First of all, I would like to say amen to every word uttered here yesterday by Senator Macdonald. I say every word, but I should like to qualify that now by adding this. Senator Macdonald said he had respect for the opinions of those who opposed his stand. I am bound to say, and I say it without offence: I have not! I cannot respect the opinions of men who believe in capital punishment, because I do not think any civilized mind, any educated mind, with all the evidence we have had before us during the last half century, can stand in this chamber and say he still believes in capital punishment.

I must tell you, honourable senators, that I would have great difficulty in respecting the pointless statements made here yesterday, the pointless, meaningless rhetoric inflicted on this chamber by my old friend and colleague, Senator Beaubien. After all the sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, what did he say? Honourable senators, he said: "We have to look at this question. We have to look at it now." Well, the civilized world has been looking at this question for more than half a century and it has come to the conclusion, with the evidence almost overwhelming, that capital punishment is not a deterrent. I would be against capital punishment even if it were a deterrent; but there is nothing on earth, no evidence anywhere by anyone, to show that capital punishment does deter the further commission of such crimes.

The retentionists say that we must have law and order. "Law and order," my friends, has been the war cry of nearly every tyrant in history. "Law and order" was the cry of Hitler, when he assassinated nearly one million Jews.

Senator Walker: Five million!

Senator O'Leary: "Law and order" was the cry of the infamous Stalin when he reddened the soil of Russia with his purges.

There is always law and order in a graveyard. Yes, "law and order" was the cry of the spawn of Attila the Hun and of Genghis Khan when with fire and sword they laid waste the fairest part of Europe. This has always been the cry of people who want to commit violence against others—the violence which breeds violence.

I do not think that the injunction "Thou shalt not kill" applies only to individuals. There is nothing so lawless, nothing so terrifying now or in history, as lawlessness by the state, violence by the state. And capital punishment is that and nothing else.

I cannot believe in capital punishment. I repeat I cannot understand how any civilized mind, knowing the history of this whole question, can still go on saying that the noose should be put around certain people's necks. That idea is repugnant to me. It is repugnant to the Judeo-Christian ethical civilization. I hate it. I cannot agree to it.

We speak of England as always the great cradle of liberty and civilization. God forgive me as an Irishman for admitting it, but she has been! But what has been the history of capital punishment in that very cradle of liberty? In England 300 years ago there were 350 capital offences. Lady Haldane, in her memoirs, said she remembered that when she was a child an eight-year-old boy was hanged in England for the crime of stealing a turnip. What about England now? England has abolished capital punishment. The Royal Commission on Capital Punishment was set up in England about 15 or 20 years ago. I have here the report of that royal commission. Surely this is something the people of Canada should listen to. We are supposed to take all our lessons in parliamentary government, our lessons in civilized conduct, from England. What did that royal commission say?—and we have to assume that they gave this subject the closest and most careful study. This was their conclusion:

The general conclusion which we have reached is that there is no clear evidence in any of the figures we have examined that the abolition of capital punishment has led to an increase in the homicide rate or that its introduction has led to a fall.

● (1410)

We all know the sort of royal commission that the British put on to these things. These people have examined all the evidence and all the statistics—and God knows we are burdened with them—and have come solemnly to the conclusion that capital punishment has not lowered the crime rate. Furthermore, we see that in countries like Holland and Belgium the abolition of capital punishment meant nothing whatsoever. And this is true of the States of the Union. If you go over the states one after the other you will find that in many cases there will be two adjoining states, one with capital punishment, the other without it, and there is practically no difference in the homicide rate. So why on earth do we go on with this conclusion, this claim, that capital punishment is a deterrent? As I said, I would be against it. Why? Because I still believe in the doctrine of atonement. I believe in mercy.

The head of my church, and all the theologians in my church, are now almost unanimously agreed that capital punishment is a moral wrong, that it is a crime against humanity, and that it is something which civilized men should forget about.

I want to say this in conclusion: nearing Jordan myself, I frankly do not want to face my God with the sin on my soul of having been a party to condemning a fellow human being to facing the throne of God's judgment.

Senator Carter: Honourable senators, if no other senator wishes to speak on this motion I propose to move adjournment in the name of Senator Argue so that he can close the debate.

Senator Flynn: Why? Why do you have to say that? Just move the postponement of the debate.

On motion of Senator Carter, debate adjourned.

CANADIAN RADIO-TELEVISION AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION BILL

SECOND READING—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from Thursday, April 24, the debate on the motion of Senator Forsey for second reading of Bill C-5, to establish the Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, to amend the Broadcasting Act and other Acts in consequence thereof and to enact other consequential provisions.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, Senator Forsey, who I regret is unavoidably away today, introduced this bill last Thursday and gave us an interesting outline of it. My impression was that he was not overly enthusiastic about the bill. He said it was merely "an administrative measure", "relatively uncomplicated in essence", and so on. To some extent both remarks are a reasonable description of the bill itself. On the other hand, this is a bill whose subject matter has raised a great deal of controversy of the kind that most of us like to see avoided, a controversy between the federal government and the provincial governments of Canada.

While it was said in criticism of this bill elsewhere that the minister had not consulted with the provinces before bringing it before the House of Commons, I am quite satisfied that the minister can be absolved of that accusation, because over and over again he gave what to me was convincing evidence that he had consulted the provinces; not only that, but there had been no objection from any of the provinces to the introduction of the bill. He did, however, say that he was not in a position to tell the provinces what was in the bill. Obviously he could not do that until the bill came before the House of Commons, or should not, although I must say it seems to be the practice of the present government to ignore that rule as often as is convenient. However, that is not my major criticism of the confrontation on this subject between the federal government and the provinces. As the minister has made clear, this bill can on the surface be regarded merely as a housekeeping bill in the sense that it has the primary effect of putting together two existing federal regulatory bodies, the CRTC—the Canadian Radio-Television Commission—and the Committee on Communications of the Canadian Transportation Commission. The purpose is to put the regulatory authority of these two bodies together in one which will have the same initials—CRTC—but a slightly different name. Instead of being called the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, it will now be called the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

So far as federal-provincial confrontation is concerned, this, of course, has been going on for a long time in this area. The bill as it stands is based on the claim of the federal government to certain jurisdiction in the telecommunications field, part of which is hotly disputed by the provinces, particularly that part of telecommunications which falls under the general heading of cable television. The federal government asserts complete federal authority in this field while the provinces—particularly Quebec but strongly backed up by Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia—not only assert that that federal jurisdiction does not exist in law, but that if it does, then it most certainly should not.

The reason is the historical development of communications in Canada where certain types of communication systems are regarded as being for the benefit of the country as a whole, while others are regarded as being merely local in nature, the latter description applying particularly to telephonic and telegraphic communication, which for a very long time, in some provinces at least, has been completely under the jurisdiction of the provincial government. Nevertheless, the intention of the federal government is, as far as possible and in cooperation with the provinces, to bring all these types of communication together in a single regulatory body, but not necessarily an exclusively federal body. I shall speak to that in a moment. It has been made clear that this is Stage I of a complete review of federal communications policy.

In this sense it is fairly uncomplicated and provides for a transfer of powers to this new CRTC and the necessary arrangements to bring this about. It enlarges slightly the number of permanent commissioners but not the number of non-permanent commissioners; it makes it possible for the head office to be elsewhere than in the national capital region, and it provides, of course, that where there are cases before the present commissions, that is to say the present bodies, these will continue under those bodies except in exceptional circumstances.

But there has come about an extraordinary development. The whole question of federal-provincial relations was discussed in the other place, and in committee of that place the minister and the federal government were asked to give some indication as to what Stage II was all about. Some bits and pieces of information were given, but not anything like a complete picture of Stage II. Yet in this house yesterday there was placed on the table a document headed Communications: Some Federal Proposals, which deals with the whole subject. I cannot understand why this document, which is dated April, 1975, was not in the hands of members of the other house when they were discussing this important problem. I have no explanation of this, except that it looks to me like another of these clumsy ways the federal government seems to have of handling federal-provincial relations.

● (1420)

The document not only spells out the general configuration of Stage II, which is the total revision of no less than eight acts, but deals specifically with federal-provincial cooperation and goes so far as to say that the federal government is now—as of yesterday, I presume, because I imagine it was tabled in the other place on the same day—prepared to allow the provinces to nominate 10 of the non-permanent members. Yet the debate went on in the house and in committee for days, even weeks, and this specific promise was not, as far as I have been able to ascertain, disclosed. I wonder if that is the way for the federal government to obtain cooperation from the provinces, particularly in view of the statements that have been made by provincial members and provincial ministers in Ontario and Quebec, who have openly accused the federal government of acting in bad faith in some of these matters. I am not taking sides in this, because it is a very complicated matter, but there is no question that it is a confrontation and one from which the provinces are not, apparently, prepared to back away.

On the other hand, the document I have in my hand, Communications: Some Federal Proposals, is highly conciliatory of the provincial case. It says:

This paper sets out, in broad outline, the intentions of the Federal Government, taking account of views expressed by the Provinces, as a basis for further consultation and an early revision of federal communications legislation.

That is a fine statement and I am sure all will applaud it, except that there will be many in the provinces who will wonder if it is not just another example of fine words, not to be followed by action.

The reason is that the attitude of the federal government in this field seems to be that it is sure that if it takes the case, particularly the cable TV case, to the Supreme Court, it will win. This may be so; I make no comment in that regard. The provinces have said, "Maybe you would, but we do not believe you will, but why hold that over our heads every time we ask you to sit down and co-operate in this field?" In the field of cable TV the provinces seem to have an excellent practical case. The physical installation is largely within a province, and certainly the ongoing uses, the tremendous development that will take place in cable TV, would appear to be more provincial in nature—whether they are in law, I do not know—than they are now. Of course, the federal government's claim is that as long as cable TV is nothing but an extension of broadcasting then it falls under the federal authority, being in the national field of communications. I have said that the federal government claims exclusive jurisdiction in some of these fields, and there appears to be no question that in national radio communications generally, and broadcasting, it has that jurisdiction. On the other hand, with a few exceptions there seems to be no question that the provinces have exclusive, certainly primary, jurisdiction in the telephone and telegraph fields. Exceptions, of course, are those telephone and telegraph entities which have been declared to be for the benefit of all Canadians, and therefore within the federal power, such as Bell Canada, B.C. Telephone—I am not sure about the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Commission—and one or two others.

The minister, echoing what appears to be the federal government's position in this matter, complains that we are in a constitutional straitjacket. That was the phrase he used. From my reading of the history and current evidence, it seems to me that if there is a constitutional straitjacket, it could be blamed less on the Fathers of Confederation than on some of their grandsons who are now in the Cabinet here in Ottawa. There seems to be no question, as one reads the evidence, that the heat of the confrontation could have been avoided or at least cooled.

If I may, I will give honourable senators a few quotes from this interesting new document because, if these are not mere words, it does encourage me. The government says:

The effect of this situation is that no government in Canada has been in a position to give comprehensive attention to the current operations and future development of the Canadian telecommunications system as a whole.

The Federal Government does not believe that these complexities can be resolved by formal transfers of legislative authority to or from the provinces—

The provinces appear to take the attitude that they do not agree with that. The suggestion is that if we are going to clear up the situation, if there are areas of conflict, let us have them delineated by Stage II, so that each jurisdiction will understand its boundaries.

The document goes on to say:

The Government intends to give full recognition to provincial and regional objectives and priorities... Thus, there is an urgent need for agreement on cooperative arrangements that will enable better account to be taken of provincial concerns—

I say this is all new, coming after the debate, but perhaps the protests of provincial ministers of communications, and those that have been voiced in the discussion on this bill, have finally got through to the government.

This is an extraordinarily conciliatory document. It has some concrete proposals:

The Provinces have been invited to join in the establishment of a Committee for Communications Policy—

That is another step in the right direction.

This Committee would appoint subcommittees of officials to study and advise on such matters of mutual concern as systems planning, interprovincial and international services, and technical standards.

The federal government now proposes an Association of Communications Regulatory Bodies—another excellent step towards a solution of these problems, because the suggestion is that the regulatory bodies in the provinces and the new commission would sit down together and discuss their problems.

It is fair to say that there have been federal-provincial conferences with ministers of communications, but again, because of the take-it-or-leave-it attitude of the federal government—which is not unusual in these types of confrontations—no progress has been made. Now we are told:

—the Government would seek the concurrence of each provincial government in the nomination of one of the ten part-time members to be appointed for a term to the new Commission by the Governor in Council.

One of the strongest statements made in the debate in the other place was that there was a “glaring omission” in this bill because there was no provision for provincial representation on the commission. It is perhaps by accident that we received this new document before we completed our consideration of this bill. I can only assume that the intention was not to let the legislators see it until the bill had been passed. As I said, it was tabled in the Senate yesterday. However, it is welcome news. Even if that is an error in procedure, it is probably a plus for the government. I am always ready to accord to the government all the praise due to it when it does such things, even when, as quite often happens, they are errors of commission, if not of judgment.

I draw that to the attention of honourable senators because, as usual, this was merely dropped on our desks. I almost overlooked it in preparing some material for my remarks today. I am sure you will all be anxious to read it.

Honourable senators, that is about all I have to say about this bill. However, in connection with this document to which I have referred, I find it difficult to understand why this first step was taken in isolation from the second step, because there are proposed amendments to the Broadcasting Act, the Railway Act and the Telegraphs Act proposed in this bill. There are five other acts that will be included in the second stage amendments, and I am wondering why they were not all put together. It is quite possible that questions will be raised during discussion on the second stage amendments as to the validity of the legislation we are being asked to pass now. I have no explanation for that, but it is seldom that I have a good explanation for some of the provisions we find in government bills.

I do not know whether it is the intention to refer this bill to committee. It would seem to me on the surface that it might be advisable to do so in order that the appropriate committee, and through it the Senate, may be informed, at the top policy level, of the relationship between this bill and the document to which I have referred.

Senator Bélisle: Honourable senators, I delayed in rising because I was hoping that a senator from the other side would adjourn the debate. If no one else wants to move the adjournment of this debate, then I will do so.

On motion of Senator Bélisle, debate adjourned.

INDUSTRY

CANADIAN TEXTILE PROBLEMS—DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from Wednesday, April 16, the debate on the inquiry of Senator Desruisseaux, calling the attention of the Senate to Canadian textile problems.

[Translation]

Hon. Martial Asselin: Honourable senators, it would seem that today is the day of the official Opposition for, since the start of the sitting, three senators of the Opposition have already spoken, and brilliantly. I want to congratulate them and point out that we, of the official Opposition, although few in numbers, are aware of our responsibilities; we too want to do serious work in order that our institution survives.

Some Hon. Senators: Very good. Hear, hear!

Senator Asselin: Thank you, honourable senators.

I also wish to congratulate Senator Desruisseaux for having called the attention of the Senate to such an important problem, that of the textile industry. He did so elaborately, as a connoisseur would, and I feel the problem he brought up deserves the immediate attention of the Senate.

It also behooves the official Opposition to take position on this problem, especially when one knows that there are 160,000 workers in the textile industry in Quebec. If we look also at the situation in Ontario, I believe one can say that, in Canada, there are about 225,000 workers in the textile industry. The problem is not easy.

I doubt that any Canadian government has managed to date to find a way of stabilizing employment in that industry. Moreover, I remember that when we were in office we also faced the same difficulties. The national caucus had divisions, differences of opinions on the policies that the Conservative government of the time wanted to apply to solve the textile problem. Since our government was defeated, I think the Liberal government worked no miracles to find adequate solutions. Of course, that is due to the complexities of our external trade. We all know that ours is an exporting country and that to sell its surpluses it must accept imported goods which in many areas compete with our Canadian industries, as is the case of textiles.

But for the past several years the government has had trouble making textile importing countries abide by the agreements they had signed regarding quotas. It is a fact that the textile industry is going through a very unstable period.

Recently the president of the Canadian Textile Institute, Mr. Stewart, expressed comments to the newspaper the Gazette, in the course of an analysis of the difficulties the industry was experiencing, not only in Quebec, as I said earlier, but also in the province of Ontario. The main problem of that industry is obviously wages, and he said:

[English]

Wages paid in the Canadian textile industry are at the present time the highest textile wages in the world and compare very favourably with those of Canadian industries having a similar light manufacturing character.

[Translation]

There lies our entire problem. We are dealing with countries which pay extremely low salaries in that industry while ours here are quite high. We know, and it is almost shocking, how our standard of living is high. The Canadian people have now the highest standard of living in the world. As for the salary increases in the labour force, I do suggest that our people are not reasonable. This is not the way to fight inflation. Recently I went in the United States where we met businessmen who were shocked by such a steep rise in salaries in this country.

We had new evidence of that recently when we discussed a bill directing longshoremen to resume work. Imagine those people asking for six or seven months of work salaries ranging between $17,000 and $20,000 a year, while newspapermen today are shocked when a parliamentarian who works six or seven days a week can earn $24,000 a year. Can you see the gap? I say that it makes no sense, it is unreasonable.

Well, the same principle applies in the textile world. How can we compete with countries exporting these materials to Canada when their labour is about 25, 35 or 50 times cheaper than our own in our textile manufactures?

[Senator Asselin.]

Obviously, somebody must ring the alarm bell, as Senator Desruisseaux and my colleague to my right, Senator Deschatelets, did so appropriately.

• (1440)

Yesterday, I read in Le Devoir an article entitled:

State of alarm at Victoriaville: clothing industry dying.

Those comments were made by the C.S.D., a union of textile workers. Here is an excerpt from the article:

In the face of lay-offs which now create massive unemployment among textile workers in the Victoriaville area—that is half the industrial labour force in that area—the local unions affiliated to the C.S.D. claim they are ready to launch their members into the processing of asbestos if the textile industry dies out.

There is talk of the textile industry dying. My colleagues from Quebec know that we have already witnessed the disappearance of other industries in that province. Senator Bourget was telling me the other day that the footwear industry has completely folded up in Quebec; that industry had been made up of family undertakings which, from father to son, had given many jobs to specialized workers.

The footwear industry has disappeared. Senator Bourget lived through those days. We are now, in fact, witnessing the death of the textile industry. Every month, hundreds and hundreds of people are laid off. The problem is that those people are not easy to recycle into other industrial or business sectors. They would need to spend some time at Manpower Centres and in other spheres, to get new training and to be able rejoin the labour force or other sectors of our economy. The article also says:

The situation is now as follows.

This was in Victoriaville, according to an article published on April 29, 1975. This is not too long ago, it was yesterday. The article says:

There are 1,900 unemployed in Victoriaville itself, and 5,700 in the area. The unemployment rate has gone up from 7 per cent last year to 17 per cent this year and the lay-offs have become nearly permanent since they last as long as one year, for instance at the two major employers of Victoriaville, Rubin Brothers and Utex. In the furniture industry which employs 38 per cent of the industrial manpower, the future does not look more encouraging and the union leaders are already talking about Victoriaville as a ghost town.

The article adds other interesting facts. The Rubin Brothers Company, which, of course, is a textile industry in Victoriaville, has said that it has just installed in Cali, Colombia, a factory where the workers earn 35 cents an hour. Of course, the wages in Victoriaville are ten or fifteen times higher than this. How can we compete with these countries where the wages are so low?

Foreign textile companies established in Victoriaville and the area are now considering closing their plants and asking for import permits. It would be more profitable for these companies to have import permits and to buy textiles from Japan, Thailand, Korea, or Colombia, and to sell these at a profit in Canada. In the same article, it is said that Utex, which employs 700 workers, is now firing them gradually. The administrators are becoming importers and are thinking of closing down their factories.

In Quebec and Canada, we can have import permits to make some profits by importing textiles from countries where, as I said earlier, manufacturing costs are very low.

What will the solution be? Would it be to ask importing countries to limit their imports, or should stringent quotas be imposed? In that case, how would those countries react? Do we wish to keep on trading with them? If we do, it will be difficult for our country to impose compulsory quotas and tell those countries: You are allowed to import into this country only a limited quantity of textile products per year.

Another possible answer is that they might not be interested in buying our grain. They might also not be interested in buying other goods that we export.

Would our nation be prepared to stop trading with China—because we have fairly important trade relations with China—and tell them: Listen, we are no longer buying from you. We forbid you to sell textile products in Canada. In my opinion, such a stand would totally disrupt our economy, which is diversified when you compare western and eastern areas of Canada.

When the government decides to take decisions with such a great economic impact, it should consider Canada as a whole. Then I say that, in my opinion, the solution to be sought would not be to ask the government to break off all trading relations with those countries and impose quotas which they obviously would not accept.

My colleague, Senator Deschatelets, said in his statement that in 1971 Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Jean-Luc Pepin made a great effort on behalf of the government to devise a way of solving the problem we are now considering.

Apparently, that did not bring much success because in the 1972 federal election, in spite of the minister's efforts, he was defeated in Drummondville. I say quite objectively that the departure of Mr. Pepin was a great loss for Canada. Yet those were his own people; there are textile workers in that area who did not understand his message, who did not appreciate the efforts made by Mr. Pepin to try to bring solutions to the textile industry. He was replaced by a Social Crediter, who will not solve the problem either.

Senator Flynn: Even less.

Senator Asselin: Yes.

Senator Fournier (de Lanaudière): Not at all!

Senator Asselin: As I say, Mr. Pepin set up a Textile Board in 1971. I know one of the textile commissioners, Jacques St-Laurent of Laval University in Quebec City. He is an extremely competent man, remarkably dedicated to the textile cause.

● (1450)

The formula is good but so far I have the impression the minister has not been able to take into account the board's recommendations.

The board has the power to make inquiries when a manufacturer complains to the minister that his product is being severely undercut by foreign imports. It has the right to report to the minister. Then, the minister, under section 19 of the Textile Board Act, gives the board a mandate to make an in-depth investigation. The board has the right to go out and hear public evidence. That is indeed what it does. It then makes recommendations to the minister. I feel the board was not awarded enough publicity, although it did an astounding job.

According to a document before me, the board since its inception in 1971—its activities started in 1972—submitted to the minister 30 different reports on various textile issues, and I suggest senators interested in the matter should go through these reports which are available at the Parliamentary Library. The board has made in-depth and detailed studies of problems brought before it. It goes to very thorough investigations, hears witnesses and then prepares a report for the minister.

I quote from one of its reports chosen at random, the one on double-knit and warp-knit fabrics, dated June 5, 1974, in which the board put forward valuable recommendations:

The Board recommends:

1. that steps be taken to ensure that in the calendar year 1974 imports from Japan, South Korea and Taiwan, respectively, of double-knit and warp-knit fabrics of all kinds classified under Tariff Item 56805-1 do not exceed the following amounts:

Japan	12,300,000 lbs.
South Korea	556,500 lbs.
Taiwan	500,000 lbs.

2. that arrangements be made with Hong Kong to maintain through 1974 the existing surveillance of shipments to Canada of double-knit and warp-knit fabrics;

3. that the situation be kept under observation by the Board as long as special measures of protection are in effect, in order that the modification or removal of these measures may be recommended as circumstances permit or require.

This is being done in textile areas, either ties or suits, and every allied product.

Clearly the minister cannot implement all such recommendations because, as I said earlier, he must consider the overall economy.

However, the government will have to do something one day, either drop that industry or intervene to guarantee its survival through subsidies. I think it is not the best way to help private enterprise. If the government makes it a habit, every time a business is in trouble of covering deficits, then we are headed directly towards a socialist economy. I for one think private enterprise must be respected.

Senator Deschatelets has made a suggestion, and I think those surveys should be made rather soon, because next fall the GATT agreements are to be renewed on the international level.

I think the Senate is the appropriate body to consider those regional problems. Today, I talked to you about regional problems, because I think the Senate was precisely set up to study the regional problems of Canadians.

Senator Deschatelets said—and I say it too on behalf of the official Opposition—that if Senator Desruisseaux wants to introduce a motion that this issue be considered by a committee of the Senate, he would vote for it, and I say the official Opposition would also vote for it because we on this side of the house think it is a serious problem.

I discussed the matter with Senator Bourget and Senator Deschatelets the other day after the speech by Senator Desruisseaux. We were wondering whether the question should be referred to a standing committee and, if so, how many weeks it would take before taking a decision and making recommendations.

I feel that the Senate should study the matter. The best way would be to establish a Senate sub-committee on which three or four designated senators would sit to study rapidly the questions put before it, hear witnesses and make recommendations, without having to wait months on end before any recommendation is submitted. It often happens in the case of a standing committee that several months go by before the evidence is heard and subsequent recommendations are made to the house. Proof of this is the study now being conducted by the Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs. We have now been sitting in committee for two or three months, and we have just finished hearing the evidence. When shall we be making our recommendations?

I endorse the suggestion made by Senator Deschatelets—and I have discussed the matter with other Liberal senators—to delegate responsibilities to sub-committees of Senate standing committees, which would be in a position to study such questions more rapidly and make proper recommendations in due course.

I do not claim to be a textile expert, but I was impressed by the way Senator Desruisseaux raised this problem as well as by Senator Deschatelets' remarks. I want to say to Senator Desruisseaux that we of the official Opposition will help him find a solution. If the honourable senator should decide to refer this matter to a committee, we shall do our part hopefully to find solutions to help these people who are faced with unemployment.

On motion of Senator Bourget, debate adjourned.

● (1500)

[English]

LABOUR CONDITIONS

STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN IN QUEBEC—BACK-TO-WORK LEGISLATION—QUESTION ANSWERED

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators, I was requested earlier today to give an up-to-date report regarding the St.

Lawrence ports situation. There has been little change since yesterday afternoon.

Senator Asselin: Has anyone been sent to jail?

Senator Perrault: Honourable senators are aware of discussions which took place yesterday between the Minister of Labour and union representatives. The workers were advised at that time to return to work, after which their representations, charges and allegations of yesterday could be dealt with.

The minister is meeting today with the President of the Maritime Employers Association and with legal counsel. The minister is having discussions as well with the Minister of Justice to determine the current legal position and the courses which may be open to the government.

While I am on my feet, I should perhaps report very briefly on the situation with respect to postal workers.

Senator Flynn: Before you do so, may I ask a supplementary question? I draw from the reply of the Leader of the Government that the strike is continuing in the ports of the St. Lawrence and that the stevedores have not gone back to work. Is that correct?

Senator Perrault: At this time I am not in a position to reveal the contents of the report prepared by the investigators—

Senator Flynn: The facts.

Senator Perrault: —the investigators who went to the Quebec ports yesterday. Let me say in reply to Senator Flynn that the level of activity at the ports is not what we had hoped it would be at this time.

May I say a brief word about the Post Office situation? The situation, to a very large extent across the country, is now back to normal. There is, of course, an internecine difference of opinion between the Canadian Union of Postal Workers and its Montreal local, and this has resulted in dislocation of certain mail services out of Montreal.

Senator Croll: Everything is normal. No one has gone back to work.

STANDING COMMITTEES

NOTICE OF MEETINGS

On the Motion to Adjourn:

Senator Carter: Honourable senators, before the question is put on the motion to adjourn, I should like to inform you that the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance and the Standing Senate Committee on Health, Welfare and Science will meet as soon as the Senate rises.

Senator Grosart: Only two committee meetings? The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Abbreviations

1r, 2r, 3r	= First, second, third reading
amds	= amendments
com	= committee
div	= division
m	= motion
neg	= negatived
ref	= referred
rep	= report
r.a.	= royal assent

Abortion, 917

- France, 837
- Morgentaler, Dr. Henry, abortion charges, 1036, 1732, 1742-6, 1767-8
 - Admission of facts but denial of guilt, 1745, 1746
 - Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, survey results, 1767, 1774
 - Excerpts from notes of supreme court judges, 1773
 - Jury decision, reversal of court of appeal, 1767-8
 - Statement of Past President of Bar Association, 1773-4
- Priorities for government action, 121
- Removal from Criminal Code of item relating to abortion, 188, 838
- Status of Women News, statement issued by National Action Committee, 120-1
- Study of procedure for obtaining therapeutic abortions, question re committee on, 1428, 1624-5, 1639, 1654-5

Acadians, 18-19

- Bilingualism, 18-19
- Education, Royal Commission, Public Services and Provincial-Municipal Relations, Nova Scotia, 19
- Prominent Acadians, 18

Acts passed during the Session

PUBLIC ACTS

Chapter		Bill No.
	October 10, 1974
1. West Coast Grain Handling Operations Act		C-12
	October 30, 1974
2. Appropriation Act No. 3, 1974		C-31
	November 27, 1974
3. Army Benevolent Fund Act amendment		C-17
4. Canada Pension Plan Act amendment		C-22
5. Customs Act amendment		S-4
6. Customs Tariff Act (No. 1) amendment		C-27
7. Trust Companies Act and Loan Companies Act amendment		S-7
8. War Veterans Allowance Act and Civilian War Pensions Allowances Act amendment		C-4

Acts passed during the Session - *Continued*PUBLIC ACTS - Continued

Chapter		Bill No.
	December 13, 1974
9. Immigration Act amendment		S-12
10. Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act amendment		C-214
11. Alberta-British Columbia Boundary Act, 1974		S-13
12. Fire Losses Replacement Account Act amendment		C-18
	December 20, 1974
13. Representation Act, 1974		C-36
14. Federal Business Development Bank Act		C-14
15. Indian Oil and Gas Act		C-15
16. Public Service Employment Act, Public Service Staff Relations Act, Public Service Superannuation Act, and Interpretation Act amendment		C-38
17. Export Development Act amendment		C-9
18. Supreme Court Act and Federal Court Act amendment		S-2
19. Revision of references to Quebec Court of Queen's Bench Act		S-16
20. Statute Revision Act		S-3
21. Appropriation Act No. 4, 1974		C-42
22. Appropriation Act No. 5, 1974		C-45
	February 27, 1975
23. Customs Tariff Act (No. 2) amendment		C-39
24. Excise Tax Act and the Excise Act amendment		C-40
25. Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act amendment		C-370
	March 13, 1975
26. Statute law relating to Income Tax Act amendment (No. 1)		C-49
27. Canadian Wheat Board Act amendment		S-6
28. Northwest Territories Representation Act		C-51
29. Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act (Bruce-Grey)		C-228
30. Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act (Lafontaine-Rosemount)		C-229
31. Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act (Berthier-Maskinonge)		C-365
	March 24, 1975
32. West Coast Ports Operations Act 1975		C-56
33. Canada Business Corporations Act		C-29
34. Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act (No. 1) amendment		C-10
35. Recognition of the Beaver (Castor canadensis) as a symbol of the sovereignty of Canada, an Act to provide for		C-373
	March 25, 1975
36. Appropriation Act No. 1, 1975		C-54
37. Appropriation Act No. 2, 1975		C-55

Acts passed during the Session - Continued

PUBLIC ACTS - Continued

Chapter		Bill No.
	March 26, 1975
38. National Housing Act amendment		C-46
	April 24, 1975
39. St. Lawrence Ports Operations Act, 1975		C-59
40. Law Reform Commission Act amendment		C-43
41. Railway Act amendment		C-48
42. Civil Service Insurance Act amendment		C-26
43. Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act repeal and Trade Marks Act (No. 1) amendment		S-9
	May 8, 1975
44. Senate and House of Commons Act, Salaries Act, and Parliamentary Secretaries Act amendment.....		C-44
45. Farm Credit Act amendment		C-34
46. Fort-Falls Bridge Authority Act amendment		C-367
	June 19, 1975
47. Petroleum Administration Act		C-32
48. Judges Act and certain other Acts for related purposes and in respect of the reconstitution of the Supreme Courts of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island Act amendment		C-47
49. Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission Act		C-5
50. Cultural Property Export and Import Act		C-33
51. Northern Canada Power Commission Act amendment		C-13
52. Territorial Lands Act amendment		S-20
53. British North America Acts, 1867 to 1975 Act amendment		C-3
54. Two-Price Wheat Act.....		C-19
55. Ocean Dumping Control Act.....		C-37
56. Salaries Act amendment		C-24
57. Appropriation Act No. 3, 1975		C-64
58. Old Age Security Act amendment		C-62
59. Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce Act amendment		S-15
60. Explosives Act amendment		S-17
	July 30, 1975
61. Petro-Canada Act.....		C-8
62. Excise Tax Act amendment.....		C-66
63. Agricultural Stabilization Act amendment		C-50
64. Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act (No. 2), amendment.....		C-53
65. Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act 1972 amendment		C-57
66. Statute Law (Status of Women) 1974 Act amendment		C-16
67. Public Service Staff Relations Act amendment.....		C-70
68. Olympic (1976) Act amendment.....		C-63
69. Privileges and Immunities (International Organization) Act amendment		S-25
70. Customs Tariff Act (No. 3) amendment		C-67

Acts passed during the Session - *Continued*PUBLIC ACTS - Continued

Chapter	Bill No.
December 2, 1975
71. Statute law relating to Income Tax Act amendment (No. 2)	C-65
72. Environmental Contaminants Act.....	C-25
73. Lieutenant Governors Superannuation Act	C-23
December 15, 1975
74. Appropriation Act No. 4, 1975	C-79
75. Anti-Inflation Act	C-73
76. Combines Investigation Act and Bank Act amendment, and repeal of chapter 23, Statutes of Canada 1966-67	C-2
77. Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation Act amendment.....	S-27
78. King George V Cancer Fund Winding-Up Act	C-76
December 20, 1975
79. Supplementary Borrowing Authority Act, 1975	C-80
80. Unemployment Insurance Act, 1971 amendment	C-69
81. Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment Act, 1975	C-52
82. National Housing Act and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation Act amendment	C-77
83. Government Annuities Improvement Act	C-75
84. Regional Development Incentives Act amendment.....	C-74
85. Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing Act amendment	C-21
86. Animal Contagious Diseases Act amendment	C-28
February 25, 1976
87. Western Grain Stabilization Act.....	C-41
88. Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation Act.....	C-78
March 30, 1976
89. Appropriation Act No. 1, 1976	C-90
90. Appropriation Act No. 2, 1976	C-91
91. Temporary Immigration Security Act	C-85
92. Statute Law (Veterans and Returned Soldiers' Insurance) Amendment Act, 1976	C-86
93. Criminal Law Amendment Act (No. 1) 1975	C-71
94. Feeds Act amendment	S-10
May 5, 1976
95. Compensation for Former Prisoners of War Act.....	C-92
96. Motor Vehicle Tire Safety Act	S-8
97. Quarantine Act amendment	S-31
May 20, 1976
98. Anti-Inflation Act amendment	C-89

Acts passed during the Session - *Concluded*PUBLIC ACTS - Concluded

Chapter	Bill No.
June 15, 1976
99. Senate and House of Commons Act and Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act amendment with respect to escalation of certain payments thereunder	C-81
100. Aeronautics Act amendment	S-34
101. Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act repeal and Trade Marks Act (No. 2) amendment, an Act to amend	S-35

June 29, 1976

102. Appropriation Act No. 3, 1976	C-93
103. Appropriation Act No. 4, 1976	C-94
104. Canada and France, Canada and Belgium and Canada and Israel, an Act to implement conventions for the avoidance of double taxation with respect to income tax between	S-32

July 16, 1976

105. Criminal Law Amendment Act (No. 2) 1976	C-84
106. Income Tax Act amendment	C-58
107. Medical Care Act amendment	C-68
108. Citizenship Act	C-20
109. Canadian Wheat Board Act (No. 2) amendment	C-88

LOCAL and PRIVATE ACTS

December 13, 1974

110. British Columbia Telephone Company Act amendment	S-11
---	------

February 27, 1975

111. International Air Transport Association Act	S-18
--	------

July 30, 1975

112. Royal Canadian Legion Act amendment	S-28
113. Marriage Law Exemption Act (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) Act	C-1001
114. Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank Act	S-24
115. Alliance Security & Investigation, Ltd. Act	S-26

December 20, 1975

116. Northland Bank Act	C-1002
117. Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company Act	S-29

June 15, 1976

118. United Grain Growers Limited Act	S-33
---	------

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne

Consideration of Speech from the Throne, 7; termination date of Address in reply, 13; engrossing and presenting of Address to His Excellency the Administrator of the Government of Canada, 188
 Motion for Address in reply, Hon. Joan Neiman, 14-18; seconded, Hon. Ernest G. Cotteau, 18-20

Speakers: Senators

Bonnell, Lorne, 71-75	Grosart, Allister, 21-26
Burchill, G. Percival, 122	Hicks, Henry D., 111-16
Cameron, Donald, 37-45	Laird, Keith, 144-6
Carter, Chesley W., 116-20	Macdonald, John M., 138-42
Cotteau, Ernest G., 18-20	Manning, Ernest C., 68-71
Desruisseaux, Paul, 32-37	Neiman, Joan, 14-18
Fergusson, Muriel McQueen, 184-8	Norrie, Margaret, 120-2
Flynn, Jacques, 180-4	O'Leary, M. Grattan, 48-51
Forsey, Eugene A., 51-58	Perrault, Raymond J., 26-30
Godfrey, John M., 58-59	Rowe, Frederick William, 62-68, 71
Graham, Alasdair, 174-7	Williams, Guy, 142-4

Administration of justice

Allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1825-6, 1846-8, 1857-9, 1890-3, 1920-3, 1930-1

Administrator of the Government of Canada

Laskin, Rt. Hon. Bora, P.C.

Royal Assent, 95, 220

Speech from the Throne at Opening of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament, 2-7

Administrator of the Government of Canada, Deputy

Martland, Hon. Ronald

Opening of Parliament, 1-2

Spence, Hon. Wishart F.

Royal assent, 313-14

Aeronautics

Authorization re instituting of security measures, 2125

Canadian air carriers landing in foreign countries, 2125

Conventions, international, 2124, 2125, 2130-1

Costs of security measures, apportioning of, 2131

Enforcements of regulations by Canada, 2130

Inadequacy of security checks, 2131

Jurisdiction over aircraft landing in Canada, 2130

Landing of foreign air carriers without being subjected to security measures, 2125

Security measures for civil aircraft of foreign air carriers, 2124, 2131

Speakers: Senators

Buckwold, Sidney L., 2125

Grosart, Allister, 2130-1

McDonald, A. Hamilton, 2125

Thompson, Andrew, 2124-5, 2131-2

Aeronautics bill S-34. 1r, 2103; 2r, 2124-5, 2130-2; ref to com, 2132; rep without amdt, 2141; 3r, 2141; r.a., 2207

Aging

- Compulsory retirement and lack of consideration for talent potential, 186-7
- 'Salute to Senior Citizens Day', Toronto, excerpt from speech by Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker, 186
- See following item

Aging, the anatomy of Special Senate Committee report, 146-9, 320-3, 516-18

- Conferences on aging, provincial, 516-17
- Dilemmas of Modern Man, excerpt from speech of Dr. Nathan Shock, 516
- Employment of older citizens, 322
- Geriatric studies in faculties of medicine, 516
- Health departments, special research branches, 321
- National councils on social research and on aging, 322
- Old age security, reduction in age limit, 146
- Ontario Select Committee on Aging, 517, 518
- Population increase in respect of elderly persons, 516
- Recommendations accepted by government, 147; see Appendix to Debates of Oct. 22/74
- Senior Citizens' Week (US), 517; Ontario committee recommendations, 518
- Sociological aspects of aging, 516-17
- Suggestion that Hansard of Oct. 22/74 be sent to municipal and social agencies, 147

Speakers: Senators

- Carter, Chesley W., 320-3
- Croll, David A., 146-9
- Fergusson, Muriel McQueen, 516-18

Agreements, conventions and treaties

- Air transport agreements, international, 1135
- Alaska Boundary Treaty, 578
- Canadian Airline Pilots, Memorandum of Understanding between Minister of Transport and Pilots Association, 2276-7
- Helsinki Declaration on Security and Co-operation in Europe, 1293, 1466, 1471-5, 1757-61
- Tax treaties or conventions, countries with which Canada has concluded agreements, 855, 867, 925
- Textiles, arrangement regarding international trade in, 947
- UNESCO Convention (Beirut), 515
- Visual and Auditory Materials of an Educational, Scientific and Cultural Character, international circulation of, 487

Agricultural products cooperative marketing

- Bank loans for initial payments, processing, selling costs, 1631
- Deficiencies in drafting of legislation, 1631
- Food production for foreign aid, 1630
- Marketing, 1630-1
- Ontario wheat producers problems, 1631
- Stabilization of agricultural industry, 1630
- Tobacco industry, government payment re, 1631

Speakers: Senators

- Argue, Hazen, 1631-2
- Buckwold, Sidney L., 1630-1
- Lang, Daniel, 1631
- Macdonald, John M., 1631

Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing bill C-21. 1r, 1617-18; 2r, 1630-2; 3r, 1640; r.a., 1712

Agricultural stabilization

- Commodities covered by act, 1191
- Controlled production, 1193
- Cost of production formula, 1191
- Flexibility as to type of support program required, 1191
- Grain subsidies, 1191
- Instability of farm produce prices, 1190
- Production costs, 1191, 1192-3
- Production to alleviate world hunger, 1193
- Provincial and/or producer participation in program, 1191
- Regional stabilization plans, 1191
- Stop loss level, 1193
- Support price of 90% over 5 years, 1191
- Top loading, 1193-4

Speakers: Senators

- Greene, John J., 1190-2
- Macdonald, John M., 1192-3

Agricultural Stabilization bill C-50. 1r, 1164; 2r, 1190-4; ref to com, 1194; rep without amdt, 1212; 3r, 1212; r.a., 1281

Agriculture

- Agricultural products cooperative marketing, 1617-18, 1630-2, 1640
 - Bank loans for initial payments, processing, selling costs, 1631
 - Deficiencies in drafting of legislation, 1631
 - Food production for foreign aid, 1630
 - Marketing, 1630-1
 - Ontario wheat producers problems, 1631
 - Stabilization of agricultural industry, 1630
 - Tobacco industry, government payment re, 1631
- Beef prices, 122
- Beef producers, federal assistance for, 240-1, 253
- Crop disasters, 84
- Crop insurance programs, 1227-9, 1468-71, 1622-3
 - Excerpt from letter from Director of Crop Insurance Div. of Agricultural Canada, 1469-70
 - Federal-provincial assistance, 1227
 - Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, 1622
 - Penalties for late payment of premiums, 1227, 1471
 - Recommendations of Agriculture Committee, 1229
 - Spot loss coverage, 1227-8, 1469, 1622-3
 - Unit prices on selected crops, 1228-9, 1470-1
 - Variations in provincial coverages, 1228, 1469

Farm credit, 781, 788-91, 796-7, 803-07, 847-8, 863-5, 880-8, 889-93, 899

Farm lands, need for conservation of, 121

Feed grains, 47, 129-31, 157-9, 161-2, 584-6

Freight assistance to Atlantic provinces, 1035

Government policies, improvement in, 84-85

Grain prices, 82, 84, 85

New Brunswick

- Kent County, need for bilingualism in contacts with farmers, 122

- Small farms development program, applications unregistered at Moncton office, 1213

Prairie grain advance payments, 583, 595-601, 614-15, 621-2, 684, 709, 731, 1136, 1156-7, 1166-8, 1180, 1198, 1281

Quota restrictions, 85

Agriculture - Concluded

Small farms development program, number of loans approved for provinces, 1197-8, 1213
 Two-price wheat, 900, 928-30, 942-4, 1088-90, 1095
 Western Wheat Pools, 83
 Wheat Board, 12, 106-07, 169-72, 255, 265-7, 656
 Wheat Board annual report, 685

Agriculture, Standing Senate Committee

Expenses, 160, 348
 Meetings during Senate sittings, 132, 243, 1022, 1045, 1196
 Membership, motion for and question re, 591
 Reports
 Agricultural Stabilization bill C-50, rep without amdt, 1212
 Animal Contagious Diseases bill C-28, rep without amdt, 1653
 Crop insurance programs, 1212, 1227-9, 1468-71, 1622-3
 Farm Credit bill C-34, rep with amdt and recommendations, 847-8, 863-5, 880-8, 889-92
 Feeds bill S-10, rep with amdts, 584-6
 Commons amdts ref to com, 1635-7; rep that Commons amdts be concurred in with one substitution, 1650-3, 1660-1
 Kent County, NB, 2308, 2334
 Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10, rep without amdt, 684
 Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 2) C-53, rep without amdt, 1180
 Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, rep without amdt but with recommendations, 1088-90
 Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41, rep without amdt, 1756
 Wheat Board bill (No. 1) S-6, rep without amdt, 255
 Wheat Board bill (No. 2) C-88, rep without amdt, 2356
 Terms of reference, 161, 206
 Western grain stabilization, com authorized to study subject matter of Bill C-41, 1615

Air Canada

Bilingualism of pilots, 2344-8, 2378-86
 Service Fredericton-Ottawa, 854-5, 867
 Service Ottawa-Halifax, 1479-80
 Service St. John's-Ottawa, 506-08
 See Air transport,
 Transportation.

Aircraft registry

Aircraft Convention, International Recognition of Rights in, 173
 Central registry for property, federal-provincial conferences re, 1000
 Conflict between creditors, 173-4
 Constitutional problems in bill, 1000
 Correspondence between Committee and provincial Attorneys General and certain federal depts., 990-7
 Federal-provincial conferences, lack of, 1000-02
 Notice of interest, 173
 Property and civil rights of provinces, 1001
 Rolling stock of railways, 1001
 Seizure of aircraft, 173, 1000, 1001
 Signatories to convention, 173
 Transport and Communications Committee report, 980-1
 Treaty-making authority of government, 1001

Aircraft registry - *ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Bourget, Maurice, 980-1, 990-7, 1002
 Connolly, John J., 1000-02
 Flynn, Jacques, 173-4, 981, 999-1000
 Giguere, Louis de G., 172-3
 Grosart, Allister, 174
 Langlois, Leopold, 1001

Aircraft Registry bill S-5. 1r, 12; 2r, 172-4; ref to com, 174; rep of com with recommendation that bill be not proceeded with, 980-1, 999-1002; bill removed from Order Paper, 1002

Aird, Hon. John B. (Resigned Nov. 28/74)

Tributes, 334-6

Air transport

Aircraft registry, 12, 172-4, 980-1, 999-1002
 Excise tax, 1268, 1271
 Flight delays due to labour dispute, 2062-3, 2168
 Fredericton-Ottawa, 854-5, 867
 International Air Transport Association, 265, 301-03, 373, 382, 581, 1122, 1135
 Official Languages Act, language rights of air pilots in Quebec, 2344-8, 2378-86
 Operating deficit, 1271
 St. John's-Ottawa, 506-08

Alaska Boundary Treaty of 1825, 100th anniversary of establishment of Canada's western boundaries, 578

Alberta-British Columbia boundary

Boundary commission, composition of, 219, 225
 Federal-provincial agreement on boundary lines, 225

Speakers: Senators

O'Leary, M. Grattan, 223-4
 Prowse, J. Harper, 219, 225

Alberta-British Columbia Boundary bill S-13. 1r, 136; 2r, 219, 223-5; 3r, 225; Commons amdt, 326, concurred in, 336-7; r.a., 397

Alberta parliamentarians, visit to Senate, 1087

Alliance Security & Investigation, Ltd. bill S-26. 1r, 1022; 2r, 1053-4; ref to com, 1054; rep without amdt, 1074; 3r, 1091; Commons amdt concurred in, 1261; r.a., 1281

Amendments, observations or recommendations in committee reports regarding bills

Aircraft Registry bill S-5, 980-1, 999-1002
 Alberta-British Columbia Boundary bill S-13, 326, 336-7
 Alliance Security & Investigation, Ltd. bill S-26, 1261
 Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1573-81
 British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 325, 338
 Canada Business Corporations bill C-29, 666-71, 685, 712
 Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1571, 1589-95
 Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30, 1367-9, 1405-06, 1407-08
 Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 848, 908-09
 Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company bill S-29, 1355, 1372
 Farm Credit bill C-34, 847-8, 863-5, 880-8, 889-93, 899
 Feeds bill S-10, 584-6, 1635-7, 1650-3, 1660-1

Amendments, observations or recommendations in committee reports regarding bills - Concluded

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 354-62, 366-8, 374-5, 382-5, 402-06, 446-54, 456, 969-71, 983, 1007-11, 1014-21, 1023-33, 1036-8, 1046-9, 1066, 1074-80
 Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, 348-9, 368
 Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, 1369
 Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 2058, 2066-8
 National Commercial Bank of Canada bill S-24, 1057, 1062-3
 Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, 840, 851, 1005
 Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 981-2, 1013, 1034
 Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill (No. 1) S-9, 240, 245
 Statute Law (Status of Women) bill C-16, 1122-3, 1136
 Territorial Lands bill S-20, 579
 Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, 1088-90

Andras, Hon. Robert K., Minister of Manpower and Immigration

Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1695-1706
 Amdts to be proclaimed in Jan/76, 1700
 Appeal procedure, 1704; statistics on appeals, 1704
 Application form for unemployment insurance, 1704
 Claimants outside Canada, 1703
 Dependency reduction from 75% to 66⅔%, 1696, 1697
 Disentitlement, 1699
 Escalation in unemployment insurance payments, 1697
 Leaving employment voluntarily and refusal of suitable employment, 1702
 Minimum benefit, 1702
 Persons 65 yrs. and over, 1696, 1697, 1698
 OAS and GIS benefits, 1696, 1698
 Refund of UI contributions, 1701
 Retirement benefits, 1702
 Statistics on UI claims, 1698, 1701
 Prison or institutional inmate, 1703
 Qualifying time, extension of, 1700
 Recovery of advance payments, 1703
 Regional breakdown of government savings, 1700
 Self-employed persons or partnerships, 1699
 Sharing of costs between employees, employers and government, 1697
 Sick benefits, 1700-01, 1702
 Social insurance number, 1705
 Social security measures, increase in benefits, 1696
 Students returning to school, 1700
 Suitable employment, defining of, 1703
 Training or instruction for new employment, 1702-03
 Unemployment statistics (1974), 1697

Animal contagious diseases

Artificial insemination centres, 1632-3
 Compensation for diseased animals, 1632
 Export health certification, 1632, 1633
 Foreign meats, 1633
 Garbage feeding, 1633
 Maintenance of deadyards and rendering plants, 1632
 Penalty for non-reporting of disease, 1634
 Quarantine, 1634
 Regulatory powers of authorities, 1634
 Transportation and care of animals, 1633, 1634

Animal contagious diseases - Concluded

Tuberculosis, brucellosis, hog cholera, 1632

Zoos and game farms, 1634

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 1633-4

McGrand, Fred A., 1632-3

Norrie, Margaret, 1634

Animal Contagious Diseases bill C-28. 1r, 1618; 2r, 1632-5; ref to com, 1635; rep without amdt, 1653; 3r, 1666; r.a., 1712

Animal Disease and Protection Act

See Animal Contagious Diseases bill C-28, 1618, 1632-5, 1653, 1666, 1712

Anti-inflation (Bill C-73)

Anti-Inflation Board, 1506, 1511-12

Functions and powers of board and administrator, 1506, 1511

Regulations of Governor in Council, 1506, 1511-12, 1583

Appeals, 1583

Budget reduction in Regional Economic Expansion Dept., 1683

Canadian Press article quoting statement of Hon. Mr. Pepin, 1576

Compensation, fringe benefits, etc., 1504, 1505

Constitutionality of legislation, question of, 1508

Cost inflation, wage and price controls to counteract, 1503

Energy food and housing supplies, 1504

Enforcement provisions, 1505-06, 1508

Existing contractual arrangements, 1505

Export profits, 1503

Family allowances, 1683

Federal-provincial cooperation in application of guidelines, 1507-08, 1512-13, 1586

Toronto high school teachers, 1507, 1508

Fish and farm products, exemption from guidelines, 1504

Government expenditures, 1504, 1507

Government rejection of Anti-Inflation Board's opinion on postal workers' contract, 1627-8

Interest rates, 1582, 1584

Bank profits, 1582

Judges' salaries, 1662, 1681

Labour leaders' attempts to defeat program, 1505, 1513

Low-income groups, 1504-05

Maintaining of balance of fiscal and monetary policies, 1504

National Defence cutbacks, effect on Nova Scotia economy, 1683

Postal workers, 1587

Prices and incomes policies, 1504, 1508

Productivity and compensation for, 1508-09

Professional categories, 1508, 1509

Voluntary compliance, 1504

Salaries of members, parliamentary secretaries and others, 1585

Termination clause, constitutionality of, 1505, 1573-87

US-Canada wage demands and productivity, 1507

Voting results on legislation in Commons, 1510-11

Wage guidelines, 1683

Anti-inflation (Bill C-73) - Concluded

Speakers: Senators

Argue, Hazen, 1558-9, 1563, 1578-9
 Asselin, Martial, 1509-13, 1574-5
 Austin, Jack, 1525-8
 Beaubien, L. P., 1582
 Benidickson, W. M., 1582, 1584-6
 Carter, Chesley W., 1575
 Denis, Azellus, 1580
 Desruisseaux, Paul, 1542-5
 Flynn, Jacques, 1578, 1579-80, 1586, 1587
 Forsey, Eugene A., 1508, 1532-7
 Greene, John J., 1507, 1508, 1532, 1535
 Grosart, Allister, 1508, 1538-42, 1578
 Hayden, Salter A., 1573
 Lawson, Edward M., 1582
 Manning, Ernest C., 1579
 McDonald, A. Hamilton, 1580-1
 McIlraith, George, 1577
 Molson, Hartland de M., 1573-4
 Perrault, Raymond J., 1503-08, 1511, 1512-13, 1575-7, 1579, 1580, 1582, 1586, 1587
 Phillips, Orville H., 1575, 1583-4
 Robichaud, Louis-J., 1578-9
 Smith, George I., 1508, 1509, 1528-32, 1537, 1580
 van Roggen, George C., 1577, 1581

See Canadian economy

Anti-Inflation Bill (No. 1) C-73. 1r, 1500-01; 2r, 1503-13, 1524-37, 1538-45, 1550-64; ref to com, 1564; rep without amdt but with observations, 1573; m for 3r, 1573, m in amdt, 1573-81, neg, 1581; m for 3r cont, 1581-3; further m in amdt, 1583-7, neg, 1587; 3r, 1587; r.a., 1617

Anti-inflation (Bill C-89)

Anti-Inflation Commission, members, duties, staff and performance, 2135-6
 Appeals, 2098
 Compensation cases, 2098
 Increases in compensation in excess of guidelines, 2098
 Right of notification to an appeal board, 2098
 Appeal Tribunal members, 2106
 Authority of Administrator, 2098
 Bank of Canada, 2135
 Backlog of appeals to board, 2105, 2111, 2135
Canada's Income Policy, An Economic Assessment, article in Canadian Tax Journal, 2134
 Compensation in Quebec industry, 2098
 Conference Board of Canada, comments re anti-inflation program, 2133
 Export levy, effect on resource industries, 2113-14
 New plants and equipment, 2114
Financial Times survey re percentages of wage settlements, 2105
 Foreign exchange, need for in balance of payments, 2114
 Government spending, 2105
 Gross National Product, 2138-9
 Increase in workers affected by guidelines, 2112
 Inflationary effects of high interest rates, food, fuel and transportation costs, 2104
 Labour, failure of employers to file reports with AIB, 2139

Anti-inflation (Bill C-89) - Concluded

Labour leaders' influence on inflationary trends, 2112
 Labour representation in Parliament, 2137
 Maritime wage settlements, 2104, 2106
 Money supply, 2105
 Price increases vs cost-of-living adjustments, 2112
 Small industries, 2113
 Statistics on inflationary trends (1971-77), 2133, 2135
 Currency and demand costs (1968-75), 2133
 Government spending, 2133, 2135
 Three-year limit, 2136
 US anti-inflation program, 2135-6
 US economy, 2138-9
 Women's professional and business groups, 2104

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 2133-6, 2150-1
 Bell, A. E. Haddon, 2114
 Flynn, Jacques, 2138
 Greene, John J., 2136-7
 Lawson, Edward M., 2139
 Lamontagne, Maurice, 2112-13
 Phillips, Orville H., 2104-05
 Stanbury, Richard J., 2098, 2137-9
 van Roggen, George C., 2113-15

See Canadian economy

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89. 1r, 2076; 2r, 2098, 2104-06, 2111-15, 2133-9; ref to com, 2139; rep without amdt, 2141; m for 3r, 2150, m in amdt, 2150-1, neg, 2151; 3r, 2151; r.a., 2152

Anti-inflation program

Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1284, 1293, 1298-1303, 1319-30, 1349-53, 1411-15, 1443-5
 Committee authorized to study legislation in advance of Bill C-73 coming before Senate, 1426
See Anti-Inflation bills C-73 and C-89

Anti-inflation program, questions

Budget reduction in Regional Economic Expansion Dept., 1683
 Family allowances, 1683, 1716-17, 1721
 Ferries operating between Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, 1815, 1860, 1861
 Judges salaries, 1662, 1681
 Meeting of Minister of Finance and provincial representatives re implementation of guidelines, 1549
 National Defence cutbacks in Nova Scotia, 1683, 1716
 Postal workers' contract, government rejection of Board's opinion on, 1627-8, 1655
 Saint John, N.B., increase in bus fare, 1815-16, 1846
 Wages guidelines, 1683

Appendixes

- Aging, recommendations of Special Senate Committee, report on action taken, see Appendix to Debates of Oct. 22/74
- Aircraft Registry bill S-5, correspondence between Transport and Communications Committee and provincial Attorneys General and certain federal departments, 990-7
- Air traffic
 - Letters from Canadian Air Traffic Control Association and Air Line Pilots Association, and letter to Minister of Transport, 2352-3
 - Memorandum of Understanding between the Minister of Transport and Pilots Association, 2276-7
- Bankruptcy and insolvency, rep of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee on subject matter of Bill C-60, see Appendix to Debates of Dec. 11/75
- Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Florida meeting, 2224-33
- Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Quebec meeting, 1144-55
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', report of Transport and Communications Committee, 1118-20
- Canadian textile problems, report of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 2055-6
- Combines Investigation bill C-2, rep of com, 1589-95
- Competition policy in Canada and Combines Investigation Act, report of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 675-83, 1135
- Conflict of interest, report of Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 2303-06
- Criminal law, interim report of Legal and Constitutional Affairs on subject matter of Bill C-83, 2127-8
- Crop insurance programs, report of Agriculture Committee, 1227-9
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service
 - Third report of Special Joint Committee, 1003-04
 - Sixth report of Special Joint Committee, 1799-1812
- Estimates
 - Year ending Mar. 31/75, supplementary (D), 695-702
 - Year ending Mar. 31/76, supplementary (A), 1565-70
 - Year ending Mar. 31/76, supplementary (B), 1948-53
 - Year ending Mar. 31/77, 2173-5
 - Year ending Mar. 31/77, supplementary (A), 2234-5
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, unveiling of portrait in Senate foyer, speeches at ceremony, 469-71
- Forestry, Spruce budworm problem, position statement prepared by Environment Department, 1230-2
- Immigration Policy Committee, third and final report, 1376-84
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, second rep of com, 2401-05
- Loto Canada, rep of com, 2234-5
- Mexico, communique of Parliamentary delegation to Canada, 1887-8
- New Brunswick economic conditions, letter to Hon. Michel Fournier from Diocese of Bathurst, N.B., 1854-5
- Rules of the Senate, report of Committee on Standing Rules and Orders, 1331-6
- Science Policy Committee, first report, 1171-3
- Social welfare forms, see Debates of May 19/76
- Standing Committees, Joint Committees, see appendix of Apr. 27/76
- United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention, statement made in Commons by Secretary of State for External Affairs, 1248-9

Appropriation bill No. 3, 1974 C-31. 1r, 192; 2r, 192-3, 198-205; 3r, 213; r.a., 220

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42. 1r, 373; 2r, 379-80, 385-95, 406-10, m to ref bill to com, 410-17, neg, 417; m for 2r agreed to, on division, 417; m for 3r, 426-30, m that bill be ref to com, 430-4, neg, 434, 3r agreed to, on division, 435; r.a., 467

- Appropriation bill No. 5, 1974 C-45. 1r, 402; 2r, 424-5, 440-1, 444-6; 3r, 446; r.a., 467
- Appropriation bill No. 1, 1975 C-54. 1r, 703; 2r, 703-07, 715-23; 3r, 733-6; r.a., 740
- Appropriation bill No. 2, 1975 C-55. 1r, 707; 2r, 707-08, 736-9; 3r, 739; r.a., 740
- Appropriation bill No. 3, 1975 C-64. 1r, 1097; 2r, 1129-32; 3r, 1133; r.a., 1134
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1975 C-79. 1r, 1571; 2r, 1602-15; 3r, 1615; r.a., 1617
- Appropriation bill No. 1, 1976 C-90. 1r, 1954; 2r, 1972-3, 1976-82; 3r, 1982-4; r.a., 2002
- Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91. 1r, 1965-6; 2r, 1972-3, 1984-91; 3r, 1991-2; r.a., 2002
- Appropriation bill No. 3, 1976 C-93. 1r, 2252; 2r, 2259, 2286-8; 3r, 2288; r.a., 2301
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1976 C-94. 1r, 2252; 2r, 2259; 3r, 2267-9; r.a., 2301

Argue, Hon. Hazen

Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing bill C-21, 1631-2

Ontario wheat producers problems, 1632

Agriculture

Crop loss insurance, 1227-9, 1468-71

Comparison of 1976 prices for insurable crops, 1470-1

Excerpt from letter from Director of Crop Insurance Div. of Agriculture Canada, 1469-70

Penalties for late payment of premiums, 1470

Spot-loss coverage, 1469

Variations in provincial coverages, 1469

Agriculture, Standing Senate Committee

Expenses, 160, 348

Meetings during Senate sittings, 1045

Membership, question re motion for, 591

Reports

Agricultural Stabilization bill C-50, rep without amdt, 1212

Animal Contagious Diseases bill C-28, rep without amdt, 1653

Crop insurance programs, 1212, 1227-9, 1468-71

Farm Credit bill C-34, rep with amdt, 847-8, 863-5, 880-8, 889-92

Feeds bill S-10, rep with amdts, 584-6

Commons amdts ref to com, 1635-7; rep that Commons amdts be concurred in with one substitution, 1650-3, 1660-1

Kent County, NB, 2308, 2334

Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10, rep without amdt, 684

Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 2) C-53, rep without amdt, 1180

Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, rep without amdt but with recommendations, 1088-90

Wheat Board bill S-6, rep without amdt, 255

Terms of reference, motion re, 161, 206

Argue, Hon. Hazen - Continued

- Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1558-9, 1563, 1578-9
 - Agricultural organizations and farming community, 1558-9, 1563
 - Adverse aspects of legislation, 1558-9
 - Agricultural support programs, 1563
 - Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Eugene Whelan, 1559
 - Press report re acceptance of proposals, 1558
 - Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, 1558; press report of president's radio speech, 1558
- British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 133
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2406, 2415-17
 - Adjournment of debate on Bill S-23, 2416
 - Discrimination in past legislation, 2415
 - Lower income and minority groups, 2415
 - Senate responsibility, 2415, 2416
- Energy, conservation of fuel of car awaiting Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, 2209, 2443
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 791, 805-06, 847, 863, 886-8, 890-1
 - Age limit, 806, 863, 890
 - Eligibility criteria, 805
 - French Canadians enrolled in agricultural courses, 806
 - Interest rate, 791
 - Letter from Canadian Federation of Agriculture, 891
 - Small farm development, 805
- Feeds bill S-10, 129-31, 584-6, 1485-7, 1635, 1636-7, 1650-3, 1660-1
 - Commons amdts, 1635, 1636-7
 - Definition of 'feed', 130
 - Feed inspections, 585
 - Manufactured feeds, authority to regulate, 130
 - Medicaments, 585
 - Modifications proposed, 130
 - Penalty upon conviction for indictable offence, 1635, 1636
 - Pet foods, 585
 - Responsibilities of Agriculture Canada, 585
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 82-83
- Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, Standing Senate Committee
 - Orders of the day, notification of item standing in senator's name, 2123
- Investigations in Parliament, point of order re discussion of subject, 1478
- Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, meeting with senators, 290-1
- National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) bill S-23, 800-02, 1459
 - Deterrent aspect, 800
 - Government attitude towards total abolition of death sentence, 800
 - Murders of Toronto policemen cited, 800, 801
 - Occupational hazards vs loss of life, 801
 - Parole or leave of absence records, 801
 - Statistics on killings of policemen, 801
- Northland Bank bill C-1002, 1599-1600
- Olympic bill C-63, 1201-02
 - National context of Games, 1202
 - Western attitude towards expenditures undertaken for Games, 1201-02
 - Western Canada projects sponsored by federal government, 1202
- Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10, 597-9, 600, 602
 - Crowsnest Pass Agreement re freight rates, 598
 - DREE, 599

Argue, Hon. Hazen - ContinuedPrairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) - Concluded

Elevator companies, question of commission for, 597

Flax, 597-8

Grants and subsidies, 599

Railway branch lines, proposed removal of, 598-9

Rules of the Senate

Debate procedure, 601

Point of order re amending of money bills, 886-7

Excerpt from The Modern Senate of Canada, 887

Precedents of money bills amendments by the Senate, 887

Rights of Senate in Matters of Financial Legislation, report of special committee, 887-8

Question of privilege re adjournment of debate on Bill S-23, 1459

Rules of the Senate, report of Standing Rules and Orders Committee, 1460-2

Adjournment of debates for prolonged periods, 1462

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee, 1462

Oral questions, 1460

Quorum of committee meetings, 1460

Quotations from speeches made in Commons, 1460

Terms of reference of committees, 1461

Procedure or practice inconsistent with practices and usages of Senate, 1461

Senate

Business, 1036, 1108, 2121

NDP member for Yorkton-Melville, statement re Senate, 1636

Protective staff, summer uniforms, 1156, 1213-14

Senate reform, discussion out of order, 1578-9

Tailoring service for members of Parliament, 2167-8, 2209

Televising of committee proceedings, 549-50

Senate and House of Commons (Supplementary Retirement Benefits) bill C-81, 2195, 2204

Press criticism of members of Parliament, 2195

Saskatchewan legislature, salary increases, 2195

Transportation, Crowsnest Pass freight rates, 889, 924

Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, 928-30, 1088, 1089

Bread prices, 929

Government disregard of escalating costs, 929-30

Statements to Commons committee re floor price:

Canadian Federation of Agriculture, 929

National Farmers Union, 929

Ontario Wheat Producers' Marketing Board, 930

Palliser Wheat Growers Assoc., 930

West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 82-85

Agriculture policies, improvement in, 84-85

Crop disasters, 84

Grain prices, 85

Prairie farmers and grain handlers reaction to Perry report, 84

Quota restrictions, 85

Western Wheat Pools, 83

West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 727-8

Disruptions in economy due to strikes, 727

Western farmers, difficulties of communication with government, 727-8

Wheat Board annual report, 685, 732

Argue, Hon. Hazen - Concluded

- Wheat Board bill (No. 1) S-6, 170-2, 266-7
 - Cash advances, 267
 - Excerpts from press release by Senator Argue, 171
 - Final payments, 170
 - Grain prices, 170-1
 - Malting barley, 266
 - Operations of Board, 170
- Wheat Board bill (No. 2) C-88, 2331-3
 - Malting barley, 2332
 - Wheat grading, 2332

Argus Corporation Ltd., takeover bid by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd., reference to Senate Committee, inquiry dropped, 1063-4

Army benevolent fund

Statutory authority for management of Army Welfare Fund, 303-04

Speakers: Senators

- Grosart, Allister, 304
- Macnaughton, Alan A., 303-04

Army Benevolent Fund bill C-17. 1r., 280; 2r, 303-04; 3r, 307; r.a., 314

Asselin, Hon. Martial, P.C.

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1509-13, 1574-5
 - Anti-Inflation Board, 1511-12
 - Functions and powers of Board and Administrator, 1511
 - Governor in Council's powers, 1511-12
 - Economic dictatorship aspect of legislation, 1509
 - Government expenditures, 1509-10
 - Labour attempts to defeat legislation, 1513
 - Private sector suppliers of commodities and services, 1512
 - Professional categories, 1508, 1509
 - Provincial jurisdiction over guidelines, 1512, 1513
 - Three-year period of program, 1510, 1512, 1574-5
 - Voting results in Commons, 1510-11
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, 2133-6, 2150-1
 - Anti-Inflation Commission, members, duties, staff and performance, 2135-6
 - Backlog of appeals to Board, 2135-6
 - Bank of Canada, 2135
 - Canada's Income Policy, An Economic Assessment*, article in Canadian Tax Journal, 2134
 - Conference Board of Canada, comments re anti-inflation program, 2133
 - Statistics on inflationary trends (1971-77), 2133, 2135
 - Currency and demand costs (1968-75), 2133
 - Government spending, 2133, 2135
 - Three-year period of program, 2136
 - US anti-inflation program, 2135-6
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 415-16
- Beef producers, federal assistance for, 240-1, 253
- Budget, date of presentation, 161

Asselin, Hon. Martial, P.C. - Continued

Canadian economy

Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1443-5

Excerpts from speeches by Prime Minister re government policies on controls, 1443

Federal-provincial jurisdiction, 1444

Government expenditures, 1443-4

Aircraft purchases, 1444

Consultants fees, 1444

Microsystems, 1444

Mirabel Airport, 1444

Gross National Product, 1443

Crime and violence, 1659-60

Motion in adm't to amdt re terms of reference of proposed committee, 1660, agreed, 1660

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 587-9

Credibility of witnesses, 588

Miscarriage of justice, 588

Murders of policemen and prison guards, 588

Responsibility of judge and jury, 588-9

Royal prerogative, 587-9

Criminal Code, illegal abortions, acquittal of Dr. Henry Morgentaler of charges, 1036

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, 1767-70

Bail provisions, 1767

Crimes against internationally protected persons: Prevention and Punishment - an analysis of the UN Convention, 1769

Impaired driving, breathalyzer test, 1768-9

Rehabilitation of alcoholics, lack of facilities, 1769

Suspension of licence and sentence of imprisonment, 1768

Jury decision, reversal by court of appeal, 1767-8

Canadian Institute of Public Opinion survey re, 1767

Morgentaler case, 1767

Kidnapping and extortion, 1769

Quebec inquiry into organized crime, 1769

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2407-08

Expenses for maintenance of jail inmates, 2408

First and second degree murder and prison term for, 2408

Gallup poll, 2407

'Justice in the street' by policemen, danger of, 2408

Montreal and Quebec City statistics on murders, 2408

Parole Board, 2408

Rehabilitation, 2408

Responsibility of lawmakers, 2407

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill C-214, 377-8

Estimates, Loto Canada, 2245-6

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 402-04, 1007-10; m to amend com rep, 1010-11

Educational drawbacks as result of criminal record, 1008-09

Onus of proof for possession or trafficking of cannabis, 1008, 1011

Parole or unconditional release, 1008

Penalty for importing, exporting, trafficking or possession, 1009

'Traffic', 'give', and 'sell', definitions of, 1009-11

Grey Cup Game, Vancouver, 300, 301

Immigration bill S-12, 194-5, 214, 216

Asselin, Hon. Martial, P.C. - Continued

- Industry, Canadian textile problems, 901, 971, 978-9, motion that subject matter be ref to com, 978-9, agreed, 979
 - Agreements, importing countries disregard of, 844
 - Le Devoir* article re unemployment in Victoriaville, 844
 - Quebec textile workers, 844
 - Textile Board recommendations, 845
 - Textile companies converting to import companies, 844
 - Wages, Canada vs other countries, 844
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo conference, 245-8
 - Japan, economic expansion, 245-7; employment standards, 246-7; inflation, 246, 248
 - Labour unions and strikes in Canada, effect on foreign investments, 245-6
 - Middle East, 247-8; Canadian peacekeeping force, 247
- Judges bill C-47, 1051-2
 - Annuities for judges and deceased judges' spouses, 1052
 - Canadian Judicial Council, 1052
 - Pensions, 1052
 - Salary increases, 1051-2
 - Selection of judges, 1051
 - Superior Court workload, 1052
- Legislation, difficulty in dealing with omnibus bills, 1767
- Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, 1251
- Olympic bill C-63, 1200-01
 - Deficit forecast, 1200
 - Federal government responsibility re expenditures, 1200-01
 - Point of order re minister speaking on behalf of government, 1202
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1285, 1319, 1355
- Privileges and immunities of senators, 1435
- Public Service, strike of general labour and trades group, 642
- Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation for maintenance, 537-40
 - Agreements between federal-provincial governments for services of RCMP, 538
 - Financial implications, 538
 - Conferences and correspondence between Quebec Justice Minister and Solicitor General, 538-9
 - Constitutional jurisdiction of provinces over police matters, 539
 - Opting-out formula, 539
 - Police Costs - Where are all those Millions?*, booklet published by Quebec Justice Dept., 538
 - Separatism, danger of upsurge as result of federal-provincial differences on subject, 540
 - Staff and equipment, lack of facilities to fight Quebec organized crime, 538
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1658
- Representation bill 1974 C-36, 423-4
 - Amalgamation formula, 423-4
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 818-20
 - Bankruptcy of livestock breeders, 820
 - Deterioration of supplies in storage, 819
 - Injunction granted to manufacturers and millers, 819
 - Precedents of emergency legislation, 819, 820
 - Wage and job security demands, 819
- Salaries (Lieutenant Governors) bill C-24, 1091-3, 1094
 - Comparison to salaries of other officials, 1092
 - Pensions, 1092-3
 - Status of lieutenant governors, 1091-2
- Senate business, 923
- Television and radio coverage of proceedings of Senate and committees, 1487-8
 - Controls, 1488
 - Public reaction, 1487-8
 - Resolution adopted by Commons re broadcasting of proceedings, 1487

Asselin, Hon. Martial, P.C. - Concluded

- Work ethic in Canada, 339-42
 - Guaranteed annual income, 339-40
 - Real and fraudulent poverty, 341
 - Vaincre la pauvreté dans les pays riches*, by Lionel Stoleru, 341
- Waste and duplication in social security programs, 340

Atlantic provinces

- Development of tidal power in Bay of Fundy, 2070, 2142
- Feed grains, freight assistance, 1035
- Ferry service operating between PEI, NB, NS and NFLD, and North Sydney and Port aux Basques, possible increase in fares, 1815, 1860, 1861
- Forestry, devastation by Spruce budworm, 1158-63, 1169-70, 1218-20, 1230-2
- Migratory bird sanctuaries, contracts for warden services, 279
- Nova Scotia, storm damage, 135-6
- Offshore oil and gas resources, 2070, 2141-2
- Transportation, Prince Edward Island, 73
- See names of individual provinces*

Atlantic provinces, transportation

- British North America Act as it pertains to transportation, 2049-54, 2063-6, 2070, 2106-08, 2115-18, 2196-8

Auditor General of Canada

- Proposed referral to National Finance Committee of report on office of Auditor General of Canada, 796

Austin, Hon. Jacob (Introduced in the Senate Nov. 5/75)

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1525-8
 - Aspect of 'war' in economic outlook, 1526
 - Disappearance of values of social qualities of life, 1526
 - Economic specialization of interests, 1526
 - Energy crisis, 1527
 - Government spending in response to society's needs, 1526-7
 - Politicians' role and responsibility to public in combatting inflationary trends, 1527-8
- Canada-US relations
 - BC provincial election, question re comments of US ambassador, 1627
 - Canada-US boundary, government policy re demarcation line on Dixon Entrance on Strait of Juan de Fuca, George's Bank and northwards, 2308
 - Communications between Canada and US, newspaper article re remarks attributed to Senator Davey, 2192-3, 2377-8
 - Unofficial meeting of US ambassador with media representatives in Ottawa, 1626
- Canadian Labour Congress
 - Political affiliation, 2153-4
 - Possibility of general strike, newspaper report re meeting and proposals for liberal corporatism, 2130
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2444-5
 - Gallup poll, 2445
 - Parolees, potential for repeat of murders, 2444
 - Vengeance, 2444-5
- Energy
 - Construction of Arctic gas pipeline, supply of Arctic gas to southern Canada, 2037-8, 2069-70
 - Offshore oil and gas resources in Atlantic provinces, 2070, 2141-2, 2202-03
 - Proposed construction of pipeline from Prince Rupert to Edmonton, 2037
 - Proposed pipeline treaty between Canada and United States, 2037

Austin, Hon. Jacob - Concluded

- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2314-15, 2337
 - Broadcasting, 2315
 - KVOS-TV, 2315
 - Canadian ownership and advertising, percentage stipulation, 2314-15
 - 'Substantially the same', definition of, 2314
 - Time* magazine, 2314-15
- Labour, the working poor in Canada, 2154-9
 - Benefits for those under 65 yrs., 2157
 - Canada Pension Plan, 2157
 - Excerpt from speech of Prime Minister at Canadiana Conference, 2158
 - Expansion of money supply and redistribution of resources, 2155
 - Gallup poll results re income statistics, 2155
 - Misallocation of human and physical resources, 2155
 - Old age security, 2156-7
 - Responsibility to work, 2156
 - Social security review (1973), 2156
 - Welfare expenditures (1966-76), 2157
 - Women in the labour force, 2157
- Laing, Honourable Arthur, P.C., the late, 1525
- Marine safety, British Columbia fisheries, 1814-15
- Newfoundland, financial assistance for Come-By-Chance refinery, 1826-7, 1860
- Pacific Western Airlines, possible move of head office to Calgary, 1824-5, 1859, 1868-9, 2376, 2444
- Role of senators and responsibility to nation, 1525, 1527
- Trudeau, Right Honourable Pierre Elliott, Prime Minister, tribute to, 1525

Baltic Nations

- Visitors to the Senate, Acting Honorary Consul General of Estonia and Acting Honorary Consul of Latvia, 1867

Banking, Trade and Commerce, Standing Senate Committee

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, rep without amdt, 2141
- Anti-inflation policy, m to authorize com to study subject matter of Bill C-73, 1408, agreed, 1426
- Bankruptcy and insolvency, com authorized to examine and report on subject matter of Bill C-60, 911
- Budget, 160, 348, 524-5, 911, 1502, 1781, 2119
- Competition policy in Canada and the Combines Investigation Act, com authorized to study, 109-10
- Engagement of services of counsel and technical, clerical and other personnel, 1427-8
- Income tax, com authorized to study legislation prior to receipt of bills, 280, 298-9
- Industry, Canadian textile problems, subject matter ref to com, 979
- Meetings during adjournment, 2047-8
- Meetings during Senate sittings, 373, 505, 535, 563, 1006, 1035, 1403, 1416, 1438, 1485, 1502, 1856-7, 2069, 2098, 2120, 2192, 2216, 2338, 2376
- Members, 96
- Ottawa Journal* article re comments of President of Time Canada before Committee, 2140
- Reports

- Alliance Security and Investigation, Ltd. bill S-26, rep without amdt, 1074
- Anti-inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, rep without amdt but with observation re termination clause, 1573
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, rep without amdt, 2141
- Bankruptcy and insolvency, 1596-7
- Canada Business Corporations bill C-29, rep with amdts, 666-71, 685
- Canadian textile problems, 2055-6
- Combines Investigation bill C-2, rep without amdt but with observations, 1571, 1589-95

Banking, Trade and Commerce, Standing Senate Committee - ConcludedReports - Concluded

- Competition policy and Combines Investigation Act, 663-6, 675-83, 1121-2, 1135
- Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30, rep with amds, 1367-9, 1405-06; m to refer rep back to com, 1406; further rep of com, 1407-08, adopted, 1408
- Customs bill S-4, rep without amdt, 213
- Customs Tariff bill (No. 1) C-27, rep without amdt, 280
- Customs Tariff bill (No. 2) C-39, rep without amdt, 499
- Eastern Canada and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company bill S-29, rep with amds (French text only), 1355
- Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, rep without amdt but with observations re unlicensed wholesalers, 570
- Excise Tax bill C-66, rep without amdt, 1278
- Explosives bill S-17, rep without amdt, 280
- Federal Business Development Bank bill C-14, rep without amdt, 426
- Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-57, rep without amdt, 1197
- Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies bill S-7, rep without amdt, 160
- Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, rep without amdt, 645
- Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65, rep without amdt, 1454
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, rep with amds, 2252-5, 2269-75; further rep without amdt, 2389-2400, 2401-05
- Income Tax Conventions bill S-32, rep without amdt, 1867
- Indian Oil and Gas bill C-15, rep without amdt, 402
- Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, rep with amds, 348-9, 368
- National Commercial Bank of Canada bill S-24, rep with amds, 1057, 1062-3
- Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, rep with amds, 840, 851, 1005
- Olympic bill C-63, rep without amdt, 1211
- Petro-Canada bill C-8, rep without amdt, 1244
- Petroleum Administration bill C-32, rep with amds, 981-2, 1002, 1034
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, rep without amdt, 1639
- United Growers Limited bill S-33, rep without amdt, 2003
- Terms of reference, 110, 1427-8
- Tributes to Chairman Senator Hayden, 1316-17

Bankruptcy and insolvency

- Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee authorized to examine and report on subject matter of Bill C-60, 911; rep of com, 1596-7
- Bankruptcy judge, 1597
- Registrar's position, reinstatement of, 1596
- Rights and priorities of secured creditors, 1596

Barrow, Hon. Augustus Irvine (Introduced in the Senate Sept. 30/74)

- Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company bill S-29, 1307-08
- Explosives bill S-17, 263-4
- Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, 1628-9, 1630
 - Auditor General's appt. as auditor, 1629
 - Background and statistics of annuities, 1628
 - Return rate increase, 1628-9
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1639

Beaubien, Hon. L. P.

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1582
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2411

Beaubien, Hon. L. P. - Concluded

- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1929
 - Canada-US relations, 1929
 - Canadian companies controlled in US, 1929
- Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, 281
- National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) bill S-23, 835-6
 - Crime increase, 835-6
 - Montreal kidnappings, 835
 - Violation of parole conditions, 836
- Senate business, 1876

Beaver (Castor canadensis)

- See* Canadian Sovereignty bill C-373, 685-8, 709, 714, 731.

Beetz, Hon. Jean, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada

- Royal assent, 1791-2, 2002, 2207

Belgium

- Canada-Belgium income tax convention, 1792, 1793-8

Belisle, Hon. Rheal

- Broadcasting, appearance of Gerda Munsinger on CBC television program, 1619
- Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission bill C-5, 849-51
 - Canadian Transport Commission members and employees, protection re employment, 850
 - Communications: Some Federal Proposals*, 850
 - Licensing of cable television, 850
 - Provincial consultations and jurisdiction, 849-50
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 562, 564-7
 - Appeals at state expense, 565
 - Compensation for victims of crime, 564-5
 - Deterrent aspect, 565
 - Innocent persons convicted of crime, 565
 - Life sentence, duration of, 565
 - Police officers and prison guards, lack of law enforcement in murders of, 566
 - Rehabilitation of convicted persons, 565
 - Responsibilities of judge and jury, 565
 - Royal prerogative, 566-7
 - May's Parliamentary Practice*, Queen's Consent to Bills cited, 566
- Customs bill S-4, 167-9
 - Jurisdiction to outer limits of territorial sea of Canada, 168
 - Oil explorations of foreign origin off Atlantic coast, 168
 - Preferential tax exemptions to Canadian companies in resource explorations, 168-9
- Customs Tariff bill (No. 1) C-27, 270-1
 - Tariff protection, effect on consumer, 270-1
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill C-370, 527, 528
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 891
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 167-8
- Fire Losses Replacement Account bill C-18, 353
 - Conditions covering replacement of or repair to buildings, 353
- Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37, 1049-50
 - Alternate disposal, 1050
 - Conference on Law of the Sea, 1050
 - Deliberate or accidental dumping, 1051
 - Federal-provincial consultation, 1050
 - London Convention, 1050

Belisle, Hon. Rheal - Concluded

Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37 - Concluded

Ontario, pollution of lakes and rivers, 1050

Permits for dumping, 1050

Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1665

Rules of the Senate

Point of order re senators taking part in debate, 560

Use of unparliamentary language in debate, 562

Senate business, 1881

Statute Law (Status of Women) 1974 bill C-16, 1104-07

Cadet organizations, 1106

Education, 1105

Labour force discriminations, 1105

Pension inequalities, 1106

Political status, 1105

Speakers of the Senate, 1105

Unemployment insurance, 1106

Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, 1708-09, 1710

Common-law spouse, 1708

Equalization of benefits to male and female employees, 1708

Interest on return of contributions, 1708-09, 1710

Members of Parliament, 1709

Widows of senators, 1709

Widows without survivor benefits, 1708

Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances) bill C-4, 258-62

Common-law wife, 261

Dependent children, 260

Equality for male and female veterans, 260

Widowers of female veterans attaining age of 60 yrs., 261

Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1701

Refunds to persons 65 yrs. and over, 1701

Bell, Hon. A.E. Haddon

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2), C-89, 2114

British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 132-3, 338

Capital stock, 132

Construction expenditures, 132

Citizenship bill C-20, 2075

Criminal Code bill S-21, 574-5

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-85, 2441-2

Abortion vs murder, 2441-2

Deterrent aspect, 2441

Environmental affairs, protection of coastal waters from radio-active pollution, 889, 924

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1018-19, 1031-3, 1076

Certificate of analysis, 1033

Compulsory treatment, 1032

Criminal records of young offenders, 1032

Penalty, 1032

Possession for purpose of trafficking, 1032-3

Preventive detention of traffickers, 1032

Immigration, Gulf Islands, BC, ministerial discretion permits, 2322

Visitors to Parliament, abatement of noise in Senate precincts, 1012

Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41, 1725

Benidickson, Hon. W. M., P.C.

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1584-6
 - Bank interest rates, 1582, 1584
 - Government expenditures, 1585
 - Ottawa Citizen* article titled 'Carpets escape the axe', 1585
 - Salaries of members, Parliamentary secretaries and others, 1585
 - Termination clause, 1584
- Appropriation bill No. 1, 1975 C-54, 703, 704
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1975 C-79, 1609-12, 1614
- Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91, 1991
- Argus Corporation Ltd., takeover bid by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd., reference to Senate committee, inquiry dropped, 1063-4
- Committee proceedings, delay in printing and distribution of, 703-04
- Customs Tariff bill (No. 1) C-27, 262, 263
 - Articles exempted, 262
 - Petroleum products, 262
 - Schedules omitted from bill format, 263
- Customs Tariff bill (No. 3) C-67, 1209-10, 1215
 - Aircraft and aircraft engines, 1210
 - Gifts, 1210
 - Petroleum products, 1210
- Estimates
 - Corporate power in relation to expenditures, 1611-12
 - Canadian Establishment*, by Peter Newman, 1612
 - Conflict of interest, excerpts from letters re, 1612
 - Power Corporation of Canada Ltd., 1611-12
 - Royal Commission re, 1611-12
 - Energy, Mines and Resources, 1609
 - Information Canada, 1610
 - Oil compensation program, 1609
 - Transport Department, 1609-11
 - Aircraft manufacturing, 1610-11
 - Canadair-Government of Canada option, 1610-11, 1614-15
 - Mirabel and Toronto Airports, 1610
 - STOL aircraft, 1609-10
- Law Reform Commission bill C-43, 624-5, 660-1
 - Assets distributed through bankruptcy, 661
 - Benefits available to lower income groups, 660-1
 - Canadian Welfare article by Prof. Friedland on 'Law for the Layman', 661
 - Composition of Commission, 624; members of legal profession, 625
 - Family property and sharing of assets in event of marriage breakup, 624
 - Judgment debtors, problems through ignorance of law, 661
 - Law educational system, 625
 - Legal profession statistics, Quebec and Ontario, 625
 - Objectives for year in field of criminal law, family law, code of sentencing, expropriation, etc., 624
 - Poor man's bankruptcy, 661
 - Studies of commission to date, 624
- Manpower and Immigration Dept., Manpower Division, 419-20
 - West Germany economic development, report on, 419-20; unemployment and inflation, plans re, 419
- Northland Bank bill C-1002, 1600
- Parliamentary immunity, 1399
- Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10, 615

Benidickson, Hon. W. M., P.C. - Concluded

Rules of the Senate

- Point of order on inquiry re Air Canada service, 506, 507
- Presentation of committee report before review by senators, 1606
- Special procedure or practice in committee, approval of Senate for, 1364
- Time of daily sittings, 1364
- Salaries (Lieutenant Governors) bill C-24, 1095
- Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances) bill C-4, 269-70
- Televising of committee proceedings, 514, 521-2
- Welfare ministers' conference, statement by Minister of NHW re federal policy in social welfare field, 556, 564

Bilingualism and biculturalism

- Air Canada pilots, 2344-8, 2378-86
- Appointment of unilingual employees over 60 yrs. to bilingual positions, 290
- New Brunswick agricultural representatives, 121-2
- Nova Scotia Acadians, 18-19
- Official languages, implementation of resolution, report to Parliament tabled, 289-90
- Official languages, report of Commissioner tabled, 757
- Public Service bilingualism, statistics, 290
- Quebec Bill 22 on use of French language, 55-58

Bills, general data

- Amendments, observations or recommendations regarding bills
 - Aircraft Registry bill S-5, 980-1, 999-1002
 - Alberta-British Columbia Boundary bill S-13, 326
 - Alliance Security & Investigation, Ltd. bill S-26, 1261
 - Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1573
 - British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 325, 338
 - Canada Business Corporations bill C-29, 666-71, 685, 712
 - Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1571, 1589-95
 - Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30, 1367-9, ref back to com for further report, 1405-06, further rep of com, 1407-08
 - Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 848, 908-09, 1005
 - Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company bill S-29, 1355, 1372
 - Farm Credit bill C-34, 847-8, 863-5, 880-8, 889-92, 899
 - Feeds bill S-10, 584-6, Commons amds, 1467, 1480, 1485-6, ref to com, 1635-7
 - Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 300, 354-62, 366-8, 374-5, 382-5, 402-06, 446-54, 456, 969-71, 983, 1007-11, 1014-21, 1023-33, 1036-8, 1046-9, 1066, 1074-80
 - Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2252-5, 2269-75, ref back to com, further rep without amdt, 2389-2400, 2401-05
 - Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, 348-9, 368
 - Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, 1369
 - Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 2058, 2066-8
 - National Commercial Bank of Canada bill S-24, 1057, 1062-3
 - Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, 840, 851, 1005
 - Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 981-2, 1013, 1034
 - Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill S-9, 240, 245
 - Statute Law (Status of Women) 1974 bill C-16, 1122-3, 1136
 - Territorial Lands bill C-20, 579
 - Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, 1088-90
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, lack of regulations in format, 1529

Bills, general data - Concluded

- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, subject matter ref to Legal and Constitutional Committee, 940-1
- Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) bill C-223, ref to com after m for 3r, 740
- Income Tax bill C-49, 645-7
- Legislation received in Senate without original explanatory notes, 622, 709
- Minister of Manpower and Immigration invited to take part in Senate debate on unemployment insurance, 1695-1705
- Minister of State for Urban Affairs invited to take part in Senate debate on national housing, 748-57, 1673-81
- Omnibus bills, difficulty in dealing with, 1742, 1775-6
- Printing and distribution of bills, 61
- Private bills
 - Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, suspension of rule 95, 1234-5
 - Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, suspension of rule 95, 1207-09
- Public and private bills dealt with during session, 1286-7
- Public bills, motion to suspend rules dropped, 1292
- Resume of Senate work Oct. 21-Dec. 20/75, 1717
- Right to Information bill C-225, subject matter ref to Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 467
- Schedules omitted from bill format, 263
- Superannuation bill C-52, rep of Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, 1545-7

Bills, Numerically, Commons

- C-2 Combines Investigation
- C-3 British North America Acts 1867 to 1975
- C-4 Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances)
- C-5 Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission
- C-8 Petro-Canada
- C-9 Export Development
- C-10 Prairie Grain Advance Payments
- C-12 West Coast Grain Handling Operations
- C-13 Northern Canada Power Commission
- C-14 Federal Business Development Bank
- C-15 Indian Oil and Gas
- C-16 Statute Law (Status of Women) 1974
- C-17 Army Benevolent Fund
- C-18 Fire Losses Replacement Account
- C-19 Two-Price Wheat
- C-20 Citizenship
- C-21 Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing
- C-22 Canada Pension Plan
- C-23 Lieutenant Governors Superannuation
- C-24 Salaries
- C-25 Environmental Contaminants
- C-26 Civil Service Insurance
- C-27 Customs Tariff (No. 1)
- C-28 Animal Contagious Diseases
- C-29 Canada Business Corporations
- C-31 Appropriation No. 3, 1974
- C-32 Petroleum Administration
- C-33 Cultural Property Export and Import

Bills, Numerically, Commons - Continued

C-34	Farm Credit
C-36	Representation 1974
C-37	Ocean Dumping Control
C-38	Public Service Employment, Staff Relations, Superannuation, Interpretation
C-39	Customs Tariff (No. 2)
C-40	Excise Tax and Excise
C-41	Western Grain Stabilization
C-42	Appropriation No. 4, 1974
C-43	Law Reform Commission
C-44	Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries
C-45	Appropriation No. 5, 1974
C-46	National Housing (No. 1)
C-47	Judges Act and Certain Acts related to the Supreme Courts of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island
C-48	Railway
C-49	Income Tax (No. 1)
C-50	Agricultural Stabilization
C-51	Northwest Territories Representation
C-52	Statute Law (Superannuation)
C-53	Prairie Grain Advance Payments (No. 2)
C-54	Appropriation No. 1, 1975
C-55	Appropriation No. 2, 1975
C-56	West Coast Ports Operations 1975
C-57	Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements
C-58	Income Tax (No. 3)
C-59	St. Lawrence Ports Operations
C-62	Old Age Security
C-63	Olympic
C-64	Appropriation No. 3, 1975
C-65	Income Tax (No. 2)
C-66	Excise Tax
C-67	Customs Tariff (No. 3)
C-68	Medical Care
C-69	Unemployment Insurance
C-70	Public Service Staff Relations
C-71	Criminal Law Amendment (No. 1) 1975
C-73	Anti-Inflation (No. 1)
C-74	Regional Development Incentives
C-75	Government Annuities Improvement
C-76	King George V Cancer Fund Winding-Up
C-77	National Housing (No. 2)
C-78	Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation
C-79	Appropriation No.4, 1975
C-80	Supplementary Borrowing Authority
C-81	Senate and House of Commons
C-84	Criminal Law Amendment (No. 2) 1976
C-85	Temporary Immigration Security
C-86	Statute Law (Veterans and Returned Soldiers' Insurance)
C-88	Wheat Board (No. 2)
C-89	Anti-Inflation (No. 2)
C-90	Appropriation No. 1, 1976
C-91	Appropriation No. 2, 1976
C-92	Compensation for Former Prisoners of War
C-93	Appropriation No. 3, 1976

Bills, Numerically, Commons - Concluded

C-94	Appropriation No. 4, 1976
C-214	Electoral Boundaries Readjustment
C-223	Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada)
C-228	Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Bruce)
C-229	Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Lafontaine)
C-365	Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Berthier)
C-367	Fort-Falls Bridge Authority
C-370	Electoral Boundaries Readjustment
C-373	Canadian Sovereignty Symbol
C-1001	Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass)
C-1002	Northland Bank

Bills, Numerically, Senate

S-1	Railways (pro forma)
S-2	Supreme Court
S-3	Statute Revision
S-4	Customs
S-5	Aircraft Registry
S-6	Wheat Board
S-7	Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies
S-8	Motor Vehicle Tire Safety
S-9	Proprietary or Patent Medicine and Trade Marks (No. 1)
S-10	Feeds
S-11	British Columbia Telephone Company
S-12	Immigration
S-13	Alberta-British Columbia Boundary
S-14	Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms)
S-15	Industry, Trade and Commerce Department
S-16	Statutes of Canada (to revise references to Court of Queen's Bench)
S-17	Explosives
S-18	International Air Transport Association
S-19	Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code
S-20	Territorial Lands
S-21	Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence)
S-22	Senate (Intersessional Authority)
S-23	National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment)
S-24	National Commercial Bank of Canada (Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank)
S-25	Privileges and Immunities (International Organizations)
S-26	Alliance Security and Investigation, Ltd.
S-27	Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation
S-28	Royal Canadian Legion
S-29	Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company
S-30	Continental Bank of Canada
S-31	Quarantine
S-32	Income Tax Conventions
S-33	United Grain Growers Limited
S-34	Aeronautics
S-35	Proprietary or Patent Medicine and Trade Marks (No. 2)

Bills, Private, Commons

Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) C-1001.	1r, 1233; 2r, 1233-4; ref to com, 1234; suspension of rule 95, 1234-5; rep without amdt, 1244; 3r, 1251-2, 1257-9; r.a., 1281
Northland Bank C-1002.	1r, 1524; 2r, 1598-1600; ref to com, 1600; suspension of rule 95, 1601; rep without amdt, 1602; 3r, 1619; r.a., 1712

Bills, Private, Senate

- Alliance Security & Investigation, Ltd. S-26. 1r, 1022; 2r, 1053-4; ref to com, 1054; rep without amdt, 1074; 3r, 1091; Commons amdt concurred in, 1261; r.a., 1281
- British Columbia Telephone Company S-11. 1r, 99; 2r, 132-4; ref to com, 134; rep without amdt, 178; 3r, 194; Commons amdt, 325; concurred in, 338; r.a., 397
- Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank, see National Commercial Bank of Canada S-24
- Continental Bank of Canada S-30. 1r, 1306; 2r, 1340-5; ref to com, 1345; rep with amdts, 1367-9, 1405-06; m to ref rep back to com, 1406; further rep of com, 1407-08, adopted, 1408; 3r, 1408
- Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company S-29. 1r, 1293; 2r, 1307-08; ref to com, 1308; rep with amdts, (French text only), 1355, 1372; 3r, 1373; r.a., 1712
- Honey Bear Brewing Corporation Limited, refund of fees on proposed bill, 1782
- International Air Transport Association S-18. 1r, 265; 2r, 301-03; ref to com, 303; rep without amdt, 373; 3r, 382; r.a., 581
- National Commercial Bank of Canada S-24. 1r, 923; 2r, 935-6, 958-62, 973-4; ref to com, 974; rep with amdts, 1057, 1062-3; 3r, 1063; r.a., 1281
- Royal Canadian Legion S-28. 1r, 1180; 2r, 1194-6, 1205-07; ref to com, 1207; suspension of rule 95, 1207-09; rep without amdt, 1211-12; 3r, 1212; r.a., 1281
- United Grain Growers Limited bill S-33. 1r, 1914; 2r, 1924-5, 1930, 1946-7; ref to com, 1947; rep without amdt, 2003; 3r, 2009; r.a., 2207

Bills, Public, Commons

- Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing C-21. 1r, 1617-18; 2r, 1630-2; 3r, 1640; r.a., 1712
- Agricultural Stabilization C-50. 1r, 1164; 2r, 1190-4; ref to com, 1194; rep without amdt, 1212; 3r, 1212; r.a., 1281
- Animal Contagious Diseases C-28. 1r, 1618; 2r, 1632-5; ref to com, 1635; rep without amdt, 1653; 3r, 1666; r.a., 1712
- Anti-Inflation (No. 1) C-73. 1r, 1500-01; 2r, 1503-13, 1524-37, 1538-45, 1550-64; ref to com, 1564; rep without amdt but with observations, 1573; m for 3r, 1573, m in amdt, 1573-81, neg, 1581; m for 3r cont, 1581-3; further m in amdt, 1583-7, neg, 1587; 3r, 1587; r.a., 1617
- Anti-Inflation (No. 2) C-89. 1r, 2076; 2r, 2098, 2104-06, 2111-15, 2133-9; ref to com, 2139; rep without amdt, 2141; m for 3r, 2150, m in amdt, 2150-1, neg, 2151; 3r, 2151; r.a., 2152
- Appropriation No. 3, 1974 C-31. 1r, 192; 2r, 192-3, 198-205; 3r, 213; r.a., 220
- Appropriation No. 4, 1974 C-42. 1r, 373; 2r, 379-80, 385-95, 406-10, m to ref bill to com, 410-17, neg, 417; m for 2r agreed to, on division, 417; m for 3r, 426-30, m that bill be ref to com, 430-4, neg, 434; 3r agreed to, on division, 435; r.a., 467
- Appropriation No. 5, 1974 C-45. 1r, 402; 2r, 424-5, 440-1, 444-6; 3r, 446; r.a., 467
- Appropriation No. 1, 1975 C-54. 1r, 703; 2r, 703-07, 715-23; 3r, 733-6; r.a., 740
- Appropriation No. 2, 1975 C-55. 1r, 707; 2r, 707-08, 736-9; 3r, 739; r.a., 740
- Appropriation No. 3, 1975 C-64. 1r, 1097; 2r, 1129-32; 3r, 1133; r.a., 1134
- Appropriation No. 4, 1975 C-79. 1r, 1571; 2r, 1602-15; 3r, 1615; r.a., 1617
- Appropriation No. 1, 1976 C-90. 1r, 1954; 2r, 1972-3, 1976-82; 3r, 1982-4; r.a., 2002
- Appropriation No. 2, 1976 C-91. 1r, 1965-6; 2r, 1972-3, 1984-91; 3r, 1991-2; r.a., 2002
- Appropriation No. 3, 1976 C-93. 1r, 2252; 2r, 2259, 2286-8; 3r, 2288; r.a., 2301
- Appropriation No. 4, 1976 C-94. 1r, 2252; 2r, 2259; 3r, 2267-9; r.a., 2301
- Army Benevolent Fund C-17. 1r, 280; 2r, 303-04; 3r, 307; r.a., 314
- British North America Acts 1867 to 1975 C-3. 1r, 1005; 2r, 1054, 1060-2; 3r, 1081; r.a., 1095
- Canada Business Corporations C-29. 1r, 472; 2r, 489-98; ref to com, 498; rep with amdts, 666-71, 685; 3r, 685; Commons concurrence in Senate amdts, 712; r.a., 731
- Canada Pension Plan C-22. 1r, 242; 2r, 249-52, 277-9; ref to com, 279; rep without amdt, 300; 3r, 307; r.a., 314
- Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission C-5. 1r, 803; 2r, 829-32, 841-3, 849-51; ref to com, 851; rep without amdt, 998; 3r, 1007; r.a., 1095
- Canadian Sovereignty Symbol C-373. 1r, 663; 2r, 685-8, 709; 3r, 714; r.a., 731
- Canadian Wheat Board, see Wheat Board

Bills, Public, Commons - Continued

- Citizenship C-20. 1r, 2058; 2r, 2071-5, 2077-9, 2087-96; ref to com, 2096; rep without amdt, 2242; m for 3r, 2264-5, m in amdt, 2265-7, 2279-86, 2289, m in amdt neg, 2289-90, debate on 3r cont, 2290-3, 2309-13, 2323-4, 2336-7, 2348-50; m in amdt that bill be ref back to com, neg, 2350; 3r, 2350; r.a., 2450
- Civil Service Insurance C-26. 1r, 712; 2r, 766-7, 770; 3r, 775; r.a., 832
- Combines Investigation C-2. 1r, 1283; 2r, 1293-6, 1308-12; ref to com, 1312; rep without amdt but with observations, 1571, 1589-95; 3r, 1598; r.a., 1617
- Compensation for Former Prisoners of War C-92. 1r, 2014; 2r, 2038-43; 3r, 2043; r.a., 2096
- Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) C-223. 1r, 663; 2r, 710-11; m for 3r, 714-15, 740; m in amdt that bill be ref to com, agreed, 740
- Criminal Law Amendment (No. 1) 1975 C-71. 1r, 1714; 2r, 1730-3, 1742-7, 1766-70, 1772-6; ref to com, 1776; rep with amdts, 1867-8, 1884-6; m for 3r, 1893, m in amdt, 1893-9, m in amdt to amdt, 1899-1900, neg, m for 3r as amended, 1900, 1903-06, further amdt, 1906-08 neg, 1908; 3r, 1908; Commons agreement in Senate amdts, 1974; r.a., 2002
- Criminal Law Amendment (No. 2) 1976 C-84. 1r, 2386; 2r, 2386-9; m re disposition of 3r and passage of bill, 2407; 2r cont, 2407-42; question re voting procedure, 2444; 2r cont, 2444-50; 3r, 2450; r.a., 2450
- Cultural Property Export and Import C-33. 1r, 712; 2r, 761-6, 768-70, 797-800, 810-13; ref to com, 813; rep with amdts, 848, 908-09; m in amdt adopted, 909-11; 3r, 912; Commons concurrence in Senate amdts, 1005; r.a., 1095
- Customs Tariff (No. 1) C-27. 1r, 242; 2r, 262-3, 270-1; ref to com, 271; rep without amdt, 282; 3r, 291; r.a., 314
- Customs Tariff (No. 2) C-39. 1r, 472; 2r, 484-5, 486-9; ref to com, 489; rep without amdt, 499; 3r, 508, 514-16; r.a., 581
- Customs Tariff (No. 3) C-67. 1r, 1197; 2r, 1209-10, 1214-15; 3r, 1215; r.a., 1281
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment No. 1 C-214. 1r, 325; 2r, 377-8; 3r, 382; r.a., 397
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment No. 2 C-370. 1r, 514; 2r, 526-8, 536-7; ref to com, 537; rep without amdt, 555; 3r, 564; r.a., 581
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Berthier) C-365. 1r, 564; 2r, 602-03; 3r, 606; r.a., 656
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Bruce) C-228. 1r, 583; 2r, 601; 3r, 606; r.a., 656
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Lafontaine) C-229. 1r, 583; 2r, 601-02; 3r, 606; r.a., 656
- Environmental Contaminants C-25. 1r, 1348; 2r, 1371-2, 1403-04; ref to com, 1404; rep without amdt, 1437; 3r, 1446; r.a., 1476
- Excise Tax C-66. 1r, 1265; 2r, 1267-78; ref to com, 1278; rep without amdt, 1278; 3r, 1278-80; r.a., 1281
- Excise Tax and Excise C-40. 1r, 279; 2r, 499-501, 519-20; ref to com, 521; rep without amdt, 570; com observations re unlicensed wholesalers, 570; 3r, 570-3; r.a., 581
- Export Development C-9. 1r, 459; 2r, 459-64; 3r, 464; r.a., 467
- Farm Credit C-34. 1r, 781; 2r, 788-91, 796-7, 803-07; ref to com, 807; rep with amdt and recommendations, 847-8, 863-5, 880, m in amdt, 880-2, point of order re amdt, Speaker's ruling reserved, 882-8, Speaker's ruling on point of order, 889-90, m for adoption of rep continued, 890-2, m in amdt adopted, 892, main m as amended agreed and rep adopted, 892; 3r, 893; r.a., 899
- Federal Business Development Bank C-14. 1r, 348; 2r, 366-71, 417-18; ref to com, 418; rep without amdt, 426; 3r, 444; r.a., 467
- Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements C-57. 1r, 1136; 2r, 1175-8, 1180-8; ref to com, 1188; rep without amdt, 1197; 3r, 1214; r.a., 1281
- Fire Losses Replacement Account C-18. 1r, 325; 2r, 338, 353; 3r, 366; r.a., 397
- Fort-Falls Bridge Authority C-367. 1r, 781; 2r, 855-6; 3r, 867; r.a., 899
- Government Annuities Improvement C-75. 1r, 1618; 2r, 1628-30, 1640-1; ref to com, 1641; rep without amdt, 1649; 3r, 1706; r.a., 1712
- Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation C-78. 1r, 1714; 2r, 1717-18, 1721-3; 3r, 1730; r.a., 1792
- Income Tax (No. 1) C-49. 1r, 583; 2r, 606-14, 616-21, 627-40; ref to com, 640; rep without amdt, 645; m for 3r, 645-9; m in amdt, neg, 649-56; 3r, 656; r.a., 656

Bills, Public, Commons - Continued

- Income Tax (No. 2) C-65. 1r, 1403; 2r, 1417-22, 1439-42; ref to com, 1442; rep without amdt, 1454; 3r, 1459; r.a., 1476
- Income Tax (No. 3) C-58. 1r, 1792; 2r, 1836-45, 1848, 1862-6, 1869-73, 1881-3, 1908-10, 1925-9, 1931-3, 1938-46, 1955-8, 1992-2002, 2004-06, 2014-15, 2024-33; ref to com, 2033; rep with amdt, 2252-5, 2269-75, 2293-2301, 2313-15, 2325-30, 2337, m to ref rep back to com, 2337, agreed, 2338; further rep of com without amdt, 2389-98, 2401-05; 3r, 2398-2400; r.a., 2450
- Indian Oil and Gas C-15. 1r, 325; 2r, 337-8, 351-3; ref to com, 353; rep without amdt, 402; 3r, 426; r.a., 467
- Judges Act and Certain Acts related to the Supreme Courts of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island C-47. 1r, 1005; 2r, 1040-3, 1051-3; ref to com, 1053; rep without amdt, 1066; 3r, 1080; r.a., 1095
- King George V Cancer Fund Winding-Up C-76. 1r, 1467; 2r, 1480-3; 3r, 1486; r.a., 1617
- Law Reform Commission C-43. 1r, 583; 2r, 624-5, 643-4, 660-1; ref to com, 661; rep without amdt, 759; 3r, 768; r.a., 832
- Lieutenant Governors Superannuation C-23. 1r, 1304; 2r, 1337-40; ref to com, 1340; rep without amdt, but with observations, 1369; 3r, 1370; r.a., 1476
- Medical Care C-68. 1r, 2307; 2r, 2317-18, 2338-44, 2357-9, 2364-6; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Hon. Alan A. Macnaughton in the Chair, Hon. Marc Lalonde, Minister of Health and Welfare, taking part in debate, 2366-75; rep without amdt, 2375; 3r, 2378; r.a., 2450
- National Housing (No. 1) C-46. 1r, 742; 2r, 743-8; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Senator Bourget in the Chair, Minister of State for Urban Affairs Hon. B. Danson taking part in debate, 748-57; rep without amdt, 757; 3r, 757; r.a., 758
- National Housing (No. 2) C-77. 1r, 1667; 2r, 1667-73; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Senator Macnaughton in the Chair, Minister of State for Urban Affairs Hon. B. Danson taking part in debate, 1673-81; rep without amdt, 1681; 3r, 1681; r.a., 1712
- Northern Canada Power Commission C-13. 1r, 795; 2r, 807-08, 813-15; ref to com, 815; rep with amdt, 840, 851; 3r, 855; Commons concurrence in Senate amdt, 1005; r.a., 1095
- Northwest Territories Representation C-51. 1r, 583; 2r, 594-5, 622-3; 3r, 642; r.a., 656
- Ocean Dumping Control C-37. 1r, 1005; 2r, 1038-40, 1049-51; ref to com, 1051; rep without amdt, 1088; 3r, 1088; r.a., 1096
- Old Age Security, Old Age Assistance C-62. 1r, 1087; 2r, 1101-03, 1123-6; 3r, 1126; r.a., 1134
- Olympic C-63. 1r, 1174; 2r, 1188-90, 1198-1205; ref to com, 1205; rep without amdt, 1211; 3r, 1211; r.a., 1281
- Petro-Canada C-8. 1r, 1174; 2r, 1178-9, 1215-18; ref to com, 1218; rep without amdt, 1244; 3r, 1251; r.a., 1281
- Petroleum Administration C-32. 1r, 847; 2r, 861-3, 902-07, 012-16, 925-7, 935-6; ref to com, 936; rep with amdt, 981-2, 1002; m to amend French version, 1013; 3r, 1013; Commons concurrence in Senate amdt, 1034; r.a., 1095
- Prairie Grain Advance Payments (No. 1) C-10. 1r, 583; 2r, 595-601, 614-15, 621-2; ref to com, 622; rep without amdt, 684; 3r, 709; r.a., 731
- Prairie Grain Advance Payments (No. 2) C-53. 1r, 1136; 2r, 1156-7, 1166-8; ref to com, 1168; rep without amdt, 1180; 3r, 1198; r.a., 1281
- Public Service Employment, Staff Relations, Superannuation, Interpretation C-38. 1r, 464; 2r, 464-6; 3r, 466-7; r.a., 467
- Public Service Staff Relations C-70. 1r, 1235; 2r, 1235-7, 1244-6; 3r, 1251; r.a., 1281
- Railway C-48. 1r, 712; 2r, 760-1; ref to com, 761; rep without amdt, 795; 3r, 803; r.a., 832
- Regional Development Incentives C-74. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1601-02, 1619-22; ref to com, 1622; rep without amdt, 1639; 3r, 1658-9; r.a., 1712
- Representation 1974 C-36. 1r, 402; 2r, 420-4, 435-40; ref to com, 440; rep without amdt, 443; 3r, 443; r.a., 467
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations C-59. 1r, 817; 2r, 817-27; 3r, 827; r.a., 832
- Salaries C-24. 1r, 1065; 2r, 1081, 1091-5; 3r, 1095; r.a., 1096
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries C-44. 1r, 847; 2r, 856-61, 868-80; 3r, 889; r.a., 899

Bills, Public, Commons - Concluded

- Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirements Benefits C-81. 1r, 2177; 2r, 2186-7, 2193-6; ref to Committee of the Whole, 2196; considered in Committee of the Whole, Senator Macnaughton in the Chair, 2203-07; rep without amdt, 2207; 3r, 2207; r.a., 2207
- Statute Law (Status of Women) 1974 C-16. 1r, 1065; 2r, 1103-07; m to amend French version, 1122-3; 3r, 1123; Commons concurrence in Senate amdt, 1136; r.a., 1281
- Statute Law (Superannuation) C-52. 1r, 1706; 2r, 1706-11; 3r, 1711; r.a., 1712
- Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances) C-4. 1r, 242; 2r, 267-70; ref to com, 270; rep without amdt, 272; 3r, 281; r.a., 314
- Statute Law (Veterans and Returned Soldiers' Insurance) C-86. 1r, 1856; 2r, 1883-4, 1910-11; 3r, 1917; r.a., 2002
- Supplementary Borrowing Authority C-80. 1r, 1638; 2r, 1641-4; ref to com, 1644; rep without amdt, 1649; 3r, 1649-50; r.a., 1712
- Temporary Immigration Security C-85. 1r, 1813; 2r, 1820, 1827-36; ref to com, 1836; rep without amdt, 1874; 3r, 1893; r.a., 2002
- Two-Price Wheat C-19. 1r, 900; 2r, 928-30, 942-4; ref to com, 944; rep without amdt but with recommendations, 1088-90; 3r, 1090; r.a., 1095
- Unemployment Insurance C-69. 1r, 1686; 2r, 1686-95; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Senator Macnaughton in the Chair, Minister of Manpower and Immigration Hon. Robert K. Andras taking part in debate, 1695-1700; m to amend clause 6 not carried, 1700, debate cont, 1700-06; 3r, 1706; r.a., 1712
- West Coast Grain Handling Operations C-12. 1r, 76; 2r, 77-93; 3r, 93-94; r.a., 95
- West Coast Ports Operations 1975 C-56. 1r, 723; 2r, 724-30; 3r, 730; r.a., 731
- Western Grain Stabilization C-41. 1r, 1714; 2r, 1723-6, 1735-8; ref to com, 1738; rep without amdt, 1756; 3r, 1766; r.a., 1792
- Wheat Board (No. 2) C-88. 1r, 2260; 2r, 2315-17, 2330-3; ref to com, 2333; rep without amdt, 2356; 3r, 2356-7; r.a., 2450

Bills, Public, Senate

- Aeronautics S-34. 1r, 2103; 2r, 2124-5, 2130-2; ref to com, 2132; rep without amdt, 2141; 3r, 2141; r.a., 2207
- Aircraft Registry S-5. 1r, 12; 2r, 172-4; ref to com, 174; rep with recommendation that bill be not proceeded with, 980-1, 999-1002; bill removed from Order Paper, 1002
- Alberta-British Columbia Boundary S-13. 1r, 136; 2r, 219, 223-5; 3r, 225; Commons amdt, 326, concurred in, 336-7; r.a., 397
- Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation S-27. 1r, 1034; 2r, 1062, 1067; 3r, 1080; r.a., 1617
- Canadian Wheat Board, see Wheat Board
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) S-21. 1r, 443; 2r, 528-31, 557-62, 574-5, 587-91, 658-60, 688-92, 937-40; m in amdt that subject matter be ref to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 940-1, 974-5, 982-3, Order stands, 1157-8, 1168-9, 1459-60, Order discharged and bill withdrawn, 1733
- Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms) S-14. 1r, 193; 2r, 293-5; ref to com, 295
- Customs S-4. 1r, 12; 2r, 131, 167-9; ref to com, 169; rep without amdt, 213; 3r, 222; r.a., 314
- Explosives S-17. 1r, 243; 2r, 263-4, 271-2; ref to com, 272; rep without amdt, 280; 3r, 291; r.a., 1134
- Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies S-7. 1r, 47; 2r, 100-03; ref to com, 107; rep without amdt, 160; 3r, 180; r.a., 314
- Feeds S-10. 1r, 47; 2r, 129-31, 157-9, 161-2; ref to com, 162; rep with amdts, 584-6, 592; 3r, 594; Commons amdts, 1467, 1480, 1485-6, ref to com, 1635-7; rep that Commons amdt be concurred in with substitution of one amdt, 1650-3, 1660-1; Commons concurrence in Senate amdt, 1974; r.a., 2002
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code S-19. 1r, 300; 2r, 354-62, 366-8, 374-5, 382-5, 402-06, 446-54, 456; ref to com, 456; rep with amdts, 969-71, 983, 1007-10; m to amend com rep, 1010-11, 1014-21, 1023-30, neg, 1030-1, debate on rep cont, 1031-3, 1036-8, 1046-9, rep adopted, 1049, m for 3r, 1066; m to amend sec. 1 of bill, 1066, 1074-5, agreed, 1075; m for 3r cont, 1075-6; m that bill be not proceeded with, 1076-7, neg, 1078; m for 3r cont, 1078-80; 3r, 1080

Bills, Public, Senate - Concluded

- Immigration S-12. 1r, 136; 2r, 164-7, 194-8, 213-19, 222-3, 230-3; ref to com, 233; rep without amdt, 239; 3r, 244-5; r.a., 397
- Income Tax Conventions S-32. 1r, 1777; 2r, 1789-90, 1793-8; ref to com, 1798; rep without amdt, 1867; 3r, 1881; Commons amdts, 2236-7, 2244; r.a., 2301
- Industry, Trade and Commerce Department S-15. 1r, 243; 2r, 272-4, 281, 304-6; ref to com, 306; rep with amdts, 348-9, 368; 3r, 373, 398-400; r.a., 1134
- Motor Vehicle Tire Safety S-8. 1r, 47; 2r, 125-6, 149-52; 3r, 161; Commons amdts, 2058, 2066-8; r.a., 2096
- National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) S-23. 1r, 643; 2r, 800-02, 833-6, 840-1, 893-6, Order stands, 1168, 1297-8, 1459, 1816-17, 1848-9
- Privileges and Immunities (International Organizations) S-25. 1r, 934; 2r, 957-8; 3r, 973; r.a., 1281
- Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks (No.1) S-9. 1r, 47; 2r, 126-8, 155-7; ref to com, 157; rep with amdt, 240, 245; 3r, 245; r.a., 832
- Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks (No.2) S-35. 1r, 2103; 2r, 2125-6, 2132; 3r, 2144; r.a., 2207
- Quarantine S-31. 1r, 1763; 2r, 1778-80, 1785-7, 1788; ref to com, 1788; rep without amdt, 1874; 3r, 1893; r.a., 2096
- Railways S-1 (pro forma). 1r, 7
- Senate (Intersessional Authority) S-22. 1r, 505; 2r, 576-7, 770-3, 815-16; ref to com, 816
- Statute Revision S-3. 1r, 12; 2r, 128-9, 159; ref to com, 159; rep without amdt, 243; 3r, 253; r.a., 467
- Statutes of Canada (to revise references to Court of Queen's Bench of Quebec) S-16. 1r, 243; 2r, 274-7, 291-3; 3r, 301; r.a., 467
- Supreme Court S-2. 1r, 12; 2r, 103-06, 153-5, 162-4; ref to com, 164; rep without amdt, 243; 3r, 253; r.a., 467
- Telelobe Canada, see Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation S-27
- Territorial Lands S-20. 1r, 326; 2r, 371-2, 375-7; ref to com, 377; rep with amdt, 579; 3r, 579; r.a., 1095
- Wheat Board S-6. 1r, 12; 2r, 106-07, 169-72; ref to com, 172; rep without amdt, 255; 3r, 265-7; r.a., 656

Blois, Hon. Fred M.

Identity cards for senators, 179-80

Bonnell, Hon. M. Lorne

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 71-75
- Canadian Men's Curling Championship, congratulations to Newfoundland rink and to Charlottetown rink, 1889
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2313
- Real Property Act, PEI, 2313
- Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Delhi conference, 1495-1500
- Authority and prestige of Parliament, external and internal threats, 1499
- Building of a new international economic order, 1497-8
- Canadian delegation, 1495
- Commonwealth as instrument of social, political and economic transformation, 1499-1500
- Development of Southeast Asia, 1496
- Energy crisis, 1497
- Canadian requirements, imports and exports, 1497
- Environment, control of pollution and protection of wildlife, 1498-9
- Indian Ocean as zone of peace, 1496
- International security in Africa south of the Sahara, 1496-7
- Ministers, Members and Conflicts of Interest, 1499
- Multinational corporations, 1498
- Nuclear energy, 1497, 1499
- Parliament of India, 1495-6
- Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, 1495-6
- Social problems of unemployment, violence, youth unrest and drugs, 1498
- World population growth and food resources, 1497-8

Bonnell, Hon. M. Lorne - Concluded

- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 72
- Ferries operating between Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, possible increase in fares, 1815, 1860, 1861
- Fisheries, tuna research, 73-74; 200 mile limit, 74
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 446-8, 1019, 1020, 1046, 1078-9
 - CMA resolution re non-medical use of cannabis, 447
 - Educating of public and youth as to drug danger, 448
 - 'Give', definition of, 1020
 - Long-standing effects from use of marihuana, 448
 - Misleading newspaper reporting of proceedings on bill, 1046
 - National Organization for Reform of Marihuana Laws (US), 447
 - Penalties for drug convictions, 447
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1162-3
 - Prince Edward Island, 1162
 - Wildlife affected by forest conditions, 1162
- Inflation, 72-74
 - Commodity prices, 72
 - Petroleum costs, 72
 - Population control, 72
- Matheson, Hon. Alexander W., the late, former Premier of Prince Edward Island, 1861-2
- National Anthem, 74
- Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill (No. 1) S-9, 126-7, 128
 - Authority for making regulations, 128
 - Certificates of registration, 127
 - False advertising, 128
 - Proprietary division of food and drug regulations, 127
 - Quality, manufacture, safety and effectiveness of proprietary medicines, regulations re, 127
- Regional economic expansion, 74
- Senate reform
 - Committee work, 74-75
 - Term of appointment, 75
- Trans-Canada highway, maintenance cost subsidies, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, 1903, 1922
- Transportation
 - Air service, PEI, 73
 - British North America Act as it pertains to transportation, 2049-54, 2070
 - Prince Edward Island
 - Background of ferry services to PEI, NB and NS, 2050-1
 - CNR and Canadian Brotherhood of Transport and General Workers, labour disputes, 2053-4
 - Charlottetown Guardian* article re statements of Highways Minister, 2053
 - Excerpt from BNA Act re provisions relating to PEI services to be assumed by federal government, 2049-50
 - Ferry services of Albert, Northern Light and Stanley. 2150
 - Marine East Coast Co-ordinating Committee, 2050, 2054
 - National transportation policy, 2053
 - Potatoes, transportation by truck and resulting highway and marketing costs, 2052
 - Railway traffic provisions, 2051-2
 - CNR discontinuance of passenger service, 2052
 - Transportation rates for passengers, vehicles and freight, 2051
 - Federal government responsibility for increases, 2051
- Unemployment insurance, 74

Boucher, Hon. William A. (Deceased June 23/76)

Tributes, 2251-2

Bourget, Hon. Maurice, P.C.

Aircraft Registry bill S-5, 980-1, 990-7, 1002

Transport and Communications Committee report, 980-1

Correspondence between Committee and provincial attorneys general and certain federal depts., 990-7

Federal-provincial conferences, lack of, 1002

Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91, 1986

Canada Year Book, 1822

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', 1099, 1118-20

Council of Europe, Parliamentary Assembly, Strasbourg conference, 1431-4

Economic and cultural development (OECD), 1431

Economic disruptions and difficulties, 1432

Energy resources, 1432-3

European shipping policy, 1433

International investment, 1432

International relations, 1433

Policies for non-inflationary recovery, 1432

Relations with underdeveloped countries, 1432, 1433

Trade pledge, 1432

World economic interdependence, 1432

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2417-18

Deterrent aspect, 2417

Gallup poll, 2418

Hoover, J. Edgar, excerpt from letter sent to officers of FBI, 2417

Law and order, respect for, 2417

Estimates

Olympic Games deficit, 1986

European Parliament, 331-3

Energy resources, 332

Excerpts from Foreign Affairs Committee report, 332-3

Trade and investment relationships, 332

Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, 1337-8, 1339-40

Contribution rate, 1338

Lieutenant governors not included, 1338

Pension at 65 years of age or upon becoming disabled, 1338

National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 748-67 (Chairman, Committee of the Whole)

National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1678

Appraisal of housing costs in various areas, 1678

Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, 807-09, 814-15

Commission members, functions and jurisdiction, 808, 814

Construction of transmission network, 808

Employment of native people, 808

Expenditures over $50,000, approval of Governor in Council for, 815

Financial records and procedures, maintenance of, 809

Operating budget, 808, 809

Ownership of northern generating power, 808

Power rates and terms of crown loans, 808, 809

Rules and Orders Committee

Powers and duties of committees, 1425

Sub-committee to coordinate scheduling of meetings of committees, 828-9, 1091

Members, 924

Bourget, Hon. Maurice, P.C. - Concluded

Senate business, 924, 1880, 1916, 2044, 2121
 Speaker pro tem, 382, 396, 1395, 2176, 2361

Bourque, Hon. Romuald (Deceased August 14, 1974)

Tributes, 11-12

British Columbia

Alaska Boundary Treaty of 1825, 100th anniversary of establishment of Canada's western boundaries, 578
 Alberta-British Columbia boundary, 136, 219, 223-5
 Food retailing industry salaries, 879
 Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, 1959-64, 2199-2200, 2278-9
 Immigration problems in Vancouver and other Canadian cities, deportees returning illegally, 166-7
 Marine safety, B.C. fisheries, 1814-15, 1860
 Parliamentarians visit to Senate, 1087
 Strike legislation, 1326-7
 Labour movement reaction, 1327-8
 Supermarkets, 1327; Canada Safeway, 1327
 Victoria Legislative Assembly representative Mr. William Templeton, visitor to Senate, 854

British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11. 1r, 99; 2r, 132-4; ref to com, 134; rep without amdt, 178; 3r, 194; Commons amdt, 325, concurred in, 338; r.a., 397British North America Act

Transportation, BNA Act as it pertains to, 2049-54, 2063-6, 2070, 2115-18, 2196-8, 2211-12, 2217-21, 2333-4
See Transportation

British North America Acts 1867 to 1975 (appointment of senators for NWT and Yukon)

Commons representation in Territories, 1060
 Jurisdiction of Parliament in Senate appointments, 1061
 Manitoba and other provinces, Senate representation (1886), 1061
 Native representation, 1061
 Ombudsman for territories, 1060
 Property qualification, 1060
 Residence requirement, 1054
 Senate reform, 1061
Speakers: Senators
 Forsey, Eugene A., 1061-2
 Grosart, Allister, 1060-1
 McIlraith, George, 1054

British North America Acts 1867 to 1975 bill C-3. 1r, 1005; 2r, 1054, 1060-2; 3r, 1081; r.a., 1095British Trade Mission

Montreal office and other offices in Canada, inquiry, Senator Forsey, 206, 252

Broadcasting

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation
 Estimates for, 201
 Gerda Munsinger, appearance on television program, 1007, 1013, 1034, 1073, 1239-40, 1256-7, 1618-19

Broadcasting - Concluded

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation - Concluded

Remembrance Day program, 257

TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', 225-6, 1099, 1118-20, 1127-9

Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission, 803, 829-32, 841-3, 849-51, 998, 1007, 1095

Canadian Television news report on death of Viateur Ethier and misrepresentation as member of Conservative Party, 1241

Commercial advertising by Guaranty Trust, use of picture of Parliament Buildings, 556

References to Newfoundland by CTV, question of privilege, 2215-16

Televising of proceedings of Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 509-14, 521-3, 543-54

Television and radio coverage of Senate and committee proceedings, 1365-6

See Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58

Buckwold, Hon. Sidney L.

Aeronautics bill S-34, 2125

Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing bill C-21, 1630-1

Bank loans for initial payments, processing, selling costs, 1631

Food production for foreign aid, 1630

Marketing, 1630-1

Ontario wheat producers problems, 1631

Stabilization of agricultural industry, 1630

Tobacco industry, government payment re, 1631

Appropriation bill No. 3, 1974 C-31, 202-03

Canadian Men's Curling Championship, congratulations to Newfoundland rink, 1889

Citizenship bill C-20, 2075

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 559-60

Conviction of innocent person, 559-60

Resolution of the Senate re present law, suggestion, 560

Criminal Law Amendment bill C-71, 1898

Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, 1799-1812

Casual employees, 1811-12

Classification, 1806

Collective bargaining in the Public Service, facts and figures, 1801

Designated employees, 1802-04

Incompetence and incapacity, disciplinary action, 1810-11

Interim report, 1799

Managerial and confidential exclusions, 1810

Maximum penalties for unlawful activity, 1805-06

Pay research in collective bargaining, 1808-10

Prosecution of offences under the act, 1804-05

Public interest in Public Service bargaining, 1801-02

Public Service Employment Act, 1800-01

Scope and limitations of committee's investigations, 1799-1800

Technological change and long-term layoff, 1807-08

Union voting procedures, 1811

Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee

Availability of draft report to press, 1755-6

Reports

First report, terms of reference, 255

Second report, tabled in Commons Nov. 26/74

Third report, 998-9; recommendation to establish permanent Staff Relations Board, 998; workload of present Board, 999

Fourth report re Public Service Staff Relations bill C-70, rep without amdt, 1211

Buckwold, Hon. Sidney L. - Continued

Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service - Concluded

Reports - Concluded

Fifth report, Superannuation bill C-52, rep with amdts, 1545-7

Sixth report tabled and printed as appendix, 1793, 1799-1812

Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, ref to com, 1442

Estimates

Energy, Mines and Resources, 203

Wheat, two-price system, 203

Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, 572, 573

Unlicensed wholesalers, 572, 573

Farm Credit bill C-34, 806, 865

Age limit, 865

Comments of Chairman of Farm Credit Corp., 865

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1079

Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1169, 1170

Provincial efforts to alleviate problem, question of, 1169, 1170

Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 1959-64, 2200

Immigration bill S-12, 165-6

Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 613

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2328-30

Broadcasting, 2329; CRTC, 2329

Canada-US relations, 2328-9

Principle of bill, definition of, 2328

'Substantially the same', 2329

Time magazine, 2328-9

Insulin, production of, 100, 110-11

Inter-Parliamentary Union, Colombo, Sri Lanka conference, 988

Aid to developing countries, 988; Sri Lanka and Pakistan, 988

Birth control, 988

Education and training in resource development, 988

King George V Cancer Fund Winding-Up bill C-76, 1483

National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 747-8, 749, 754, 755

Building materials tax, 747-8

Forgiveness provision for municipalities, 747

Housing starts, 747

Interest charges, 747

Registered Home Ownership Program, 747

Rental housing projects, 754

Sewage treatment plants and trunk storm sewer systems, 747

US program for income tax deductions of interest and municipal taxes, 748

Olympic bill C-63, 1190

Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1429

Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill C-10, 599, 600

Labour problems and effect on wheat and farm industries, 600

Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill S-9, 127, 128

Public Service Staff Relations bill C-70, 1235-7, 1245-6

Apolitical aspect of board appointments, 1236

Authority of chairman to appoint outside arbitrator, 1237

Backlog of work of board, 1236-7

Board composition and responsibilities, 1236-7, 1246-7

Term of office, 1246-7

Finkleman report, 1235-6

Topics involving committee recommendations, 1235

Buckwold, Hon. Sydney L. - Concluded

- Representation bill C-36, 438
- Russia-Canada hockey series, 59
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 823-4
 - Labour unrest, 823-4
 - Wage settlements and controls, 824
- Secrecy in government, discussion of TV program re committee involved in, 1349
- Senate business, 1090, 1879-80
- Televising of committee proceedings, 550-1
- Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, 1831, 1832
- Territorial Lands bill S-20, 371-2
 - Conflict of interest, 372
- Transportation
 - BNA Act provisions relating to transportation, 2219, 2220
 - Saskatchewan, inquiry re rail abandonment, 2220
 - United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention, status of Palestinian Liberation Organization as participants, 1238, see also 1242-4, 1248-9
 - Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41, 1725, 1726
 - Wheat Board bill S-6, 106-07, 172
 - Distribution of balance in wheat account, 107
 - Grain prices, 107
 - Initial prices, 107
 - Operations of Board, 172

Budget speech

- Accommodation for senators in Commons gallery, 255, 1087, 2150
- Date of presentation, question, 161

Bulgaria

- President of the General Assembly and His Excellency the Ambassador, visitors to Senate, 124

Burchill, Hon. G. Percival

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 122
- Air Canada service Fredericton-Ottawa, 854-5, 867
- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation – a program of national action, 1330
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2075
- Criminal Law Amendment bill C-71, 1746
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1158-9, 1816
 - Cost-sharing of insecticide spraying, 1158-9
 - Damaging side effects of chemicals, 1159
 - Excerpt from paper prepared by director of Maritime Forest Research Centre, 1158
 - Federal-provincial plans for assistance, 1816
 - New Brunswick dependence on forest industry, 1158
 - Newspaper headlines re lack of federal assistance, 1158
- Income Tax Conventions bill S-32, 1796
- Lumber industry, New Brunswick, effect of inflation on, 122
- Medical Care bill C-68, 2358-9
 - Nursing homes, 2358-9; NB, 2358-9
- Transportation
 - BNA Act as it pertains to transportation, 2221
 - Intercolonial railway, 2221

Business corporations

Canada Business Corporations, 472, 489-98, 666-71, 685, 712, 731

Cameron, Hon. Donald

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 37-45

Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms) bill S-14, 293-5, 480

Costs of registration system, 294

Question as to progress of bill in committee, 480

Resolution of Medicine Hat church re programs of radio, TV, theatre and movies, 294

Statistics on crime and gun accidents in Canada and US, 294, 295

Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 37

Industry, Canadian textile problems, value of suits or suiting materials imported, 901, 934

Labour defiance of court orders, 2237

Mexico, visit of Canadian Parliamentarians, 930-3

Agriculture, 931, 932

Banff School of Advanced Management, visit to Mexico and other countries, 930-1

Exchange visits of parliamentarians and businessmen, 932-3

Housing, 931

Industrial development, 931, 932

Tourism, 931-2

Northland Bank bill C-1002, 1598-9

Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1409, 1410

Resource development, 38

Televising of committee proceedings, 554

Transportation, 38-45

Canadian Pacific Railway, 38-45

Canadian Pacific: A Brief History, by J. L. McDougall, 40-41

Canadian Transportation and Distribution, excerpt from magazine re freight policy, 43

Construction costs of railway, 38

Crowsnest Pass, 41-42

Globe and Mail articles re CPR, 43, 44

Hudson's Bay Company, 39

Income from oil, gas, minerals, real estate and related operations, 40-41

Integration of CNR and CPR, 43-44

Land grants and sales, 39-42

Marathon Realty, CPR subsidiary, 39

Tax and land concessions, 38-39

The CPR: A Century of Corporate Welfare, by Robert Chodos, 38-39, 40

Canada business corporations

Administrative discretion, 494

Amalgamations, 492-3; Black & Decker case, 492-3

Amending of bylaws and submitting of proposals by shareholders, 491

Business corporations incorporated for objects other than provincial, 669

Complaints re mishandling of business, 492

Directors, 492, 493-4, 668-9, 670-1

Energy Board, 685

Failure to file documents, penalty for, 669

Inspection of records and shareholders' lists, 669

Liability of directors, 669

Ontario Corporations Act, 493, 495, 496

Pipeline construction application, amdt re definition of 'company', 670

Proposals for New Business Corporations Law for Canada, report of task force, 490

Registration of corporations, 490

Canada business corporations - Concluded

Reorganization of companies, 669-70
 Senate committee recommendations (1970), 490, 685
 Shares and dividends, 491, 492, 496
 Voting trust agreements, 492
 Witnesses from government and private industry, 670

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 685
 Hayden, Salter A., 489-93, 498, 666-71
 Walker, David J., 494-7

Canada Business Corporations bill C-29. 1r, 472; 2r, 489-98; ref to com, 498; rep with amdts, 666-71, 685; 3r, 685; Commons concurrence in Senate amdts, 712; r.a., 731

Canada pension plan

Applications and payments, retroactive clause, 277-8
 Assignment or attachment of benefits, 278
 Drop-out provision, 249
 Employment by country other than Canada, 250-1
 Income Security for Canadians, White Paper on, 250
 Male and female contributors, equalization of benefits, 250
 Pensionable earnings and exemption, 251
 Religious sects exempt from contributions, 250, 278
 Self-employed persons, 251
 Social Security in Canada, Working Paper on, 250

Speakers: Senators

Carter, Chesley W., 249-52, 278-9
 Macdonald, John M., 277-8

Canada Pension Plan bill C-22. 1r, 242; 2r, 249-52, 277-9; ref to com, 279; rep without amdt, 300; 3r, 307; r.a., 314

Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Florida meeting, 2221-2, 2224-33

Agenda, 2224
 Canada-US relations, 2222
 Canadian Centennial coins, presentation to US delegates, 2222
 Committee I, 2224, 2225

Canadian cultural legislation and regulations, 2227
 Eastport, 2226
 Flathead River, 2225-6
 Garrison Diversion project, 2225
 Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement, 2225
 Law of the Sea, 2226-7
 Richelieu-Lake Champlain, 2225
 Skagit, 2226
 Water boundaries, 2226
 West Coast pollution, 2226

Committee II, 2224, 2227-30

Anti-inflation program, 2228
 Canada-US automotive agreement, 2227-8
 Canadian cultural legislation and regulations, 2229-30
 Controls on trade with Cuba, 2229
 Extension to Canada of US restrictions on political contributions, 2230

Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Florida meeting - *Concluded*Committee II - Concluded

Foreign Investment Review Act, 2229

Multi-lateral trade negotiations, 2230

Saskatchewan takeover of potash companies, 2228-9

Trans-Border economic issues, 2227

US dumping charges and countervailing duties, 2228

Committee III, 2230-2

Agriculture, 2232

Energy, 2222, 2230-2

Plenary meeting, 2232

Speaker: Senator

Macnaughton, Alan A., 2221-2, 2224-33

Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Quebec meeting, 1137-43, 1144-55

Committees and members of, 1138

Delegates, 1138

Designation of meeting places and timetables, 1138

Energy resources, 1141-2

Athabaska tar sands and Colorado oil shale, 1141

Coal reserves, 1141

Nuclear energy, 1142

Prices, 1141; controversy re, 1141

Shortfall in deliveries to US, 1141

Solar and geothermal energy, harnessing of tides, heat pumps, 1142

Excerpt from speech by Prime Minister Trudeau, 1140

Excerpt from speech by US Deputy Secretary of State, 1140

Reform of Canadian section of Group, 1137-40

Trans-border problems, 1139

US Congress contacts, importance of, 1139-40

Speakers: Senators

Macnaughton, Alan A., 1137-40

van Roggen, George C., 1140-3

Canada-United States relations, 66-68, 71, 227-9

Communications between Canada and US, newspaper article re, 2192-3, 2377-8

Foreign Affairs Committee authorized to report on, 227-9; committee authorized to publish and distribute

Vol. I of report, 1653; report tabled, 1716

Questions re, 1625-7

Report of Foreign Affairs Committee, 1747-50

Changing concepts of the relationship, 1748

Current problems, 1748

Information program, 1749

Inter-Parliamentary Group meetings, 1749

Legislative channels and contacts, 1748-9

Statistical comparisons on trade, 1749

The Institutional Framework for the Relationship, Vol. I of report, 1747-8

Trade relations, 1748

Tributes to committee members, witnesses and staff, 1750

Unofficial meeting of US Ambassador with media representatives in Ottawa, 1626

Canada Year Book, 1821-3

Delays in publishing of, 1822

Translation of, 1822

Updating of charts, data, statistics, etc., 1821

Canadian Armed Forces

Casualties in defence of France in World War I and World War II, 1417

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation

Estimates for, 201

Operating expenditures, capital expenditures, Summer Olympics, 201

Munsinger, Gerda, appearance on television program, 1007, 1013, 1034, 1073, 1239-40, 1256-7, 1618-19

Profane language used on TV programs, 1128

Report of La Presse article re alleged statement by Senator Lamontagne, question of privilege, 1165-6

Role of CBC and CRTC administration, 1128

Saint-Jean-Baptiste Day program, 1128

TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', 225-6, 1099, 1118-20, 1127-9

Dubious nature of film, with separatist tendencies, 1127

National unity, depreciating of, 1128

See Broadcasting

Canadian coins, reported change in design, 1937, 1955

Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank

See National Commercial Bank of Canada bill S-24, 923, 935-6, 958-62, 973-4, 1057, 1062-3, 1281

Canadian Council of Christians and Jews

Brotherhood Week, 542

Indian and non-Indian children, wilderness camping, 542

Labour-management conferences, 542

Religious dialogues, 542

Student exchange, 542

Canadian economy

Attack on Inflation – a program of national action, 1284, 1293, 1298-1303, 1312-14, 1319-30, 1349-53, 1411-15, 1443-5, 1446-9, 1454-8, 1516

Anti-Inflation Board, functions and powers, 1301-02, 1314

BC strike legislation, 1326-7

Labour movement reaction, 1327-8

Supermarkets, 1327; Canada Safeway, 1327

Business groups to be affected, 1300

CBC News Magazine commentary re financial operations of business groups, 1314

Consultations with provincial finance and labour ministers, 1303, 1312

Corporate profits, lack of ceiling on, 1444

Cost-of-living index (1970-75), 1312-13

Credibility of government program, question of, 1350-1

Demands vs productivity, 1350

Deputy ministers' salaries, 1314

Dollar value (1946-75), 1298

Economic Summit Conference, Canada's absence from, 1447

Energy, raising of costs by OPEC nations and effect on Canada's economy, 1299

Excerpts from Prime Minister's speeches re government policies on controls, 1443, 1454-5

Federal-provincial jurisdiction, 1444

Federal-provincial leadership, 1374-5

Financial and monetary policies, 1456

Government expenditures in federal and provincial areas, 1313-14, 1324-5, 1351-2, 1411, 1412-13, 1443-4, 1447-8, 1456-7

Aircraft purchases, 1444

Bank of Canada building, 1324

Canadian economy - *ContinuedAttack on Inflation - *ContinuedGovernment expenditures - *Concluded

- Bilingualism program, 1352
- Consultants' fees, 1444
- Federal budget deficit, 1447
- Members' indemnities, 1448
- Microsystems, 1444
- Mirabel Airport, 1314, 1325, 1444
- Olympic entertainment, 1352
- Ontario, 1447
- Pickering Airport, 1325
- Prime Minister's statement re, 1448
- Public Service, salary increases, 1444
- Salaries of top-level officials, 1352
- Sculptures, 1324-5
- Studies of toilet facilities, offices, industrial plants, etc., 1352
- Translation services, 1352
- UK government budget costs, 1448
- Work force, 1352
- Government role in inflationary trend, 1350
- Gross National Product, 1413, 1443
- Guidelines of White Paper on Attack on Inflation, 1300
- Housing needs, 1301
 - Excerpt from statement by minister, 1457
- Industrial profit margin, decrease in, 1413
- Inflation, effects on economy, 1298-9
- Inflation, types of, 1321
- Interest rates, 1313, 1314, 1327-8
- Labour and industry, wage settlements affecting international trade, 1300, 1447
- Labour and management demands, 1293, 1374, 1412, 1414, 1448-9, 1457-8
- Limit of increase for low-income workers, 1327
- Loopholes alleged in program, 1329-30
- Low-income groups, 1313, 1314
- Maximum increase allowable to wage earners and other income groups, 1301
- Members of Parliament salary increases, 1352
- Money supply, increase in, 1323
- No-interest loans to foreign countries, 1314
- Parliamentary and other governmental restraints, 1302, 1312
- Pensioners, 1323
- Prices control vs wages control, 1322, 1457
- Problems of equity in temporary freeze of wages and controls, 1322
- Professional groups, 1301
- Propane and butane industry employee-employer dispute and withdrawal of essential services, 1328
- Psychological reactions to controls, 1350, 1352-3
- Public interpretation of proposals, 1351
- Rectification of disparities between men and women, 1320
- Regional disparities, 1313
- Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, powers of, 1320
- Responsibility of individuals in assessment and carrying out of proposals, 1350
- Restriction, effect on free enterprise, 1457
- Salaries of members of Parliament and executives, objections to, 1325, 1326
- Senate role in attack on inflation, 1322
- Social services, 1324

Canadian economy - ConcludedAttack on Inflation - Concluded*Solving of inflation by

Lessening of external pressures involving trading partners, 1353

Productivity, 1353

Self-discipline, 1353

Statement by Prime Minister re right to strike and wages above guidelines, 1293

Temporary aspect of controls, 1350

Trade strategies, 1374

Trades Union Congress of Britain, statement of policy, 1328-9

US controls, 1329

Voluntary restraints, 1313

Wage and price controls, unsatisfactory results of, 1351-2

US publication re, 1351

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 1443-5

Desruisseaux, Paul, 1411-15

Flynn, Jacques, 1454-8

Forsey, Eugene A., 1319-26

Lang, Daniel, 1446-9

Lawson, Edward M., 1326-30

Manning, Ernest C., 1349-53

Perrault, Raymond J., 1293, 1298-1303

Phillips, Orville H., 1312-14

Stanbury, Richard J., 1373-5

See Anti-inflation, 1500-01, 1503-13, 1524-37, 1538-45, 1550-64, 1573-87, 1617, 2076, 2098, 2104-06, 2111-15, 2133-9, 2141, 2150-1, 2152

Canadian Film Industry

Academy award to Crawley Films Ltd., of Ottawa, 2003

Canadian Labour Congress

Political affiliation, question re announced objective of CLC to take part in decision-making process relating to government policy development, 2153-4

Possibility of general strike, newspaper report re meeting and proposals for liberal corporatism, 2130

Salary increases for officers, 2159, 2209-10

Canadian National Railways

Cost of construction of tower in Toronto, 2185-6, 2263-4

Services in Atlantic provinces, 1923-4, 1976

See Railways

Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation

Background of Corporation, 1062

Change of name to 'Telegobe Canada', 1062

President and chief executive officer, 1062

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 1067

Langlois, Leopold, 1062

Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation bill S-27. 1r, 1034; 2r, 1062, 1067; 3r, 1080; r.a., 1617

Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission

- Association of Communications Regulatory Bodies, 842
- Bell Canada applications, 831-2
- Cable television, jurisdiction of, 842, 850
- CTC members and employees, protection re employment, 850
- Communications: Some Federal Proposals, 842-3, 850
- Executive committee, 830
- Head office location, 830
- Matters pending before CTC, 830
- Powers of commission, 830-1
- Provincial and consumer representation on commission, question of, 831
- Provincial consultations and jurisdiction, 841, 849-50
- Renaming of commission, 829
- Responsibility to report to Minister of Communications, 830
- Terms of appt. and qualification of commission members, 830, 831
- Speakers: Senators
 - Bélisle, Rhéal, 849-51
 - Forsey, Eugene A., 829-32
 - Grosart, Allister, 841-3

Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission bill C-5. 1r, 803; 2r, 829-32, 841-3, 849-51; ref to com, 851; rep without amdt, 998; 3r, 1007; r.a., 1095

Canadian sovereignty symbol

- Importation of beavers from US for Grey Owl film, 687-8, 709
- Lord Beaverbrook of New Brunswick, 686
- Non-restriction on commercial use of beaver symbol, 687
- Petitions and communications received to support adoption of beaver symbol, 686-7
- Significance of beaver to Indians, armed forces and areas of national interest, 686
- Speakers: Senators
 - Fergusson, Muriel McQueen, 685-8
 - Grosart, Allister, 687
 - Quart, Josie D., 687

Canadian Sovereignty Symbol (Beaver, Castor canadensis) bill C-373. 1r, 663; 2r, 685-8, 709; 3r, 714; r.a., 731

Canadian Wheat Board, 12, 106-07, 169-72, 255, 265-7, 656, 2260, 2315-17, 2330-3, 2356-7, 2450

- Adjustment payment to grain producers, 1297
- See Wheat Board bills C-88 and S-6

Candu reactors

- Sale of Candu reactors to Argentina and Republic of Korea, state of negotiations, 1307, 1319

Capital punishment

- Commutation of death sentence, 400, 443, 528-31, 557-62, 574-5, 587-91, 658-60, 688-92, 937-41, 974-5, 982-3, 1157-8, 1168-9
- National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment), 643, 800-02, 893-6, 1168, 1297-8, 1459, 1816-18, 1836, 1848-9, 2243-4
- Partial abolition and expiration of trial period, 1656
- See Criminal Code and Criminal Law bills

Carter, Hon. Chesley W.

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 116-20
- Aging, the anatomy of Special Senate Committee report, 320-3
 - Employment of older people, 322
 - Research on social welfare and the aged, 321-2
- Air Canada, service between St. John's and Ottawa, 508
- Alberta-British Columbia Boundary bill S-13, 326, 336-7
- Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1575
 - Termination clause, 1575
- Canada Pension Plan bill C-22, 249-52, 278-9
 - Appeals, 251
 - Drop-out provision, 249
 - Earnings and retirement test, 251
 - Employment by country other than Canada, 250-1
 - Income Security for Canadians, White Paper on, 250
 - Pensionable earnings and exemption, 251
 - Religious sects exempt from contributions, 250
 - Self-employed persons, 251
 - Social Security in Canada, Working Paper on, 250
- Canadian Men's Curling Championship, congratulations to Newfoundland rink, 1889
- Compensation for Former Prisoners of War bill C-92, 2038-9, 2042-3
 - Compensation as distinct from disability pension, 2038
 - Evaders, 2039
 - Prisoners of war held by European powers and in Korea, 2039
 - Prisoners of war held by Japanese, 2038, 2039, 2043
 - Statistics on duration of imprisonments, 2042
 - War veterans' allowance, 2043
 - Widows' allowances, 2038-9, 2042-3
- Crime and violence, 1288-91
 - Anatomy of Human Aggression*, by Dr. Eric Fromm, 1289
 - Causes and Prevention of Violence and Crime, US National Commission on, 1289
 - Decline in spiritual values, 1291
 - Permissive society, 1290-1
 - Wall Street Journal* article by Claire Boothe Luce, 1290-1
 - Statistics on rape, robberies, murders, male and female offenders, 1289
 - Whatever Became of Sin?*, by Carl Menninger, 1291
- Crime increase, 117, 118
- Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 848, 908
- Estimates
 - Economic development, 190
 - Governor General's warrants, 190
 - Gross national product vs government expenditures, 189-90
 - Health and welfare, 190
 - Increase in estimates (1974-77), 2212
 - Loan items in supplementary estimates, precedents, 2258
 - Loto Canada, 2238, 2259
 - Old age security and guaranteed income supplement payments (1969-77), 2213
 - Provincial government expenditures, 2189, 2190, 2213
 - Public debt, 190
 - Transfer payments, 2213-14
- Estimates and Supplementary Estimates (A), fiscal year ending Mar. 31/75, 136-7, 189-90
- Estimates, fiscal year ending Mar. 31/77, 2182-3, 2189, 2190, 2212-14
 - Supplementary (A), 2237-8, 2258
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 116

Carter, Hon. Chesley W. - Continued

Fisheries

Law of the Sea Conference, 117

Newfoundland, 117; ice conditions, 117; foreign fishermen inside limit, 117

Health, Welfare and Science Committee

Reports

Crime and violence in contemporary Canadian society, 2242-3

Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, rep with amdts, 848, 908

Environmental Contaminants bill C-25, rep without amdt, 1437

Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, rep without amdt, 1649

Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, rep without amdt but with observations, 1369

Quarantine bill S-31, rep without amdt, 1874

Royal Canadian Legion bill C-28, rep without amdt 1211-12

Helsinki Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe, 1814

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1872

Inflation, 116-20

Cost-push inflation, 119

Demand-pull inflation, 119

Food shortage and destitution in eastern countries, 117

Individual responsibilities, 119-20

Oil prices, 116

Structural inflation, 119

Supply of goods and services, government policies re, 116-17

World political and economic outlook, 117-18

Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, 1339

National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) bill S-23, 893

National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 750, 751, 752, 755

Non-profit and cooperative housing, 750

Veterans, 750

News media, disservice to Canada in derogatory remarks re Throne Speech, 118

North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1494

Armed forces in Europe, 1494

Leopard tanks, 1494

Reserve equipment, 1494

Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37, 1088

Old Age Security bill C-62, 1101-03, 1125-6

Absence from Canada, 1103

Calculation of income, 1102

Guaranteed income supplement, 1101-02

Income Security for Canadians, White Paper on, 1101

Joint application, 1125

Married or common-law status, 1025

Means test, 1102

Overpayments, 1103

Social Security in Canada, Working Paper on, 1101

Suspension of allowance, 1102

Termination of allowance upon husband's death, 1125

Universality vs selectivity, 1025

Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 966

Newfoundland, request for use of RCMP during labour strike, 966

Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1194-6, 1206, 1207, 1209, 1211-12

Branch agreements to amdts, 1206, 1207

British Commonwealth and Empire, deletion of words, 1195

Carter, Hon. Chesley W. - *Concluded*Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28 - Concluded

- Department to assist or advise ex-servicemen's clubs, 1196
- Filing date of petition, 1212
- Legion background, 1194
- Property, branch holdings, 1195, 1206
- Sports training plan, 1195, 1206
- War veterans allowances, 1194
- Woods Committee study of pensions, 1195

Science Policy, Special Senate Committee

- Institute for Research on Public Policy, 1225
- 'Need for an Overall Science Policy', excerpt from committee report (1970-73), 1225
- Research and development programs in government laboratories and industry, 1225-6
 - Lack of coordination, 1225-6
 - Other countries, 1226

Senate

- Committee meetings during adjournments of Parliament, 952-3
- Committee meetings, scheduling of, 828
- Committee proceedings, televising of, 522-3
- Research staff, 320

Senate and House of Commons Act

- Regulations re senators' attendance and deductions for absence, 952-3

Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 874

Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2196

- Freeze on salaries of members of Parliament, 2186
- Sessional expenses and allowances, 2186
- Supplementary retirement benefits, 2186-7, 2196

Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances) bill C-4, 267-8

- Children attending school, 267-8
- Discrimination affecting those under 65 yrs., 268
- Escalation of allowances to consumer price index, 268
- Means test, 268
- Qualification of 365 days overseas, 268
- Residence requirement, 268

Statute Law (Veterans and Returned Soldiers' Insurance) bill C-86, 1883-4

- Common-law spouse, 1884
- Death benefit limitation, 1884

Transportation

- BNA Act as it pertains to transportation, 2220
- Intercolonial railway, 2220

Work Ethic in Canada, 474-8

- Changes due to economic environment, 475
- Definition of work ethic, 474-5, 477
- Evaluation of services performed for society, 476
- Market orientation concept of work, 477
- Right to work, unions and employers denial of, 476
- Social security programs, 477
- Social status vs job status, 475
- Teachers and public servants under contract, 477
- Unemployment insurance, 477
- Unequal distribution of wealth, 477
- Volunteer workers, 477

Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company, 1293, 1307-08

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, see National Housing bills C-46 and C-77

Chile

Aid from Canada by grants, loans, re-scheduling of debts, technical assistance, etc., 1438-9, 1597-8

Choquette, Hon. Lionel

British North America Acts 1867 to 1975 bill C-3, 1067

Crime and violence, 1453

Directives of proposed committee, question of, 1453

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 589, 590-1

Recommendation for clemency, 589

Responsibility of judge and jury, 590-1

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2420-1

Alternative to death by hanging, 2420

Deterrent aspect, 2420, 2421

Excerpt from Commons Justice and Legal Affairs Committee report, 2423

Excerpt from speech (1967) re book by Nathan F. Leopold, convicted killer, 2420-1

Parole, 2423

Prison guards' reaction to legislation, 2420

Prison term, 2423

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1018

Indian Oil and Gas bill C-15, 351-2

Consultation with Indian Bands, 352

Excerpt from Commons committee proceedings, 352

Judges bill C-47, 1080

Law Reform Commission bill C-43, 643-4

Composition of commission, 643, 644

Part-time commissioners, 644

Quebec representation, 644

Sharing of assets and family property in event of marriage breakup, 643

Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, 1340

Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, 813-14

Commission members, functions and jurisdiction, 808

Expenditures over $50,000, approval of Governor in Council for, 814

Lack of authority of Yukon and NWT councils, 814

Power rates, 814

Old Age Security bill C-62, 1126

Olympic bill C-63, 1189

Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1410, 1428-9

Science Policy, Special Senate Committee, expenditures of, 1223

Senate

Amplification and simultaneous interpretation system, 13

Business, 2356

Tailoring service for members of Parliament, 2209

Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, 1709-10

Widows of senators, 1709-10

Statute Revision bill S-3, 159

Christian Evangelical Centre of Canada

Action of Revenue Department re, 2183-4, 2354-6

Citizenship

- AIB* case, 2282-3
- Alien ownership of land, 2074, 2091, 2095, 2096, 2264-7, 2279-85, 2311-13, 2323, 2349-50
 - Authority to provinces for making of regulations re, 2285-6
 - Certification of title, 2282
 - Federal-provincial conferences re, 2284-5
 - Morgan et al*, 2074, 2284, 2311
 - Ontario, 2284
 - Prince Edward Island, 2284
- Appeals, 2089-90, 2096
- Armed forces personnel, 2093
- Background of citizenship, naturalization and legislation re, 2071
- British subject and subject of the Queen, 2088, 2095
- Children born abroad, 2072
- Citizen of Ireland, 2075
- Citizen of the Commonwealth, 2072-3
- Citizenship certificates, 2071, 2074-5, 2077, 2094
- Discretions on humanitarian grounds, 2073-4
- Eligibility age, 2078
- Equality for men and women, 2072
- Ethnic element of Canadian citizenship, 2290-2
- Excerpt from speech of Senator Croll (1946), 2290-2
- Federal-provincial conferences, 2284-5
- General regulations, 2090
- Good character qualification, 2073
- Illegal residents, 2094
- Immigration from US to Canada, statistics, 2094
- International law, question of, 2281-2, 2286, 2350
- Judges of citizenship courts, 2074, 2078
- Jurisdiction over aliens, 2282-3, 2350
- Landed immigrants, residency requirements and qualifications of, 2073, 2074, 2078, 2087-8, 2093, 2094-5
- Land Holding Disclosure Act, NS and Cape Breton Island, 2323
- Language requirement, 2091, 2093, 2095
- Laurier, Sir Wilfrid, statement at Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, 2290, 2293
- McGill Law Journal* article, 'The Central Fallacy of Canadian Constitutional Law', 2324, 2348
- Ministerial authority, 2096
- Non-Canadian triable at law as Canadian citizen, 2092
- Oath of allegiance and oath of citizenship, 2091-2, 2094
 - Regulations respecting the taking of, 2090-1
- Pledge appended to Bill of Rights, 2078-9
- Powers and authorizations of Minister and Governor in Council, 2088-9, 2090, 2279, 2282-5, 2289, 2310, 2312-13, 2324
- Precedents in transfer of federal jurisdiction, 2312
- Prince Edward Island Potato Marketing Board vs H.B. Willis Inc.*, 2323-4
- Property and civil rights, 2279
- Qualification for municipal office, 2279-80
- Qualification to own ship, or acquire, hold or dispose of property, 2279-80
- Real Property Act, 2280-1, 2313
 - Evidence of Canadian Bar Association, 2280-1
- Referral of Clause 33 of Bill C-20 to Supreme Court, question of, 2348-50, 2362, 2444
- Resumption of citizenship, 2073, 2093
- Security of public order risks, 2073, 2090
- Status of British subjects, 2072
- Students, 2093

Citizenship - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Bell, Ann E. H., 2075
 Bonnell, M Lorne, 2313
 Burchill, G. Percival, 2075
 Connolly, John J., 2071-5, 2094-6, 2264-5, 2284-6, 2310-11, 2313, 2323-4
 Croll, David A., 2290-3
 Flynn, Jacques, 2266, 2267, 2279-80, 2284, 2285, 2289, 2301-10, 2324, 2349, 2350
 Forsey, Eugene A., 2087-92, 2282-3, 2310, 2311, 2350
 Goldenberg, H. Carl, 2092, 2349, 2350
 Greene, John J., 2092, 2093, 2311
 Grosart, Allister, 2311-12, 2313, 2324, 2349
 Laird, Keith, 2265-6, 2280, 2289
 Lang, Daniel, 2283
 Macdonald, John M., 2092-4, 2323
 Macnaughton, Alan A., 2280-1
 McDonald, A. Hamilton, 2283-4
 Perrault, Raymond J., 2311, 2312, 2324, 2336-7, 2348-9, 2362, 2444
 Smith, George I., 2281-2, 2286, 2350
 Yuzyk, Paul, 2077-9

Citizenship bill C-20. 1r, 2058; 2r, 2071-5, 2077-9, 2087-96; ref to com, 2096; rep without amdt, 2242; m for 3r, 2264-5, m in amdt, 2265-7, 2279-86, 2289, m in amdt neg, 2289-90, debate on 3r cont, 2290-3, 2309-13, 2323-4, 2336-7, 2348-50; m in amdt that bill be ref back to com, neg, 2350; 3r, 2350; r.a., 2450

Civilian war allowances

Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances), 242, 267-70, 272, 281, 314

Civil Service insurance

Adopted children, 766
 Amendment to annuity tables, 766
 Equal rights to man and wife, 766
 Sharing of insurance proceeds, 766
 Statistics on policies issued, 766

Speakers: Senators

Denis, Azellus, 766
 Flynn, Jacques, 770

Civil Service Insurance bill C-26. 1r, 712; 2r, 766-7, 770; 3r, 775; r.a., 832

Clerestory of the Senate Chamber, Special Senate Committee

Installation of stained glass windows, 481
 Theme for project, 481

Speaker: Senator

Connolly, John J., 480-2

Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet

See Federal-Provincial relations, 465, 466,
 Public Service Employment, Staff Relations, Superannuation, 464-7.

Clerk of the Senate

Clerk's Scroll, 1667, 1683-5

Property qualification of senators, return presented, 242; supplementary return authorized, 242; supplementary return tabled, 472

Receipts and disbursements (1973-74), ref to com, 192

Receipts and disbursements (1974-75), ref to com, 1005

Receipts and disbursements (1975-76), ref to com, 2167

Combines

Takeover bid by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd. of Argus Corporation Ltd., reference of matter to Senate committee, inquiry dropped, 1063-4

Combines investigation

Competition policy in Canada and the Combines Investigation Act, committee to examine and report on, 109-10

Reports, 663-6, 675-83, 1121-2, 1135, 1589-95

Combines investigation (Bill C-2)

Air transport, control and direction of, 1572, 1591-2

Amendments, effect of, 1589

Appeals from decisions of Commission, 1296

Bid-rigging, 1295

Chartered accountants and other professions, 1591

Civil damages, 1594

Committee meetings held on consideration of subject matter of bill, 1294

Conflict of interest, statement by Senator Godfrey, 1308-09, 1315-16

Constitutional problems in provisions of bill, 1310-11, 1593-4

Due diligence re certain offences, 1590

Exemption for affiliates, 1590

Export combines, 1296

Farm Products Marketing case and Breweries case, 1592

Foreign judgements, laws or directives, 1296

Franchises, 1593

Inability to obtain supplies of brand name product, 1594

Institution of proceedings on summary conviction, 1593

Interim injunction, 1594

Mergers and monopolies, 1589

Misleading advertising and unfair or dishonest selling practices, 1294, 1295, 1309-10

Penalty provisions, 1572

Professional sports, 1296, 1590

Proof that agreement prevents or lessens competition unduly, 1295

Recommendations of com incorporated in amdts to bill, 1588-90

Refusal to deal, 1594

Regulated trades, industries and professions, 1590-1

Resale price maintenance, 1295

Restrictive Trade Practices Commission powers, 1294, 1295-6

Right of action in civil or federal courts for damages and provincial jurisdiction re, 1296, 1310-11

Right of appeal from orders of Commission, 1594

Service industries, coverage extended to, 1294-5

Trade union activities, 1295

Winnipeg Commodity Exchange, 1592-3

Combines investigation (Bill C-2) - *ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Cook, Eric, 1294-6
 Flynn, Jacques, 1308-12, 1598
 Godfrey, John M., 1308-09, 1315-16
 Hayden, Salter A., 1571-3, 1589-95

Combines Investigation bill C-2. 1r, 1283; 2r, 1293-6, 1308-12; ref to com, 1312; rep without amdt but with observations, 1571, 1589-95; 3r, 1598; r.a., 1617

Commission on the Future

Authority to hold conference re, 295-8
 Termination of mandate of Science Policy Committee to hold conference, 1171-3, 1220-6, 1246-7, 1259-60
See Science Policy, Special Senate Committee, first report

Committee of Selection

Appointment, 7
 Members, 7
 Report
 Standing Committees, members, 96-97; rep adopted, 107

Committee of the Whole

Medical Care bill C-68, Hon. Marc Lalonde, Minister of Health and Welfare, taking part in debate, 2366-75
 National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, Hon. Barnett Danson, Minister of State for Urban Affairs, taking part in debate, 748-57
 National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, Hon. Barnett Danson, Minister of State for Urban Affairs, taking part in debate, 1673-81
 Senate and House of Commons (Supplementary Retirement Benefits) bill C-81, Mr. H. D. Clark, Director of Pensions and Insurance Division of Treasury Board, present, 2196-2207
 Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, Hon. Robert K. Andras, Minister of Manpower and Immigration, taking part in debate, 1695-1706

Committee on Orders and Customs

Appointment, 7

Committees, general data

Aging, the anatomy of Special Senate Committee report, 146-9, 320-3, 516-18
 Agriculture
 Expenses, special, 348
 Authorization to meet during adjournments of the Senate, 2171-2
 Banking, Trade and Commerce
 Expenses re study of bankruptcy and insolvency, 1781
 Expenses re study of budget resolutions relating to income tax, 524-5
 Expenses, special, 160, 348
 Meetings during adjournments, 2047-8
 Clerestory of the Senate Chamber, Special Senate Committee, 480-2
 Committee meetings during Senate sittings, 1856-7
 Co-ordinating Committee to arrange scheduling of committee meetings, 828-9

Committees, general data - Concluded

- Crime and violence, special Senate committee proposed, 916-22
- Delay in printing and distribution of committee proceedings, 703-04
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service
 - Draft report released to press, 1755-6
 - Expenses re study of Parts, I, II and III of paper, 525, 1624
- Foreign Affairs
 - Expenses re study of Canada-United States relations, 1781
 - Expenses, special, 348
- Implementation of new schedule of meetings, 1937-8
- Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration
 - Budgets and special expenses of committees, reports tabled, 160, 213, 348, 524-5, 795, 956, 1088, 1244, 1781-2
 - Printing of proceedings, question of, 953
 - Regulations respecting attendance of senators, report presented, 1781-2
- Inter-Parliamentary Advisory Committee, 1490, 1494
- Legal and Constitutional Affairs
 - Expenses, special, 348, 525-6, 795
 - Meeting held in camera, question of privilege, 1770-1
 - Televising of proceedings, 509-14, 521-3, 543-54
- Meetings during Senate sittings, objection to, 827-8
- Meetings, scheduling of, 828-9, 924
- National Capital Region, special joint committee proposed, 1097; appointment, 1126
- National Finance
 - Counsel and staff, engagement of, 351
 - Expenses re study of legislation and other matters, 525, 795, 1781
 - Meetings during adjournments, 2048
- Notices of meetings of subcommittees and steering committees, 2192
- Privileges and immunities of senators, motion for appointment of special committee, 1434-6
- Question of referral of Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13 to Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 815
- Regulations and other Statutory Instruments
 - Expenses, 525, 795
- Rules and Orders
 - Sub-committee to study coordination of meetings of committees, 858-9, 924, 1091
- Science Policy
 - Expenses, 160, 648, 795, 1088, 1244, 1261
- Standing Committees members, 96-97
- Sub-committee meeting, 1931
- Televising of committee proceedings, 509-14, 521-3
- Work Ethic in Canada, special Senate committee proposed, 281-8, 339-42, 474-8, 518
- Work of committees during present session, 1286-8
- See Rules of the Senate, report of Standing Committee on Rules and Orders

Committees, Joint, Special

- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service
- Immigration Policy
- National Capital Region

Committees, Joint, Standing

- Library of Parliament
- Printing of Parliament
- Regulations and other Statutory Instruments
- Restaurant of Parliament

Committees, Senate, Special

- Aging (see Aging, the anatomy of Special Senate Committee report)
- Clerestory of the Senate Chamber
- Crime and Violence (proposed)
- Privileges and Immunities of Senators (proposed), motion withdrawn
- Poverty in Canada
- Science Policy
- Work Ethic in Canada (proposed)

Committees, Senate, Standing

- Agriculture
- Banking, Trade and Commerce
- Foreign Affairs
- Health, Welfare and Science
- Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration
- Legal and Constitutional Affairs
- National Finance
- Rules and Orders
- Transport and Communications

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association

- Secretary General Sir Robin Vanderfelt, visitor to Senate, 1966
- South African region delegation, visitors to Senate, 1087

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Delhi conference, 1495-1500, 1644-6

- Authority and prestige of Parliament, external and internal threats, 1499
- Building of a new international economic order, 1497-8
- Canadian delegation, 1495
- Commonwealth as instrument of social, political and economic transformation, 1499-1500
- Development of Southeast Asia, 1496
- Energy crisis, 1497
 - Canadian requirements, imports and exports, 1497
- Environment, control of pollution and protection of wildlife, 1498-9
- India, 1495-6, 1645-6
 - Canada's aid to, 1645-6
 - Communications problems, 1645
 - Government, 1495-6, 1645
 - Jaipur City twinned with Calgary, 1645-6
 - Nuclear explosion in Rajasthan from reactor supplied by Canada, 1645
 - Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, 1495-6
- Indian Ocean as zone of peace, 1496
- International security in Africa south of the Sahara, 1496-7
- Ministers, members and conflicts of interest, 1499
- Multinational corporations, 1498

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Delhi conference - Concluded

Nuclear energy, 1497, 1499

Social problems of unemployment, violence, youth unrest and drugs, 1498

Vice-President, Hon. James Jerome, 1646

World population growth and food resources, 1497-8

Speakers: Senators

Bonnell, Lorne, 1495-1500

Grosart, Allister, 1644-6

Compensation for former prisoners of war

Carleton University award of Rip Van Winkle award to Veterans Affairs Minister, 2039-40

Compensation as distinct from disability pension, 2038

Compensation to be not more than 100% disability pension, 2041

Evaders and escapees, 2039, 2040, 2042

Prisoners of war held at Dieppe, 2040

Prisoners of war held by European powers and Korea, 2039

Prisoners of war held by Japan, 2038, 2039, 2040, 2043

Statistics on duration of imprisonments, 2042

Three months limitations, 2041, 2042

War veterans' allowance, 2043

Widows' allowances, 2038-9, 2040, 2042-3

Speakers: Senators

Carter, Chesley W., 2038-9, 2042-3

Croll, David A., 2041

Macdonald, John M., 2040-1

McDonald, A. Hamilton, 2041-2

Norrie, Margaret, 2039

Phillips, Orville H., 2039-40

Compensation for Former Prisoners of War bill C-92. 1r, 2014; 2r, 2038-43; 3r, 2043; r.a., 2096Competition policy in Canada

Canadian Breweries case, 664

Civil damages, 665

Energy Board, 670

Inability to obtain supplies to carry on business, 665

In Re The Farm Products Marketing Act, 664

Interim injunction, 665-6

International Air Transport Association, 1122, 1135

Jurisdiction of Federal Court in criminal matters, 666

Lawyers fees, Ontario, 664

Per se liability in matter of defence, 664

Reviewable transactions, 665, 666

Services included in combines legislation, 663-4

Sports, professional and amateur, 664-5

Summary convictions, 666

Toronto Daily Star article re proposed amdts, 664

Speaker: Senator

Hayden, Salter A., 663-6, 675-83, 1121-2, 1135

Competition policy in Canada and the Combines Investigation Act

- Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee to examine and report on, 109-10
- First report, 663-6, 675-83
- Second report, 1121-2, 1135

Condolences to Hon. Renaude Lapointe on death of brother, 382

Conferences

- Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, 542
- Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Delhi conference, 1495-1500, 1644-6
- European Parliament, 307-13, 331-3
- Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 1959-64, 2199-2200, 2278-9
- Helsinki conference on security and cooperation in Europe, 1293, 1466, 1471-5, 1757-61
- Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Florida meeting, 2221-2, 2224-33
- Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Quebec meeting, 1137-43, 1145-55
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Sri Lanka meeting, 984-8
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo meeting, 234-8, 245-9
- Mexico, Canadian parliamentarians visit to, 775-7, 852-3, 930-3
- North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1489-94, 1513-16, 1726-8
- North Atlantic Assembly, London conference, 342-7, 362-5
- Oil-producing and oil-consuming countries, 605-06, 774-5
- Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, 1431-4
- United Nations Conference on World Population, 236
- United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention, status of Palestinian Liberation Organization as participants, 1238, 1242-4, 1248-8

Conflict of interest

- Combines Investigation bill C-2, withdrawal from debate (Senator Godfrey) because of conflict of interest, 1294
- Question of privilege re, 1315-16
- Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest, Green Paper on, 373, 573-4, 580
- Question of privilege re, 779-81
- Ref to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 774
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 847, 856-61, 868-80
- Sky Shops Ltd. (allegations re Senator Giguere), 1348, 1395-7
- Supreme Court bill S-2, 153, 163

Conflict of interest

- Green Paper entitled 'Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest', report of Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 2278, 2303-06
- Code of conduct, 2306
- Financial interests, 2305
- Government contracts, 2304-05
 - Broadcasting licences, 2305
 - Knowledge of participation in government contracts, 2304-05
 - Permitted participation, 2304
 - Prohibited contracts, 2304
- Incompatible offices, 2303-04
 - Elected public office, 2304
 - Prohibited federal offices, 2303
 - Prohibited provincial offices, 2303-04
- Sanctions and administration, 2305-06
 - Committee on Privileges, 2305-06
 - Public resources, 2305

Connaught Laboratories Ltd.

Residential development in vicinity of testing laboratories, 586, 616, 732, 902

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C.

Aircraft Registry bill C-5, 1000-02

Central registry for property, federal-provincial conferences re, 1000

Constitutional problems in bill, 1000

Property and civil rights of provinces, 1000

Rolling stock of railways, 1001

Treaty-making authority of government, 1001

Citizenship bill C-20, 2071-5, 2094-6, 2264-5, 2284-6, 2310-11, 2313, 2323-4

Alien ownership of land, 2074, 2095, 2096, 2265, 2285

Authority to provinces for making of regulations re, 2285-6

Federal-provincial conferences, 2284-5

Morgan et al, 2074, 2284, 2311

Provincial laws, PEI, Sask., Ont., 2284

Appeals, 2096

Background of citizenship, naturalization and legislation re, 2071

British subject and subject of the Queen, 2095

Certificates of citizenship, 2071, 2074-5, 2094

Children born abroad, 2072

Citizen of Ireland, 2075

Citizen of the Commonwealth, 2072-3

Discretions on humanitarian grounds, 2073-4

Equality for men and women, 2072

Good character qualification, 2073

Illegal residents, 2094

Immigration from US to Canada, statistics, 2094

Judges of citizenship courts, 2074

Language requirement, 2095

Ministerial authority, 2096

Powers of Lieutenant Governor in Council, 2285, 2310

PEI Potato Marketing Board vs H.B. Willis Inc., 2323-4

Residence requirement, 2073, 2074, 2094-5

Resumption of citizenship, 2073

Security of public order risks, 2073

Status of British subjects, 2072

Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30, 1340-5

Aspects of amalgamation with IAC Limited, 1342-3

Borrowing cost of finance subsidiaries, 1345

IAC Limited, 1340-5

Assets and liabilities, 1341, 1343-4

Background and officers of company, 1340-1

Debts and debentures, 1341, 1343, 1344

Financing areas, 1341-2

Shares to be issued to Continental Bank, 1342, 1343, 1344, 1345

Leasing arrangements, 1345

Mortgage portfolio, 1343

Transition period, 1342-5

Bank Act provisions applicable during transition, 1343, 1344

Penalties and sanctions, 1344

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 559

Royal prerogative, 559

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. - Concluded

- Criminal Law Amendment bill C-71, 1733
- Customs Tariff bill (No. 1) C-27, 262-3
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee
 - Availability to press of draft report, 1756
- Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1852
 - GATT, 1852
 - Textile and other manufacturing, problems of, 1852
- Gelinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe, the late, 1713-14
- Hugessen, Hon. A. K., the late, 2007
- Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C., the late, 533
- Legislation, schedules omitted from format of bills, 263
- Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C., the late, 2176
- Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, 840, 851
- Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37, 1040
 - Courts of criminal jurisdiction, 1040
 - Dumping by aircraft over land, 1040
- O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, the late, 2035
- Quarantine bill S-31, 1786-7
 - Black death of Europe and the London plague, 1786
 - Immigration (1847) causing ship-fever, typhus and cholera, 1786
 - Grosse Isle monument to victims, 1786
 - Research scientists, tribute to, 1786-7
 - Pasteur, Fleming and Snow, 1787
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 824, 826
 - Penalty clause, 824, 826
- Salaries (Lieutenant Governors) bill C-24, 1081, 1094, 1095
 - Former provincial levels of salaries, 1081
 - Non-accountable allowances and other benefits, 1081
 - Pensions, 1094
 - Special expense fund, 1095
 - Status of Lieutenant Governors, 1094
 - Tax benefits, 1095
- Senate
 - Clerestory of the Senate Chamber, Special Senate Committee, 480-2
 - Installation of stained glass windows, 481
 - Terms of reference of committee, 480-1
 - Theme for project, 481
- Senate (Intersessional Authority) bill S-22, 771-2
 - Informal arrangements previously used, 771-2
 - Sittings of Senate committees during election periods, question of feasibility of, 722
- Supreme Court bill S-2, 103-06, 162-4
 - Appeals, restriction to Supreme Court, 103-04, 163
 - Case overload and delays in Supreme Court hearings, committee on, 104-05
 - Conflict of interest, 163
 - Interest on money awards, 103, 163
 - Jurisprudence, 163
 - Quorum, 163-4
 - Residence requirement for judges, registrars and deputy registrars, 103, 162-3
- Televising of committee proceedings, 513
- Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, 1830

Constitution of Canada

- Patriation, correspondence between the Prime Minister of Canada and the First Ministers of the Provinces on the subject of, 2079-86
 - Amtdts by unanimous consent of Parliament and legislature, 2082
 - Draft proclamation, 2083-4
 - Excerpt from previous speech, 2080
 - Federal-provincial agreements, 2085, 2086
 - House of Commons, redistribution of seats, 2085-6
 - Language rights, 2084
 - Letters received in opposition to patriation, 2079-80
 - Protection of French Language and Culture, 2084-5
 - Provincial consultation in amendments, 2080-2
 - Senators, Western provincial appointments, 2085
 - Unanimous consent of provinces, question of, 2081-2
 - Victoria formula, 2082-3

Speaker: Senator

Forsey, Eugene A., 2079-86

Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Special Joint Committee (1967)

- Recommendations of Fifth Report, action taken for implementation of, 2238-41
 - Bankruptcy, orderly payment of debts, 2239, 2240; recommendations of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 2240
 - Relief from unconscionable transactions, 2239, 2240
 - Borrowers' and Depositors' Protection Act, 2239
 - Combines investigation, 2240
 - Cooling-off period re purchases, 2240
 - Faulty or defective goods, 2239, 2240
 - Financing of used motor vehicles, 2239, 2241
 - Form of agreement for credit transactions, 2239, 2240
 - Government guaranteed loans to low-income consumers, 2240
 - Information and education, 2239, 2240
 - Money management education and credit and debt counselling, 2240-1
 - Prepayment of contracts, 2239, 2240
 - Technical sub-committees of Consumer Affairs, 2239, 2241

Continental Bank of Canada

- Aspects of amalgamation with IAC Limited, 1342-3
- Borrowing cost of finance subsidiaries, 1345
- IAC Limited, 1340-5
 - Assets and liabilities, 1341, 1343-4
 - Background and officers of company, 1340-1
 - Debts and debentures, 1341, 1343, 1344
 - Financing areas, 1341-2
 - Shares to be issued to Continental Bank, 1342, 1343, 1344, 1345
 - Subsidiaries and ownership of realty and insurance companies, 1341, 1343
- Leasing arrangements, 1345
- Mortgage portfolio, 1343
- Transition period, 1342-5
 - Bank Act provisions applicable during transition, 1343, 1344
 - Penalties and sanctions, 1344

Speakers: Senators

Benidickson, W. M., 1406
 Connolly, John J., 1340-5, 1406, 1408

Continental Bank of Canada - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators - Concluded

Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 1345
 Everett, Douglas, D., 1345
 Hayden, Salter A., 1367-9, 1405-06, 1407-08
 Lang, Daniel, 1406
 Macdonald, John M., 1345
 Sparrow, Herbert O., 1345

Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30. 1r, 1306; 2r, 1340-5; ref to com, 1346; rep with amdts, 1367-9, 1405-06;
 m to ref rep back to com, 1406; further rep of com, 1407-08, adopted, 1408; 3r, 1408

Conventions

Aircraft Convention, International Recognition of Rights in, 173
 Export or import of cultural articles, UNESCO convention re illegal operations, 764, 813
 Tax treaties or conventions, countries with which Canada has concluded agreements, 855, 867, 925
See Agreements, treaties, conventions

Cook, Hon. Eric

Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1294-6
 Appeals from decisions of Commission, 1296
 Bid-rigging, 1295
 Committee meetings held on consideration of subject matter of bill, 1294
 Damages and costs for injury, 1296
 Export combines, 1296
 Foreign judgments, laws or directives, 1296
 Misleading advertising and unfair selling practices, 1294, 1295
 Professional sports, 1296
 Proof that agreement prevents or lessens competition unduly, 1295
 Resale price maintenance, 1295
 Restrictive Trade Practices Commission powers, 1294, 1295-6
 Service industries, coverage extended to, 1294-5
 Trade union activities, 1295

Customs bill S-4, 131

Importation by sea within Canadian waters, 131
 Proclamation of bill, 131
 Restriction to 12-mile limit, 131

Customs Tariff bill (No.2) C-39, 484-5

Food products, 485
 Housing materials and appliances, 485
 Preferential rates for developing countries, 485
 Temporary tariff reductions (1974), 485
 Tourist exemptions, 485

Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, 571-2

Unlicensed wholesalers, 571-2

Income Tax bill (No.3) C-58, 1848, 2293-4

Excerpt from committee hearings re Manning Timber Products Ltd. v Minister of National Revenue, 2293-4
 Rights of taxpayers to protection of court, 2294
 'Substantially the same', definition of, 2293
Time Canada, 2293, 2294

National Housing bill (No.1) C-46, 755-6

Newfoundland, deterioration of buildings after lease expiry, 755-6

Cook, Hon. Eric - Concluded

Petro-Canada bill C-8, 1178-9, 1218

Authorized capital, 1178

Control by Governor in Council, 1218

Establishment of national petroleum company as crown corporation, 1178

Sale of government interest in Panarctic Oils, 1178

Scope of activities, 1178-9

Railway bill C-48, 760

Compliance by companies to regulations, 760

Disclosure of financial operations, 760

Ministerial powers, 760

Western Economic Opportunities Conference, 760

Senate and House of Commons Act

Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, motion that subject matter be ref to com, 951; agreed, 954

Senate business, 923-4

Copyright Act

Economic Review, 'Crown copyright reserved', replacement of words, 2200, 2322-3

Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act

Report of Ministry of Industry, Trade and Commerce, 2059-61, 2108-09

Cote, Hon. Jean-Pierre, P.C.

Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) bill C-223, 715

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, Standing Senate Committee

Orders of the Day, notification of item standing in senator's name, 2123

Regulations re attendance of senators, 1911-12

Attendance records, 1912

Committee review of reasons for absence, 1912

Official business, specifying of, 1912

Cottreau, Hon. Ernest G. (Introduced in the Senate Sept. 30/74)

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 18-20

Inflation, 19

King George V Cancer Fund Winding-Up bill C-76, 1480-2, 1483

Assets value, 1482

Background of King George V fund, 1481

Payment of assets to National Cancer Institute of Canada, 1481

Trustees of fund, 1481

Trust fund provisions re transfer of funds, 1481-2

Nova Scotia, 18-20

Acadians, 18-19

Education, Royal Commission, Public Services and Provincial-Municipal Relations, 19

Prominent Acadians in life of nation, 19

Bilingualism, 19

Fisheries, 19; offshore fishing, 19-20

Storm damage, 1765-6

Transportation, 20

Proprietary or Patent Medicine and Trade Marks bill S-35, 2125-6

Excerpt from speech by Hon. Marc Lalonde, 2126

Federal-provincial consultations re legislation, 2126

Self-medication, 2126

Cottreau, Hon. Ernest G. - Concluded

Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee
Travel arrangements for committee outside of Canada, 1479

Council of Europe, Parliamentary Assembly, Strasbourg conference, France, 1431-4

Economic and cultural development (OECD), 1431
Economic disruptions and difficulties, 1432
Energy resources, 1432-3
European shipping policy, 1433
International investment, 1432
International relations, 1433
Policies for non-inflationary, 1432
Relations with underdeveloped countries, 1432, 1433
Scientific research, 1431-2
Trade pledge, 1432
World economic interdependence, 1432
Speaker: Senator
Bourget, Maurice, 1431-4

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A., P.C. (Deceased April 11, 1975)

Tributes, 778-9

Crime

Capital punishment, commutation of sentences of accused murderers and kidnappers, 400, 443, 528-31
Drug convictions, 66
Gun crimes and accidents in Canada and US, 294, 295
Parole, consideration by government of changes in present system, 1371
Rape, 66
See following items

Crime and violence, special Senate committee proposed, 916-22, 944-5, 1252-5, 1288-91, 1449-52, 1646-7;
m that subject matter be ref to Health, Welfare and Science Committee, 1647; m in amdt to amdt re terms of reference, and referral of subject matter to Health, Welfare and Science
Committee, 1659-60; rep of com, 2242-3; terms of reference, suggested, 2243

Abortion, 917

Anatomy of Human Aggression, by Eric Fromm, 917, 1289

Basic principles for prevention of crime, 1253

Statement of Henry Fielding, founder of crime prevention organization, 1253

Biblical history of crime and violence, 944

Capital punishment, 917

Causes and Prevention of Violence and Crime, US National Commission on, 1289

Child abuse, 918-19

Murderers who suffered parental cruelty, 918

UK investigations, 918

Crime and punishment as ritual of life, excerpt from article by Dr. Carl Menninger, 920

Crime increase and demands on protective resources, 1449-50

Decline in spiritual values, 1291

Directives of proposed committee, question of, 1453

Enuresis, Fire Setting and Cruelty to Animals: a Triad Predictive of Adult Crime, 919

Firearms, police use of, 1253

Good Housekeeping article by Art Linkletter re 'What I've learned about drugs since my daughter's death', 1451-2

Guns, freedom of purchase and possession, 920-1, 1452

Human Aggression, by Dr. Anthony Storr, 917

'Jungle made by humans for humans', 917

Crime and violence, special Senate committee proposed - Concluded

- Marihuana convictions of young people, 1451-2
- Netherlands crime reform, 1253-4
 - Communication between prisoners and personnel, 1254
 - 'Land Without Prisons', Newsweek article, 1253
 - Penal system, 1253
 - Permissive population, comparisons, 1253-4
 - Rehabilitation, 1253
- New Zealand, low crime rate, 920
- Parental attitudes towards punishment, 944, 945
- Penal system failure, 921
- Permissive society, 1290-1
 - Wall Street Journal* article by Claire Boothe Luce, 1290-1
- Physical punishment and loss of freedom, 917-18
- Prison population per capita, 1451
- Psychopathic Personality, Sociopathic Personality and Character Neurosis*, excerpt from address by Prof. James McHorter, 919-20
- Rehabilitation of convicted murderers, 921
- Religious sects in pacifist role, 917
- Royal Canadian Mounted Police duties, 1450
- Sex deviates, 1451
- Society's ignorance of causes of crime, 921
- Statistics on rape, robberies, murders, male and female offenders, 1289
- Television programs, 945, 1255
- Terms of reference of proposed committee, question of, 1647, 1660
- Training of police in psychology, pathological conduct and behaviour, 1450
- Unnecessary activities of police, 1450
- US Police: A New Image?*, excerpt from Christian Science Monitor, 1254-5
- Vice squads, 1450
- Violence depicted in life styles, 1255
- Vulnerability of democratic society, 1452-3
- Whatever Became of Sin?*, by Carl Menninger, 1291
- Youth training, 1253
- Speakers: Senators
 - Asselin, Martial, 1659-60
 - Carter, Chesley W., 1288-91
 - Choquette, Lionel, 1453
 - Desruisseaux, Paul, 944-5
 - Greene, John J., 922
 - Inman, F. Elsie, 1255
 - McElman, Charles, 1646-7
 - McGrand, Fred A., 916-22
 - Norrie, Margaret, 1252-5
 - Rowe, Frederick William, 1449-53

Criminal Code

- Abortions, acquittal of Dr. Morgentaler of charges re, 1036
- Abortions, study of procedure for obtaining therapeutic abortions, question re committee on, 1428, 1624-5, 1639
- Combines investigation, 1283
- Commutation of death sentence, 443, 528-31, 557-62, 574-5, 587-91, 658-60, 688-92, 936-41, 974-5, 982-3, 1157-8, 1168-9, 1459-60, 1733
- Control of weapons and firearms, 193, 293-5, 479-80

Criminal Code - Concluded

Food and drugs, narcotic control, 300, 354-62, 366-8, 374-5, 382-5, 402-06, 446-54, 456, 969-71, 983, 1007-11, 1014-21, 1023-33, 1036-8, 1046-9, 1066, 1074-80
 National Flag of Canada, 663, 710-11, 714-15, 740
 Total abolition of capital punishment (National Defence), 643, 800-02, 893-6, Order stands, 1168
See following items under Criminal Code and Criminal Law

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence)

Acquittals and convictions in cases of murders of police officers (1967-73), 529
 Administration of law, objections re, 688-9
 Atlantic Provinces Policemen's Assoc., meeting in Moncton, 530, 689-90
 Clemency recommendation, 688, 940
 Commutations since 1972 legislation, 659
 Compensation to victims of crime, 557
 Constitutionality of bill, question of, 688
 Credibility of witnesses, 588
 Crime increase and legislative permissiveness, 659
 Deterrent aspect, 558, 559, 562, 659
 Disclosure of other evidence after conviction, 558
 Excerpt from Code re responsibility for carrying out sentence, 560-1
 Fredericton meeting of students at University of NB, 690
 Jury and judge responsibility in sentence of death, 562, 588-9, 590-1, 690-1, 940
 Liberal Party convention decision on capital punishment, 689
Louis Riel case cited, 561
 Miscarriage of justice, 588, 589-90, 691
 Moral issue in question of capital punishment, 974
 Murder of Moncton policemen, 529, 561, 689
 Murders of policemen and prison guards, 529, 530, 561, 588, 689
 Nuremberg trials, 561, 562
 Petition of Right Act, 939
 Premeditated murders, 659, 660
 Pre-sentence report, 691
 Privy Council decision and provisions in criminal law re royal prerogative, 938
 Rehabilitation failure, 659
 Remission Service of Justice Dept., Fauteux Commission on, excerpt from report, 937
 Resolution re present law, suggestion, 560
 Royal prerogative on commutation of death sentence, 529-30, 558, 559, 562, 587-9, 660, 690, 937-40
 Statistics on death sentences, 940
 Treason and sea piracy, 688
Treatise on the Laws, Privileges, Proceedings and Usages of Parliament, excerpt from, 983-9
 US judicial system, 691, 692; Canadian Press report published in Saint John Telegraph Journal, 692
 Vengeance vs justice, 561-2

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 587-9
 Belisle, Rheal, 562, 564-7
 Buckwold, Sidney L., 559-60
 Choquette, Lionel, 589, 590-1
 Connolly, John J., 559
 Croll, David A., 974-5
 Denis, Azellus, 660
 Desruisseaux, Paul, 658-60
 Flynn, Jacques, 982-3, 1733
 Fournier, Sarto, 589-90
 Godfrey, John M., 575

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators - Concluded

Heath, A.E. Haddon, 574-5
 Hicks, Henry D., 557-8, 559
 Manning, Ernest C., 530-1
 McElman, Charles, 688-92
 Michaud, Herve J., 580-1
 Neiman, Joan, 937-41
 Prowse, J. Harper, 560-2
 Robichaud, Louis-J., 528-30, 1733
 Walker, David J., 558-9

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21. 1r, 443; 2r, 528-31, 557-62, 574-5, 587-91, 658-60, 688-92, 936-40; m in amdt that subject matter be ref to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 940-1, 974-5, 982-3, Order stands, 1157-8, 1168-9, 1459-60; Order discharged and bill withdrawn, 1733

Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms)

Costs of registration system, 294
 Question as to progress of bill in committee stage, 479-80
 Resolution of Medicine Hat church re programs of radio, TV, theatre and movies, 294
 Statistics on gun crimes and accidents in Canada and US, 294, 295
Speaker: Senator
 Cameron, Donald, 293-5

Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms) bill S-14. 1r, 193; 2r, 293-5; ref to com, 295

Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada)

Damage or insult to flag, 710
 Incidents of desecration to flag, question of, 710
 Penalties, 710, 740
 Speech by Governor General on first raising of National Flag, 710
Speakers: Senators
 Côte, Jean-Pierre, 715
 Fergusson, Muriel McQueen, 710-11
 Flynn, Jacques, 714, 715
 Forsey, Eugene A., 710
 Yuzyk, Paul, 740

Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) bill C-223. 1r, 663; 2r, 710-11; m for 3r, 714-15, 740; m that bill be ref to com, agreed, 740

Criminal law

Subject matter of Bill C-83, an act for the better protection of Canadian society against perpetrators of violent and other crime, ref to com, 1852-3, rep of com, 2119-20, 2127-9, 2163-6, 2183

Criminal law amendment (Bill C-71)

Appeal from decision on summary conviction, 1732
 Bail provisions, 1767
 Conditional release, 1731-2
 Conspiracy in or outside Canada, 1731

Criminal law amendment (Bill C-71) - Concluded

Crimes against internationally protected persons: Prevention and Punishment, an Analysis of the UN Convention, 1769

Criminal offence resulting in serious harm, 1732

Impaired drivers, 1731, 1768-9, 1775

Rehabilitation of alcoholics, lack of facilities, 1769

Suspension of licence and sentence of imprisonment, 1768

Jury system and role of jurists, 1744-5, 1773, 1774

Kidnapping and extortion, organized crime, 1769, 1775

'Morgentaler' amendment, 1732, 1742-5, 1767-8, 1772-4, 1903-06, 1907-08

Admission of facts but denial of guilt, 1743, 1745

Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, survey results, 1767, 1774

Excerpts from notes of supreme court judges, 1773

Statement of Past President of Bar Association, 1743, 1773-4

Murder, conspiracy to commit murder, trafficking in narcotics, 1733

Offence against internationally protected person, 1730

Placing bets on behalf of others, 1731

Quebec inquiry into organized crime, 1769

Rape and other sexual offences, 1731

Complainant's testimony, 1731

Right of judge to infer from peace officer's evidence that disturbance has occurred, 1894-6, 1897-9, 1907-08

Summary of judgment of minority, 1746

Telecommunications, use of 'blackbox', 1731

UK law, 1746

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 1767-70

Burchill, G. Percival, 1746

Connolly, John J., 1733

Croll, David A., 1746

Flynn, Jacques, 1742-7, 1774, 1775, 1776, 1885, 1897-8, 1903-06

Forsey, Eugene A., 1897

Godfrey, John M., 1897

Goldenberg, Carl, 1867-8, 1884-6

Grosart, Allister, 1898, 1899

Langlois, Leopold, 1730-3, 1772-6, 1884-6, 1897-8, 1899

Neiman, Joan, 1898, 1907

Rowe, Frederick William, 1746, 1776, 1899

Smith, George I., 1893-6, 1898, 1899, 1907-08

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No.1) 1975 C-71. 1r, 1714; 2r, 1730-3, 1742-7, 1766-70, 1772-6; ref to com, 1776; rep with amdts, 1867-8, 1884-6; m for 3r, 1893, m in amdt, 1893-9, m in amdt to amdt, 1899-1900, neg, m for 3r as amended, 1900, 1903-06, further amdt, 1906-08, neg, 1908; 3r, 1908; Commons agreement in Senate amdt, 1974; r.a., 2002

Criminal law amendment (Bill C-84)

Abortion vs murder, 2441-2

Alternatives to death by hanging, 2410, 2411, 2414, 2420, 2430

Appeals, 2389

Background of convicted killers, effects of, 2429-30

British Columbia bank robbery, 'comedy of errors' re, 2424-5

Capital Punishment, by Professor of Jurisprudence of Yale University, 2448

Challenge to identify violent and anti-social behaviour, 2421

Criminal law amendment (Bill C-84) - Continued

- Deterrent aspect, 2409, 2410-11, 2412, 2413, 2417, 2418, 2419, 2420, 2421, 2425, 2428, 2434-5, 2436, 2441, 2446, 2448-9
- Discrimination in treatment of accused persons, 2415, 2422
- Excerpt from Commons Justice and Legal Affairs Committee proceedings, 2423
- Excerpt from speech of Ontario Ombudsman, 2448-9
- Excerpt from speech of Opposition leader, 2434
- Excerpt from speech of Prime Minister, 2426
- Excerpt from speech of Senator Choquette (1967) re book by Nathan F. Leopold, convicted killer, 2420-1
- Expenses for maintenance of jail inmates, 2408
- First and second degree murder, 2388-9, 2408, 2435
- Gallup poll, 2407, 2408, 2409, 2417, 2418, 2419, 2445, 2446
- Hoover, J. Edgar, letter sent to officers of FBI, 2417
- Incorrigibles, 2412
- Injustices in implementing penalty, 2418, 2432
- 'Justice in the street' and self-preservation by policemen and prison guards, 2408, 2420, 2437-8, 2446
- Law enforcement, lack of respect for, 2413, 2417, 2418, 2419
- Media coverage of subject and effects of, 2409
- Montreal and Quebec City, statistics on murders, 2408, 2411
- Montreal Gazette* article re capital punishment, 2418
- Murder of Moncton policemen, 2448
- Organized crime, 2407, 2436-7, 2448
- Parole, 2423, 2424, 2430, 2440, 2444
 - Escapes from Manitoba institution and aftermath of crime, 2428
- Parole Board, 2408
- Permissive society, 2414
- Premeditated and unpremeditated murder, 2414, 2419, 2435
- Prison reform, 2410, 2437
- Prison term, ten years or life, 2389, 2414, 2419, 2423, 2440
- Professional criminals, resources of, 2422
- Recidivist percentage, 2429
- Recommendation by jury, 2389
- Rehabilitation, 2408, 2446-7
 - Guelph Correctional Centre study by Dr. Carlson, 2447
- Responsibility of members of Parliament, 2407, 2409, 2414, 2435, 2439, 2446-7, 2448
- Sanctity of human life, 2414, 2418, 2440
- 'Santa Claus' murders, 2428
- Sex offender, Toronto Sun article re, 2421-2
- Terrorists, 2413
- Transitional provisions re pending matters, 2389
- Treason, 2388-9
- UK law, 2410
- UK Royal Commission on Capital Punishment, 2448
- Victims of murder and other crime, compensation for, 2411, 2413, 2440
- Wilson, Prof. James Q., study on criminal behaviour, 2431, 2432
- Speakers: Senators
 - Argue, Hazen, 2415-17
 - Asselin, Martial, 2407-08
 - Austin, Jack, 2444-5
 - Beaubien, L. P., 2411
 - Bell, A. E. Haddon, 2441-2
 - Bourget, Maurice, 2417-18
 - Choquette, Lionel, 2420-1
 - Denis, Azellus, 2427

Criminal law amendment (Bill C-84) - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators - Concluded

Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 2419-20
 Flynn, Jacques, 2387, 2388, 2425-7
 Fournier, Edgar, 2409-10
 Goldenberg, H. Carl, 2448-9
 Grosart, Allister, 2445-7
 Hicks, Henry D., 2413, 2436
 Lang, Daniel A., 2387-9
 Lawson, Edward M., 2423-5
 Macdonald, John M., 2410-11
 Macnaughton, Alan A., 2418-19
 Manning, Ernest C., 2413-15
 McDonald, A. Hamilton, 2427-8
 McIlraith, George J., 2430, 2433-6, 2439
 Molson, Hartland de M., 2436-8, 2444
 Neiman, Joan, 2421-3
 Paterson, Norman McL., 2448
 Perrault, Raymond J., 2387, 2428-33, 2440
 Robichaud, Louis J., 2411-13
 Smith, George I., 2438, 2439-42
 Stanbury, Richard J., 2408-09
 Williams, Guy, 2417

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) 1976 C-84 (punishment for murder and certain other offences). 1r, 2386;
 2r, 2386-9; m re disposition of 3r and passage of bill, 2407; 2r cont, 2407-42; question re voting procedure, 2444; 2r cont, 2444-50; 3r, 2450; r.a., 2450

Croll, Hon. David A.

Aging, the anatomy of report of Special Senate Committee, recommendations of committee and report on action taken, 146-9 (see Appendix to Debates of Oct. 22/74)
 Old age security, reduction in age limit, 146
 Research by staff of Parliamentary Library, 146
 Suggestion that Hansard of Oct. 22/74 be sent to municipal and social agencies, 147
Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1553-8
 Government expenditures, 1555
 Labour collective bargaining, 1555-6
 Low-income or unorganized groups, 1556-8
 Minimum wage, 1557; statistics on employees, 1557
 Poverty line updated (1975), 1556
Toronto Star Article 'Making Work Pay More Than Welfare', 1557
 Professionals, 1553
 Progressive Conservative Party suggestion for wage and price freeze, 1554
 Public reaction, 1554
 Regulations, 1554
 War Measures Act, 1554, 1555
 Decontrolling, 1554
Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 379-80
Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee
 Engagement of counsel and technical, clerical and other personnel, 1427, 1428
Citizenship bill C-20, 2290-3
 Ethnic element of Canadian citizenship, 2290-2
 Excerpt from speech (1946), 2290-2
 Laurier, Sir Wilfrid, statement at Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, 2290, 2293

Croll, Hon. David A. - Continued

- Compensation for Former Prisoners of War bill C-92, 2041
- Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Special Joint Committee (1967), inquiry re action on implementation of recommendations, 2238-41
 - Bankruptcy, orderly payment of debts, 2239, 2240
 - Recommendations of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 2240
 - Relief from unconscionable transactions, 2239, 2240
 - Borrowers' and Depositors' Protection Act, 2239
 - Combines investigation, 2240
 - 'Cooling-off' period re purchases, 2240
 - Faulty or defective goods, 2239, 2240
 - Financing of used motor vehicles, 2239, 2241
 - Form of agreement for credit transactions, 2239, 2240
 - Government guaranteed loans to low-income consumers, 2240
 - Information and education, 2239, 2240
 - Money management education and credit and debt counselling, 2240-1
 - Prepayment of contracts, 2239, 2240
 - Technical subcommittees of Consumer Affairs, 2239, 2241
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 974-5
 - Disregard of established law, 974
 - Moral issue in question of capital punishment, 974
 - Suggestion for vote on bill, 975
- Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms) bill S-14, question as to progress of bill in committee stage, 479
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, 1746
- Estimates
 - Suggestion that items remain on Order Paper for discussion at any appropriate time, 1782-3, 1784
 - UNESCO, 379-80
- Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-57, 1184-6
 - Social welfare programs, 1184-6
 - Medicare, phasing out of federal assistance, 1184-5; deterrent fees, 1185
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, tribute upon resignation from the Senate, 967
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1014, 1016, 1018, 1074
- Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, 1629-30
- Immigration bill S-12, 165, 166, 195-7, 244-5
 - Employment of immigrants for manual and menial work, 196, 244
 - Statistics on deportations, 196
- Immigration policy, unauthorized press publication of confidential draft report of Special Joint Committee, 1286
- Labour, the working poor in Canada, 2019-23
 - Employment, provincial statistics, 2019
 - Minimum wage, 2019-22
 - Provincially, 2019, 2022
 - Rates for experienced adult workers (legislated as of Dec. 31, 1974), 2031
 - Vs welfare, 2021-2
 - Poverty line, 2022
 - Specified areas of working poor, 2019
 - Supplementary income as work incentive, 2022
 - Union workers, 2022
- Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C., the late, 533-4
- Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, meeting in camera, question of privilege, 1770-1
- Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C., the late, 2177
- Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest, Green Paper on, 373, 573-4, 580, 780
- Parliament Buildings, use of East Block rooms by senators, proposal, 110

Croll, Hon. David A. - Concluded

Penitentiaries, action taken to implement principal recommendations of Special Joint Committee, 2200, 2249

Poverty

Children in Poverty, report by National Council of Welfare, 625-6

Senate report on poverty - poverty line updated (1974), 626

Privilege, question of, re remark by government leader, 198

Privileges and immunities of senators, proposed special Senate committee, 1434, 1721, 1726

Role of Senator Croll during instigation of government annuities legislation, 1630

Rules of the Senate, 1364, 1422-3, 1425-6

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee, 1364, 1423, 1425, 1426

Powers and duties of committees, 1423, 1425, 1426

Senate

Pensions for widows of senators, 282

Role in committee work, 148-9

Simultaneous interpretation system, 504

Senate and House of Commons Act

Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, 951-2, 953, 954

Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 874

Social welfare, distribution of income, 2144-9

Distribution of income by quintiles, 2145

Forms required of welfare recipients, 2144, see also appendix to Debates of May 19, 1976

Income redistribution through government intervention (1970), 2145-6

Myths concerning welfare, 2144

Report of study of government expenditures on welfare, 2147-8

Role of government in ensuring full employment and redistribution of wealth, 2146

Subsidies to businesses, 2147, 2149; CNR and CPR, 2149

Universality of welfare programs, 2146-7

Television and radio coverage of proceedings of Senate and committees, 1483, 1484

Controls, 1483, 1484

Other countries decisions re broadcasting of parliamentary proceedings, 1483

Resolution adopted by Commons re broadcasting of Commons proceedings, 1483

United Nations resolution naming Israel as racist nation, condemnation of, motion re, 1397-8

Work Ethic in Canada, special Senate committee proposed, 281-8, 518

Community employment, 283

Guaranteed minimum income, 281

Immigrants employed for farm work, 284, 286

Loss of working days because of strikes, 286

Management-labour relations, 284

Poverty in Canada - A Report of Special Senate Committee, 281-2

Report updated, 282

Provincial needs for workers, 284

Welfare vs unemployment insurance, 283, 284, 287

Working poor, 283

Crop insurance

Report of Agriculture Committee, 1212, 1227-9, 1468-71, 1622-3

See Agriculture

Crown liability

Criminal Law Amendment (Crown liability, immigration, parole) bill C-71, 1714, 1730-3

Crowsnest Pass, 41-42, 598, 889, 924

Cultural property export and import

- Appeal against board ruling, 798, 811-12
- Articles for exhibition purposes, 766
- Articles made by person now deceased or which have been in Canada 35 yrs. or more, 764, 765
- Articles under control list, 797-8
- Book of Kells, Ireland, 770
- Bureaucracy in discretionary powers of minister, 768
- Cultural properties of heritage of other countries, importing of, 798, 810-11
- Determination of values, 765, 798, 812
- Excerpts from statements of Secretary of State, 798-9
- Freedoms of thought and action, elimination of in over-protection by government, 768, 770, 799-800, 812
- Institution, definition of, 765-6
- Preservation of muniments, excerpt from statement of Hon. Joseph Howe, 770
- Prohibition of illegal imports, 764
- Review Board, 763-4, 908-11
- System of export control, 762-5
 - Determination of fair cash price, 762, 764, 765
 - Financial assistance for custodial institutions, 762
 - Ministerial permits or bulk licences, 763
 - Objects of national heritage, 762
 - Permits, 762, 908, 909
- Tax incentives for sale or donation of cultural property to custodial institutions, 763
 - Exemptions, 763
- UK legislation, 761, 763, 765, 799
- UNESCO convention, 764, 813
- Speakers: Senators
 - Carter, Chesley W., 848, 908
 - Everett, Douglas D., 765, 797-800
 - Grosart, Allister, 810-13, 909-11
 - Hicks, Henry, 765-6
 - Lamontagne, Maurice, 761-5, 766, 908-09, 910, 911
 - O'Leary, M. Grattan, 768-70

Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33. 1r, 712; 2r, 761-6, 768-70, 797-800, 810-13; ref to com, 813; rep with amdts, 848, 908-09, m in amdt adopted, 909-11; 3r, 912; Commons concurrence in Senate amdts, 1005; r.a., 1095

Curling

Canadian Men's Curling Championship, congratulations to Newfoundland Rink, 1889

Customs (Bill S-4)

- Importation by sea within Canadian waters, 131
- Jurisdiction to outer limits of territorial sea of Canada, 131, 168
- Preferential tax exemptions to Canadian companies in resource explorations, 168-9

Speakers: Senators

- Belisle, Rheal, 167-9
- Cook, Eric, 131

Customs bill S-4. 1r, 12; 2r, 131, 167-9; ref to com, 169; rep without amdt, 213; 3r, 222; r.a., 314

Customs tariff (Bill C-27)

- Articles exempted, 262
- Effects of tariff protection on consumer, 270-1
- Petroleum products, 262
- Speakers: Senators
 - Belisle, Rheal, 270-1
 - Benidickson, W.M., 262, 263
 - Connolly, John J., 262-3

Customs Tariff bill (No. 1) C-27. 1r, 242; 2r, 262-3, 270-1; ref to com, 271; rep without amdt, 280; 3r, 291; r.a., 314

Customs tariff (Bill C-39)

- Food products, 485
- Handicrafts from developing countries, 488, 515
- Housing materials and appliances, 485, 489, 515
- Ministerial powers, 488
- Preferential rates for developing countries, 485, 515
- Temporary tariff reductions (1974), 485
- Tourist exemptions, 485, 488
- UNESCO, 487-8, 515
 - Agreement for Facilitating International Circulation of Visual and Auditory Materials of Educational, Scientific and Cultural Character, 487
 - Excerpt from Montreal Star re, 487-8
 - Exclusion of Israel from European group, 488
- Speakers: Senators
 - Cook, Eric, 484-5
 - Grosart, Allister, 486-9, 514-16

Customs Tariff bill (No. 2) C-39. 1r, 472; 2r, 484-5, 486-9; ref to com, 489; rep without amdt, 499; 3r, 508, 514-16; r.a., 581

Customs tariff (Bill C-67)

- Aircraft and aircraft engines, 1210, 1214
- Gifts, 1210, 1214
- Petroleum products, 1210, 1214
- Polymer plates for letterpress printing, 1214
- Religious publications, 1214
- Tariff and excise revenues, 1214
- Speakers: Senators
 - Benidickson, W.M., 1209-10, 1215
 - Grosart, Allister, 1214-15

Customs Tariff bill (No. 3) C-67. 1r, 1197; 2r, 1209-10, 1214-15; 3r, 1215; r.a., 1281

Danson, Hon. Barnett, P.C., Minister of State for Urban Affairs

- National Housing bill (No.1) C-46, 748-57
 - Advisory council, 756
 - Handicapped persons, 753
 - Housing starts, decrease in, 749

Danson, Hon. Barnett, P.C., Minister of State for Urban Affairs - *ConcludedNational Housing bill (No. 1) C-46 - *Concluded

- Indians, 751
- Inspection of projects, 751
- Interest rate, 752
- Land purchase for lease to non-profit or cooperative organization, 755, 756
- Limited dividend program, 754-5, 757
- Mortgage insurance fund, 753, 754, 755
- Non-profit and cooperative housing, 749, 750
- Rental housing projects, 750, 754
- Senior citizens housing, 749, 750
- Sewage treatment loans, 756
- Statutory limits for making or insuring loans, 756
- Veterans, 749, 750-1

National Housing bill (No.2) C-77, 1673-81

- Abuses, 1678
- AHOP, 1673-4, 1676, 1678
- Appraisal of housing costs in various areas, 1678
- Continuity of program and target, 1675
- Cooperatives, 1679
- Costs of program, 1677
- Critical areas of housing, 1674
- Density, 1674
- Design, 1674
- Expenditures on interest reduction grants (1976), 1679
- House price limits, 1676
- Housing standards and construction quality, 1673, 1675, 1676-7
- Inflationary effect of new regulations, question of, 1673
- Land assembly programs of municipalities, 1675
- Loans and grants, 1674
- Low cost medium density housing, $1000 grants to municipalities, 1680
- Private funding, 1675
- Refinancing of mortgage, 1676
- Rental accommodation, 1677
- Repayment conditions, five-year clause, 1678
- Servicing of land, 1675
- Single parent family, 1676
- Two-person families, 1674
- Warranty from builder to owner, 1681

Davey, Hon. KeithIncome Tax bill (No.3) C-58, 1836-42, 1843, 1845, 1846, 1865, 2027-32, 2294-2301, 2327, 2328

- Advertising revenue, 1837
- Background of legislation on foreign periodicals, 1837
- Broadcasting
 - Advertising of prime time, survey report of Bureau of Broadcast Measurements, 2031-2
 - Buffalo stations, presentation to committee, 2298-9
 - Canadian Association of Broadcasters' document, 1842
 - CITY-TV, Toronto, 2297
 - CRTC, letter from Chairman, 2298
 - Global Television, letter from president, 2296-7
 - Wire from Canadian Association of Broadcasters and others urging support of bill, 2297

Davey, Hon. Keith - ConcludedIncome Tax bill (No.3) C-58 - ConcludedCanada WestWord, the magazine for British Columbians, excerpt from, 2028*Canadian Forum*, excerpt from article by Peter Newman, 2029*Canadian Journal of Political Science*, excerpt from, 1839*Christian Science Monitor* article re Time's editorial policy, 1840*Content*, excerpt from Editor's speech on CBC Capital report, 2032

Criteria for deduction for tax purposes, 1837

Fredericton Gleaner article, 1841*Globe and Mail*, 1838; article re Senate committee and chairman, 2300*Interest Group Tactics and the Politics of Foreign Investment: The Time-Reader's Digest Case Study*, 1839Letter from Stephen S. LaRue, president of Time Canada, 1839

Letter sent to Prime Minister by writers, photographers, etc., 1838

Maclean's magazine, 2028; presentation to committee, 2295-6

Mass Media Committee's report, excerpts from, 1839, 1840, 1841-2

MD of Canada, 2030, 2300*Montreal Gazette* editorial, 2299*Newsweek*, lack of Canadian advertising, 2027-8

Opposition to bill through lobbying, 2298-9

Revitalizing of Canadian magazines, 1838

Rights of Canadian broadcasters and publishers, 2295

Saturday Night, 2296

Speech of Richard Roehmer, P.C., Toronto, 1841

'Substantially the same', definition of, 2301

Time and Reader's Digest, 1837-8, 2028, 2299, 2301*Time* editorial re advertising and subscription rates, 2028*Toronto Sun* article by John Slinger, 1838

Publishing industry, 62, 556, 564, 582-3, 956-7, 2140

Globe and Mail article by J. Carruthers re Time magazine, 582-3Letter from Senator Davey to Globe and Mail re editorial entitled 'Whittling Down a Freedom', 582*Ottawa Journal* article re comments of President of Time Canada Limited before Senate committee, 2140

Television commercial advertising of Guaranty Trust, use of picture of Parliament Buildings, 556, 564, 956-7

Time and Readers Digest magazines, tax concessions in advertising, 582*Time* magazine, brief presented to members of Commons, 62Death penaltySee* Criminal Code and Criminal Law Amendment billsDeaths

Boucher, Hon. William A., 2251-2

Bourque, Hon. Romuald, 11-12

Childers, Erskine, President of Republic of Ireland, 265

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A., P.C., 778-9

Gelinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe, 1713-14

Hugessen, Hon. A.K., 2007

Kickham, Hon. Thomas J., 324

Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C., 532-3

Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C., 2176-7

MacKay, Hon. John, Lieutenant Governor of Prince Edward Island, 135

O'Leary, Hon. Michael Grattan, 2034-6

Prowse, Hon. J. Harper (Sept. 28/76)

de Grandpre, Hon. Louis-Philippe, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court

Royal assent, 2152

Denis, Hon. Azellus, P.C.

Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1580

Bourque, Hon. Romuald, the late, 11

Canadian National Railways, cost of construction of tower in Toronto, 2185-6, 2263-4

Civil Service Insurance bill C-26, 766

Adopted children, 766

Amendment to annuity tables, 766

Equal rights to man and wife, 766

Sharing of insurance proceeds, 766

Statistics on policies issued, 766

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 660

Royal prerogative, 660

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2427

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Lafontaine) bill C-229, 601-02

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1037

Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, 1233-4, 1235, 1251, 1252, 1258-9

Medical Care bill C-68, 2317-18

Ceiling on federal contributions, 2317-18, 2365

Expenditures, anti-inflation program effect on, 2365

New services, 2318

Nursing homes, 2366

Provincial responsibilities, 2365

Statistics on accidents and medical care, 2368

Senate and House of Commons (Supplementary Retirement Benefits) bill C-81, 2195

Statute Law (Status of Women) 1974 bill C-16, 1103-04, 1107, 1122-3

Acts amended, 1104, 1107

Civilian war pensions and allowances, 1104

Criminal Code, 1104

Elections, 1104

Immigration, 1104

National Defence, 1104

Pensions, 1104

Public Service employment, 1104

Unemployment insurance, 1107

Excerpt from Le Devoir editorial, 1103

Female staff of Senate, 1103-04

Recommendations of Royal Commission on Status of Women, 1104

Speakers of the Senate, 1107

Televising of committee proceedings, 510, 511

Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, 243, 272-4, 281, 304-06, 348-9, 368, 373, 298-400, 1134

Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, P.C.

Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30, 1345

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-85, 2419-20

Alternatives to death by hanging, 2420

Deterioration of law enforcement, 2419

Deterrent aspect, 2419, 2420

Gallup poll, 2419

Premeditated or unpremeditated murder, 2419

Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, P.C. - Concluded

- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-85 - Concluded
 - Prison term, 2419
 - Responsibility of juries, 2420
- Forestry, devastation by Spruce budworm, 1218-19
 - Bacillus thuringiensis, experiments conducted in combatting tobacco and cabbage bugs and Spruce budworm, 1218-19
 - CBC announcement re spraying for budworm, 1219
 - Quebec areas affected, 1218
- Industry, textile imports affecting Canadian industry, 791-3
 - Excerpt from speech of Hon. Mr. Pepin re negotiations with other countries, 792
 - Government efforts to instigate restraints on imports, 792
 - Unemployment in textile industry, 791
 - USSR trading policy, 791
- National Capital Region, Special Joint Committee
 - First report, committee quorum, 1237
- Olympic bill C-63, 1188-90, 1198, 1204-05
 - Coin-selling program to include gold coins, 1188-9
 - Cost according to market price of gold, 1189
 - Design and size of coins, 1190, 1205
 - Expenditures forecast, 1188
 - Gold content, 1204-05
 - Statement of Postmaster General, 1204-05
 - Gold requirements for program, 1198
 - Limit on coins issued, 1189
 - Lottery receipts, 1188
 - Profit potential for COJO, 1188
 - Programs of government assistance for Games, 1189-90
 - Trade marks and copyrights, 1189
- Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation for maintenance, 501-04
 - Contracts between Solicitor General and provinces re RCMP, 501
 - Costs of police administration, 503-04
 - Financial implications of RCMP provincial operations, 501, 502
 - Quebec and Ontario, 500, 501, 503
 - Correspondence between Quebec Justice Minister and Solicitor General, 503
- Representation bill C-36, 436, 437
- Speaker pro tem, 1781

Desruisseaux, Hon. Paul

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 32-37
- Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1542-5
 - Constitutional and controversial aspects of bill, 1544-5
 - Decree of Emperor Diocletian to fight inflation, 1542-3
 - Food prices control, 1544
 - Freezing of dividends, 1544
 - Personal responsibility for controls, 1543
 - Productive capacity, requirement of investment, 1544
 - UK prices and wages freeze, 1543-4
- Bourque, Hon. Romuald, the late, 33
- Canada Year Book, 1788, 1821-3
- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1411-15
 - Government expenditures, 1411, 1412-13

Desruisseaux, Hon. Paul - Continued

- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation - Concluded
 - Gross national product, 1413
 - Industrial profit margin, decrease in, 1413
 - Labour demands, 1412, 1414
 - Report of Economic Council of Canada, 1411-12
- Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1316
 - Question of privilege re interpretation of conflict of interest, 1316
- Crime and violence, 944-5
 - Biblical history of crime and violence, 944
 - Parental attitudes towards punishment, 944, 945
 - Television programs, 945
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 658-60
 - Commutations since 1972 legislation, 659
 - Crime increase and legislative permissiveness, 659
 - Deterrent aspect, 659
 - Premeditated murders, 659, 660
 - Rehabilitation failure, 659
- Economic conditions and prospects
 - Capital investment from domestic and foreign sources, 34-35
 - Construction empires, 36
 - Economic growth, 34
 - Government spending and national debt, 35
 - Gross national product, 33
 - Inflation, 33-36
 - Labour unrest, 36
 - Mineral resources and projected output, 35-36
 - Unemployment, 33
- Economy of Canada, 1072, 1073, 1113-17
 - Excerpt from Fortune article by Prof. Meltzer, 1116
 - Floating exchange rates, 1116
 - Foreign investment in Canada, 1116-17
 - Free enterprise, 1116
 - Government expenditures, 1115
 - Government policies and economic planning, 1115-16, 1117
 - Gross national product, 1114
 - Inflation, 1113-14
 - Excerpt from Les Affaires re international consumer prices, 1113-14
 - International trade balance, 1117
 - Labour unions, administrative policies, 1116
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, availability to press of draft report of Special Joint Committee, 1756
- Energy, international conference of oil-producing and oil-consuming countries, exclusion of Canada, 605-06, 775
- Felicitations to Hon. Renaude Lapointe and others, 32
- Florida land deals, involvement of Canadians in alleged swindle, 1012, 1198
- Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1738-41, 1851
 - Economic Council of Canada recommendations, 1738, 1740, 1741
 - Expansion of trade in Atlantic economic community, 1740
 - GATT, 1739, 1740
 - International credit and money convertibility, 1740
 - Keynes' theories, 1738

Desruisseaux, Hon. Paul - ConcludedFree trade - Concluded

Secondary industries, 1738-41

Employment, 1740

Import controls, relaxation of, 1739

Role in economic survival of provinces, 1738-9

Textiles and other industries, 1739-41; Quebec, 1739

Trade with United States, 1740

Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 636-7

Energy resources, 637

Oil prices, 637

Withdrawal of companies from Canada, 637

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1865-6

Broadcasting, 1865-6

Difficulties of small publications, 1865

Mass media reaction, 1865

Time and Newsweek, 1865

Industry, textile and other imports affecting Canadian industry, 781-8, 901, 947-8, 974-8

Anti-dumping procedures, 978

Canadian Textile Commission briefs presented to government (1974), 782

Competition from textile imports, 782, 785, 975-8

Dominion Textile Co. closing, 783

Dumping of foreign textiles at depressed prices, 782-3

GATT provisions for protection of signatories, 781-2, 785, 786, 787

Gazette article on The Case for Textile Protection, 781

Imports per capita, 782

Negotiations, lack of textile industry representatives, 976

Policy introduced by Hon. Mr. Pepin, 782

Polyester and cotton-mixed fibres, 783, 977

Representations and recommendations of union leaders, workers and producers, 783-4

Separatist leader's comments on CBC re government attitude toward secondary industry trade policies, 978

Sheet glass, 781-9

Sheets and pillowcases, relaxing of restraints re, 783

Shirts, import quota and prices, 785, 977

Recommendations, lack of enforcement of, 976-7

Textile and Clothing Board, role of, 976-7

Unemployment in Wellington District and other areas, 782, 784, 786-7, 977, 978

Unsatisfactory textile trade policies, 976

Investigations in Parliament, question of privilege, 1476-7, 1478

Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., resignation from the Senate, 212

O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, the late, 2036

Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation for maintenance, 567-8

Federal-provincial agreements re RCMP, 568

Quebec and Ontario policing costs, 568

RCMP background, 567-8

Senate

Business, 1108

Committees, 945

Vacancies, 945

Tributes to Senator Hayden, Chairman of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 1316-17

Dickson, Hon. R.G.B., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada

Royal assent, 731, 899

Documents tabled

See Journals of the Senate

Drugs

Alcoholism and drug addiction among Indians, 142-3

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code, 300, 354-62, 366-8, 374-5, 382-5, 402-06, 446-54, 456, 969-71, 983, 1007-11, 1014-21, 1023-33, 1036-8, 1046-9

Drury, Hon. Charles Mills, Minister of State for Science and Technology and Minister of Public Works

Resignation offer and rejection by Prime Minister, 1890-3, 1920-2

Duggan, Hon. James

Kickham, Hon. Thomas J., the late, 324

Newfoundland, CNR services, 1868, 1903

Transportation, BNA Act as it pertains to transportation, 2115-18

Newfoundland, 2115-18

CNR operations, 2115-18

Abandonment of passenger service, 2115-16

Elimination of freight trains, 2116

Limited 'train consist', 2115-16

Overcharges on freight, 2117

Shipment delays, 2116

Road cruiser service, 2116

Bus fares, 2117

Bus purchases, questions re, 2116

Terms of Union re transportation services, 2117, 2118

Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company bill S-29. 1r, 1293; 2r, 1307-08; ref to com, 1308; rep with amds (French text only), 1355, 1372; 3r, 1373; r.a., 1712

Economic conditions and prospects

Arab nations monopoly of oil industry, 69-70

Athabasca tar sands and Mackenzie River pipeline, 70-71

Canada-US relations, 70

Capital investment from domestic and foreign sources, 34-35

Commodity price determination, 69; transportation costs, 70

Construction empires, 36

Economic growth, 34

Energy resources and establishment of Petro-Canada, 69

Financial Times of Canada editorial, 69

Government spending and national debt, 35, 628

Gross national product, 33, 189-90, 199-200, 350, 628, 629

Inflation, 15-16, 19, 33-36, 628

Labour unrest, 36

Lumber industry, New Brunswick, 122

Mineral resources and projected output, 35-36

New Brunswick, 1750-4, 1817-20, 1821, 2009-13

Nova Scotia storm damage, 1765-6

Oil prices, 69-70, 71

Unemployment, 33, 628

See Anti-inflation,

Economy of Canada,

Inflation.

Economy of Canada, 1012, 1067-73, 1081-2, 1113-17

- Cost-push inflation, 1072
- Countercyclical policies, 1068, 1072
- Crude oil exports, ceiling on, 1072
- Current account deficit, 1071
- Employment and unemployment statistics, 1070
- Excerpt from Fortune article by Prof. Meltzer, 1116
- Excerpts from speeches of Senator Lamontagne (1966, 1970), relating to economic conditions, 1068-9
- Exports decline due to work stoppages, 1070
- Finance Minister's statements re fiscal policies, 1068-9, 1071
- Floating exchange rates, 1116
- Free enterprise, 1116-17
- Government expenditures, 1082, 1115-16, 1117
- Gross national product, 1070, 1114
- Housing market, 1069
- Index of real domestic product and of industrial production, 1070
- Inflation, 1113-14
 - Excerpt from Les Affaires re international consumer prices, 1113-14
- Interest rates, 1069
- International trade balance, 1117
- Labour unions, administrative policies, 1116
- Provincial deficits, 1071
- Recessions (1953-74), 1067-8
- Tax cuts, 1082
- Trade deficits re parts and accessories of motor vehicles, 1071
- US economic conditions, 1069, 1070
- US production of small cars affecting auto pact, 1071-2
- Speakers: Senators
 - Desruisseaux, Paul, 1072, 1073, 1113-7
 - Flynn, Jacques, 1072-3, 1081-2
 - Forsey, Eugene A., 1082
 - Lamontagne, Maurice, 1067-72

Electoral boundaries readjustment (Bill C-214)

- Electoral Boundaries Commissions, functions of, 378
 - Discrepancies in decisions of provincial commissions, 378
 - Recommendations, specifying of reasons for, 378
- Speaker: Senator
 - Asselin, Martial, 378

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill (No. 1) C-214. 1r, 325; 2r, 377-8; 3r, 382; r.a., 397

Electoral boundaries readjustment (Bill C-370)

- Commissions, members and powers of, 526-7, 536-7
- Geographic considerations in establishing quota of constituencies, 527, 536
- Rural and northern constituencies, 527
- Speakers: Senators
 - Belisle, Rheal, 527, 528
 - Flynn, Jacques, 527, 536, 537
 - Lafond, Paul C., 527
 - Molgat, Gildas L., 526-8, 536-7

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill (No. 2) C-370. 1r, 514; 2r, 526-8, 536-7; ref to com, 537; rep without amdt, 555; 3r, 564; r.a., 581

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Berthier) bill C-365. 1r, 564; 2r, 602-03; 3r, 606; r.a., 656

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Bruce) bill C-228. 1r, 583; 2r, 601; 3r, 606; r.a., 656

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Lafontaine) bill C-229. 1r, 583; 2r, 601-02; 3r, 606; r.a., 656

Emergency legislation

St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 817-27, 832

West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 76-93, 95

West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 723-30, 731

Emergency sittings

Authority to convene Senate during adjournments, 328

Employer-employee relations in the Public Service

Casual employees, 1811-12

Classification, 1806

Collective bargaining, facts and figures, 1801

Designated employees, 1802-04

Incompetence and incapacity, disciplinary action, 1810-11

Interim report, 1799

Managerial and confidential exclusions, 1810

Maximum penalties for unlawful activity, 1805-06

Pay research, 1808-10

Prosecution of offences under act, 1804-05

Public Service Employment Act, 1800-01

Technological change and long-term layoff, 1807-08

Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee

Availability to press of draft report, 1755-6

Budget, 525, 1088, 1624

Communication from Commons, 160; reply from Senate, 188-9

Expenses re study of Parts I, II and III of paper, 525, 1088

Members

Commons, 242

Senate, 242

Public Service Staff Relations bill C-70, ref to com, 1211

Recommendation to establish permanent Staff Relations Board, 998

Reports

First report, committee quorum and engagement of staff, 255

Second report tabled in Commons Nov. 26/74

Third report pertaining to public meetings and recommendations re Board, 998-9, 1003-04

Fourth report re Public Service Staff Relations bill C-70, rep without amdt, 1211

Fifth report re Superannuation bill C-52, rep with amdts, 1545-7

Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, ref to com, 1437, 1442

Terms of reference, 160, 188-9, 255

Workload of present board, 999

Employment

- Work ethic in Canada, 281-8, 339-42, 474-8, 518
- Working poor in Canada, 2019-23, 2154-8

Energy resources

- Alaska reserves, 1141
- Arab nations monopoly of oil industry, 69-70
- Arctic gas pipeline, supply of Arctic gas to southern Canada, 2037-8
- Athabasca Tar Sands and Mackenzie River pipeline, 70-71, 1141
- Atlantic provinces
 - Development of tidal power in Bay of Fundy, 2070, 2142, 2210
 - Offshore oil and gas resources, 2070, 2141-2, 2202-03
- Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, discussions re energy resources, 1141-2, 1145-7
- Colorado oil shale, 1141
- Conservation of fuel of car awaiting Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, 2209, 2443
- Construction of Arctic gas pipeline, supply of Arctic gas to southern Canada, 2037-8, 2069-70
- Domestic oil prices, 610
- Energy, Mines and Resources Dept., estimates for, 193, 201-2, 203
- Excise tax, 1265, 1267-80, 1281
- Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements, 1136, 1175-8, 1197, 1214
- Gasoline excise tax, 1100-01, 1112-13
- Government policy re Canadian ownership of companies developing oil and gas on crown lands, 1259-60, 2210
- Income tax, 583, 606-14, 616-21, 627-40, 645-56
- Indian oil and gas claims, 325, 337-8, 351-3, 402, 426, 427
- International conference of oil-producing and oil-consuming countries, exclusion of Canada, 605-06, 774-5
- International Energy Agency (IEA), 605
- Lighting of government buildings, 606, 1238-9
- Mineral resources and projected output, 35-36
- Nuclear energy, 1142
- Oil and gas reserves, negotiations between federal government and governments of producing provinces, 2070
- Oil and mining industries, 609-11, 613-14, 616-20, 629-30, 635, 637, 639-40
 - Alberta, 617, 618, 632
 - BNA Act provisions re provincial natural resources, 630, 632
 - Coal mining, 619-20
 - Leduc well, 620
 - South African Coal, Oil and Gas Corp., annual report, 619
 - Earned depletion, 610
 - Great Canadian Oil Sands, 619
 - Prices and production costs, 617-18, 620, 621
 - Pricing of Crude Oil: Economic and Strategic Guidelines for International Energy Policy*, by Taki Rifai, 618
 - Royalties, 609-10, 617, 629, 632, 636-40
 - Withdrawal of companies from Canada, 630, 637
 - Write-off of exploration expenses, 610-11
- Oil refiners, compensation to, 445-6
- Passamaquoddy-Cobscook Bay, US Corps of Engineers report on, 2210-11
- Petro-Canada, 69, 1174, 1178-9, 1215-18, 1244, 1251, 1281
- Petroleum administration, 847, 861-3, 902-07, 912-16, 925-7, 934-6, 981-2, 1002, 1013, 1034
- Pipeline from Prince Rupert to Edmonton, proposed construction of, 2037
- Pipeline treaty between Canada and United States, proposed, 2037

Energy resources - Concluded

- Provincial royalties, 609-10
- Shortfall in oil deliveries to US, 1142
- Solar and geothermal energy, harnessing of tides, heat pumps, 1142
- Syncrude project, 71

Energy, Statement of Policy, Proposed Petroleum and Natural Gas Act and New Canada Oil and Gas Land Regulations, 2169-72, 2179-82

- Background of Statement of Policy, 2171
- Berger inquiry, 2180
- Canada-US relations, 2179
- Crude oil and natural gas prices, 2169, 2170, 2181
- Dependency on imported oil, 2170
- Discretionary powers under new regulations, 2171
- Domestic energy, increase in prices, 2170
- Exploration and development in frontier regions of Canada, 2170, 2171, 2181
- Export prices of natural gas, 2170
- Freeze period on petroleum products prices, 2170
- Government decisions re crude oil and natural gas prices, 2170
- Hydroelectric power generation, statement of Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, 2180
- National energy strategy for Canada, 2169-70
- Nuclear energy, 2180
- Petro-Canada, 2181-2
- Provincial exports of energy, 2180
- Reduction in average use of energy, 2170
- Self-reliance on natural gas, 2170
- Speakers: Senators
 - Perrault, Raymond J., 2169-71
 - Phillips, Orville H., 2179-82

Environmental affairs

- Ocean dumping control, 1005, 1038-40, 1049-51, 1088, 1096
- Protection of coastal waters from radio-active pollution, 889, 924

Environmental contaminants

- Chemical contamination from industry, 1372
- DDT and other chemicals, dangerous effects of, 1404
- Federal-provincial consultations, 1372, 1404
- Government authority to obtain information re environment and manufactured substances, 1404
- Major provisions of bill, 1371-2
- Speakers: Senators
 - Macnaughton, Alan A., 1371-3
 - Quart, Josie D., 1404-05

Environmental Contaminants bill C-25. 1r, 1348; 2r, 1371-2, 1403-04; ref to com, 1404; rep without amdt, 1437; 3r, 1446; r.a., 1476

Estimates

- Agriculture, 695, 699, 1569
- Assurance that discussion on estimates does not terminate with passage of bill, 193, 203, 204, 205, 708

Estimates - Continued

- Athabaska Tar Sands, 693
- Auditor General's statement re low standard of government control of finances, 1976, 1977
- Bilingualism, 1986
- Borrowing authority, 389, 391, 392-4, 708, 721, 735, 737-9, 1603, 1604-05, 1612-13, 1972-3, 1988-9
- Breakdown of interim supply, complexity of allocation of votes, 737
- Budgetary votes and budgetary statutory items, 200, 704, 707-08, 2173
- Canadair Ltd., interest-free loans, 693, 706, 719, 720, 733
- Canadian Broadcasting Corp., 201, 1056
- Canadian International Development Agency, 200
- Canadian National Railway deficit, 693, 704
- Cape Breton Development Corp., 201
- Cheque cashing before Mar. 31, 1989-90
- CIDA, authority to carry funds from year to year, 973, 1055, 2174
- Consumer and Corporate Affairs, 697
- Control procedures for expenditures, 350
- Corporate power in relation to expenditures, 1611-12
 - Canadian Establishment*, by Peter Newman, 1612
 - Conflict of interest, excerpts from letters re, 1612
 - Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., 1611-12
 - Royal Commission re, 1611-12
- Correction in figure relating to supplementary estimates (D), 703
- Crown corporations, 1056
- Date of enactment of appropriation bill, 1130
- Deferment of capital projects, 1980-1, 1982-3, 1984
- Departmental cutbacks, 1131
- Dollar items, 379, 693, 695, 697-9, 704-06, 719, 723, 1565-70, 1603, 1607, 1613-14, 1967-70, 1971, 1977, 1979, 1980, 1982-3, 1987-8
 - Lack of authority for transfers, 1607
 - Statistics (1967-70), 1967-70, 1980, 1982-3, 1987-8
 - Statistics (1973-76), 1979, 1980
- Economic development and supply, 190, 379
- Employees in the government, statistics, 972
- Energy, Mines and Resources, 193, 201-02, 203, 695-6, 699-700, 701, 1566, 1608, 1609
- Energy policy for Canada, 2189
- Estimates by type of payment, 2173-4
- External Affairs, 697, 701, 1568
- Family allowances, 1084
- Glassco Commission report on Financial Management and Control Study, 1967, 1982
- Globe and Mail* article re 'Workers get shock at bank: Government cheques NSF', 1977-8
- Government restraints, 1083, 1130-1
- Governor General's warrants, 190
- Gross National Product vs government expenditures, 189-90, 199-200, 350, 972-3, 1605, 1607, 2187-8, 2287
 - Financial Times* article re, 2287
- House of budgetary expenditures in various depts., 972, 983, 1054-5
- House of Commons, program expenditures, payment to Leader of Social Credit Party, 719, 722, 1605-06, 1613
 - Bill introduced in Commons re future payments to SC Party leaders, 1605-06
 - Political aspect of, 1605-06
- Housing grants, 1986
- Inclusion of Main and Supplementary Estimates in one bill, 190-1
- Income tax refunds, 716
- Increase in estimates (1974-77), 2212, 2213
 - Supplementaries, 693, 2187, 2190-1

Estimates - Continued

- Increase in non-budgetary items and in statutory items, 2174
- Indian and Northern Affairs, 200-01, 379, 700, 701
- Industry, Trade and Commerce, 1566
- Inflation, 2188, 2190-1
- Information Canada, 201, 350, 1610
- Inter-Provincial Pipe Line Ltd., 693, 706-07, 720
- Labour, 697-8
- Law Reform Commission poster, 349-50, 351
- 'Leading Cases in Constitutional Law', excerpt from decision in 'Edinburgh and Dalkeith Railway Company v. Wauchope', 391
- Loan item in supplementary estimates, question of precedent, 2255-6, 2258
- Lockheed long-range patrol aircraft, 1984-5, 1986
- Loto Canada, 2234-5, 2237-8, 2244-9, 2255-8
- See Loto Canada
- Manpower and Immigration Dept., Manpower Division, 400-01
- Medicare and hospital insurance, 1608
- Milk subsidies, 704
- National Finance, 1569
- National Health and Welfare, 190, 696, 702, 1055, 1566, 1568
- Nova Scotia heating costs, 1985
- Oil equalization payments, 2188
- Oil refiners, compensation to, 445-6, 1055, 1084, 1609
- Oil subsidies to Ottawa Valley Line, 1985
- Old age security fund, 693, 704, 705, 1055-6, 1971-2, 2213, 2173
- Globe and Mail* report on, 705
- Olympic Games deficit, 1985, 1986, 2256
- Government policy and statement re, 2256
- Payments to provinces, 379
- Percentage increase of supplementary estimates in relation to main estimates, 1948, 1967, 1971, 1976-7, 1983-4
- Point of privilege raised in Commons, 394
- Privy Council, 696
- Provincial government expenditures, 2189, 2190, 2213, 2287
- Public debt, 190, 1607-08
- Public Service employees, increase in, 2174
- Public Works, 696-7, 698, 1566-7
- Purchases of goods and services, 1084, 1085
- Railways, compensation to, 379
- Recommendation of Canadian Economic Policy Committee, 1084
- Referral of supply bills to National Finance Committee, 716, 717-18, 733-4, 736, 1129-31, 1604-05, 1613
- Regional economic expansion, 697, 701-02, 1570
- Science and Technology, 1567
- Secretary of State, 698, 1567, 1568-9, 1570
- Solicitor General, 1569
- Special employment measures, 1602
- Spouses' allowances, 1602
- Statutory expenditures required by law, 349, 1130
- Non-statutory expenditures, 1130
- Student summer employment, 1603
- Suggestion that items remain on Order Paper for discussion at any appropriate time, 1782-5
- Supplementary estimates appropriation bill, question of retroactive power to government, 1976

Estimates - Concluded

- Supply and Services, 693
- Transfer payments to provinces, 1084, 2213-14, 2287, 2288
- Transport Dept., 693, 697, 702, 1567, 1568, 1569, 1609-11, 1985-6
 - Aircraft manufacturing, 1610-11
 - Canadair-Government of Canada option, 1610-11, 1614-15
 - Mirabel and Toronto Airports, 1610
 - Reductions, 1985-6
 - STOL aircraft, 1609-10
- Treasury Board, 704, 720
- Two-price wheat system, 1985
- Unemployment insurance, 1055, 1083, 2188, 2190; unemployment in potential productivity 2187-8
- UNESCO, 379-80
- Urban affairs, 1568
- Veterans Affairs, 693, 699, 704, 1567-8, 1569
- Votes for grants in fiscal year, 1972
- Votes for which additional sums are required, 1972
- Votes payments on calendar year basis, 1972
- Wheat, two-price system, 193, 202, 203
- Yearly estimates totals (1969-76), 1565

Estimates referred to National Finance Committee

- Fiscal year ending Mar. 31/75, 108; rep of com, 136-7, 189-91
 - Supplementary (A), 108, rep of com, 136-7, 189-91
 - Supplementary (B), 300, rep of com, 349-51, 372
 - Supplementary (C), 441-2, rep of com, 444
 - Supplementary (D), 586, rep of com, 693-4, 695-702
- Fiscal year ending Mar. 31/76, 555; rep of com, 971-3, 983-4, 1054-7, 1082-6
 - Supplementary (A), 1409; rep of com, 1549, 1565-70
 - Supplementary (B), 1824; rep of com, 1937, 1948-53, 1966-70
- Fiscal year ending Mar. 31/77, 1777; rep of com, 2167, 2173-5
 - Removal of item from Order Paper, question, 1782-5
 - Supplementary (A), 2178; rep of com, 2237-8, 2244-9, 2255-8

Estonia, 58th anniversary of Proclamation of Independence

- Tribute to Estonians, 1785
- US Resolution re foreign policy of non-recognition of annexation of Baltic States by USSR, 1785

European Community

- Canada's claim for compensation re loss of preferential access of Canadian commodities to British market, 579-80, 661-2, 671
 - Cheddar cheese, 671
 - Concessions of interest to Canada, 671
 - Negotiations leading to agreements between various countries, 671
 - Wheat and barley, 671

European Parliament, Strasbourg and Brussels meetings, 307-13, 316-20, 329-33

- Canada-European Community relations, excerpt from Senate committee report on, 310, 332-3
- Canada-United States relations, 317-20, 329-33
- Canadian delegation, 308-09

European Parliament, Strasbourg and Brussels meetings - Concluded

Economic situation, 311
 Energy resources, 312-13, 332
 Exchange meetings in Ottawa, 308
 Finished goods, export of, 317, 319, 320, 330
 GATT, 319, 320
 Multinational corporations, 330
 Ottawa office, establishment of, 308
 Prime Minister's visit to the Community, 308
 Trade and investment relationships, 332
 United Kingdom, 312

Speakers: Senators

Bourget, Maurice, 331-3
 Grosart, Allister, 319-20, 329-31
 O'Leary, M. Grattan, 316-19
 van Roggen, George C., 307-13

Everett, Hon. Douglas D.

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 413-14, 415
 Cabinet ministers, resignation offers and rejection by Prime Minister, 1892
 Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank bill S-24, 961-2
 Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 765, 797-800
 Appeal against board ruling, 798
 Articles under control list, 797-8
 Cultural properties of heritage of other countries, importing of, 798
 Excerpts from statements of Secretary of State, 798-9
 Fair cash offer, determination of, 798
 Rights of individuals, 799-800
 UK legislation, 799
 Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/75, Supplementary (B), 349-51
 Control procedures, 350
 Information Canada, 350
 Law Reform Commission poster, 349-50, 351
 Manpower requirements of federal government, 350
 Statutory expenditures required by law, 349
 Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/75, Supplementary (D), 683-4, 695-702
 Agriculture, 695, 699
 Athabaska Tar Sands, 693
 Canadair Ltd., loans to, 693
 CNR deficit, 693
 Consumer and Corporate Affairs, 697
 Discussion on subject matter of appropriation bills remaining on Order Paper, 1783-4, 1785
 Dollar items, 693, 695, 697-9
 Energy, Mines and Resources Dept., 695-6, 699-700, 701
 Inter-Provincial Pipe Line Ltd., and Syncrude project, 693, 694
 External Affairs, 697, 701
 Increase in main estimates through supplementaries, 693
 Indian and Northern Affairs, 700, 701
 Labour, 697-8
 National Health and Welfare, 696, 702

Everett, Hon. Douglas D. - Concluded

- Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/75, Supplementary (D) - Concluded
 - Old age security fund, 693
 - Privy Council, 696
 - Public Works, 696-7, 698
 - Regional economic expansion, 697, 701-02
 - Secretary of State, 698
 - Supply and Services, 693
 - Transport Dept., 693, 697, 702
 - Veterans Affairs, 693, 699
- Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/76, rep of National Finance Committee, 971-3
(Presented by Senator Sparrow)
- Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/77
 - Supplementary (A), rep of National Finance Committee, 2234-5
- Fort-Falls Bridge Authority bill C-367, 897
- Income tax, com authorized to study legislation prior to receipt of bills, 298-9
- Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, 272-4, 348-9, 399-400
 - Authority provided under Statistics Act, 273-4
 - Disclosure of information to Customs officer, 273, 274
 - GATT, 400
 - Import analysis and examination of invoices, 273-4
 - Imports, question of non-tariff barriers re, 400
 - Support services for industrial and trade development, 272-3
- Information Canada, 400
- Manpower Division of Department of Manpower and Immigration, motion to authorize com to examine and report on, 400-1
 - Responsibilities and functions of Manpower Division, 400-01
- National Finance Committee
 - Reports
 - Estimates
 - Year ending Mar. 31/75, 136-7, 189-90
 - Supplementary (A), 136-7, 189-90
 - Supplementary (B), 349-51, 372
 - Supplementary (C), 444
 - Supplementary (D), 693-4, 695-702
 - Year ending Mar. 31/76, 971-3, 983-4, 1054-7, 1082-6
 - Supplementary (A), 1549, 1565-70, 1602
 - Supplementary (B), 1937, 1948-53, 1966-70
 - Year ending Mar. 31/77
 - Supplementary (A), 2234-5
 - Supplementary Borrowing Authority bill C-80, rep without amdt, 1649-50
- Senate business, 1881, 1915

Excise tax (Bill C-40)

- Air transportation, 500
- Articles for handicapped persons, 500, 501
- Building materials and water distribution equipment, 500, 501, 519, 520
- Clothing and footwear, 499, 501
- Day care centers, 501
- Government revenue from tax, 519
- Liquor, wine, tobacco, 500
- Transportation equipment, 500, 501, 520
- Unlicensed wholesalers, 520, 570-3
- Vehicles of high energy-consuming category, 500, 519-20

Excise tax (Bill C-40) - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Buckwold, Sidney L., 572, 573
 Cook, Eric, 571-2
 Flynn, Jacques, 519-20, 570-1
 Hayden, Salter A., 570, 572-3
 Macnaughton, Alan A., 499-501
 Manning, Ernest C., 573

Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40. 1r, 479; 2r, 499-501, 519-20; ref to com, 521; rep without amdt but with observations re unlicensed wholesalers, 570; 3r, 570-3; r.a., 581

Excise tax (Bill C-66)

Air transportation, 1268, 1271
 Building insulation materials, 1268, 1274, 1277
 Businesses and persons eligible for refund, 1267-8, 1272, 1274, 1279
 Deficit resulting from single oil price policy, 1269, 1271, 1273
 Gasoline for personal use and for travel to and from place of business, 1267, 1268, 1269, 1272-3, 1276-7
 Gasoline tax in other countries, 1280
 Income tax refunds, 1270-1, 1279
 Increase to all consumers in lieu of tax, suggestion, 1279
 Method for filing of claims and administration of refunds, 1270
 Nova Scotia home heating costs, 1275
 Prices of gas and oil, 1273, 1277
 Records of gasoline purchases, maintaining of, 1268
 Refunds, 1279
 Subsidy paid by low-income persons, 1272, 1274, 1276
 Tax administration costs, 1272
 Worldwide oil crisis, 1275

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 1273-5, 1276, 1277, 1279-80
 Grosart, Allister, 1271-3
 Macnaughton, Alan A., 1267-71, 1278
 Perrault, Raymond J., 1275-6, 1280
 Prowse, J. Harper, 1271, 1277-8

Excise Tax bill C-66. 1r, 1265; 2r, 1267-78; ref to com, 1278; rep without amdt, 1278; 3r, 1278-80; r.a., 1281

Explosives

Authority to regulate purchase and possession of fireworks and explosives, 263-4, 271
 Factories licensed to manufacture explosives, 271
 Inspections by provincial officials, 271
 National standards for gun magazines, 264
 Offences, 272

Speakers: Senators

Barrow, Irvine, 263-4
 Macdonald, John M., 271-2

Explosives bill S-17. 1r, 243; 2r, 263-4, 271-2; ref to com, 272; rep without amdt, 280; 3r, 291; r.a., 1134

Export development

- Authorized capital, 459-60, 462
- Board of directors, 464
- Foreign investment insurance program, 460
- Interest rate, 462, 463, 464
- Short-term and medium-term credit for small businesses, 461
- Speakers: Senators
 - Grosart, Allister, 462-4
 - Langlois, Leopold, 459-62, 464

Export Development bill C-9. 1r, 459; 2r, 459-64; 3r, 464; r.a., 467

Exports and imports

- Cultural property export and import, 712, 761-6, 768-70, 797-800, 810-13, 848, 908-11, 912, 1005
- Export development, 459-64, 467

External affairs

- External Affairs Department, Passport Office
 - Refusal to accept Canadian currency of $50 and $100 denominations, 2037, 2077
- Passports, diplomatic and special, for travel to Namibia, 2363-4, 2443-4
- See* Foreign affairs

Farm credit

- Age limit, 788, 789, 797, 806, 807, 863-5
- Agricultural investments, 790
- Agricultural production, worldwide need, 803-04
- Availability of farm land, 797, 806-07
- Capital fund of corporation, 789, 790, 807
- Eligibility criteria, 805
- French Canadians enrolled in agricultural courses, 806
- French language literature in regard to legislation, 805
- Full-time and part-time farmers, 789, 803
- Interest rate, 789, 791
- Letter from Canadian Federation of Agriculture, 891
- Loan statistics, 795
- Maritime farmers, problems of, 863-4
- Mortgage or productive capacity of real estate, 789, 790-1
- Repayment record, 788
- Security requirements, 791, 804
- Small farm development, 804-05
- Statistics on persons involved in farming, 864
- Statistics on provincial loans, 807
- Western farming, 864
- Speakers: Senators
 - Argue, Hazen, 791, 805-06, 863, 886-8, 890-1
 - Belisle, Rheal, 891
 - Buckwold, Sidney L., 806, 865
 - Grosart, Allister, 886, 887, 891-2
 - Macdonald, John M., 796-7, 864, 880
 - Mellraith, George, 880-4, 885
 - Michaud, Herve J., 803-05
 - Norrie, Margaret, 863-4
 - Perrault, Raymond J., 886, 887, 890

Farm Credit bill C-34. 1r, 781; 2r, 788-91, 796-7, 803-07; ref to com, 807; rep with amdt and recommendations, 847-8, 863-5, 880, m in amdt, 880-2, point of order re amdt, Speaker's ruling reserved, 882-8, Speaker's ruling on point of order, 889-90, m for adoption of rep continued, 890-2, m in amdt adopted, 892, main m as amended agreed and rep adopted, 892; 3r, 893; r.a., 899

Farming

See Agriculture

Federal Business Development Bank

Counselling assistance to small enterprises, 370
 Federated Council of Sales Finance Companies, 369
 French version of bank name, 417
 Industrial Development Bank, 369-70
 Authorized capital, 370
 Background, 369
 Lending policies, 369-70
 Loans, 369
 Loss ratio, 369
 Information service, 370-1
 RoyNat, 369
 Scope of bank operators, 418
Speakers: Senators
 Flynn, Jacques, 417-18
 Godfrey, John M., 366-71

Federal Business Development Bank bill C-14. 1r, 348; 2r, 368-71, 417-18; ref to com, 418; rep of com, 426; 3r, 444; r.a., 467

Federal Court bill

See Supreme Court bill S-2, 12, 103-06, 153-5, 162-4, 243, 253, 467

Federal government buildings

Langevin Block and Justice Building, renovation particulars and costs, 76-77, 137
 Lighting of government buildings and costs of energy, 606, 1238-9

Federal-provincial fiscal arrangements

Basic and additional revenues, 1175-6, 1183-4
 Conditional and unconditional payments, 1182
 Costs of program, 1175
 Freehold oil and gas revenue, 1176
 Government commitment re oil and gas revenues for development and exploration, 1181
 Income tax revenue guarantee, 1176, 1177
 Medicare and hospital insurance, 1182-7
 Deterrent fees, 1185
 Home care and clinical supervision, 1186
 Phasing-out of federal assistance, 1183, 1184-7
 Remote areas, problems of, 1187
 Shortage of persons in medical profession, 1187
 UK health services, unsatisfactory operation of, 1186
 Personal and corporation tax rates, 1177
 Provincial equalization payments per capita, 1176-7, 1182
 Social welfare programs, 1184-6
 Tax rebates on oil and gas revenues, Western provinces, 1177

Federal-provincial fiscal arrangements - *ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Croll, David A., 1184-6

Grosart, Allister, 1180-4

Lang, Daniel A., 1175-8

Perrault, Raymond J., 1186-7

Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-57. 1r, 1136; 2r, 1175-8, 1180-8; ref to com, 1188; rep without amdt, 1197; 3r, 1214; r.a., 1281

Federal-provincial relations office

Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet, 465-6

Responsibilities, 466

Meetings (1964-73), 465

Privy Council functions, 465

Public Service employment, 464-6, 467

Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies

Assets of federally incorporated companies in Canada, 101

Borrowing limit, 100, 101-02

Subordinated debentures, 100, 102

Speakers: Senators

Hayden, Salter A., 100-03

Walker, David J., 103

Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies bill S-7. 1r, 47; 2r, 100-03; ref to com, 107; rep without amdt, 160; 3r, 180; r.a., 314

Feeds

Bureaucratic control in enforcement of regulations, 158

Definition of 'feed', 130

Inspections, 585

Manufactured feeds, authority to regulate, 130

Medicaments, 585

Modifications proposed, 130

Pet foods, 585

Responsibilities of Agriculture Canada, 585

Whole seeds or grains free of deleterious substance, 138

Speakers: Senators

Argue, Hazen, 129-31, 585-6, 1635, 1636-7, 1650-3

Flynn, Jacques, 1652-3

Greene, John J., 1635

Langlois, Leopold, 1480, 1635-6

McDonald, A. Hamilton, 158-9

Norrie, Margaret, 161-2

Yuzyk, Paul, 157-8

Feeds bill S-10. 1r, 47; 2r, 129-31, 157-9, 161-2; ref to com, 162; rep with amdts, 584-6, 592; 3r, 594; Commons amdts, 1467, 1480, 1485-6, ref to com, 1635-7; rep that Commons amdts be concurred in with substitution of one amdt, 1650-3, 1660-1; Commons concurrence in Senate amdt, 1974; r.a., 2002

Felicitations

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, P.C., speeches at unveiling of portrait in Senate foyer, 469-71
 Lapointe, Hon. Renaude, appointment to office of Speaker of the Senate, 22, 26, 32, 37, 51, 58, 62, 72, 81, 82-83, 111, 116, 120, 138-9, 144, 167-8, 174-5, 184-5
 Martin, Hon. Paul P.C., former Leader of the Government in the Senate, 14, 18, 22, 26, 32, 37-38, 48, 51, 62, 72, 111, 116, 120, 122, 132, 142, 174, 181, 185, 208-12
 (Farewell speech to Parliament, 207-08)

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, P.C. (Resigned May 23, 1975)

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 184-8
 Aging, 186-7
 Compulsory retirement and lack of consideration for talent potential, 186-7
 'Salute to Senior Citizens Day', Toronto, excerpt from speech by Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker, 186
 Aging, the anatomy of Special Senate Committee report, 516-18
 Conferences on aging, provincial, 516-17
 Dilemmas of Modern Man, excerpt from speech of Dr. Nathan Shock, 516
 Geriatrics studies in faculties of medicine, 517
 Ontario Select Committee on Aging, 517, 518
 Population increase in respect of elderly persons, 516
 Senior Citizens' Week (US), 517; Ontario committee recommendations, 518
 Sociological aspects of aging, 516-17
 Canadian Sovereignty Symbol bill C-373, 685-8
 Importation of beavers from US for Grey Owl film, 687-8, 709
 Lord Beaverbrook of New Brunswick, 686
 Non-restriction on commercial use of beaver symbol, 687
 Petitions and communications received to support adoption of beaver symbol, 686-7
 Significance of beaver to Indians, armed forces and areas of national interest, 686
 Committees, Special, Senate, study and analysis of reports for information of Parliament and public, 516
 Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) bill C-223, 710-11
 Damage or insult to flag, 710
 Incidents of desecration to flag, question of, 710
 Penalties, 710
 Speech by Governor General on first raising of National Flag, 710
 Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 184-5
 Former Speaker of the Senate, felicitations, 14, 18, 22, 26, 32, 37, 51, 58, 62, 68, 72, 111, 116, 120, 132, 138, 139, 142, 167, 173, 181, 184-5
 Indian and Eskimo recruitment development program, 569
 International Women's Year, 896-9
 Abortion, deletion from Criminal Code, 898
 Anti-discrimination legislation, 897
 Excerpt from UN publication re inequality between men and women, 897
 Indian women, loss of status on marriage to non-Indian, 898
 Inequalities for university graduates, 898
 Pay discrepancies noted by Statistics Canada, 898
 Professionals, 898
 Property rights on marriage breakup, 898
 Royal Commission on the Status of Women, 897

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, P.C. - *Concluded*International Women's Year - Concluded

Social revolution by women, 896

UN Assist. Sect. General for Humanitarian and Social Affairs, Mrs. Helvi Sipilä, 896

United Nations designation of year, 896

'Why Not' campaign, 897

Women's Program, Department of State, 897-8

Working women, heads of families, 898

Legislation received without explanatory notes, 709

Mexico, Canadian parliamentarians visit to, 775-7

Canadians retired in Mexico, 777

Exchange of cultural exhibitions, 776-7

Influence in international policies, 775

Joint ministerial meetings, Canada-Mexico, 775

Political system, 776

Chamber of Deputies, 776

Institutional Revolutionary Party and other parties, 776

President, 776

Seasonal agricultural workers in Canada, 777

Standard of living, Canada-Mexico, 775

Trade, Canada-Mexico, 776-7

Women, status of

Chamber of Deputies, 776

Equality before law and in all aspects of life, legislation for, 777

National programs for family planning, etc., 777

Social improvement, work in, 777

Research staff, Parliamentary Library and Senate, 516

Senior Citizens from March Township and Kanata, visitors to Senate, 555

Speaker pro tem, 582, 803

Speeches at unveiling of portrait in Senate foyer, 469-70; reply 470-1

Status of women, 186-8

Advisory Council on the Status of Women, priorities cited, 187-8

Abortion, removal of item from Criminal Code, 188

Canada Labour Code amdt, 187

Canada Pension Plan, inclusion of homemakers, 187

Divorce or dissolution of marriage, 187

Equitable employment of women to federal government positions and to boards, commissions and crown corporations, 187

Superannuation Act amdts, 187

International Women's Year, 188

Tributes upon resignation, 967-8

Visit to the Senate after resignation, 1970

Ferry service

North Sydney and Port aux Basques, possible increase in fares, 1861

Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, possible increase in fares, 1815, 1860, 1861

Finance Committee*See* National Finance, Standing Senate CommitteeFirearms

Control of weapons and firearms, 193, 293-5

Fire losses replacement account

Conditions covering replacement of or repair to buildings, 353

Yukon and Northwest Territories, insurable properties and premiums, 338

Speakers: Senators

Belisle, Rheal, 353

McDonald, A. Hamilton, 338

Fire Losses Replacement Account bill C-18. 1r, 325; 2r, 338, 353; 3r, 366; r.a., 397

Fisheries

Extension of 200 miles coastal jurisdiction, 74, 2208, 2377

Law of the Sea Conference, 117

Marine safety, British Columbia fisheries, 1814-15, 1860

Newfoundland, 117; ice conditions, 117; foreign fishermen inside limit, 117

Nova Scotia, 18-20; offshore fishing, 19-20

Rights of MicMac Indians of Cross Point Reserve to fish Atlantic Salmon, 2208, 2264

Tuna research, 73-74

Flag, National, 663, 710-11, 714-15, 740

Florida land deals, involvement of Canadians in alleged swindle, 1012, 1198

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 180-4

Adjournment, point of order re, 1110

Air conditioning system on Governor General's car, tax on, 2209

Aircraft Registry bill S-5, 173-4, 981, 999-1000

Conflict between creditors, 173-4

Constitutionality of bill, question of, 173, 1000

Federal-provincial conferences, lack of, 1000

Registration of mortgage or claim for provision of fuel or other material, 173

Aird, Hon. John B., resignation from the Senate, 334

Alliance Security & Investigation, Ltd. bill S-26, 1053-4, 1261

Animal Contagious Diseases bill C-28, 1633-4

Penalty for non-reporting of disease, 1634

Regulatory powers of authorities, 1634

Transportation and care of animals, 1634

Zoos and game farms, 1634

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1578, 1579-80, 1586, 1587

Post Office workers, 1587

Termination clause, constitutionality of, 1578, 1586

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, 2138

Anti-inflation program

Judges' salaries, 1662, 1681

Meeting of Minister of Finance and provincial representatives re implementation of guidelines, 1549

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 392-5, 407, 408, 410, 411-12, 413, 414, 416

Appropriation bill No. 1, 1975 C-54, 715-16, 733-6

Appropriation bill No. 2, 1975 C-55, 736-8, 739

Appropriation bill No. 3, 1975 C-64, 1097-8, 1129-31

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1975 C-79, 1604-06

Appropriation bill No. 1, 1976 C-90, 1976-7

Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91, 1986-7, 1988-9, 1991-2

Auditor General of Canada, report of Independent Review Committee, question of referral to com, 796

Austin, Hon. Jacob, introduced in the Senate, 1354

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee
 - Engagement of counsel and technical, clerical and other personnel, 1427, 1428
 - Meetings during adjournments, 2047-8
- Bankruptcy and insolvency, com authorization to examine and report on subject matter of Bill C-60, 911
- Boucher, Hon. William A., the late, 2251
- British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 132-3
- Canada Business Corporations bill C-29, 685
 - Energy Board, 685
 - Senate committee work on bill, 685
- Canada-United States relations
 - Communications between Canada and US, newspaper article re remarks by Senator Davey, 2193
- Canada Year Book, 1788
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation
 - TV program 'Les beaux dimanches', 226
- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation – a program of national action, 1293, 1454-8
 - Excerpt from Prime Minister's speeches, 1454-5
 - Financial and monetary policies, 1456
 - Government expenditures, 1456-7
 - Government guidelines, 1455-6
 - Housing, excerpt from statement by Minister, 1457
 - Labour reactions, 1457-8
 - Prices and incomes policy, 1457
 - Restrictions, effect on free enterprise, 1457
 - Statement by Prime Minister re right to strike and wages above guidelines, 1293
- Canadian Labour Congress, political affiliation, 2153
- Canadian Men's Curling Championship, congratulations to Newfoundland rink, 1889
- Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation bill S-27, 1067
- Canadian Press report of statements made by Leader of the Government re matter concerning Senator Giguere, 1395-6, 1397
- Canadian Television News report on death of Viateur Ethier and misrepresentation as member of Conservative Party, 1241
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2266, 2267, 2279-80, 2284, 2285, 2289, 2309-10, 2324, 2336, 2349, 2350, 2362, 2444
 - Delegation of powers to Lieutenant Governor in Council, 2279, 2289, 2324
 - McGill Law Journal* article, 'The Central Fallacy of Canadian Constitutional Law', 2324
 - Property and civil rights, 2279
 - Qualification for municipal office, 2279-80
 - Qualification to own ship, or acquire, hold or dispose of property, 2279-80
 - Suggested referral of Clause 33 of bill to Supreme Court, 2362, 2444
- Civil Service Insurance bill C-26, 770
- Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1308-12, 1598
 - Conflict of interest, interpretation of, 1308-09
 - Constitutional problems in provisions of bill, 1310-11
 - Misleading advertising and unfair or dishonest selling practices, 1309-10
 - Right of action in civil or federal courts for damages, and provincial jurisdiction re, 1410-11
- Combines investigation, New Brunswick court of appeal decision re K.C. Irving, Ltd., 1023, 1045-6
- Combines, planned takeover bid by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd., of Argus Corporation, 1063, 1064
- Crerar, Hon. Thomas A., P.C., the late, 775
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 982-3, 1157-8, 1168-9, 1733
- Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) bill C-223, 714, 715

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No.1) C-71, 1742-7, 1774, 1775, 1776, 1885, 1897-8, 1903-06
 - Criminal Code provisions applicable to abortion, 1746
 - Admission of facts but denial of guilt, 1745
 - Comments of Past President of Bar Association, 1743
 - Morgentaler case*, 1742-5, 1903-06
 - Jury decision, reversal by court of appeal, 1742-6
 - Jury system and role of jurists, 1744-5
 - Right of judge to infer from peace officer's evidence that disturbance has occurred, 1897
 - Summary of judgment of minority, 1746
 - UK law, 1746
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2387, 2388, 2425-7
 - Excerpt from speech of Prime Minister, 2426
 - Extension of legislation re commutation of death penalty (1967-76), 2426
 - Problems deriving from murder, solution of, 2427
- Economy of Canada, 1072-3, 1081-2
 - Government expenditures, 1082
 - Tax cuts, 1082
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Berthier) bill C-365, 602
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill C-370, 527
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Bruce) bill C-228, 601
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Lafontaine) bill C-229, 602
- Emergency sittings of the Senate, 328
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee
 - Availability to press of draft report, 1755
- Energy, prices for crude oil and natural gas, announcement re, 2142-3
- Estimates
 - Auditor General's statement re low standard of government control of finances, 1976
 - Borrowing authority, 392-4, 735, 737-8, 1603, 1604-05, 1988-9
 - Breakdown of interim supply, complexity of allocation of votes, 737
 - Canadair, interest free loan, 733
 - Date of enactment of appropriation bill, 1130
 - Departmental and crown corporations cutbacks, 1131
 - Dollar items and transfer payments, 1977
 - Form and title of appropriation bills, 717
 - Government expenditures and restraints, 1130-1, 1605
 - Government spending, increase in, 715-16, 1605
 - House of Commons, program expenditures, payment to the Leader of Social Credit Party, 718, 1605-06
 - Political aspect of, 1605-06
 - Income tax refunds, 716
 - Percentage increase of supplementary estimates in relation to main estimates, 1976-7
 - Question of privilege raised in Commons, 394
 - Referral of supply bills to National Finance Committee, 716, 717-18, 733-4, 1129-31, 1604-05
 - Statutory and non-statutory expenditures, 1130
 - Supplementary estimates appropriation bill, question of retroactive power to government, 1976
- Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, 519-20, 570-1
 - Building materials and construction equipment, 519, 520
 - Government revenue, 519
 - Transportation equipment, 520
 - Unlicensed wholesalers, 520, 570-1
 - Vehicles of high-energy-consuming category, 519-20
- Excise Tax bill C-66, 1273-5, 1276, 1277, 1279-80
 - Building insulating materials, 1274
 - Conservation of gas and oil, question of, 1274

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Excise Tax bill C-66 - Concluded
 - Exemptions, 1274, 1279
 - Gasoline tax in other countries, 1280
 - Increase to all consumers in lieu of tax, suggestion, 1279
 - Refunds, 1279
 - Subsidy paid by low-income persons, 1274
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 884
- Federal Business Development Bank bill C-14, 417-18
 - French version of bank name, 417
 - Scope of bank operations, 418
- Feeds bill S-10, 1652-3
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 181-2
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen
 - Speech at unveiling of portrait of, 469-70
 - Tribute upon occasion of resignation, 968
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1014, 1015, 1016, 1019, 1020, 1025-6, 1027-8, 1029, 1030, 1075-6
 - 'Give', 'trafficking', 'distribute', definition of, 1025-8, 1075
 - Point of order re amdt under discussion, 1015
- Foreign affairs, Canada-United States relations, 234
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1163
- Gasoline excise tax, 1100, 1101
- Gélinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe, the late, 1713
- Gouin, Hon. L. M., retirement from the Senate, 2057
- Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, 1641
- Habitat, UN Conference on Human Settlements, 2199-2200
- Immigration policy, unauthorized press publication of confidential draft report of Special Joint Committee, 1286
- Income Tax bill (No.1) C-49, 627-30, 647-9
 - Committee consideration of bill, press and public ignorance of, 647
 - Economic conditions, 627-8
 - Government expenditures, 628; forecast (1975-76), 628
 - Gross National Product, 628, 629
 - Inflation, 628
 - Unemployment, 628
 - Energy resources, 629-30, 648-9
 - BNA Act provisions re provincial natural resources, 630
 - Exodus of capital, personnel and technology, possibility of, 630
 - Royalties, 629, 648
 - Taxpayers, statistics on, 628-9
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2024-7, 2337-8
 - Bill C-118 (1965) providing exemption for advertising costs, 2024
 - Excerpt from speech re, 2024, 2025
 - Broadcasting, 2025, 2026
 - Bellingham station, 2026
 - GATT provisions re exemption of tax from imported products defined as services, 2027
 - MD of Canada*, 2027
 - Ministerial powers, 2025
 - Time and Reader's Digest*, 2024-7
- Income Tax Conventions bill S-32, 1798
- Indian Oil and Gas bill C-15, 426
- Indians, Manitoba Brotherhood, request to appear before Senate committee, 315
- Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, 368

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Inflation, 182-3, 519
 - Government 'restraints', 183
 - Gross National Product vs government expenditures, 182-3, 519
 - Supply of goods and services, 183
- Investigations in Parliament, point of order re discussion of subject, 1477, 1478, 1479
- Judges bill C-47, 1053, 1080
- Justice, administration of, allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1848, 1857-8, 1859, 1890-3, 1920-2, 1930-1
 - Drury, Hon. Charles Mills, resignation offer and rejection by Prime Minister, 1890-3, 1920-2
 - Ouellet, Hon. André, resignation because of impending contempt of court appeal, 1890-3, 1920-2
- Kickham, Hon. Thomas J., the late, 324
- Labour conditions, strike of longshoremen in Quebec, back-to-work legislation, 833, 838-9, 840, 846, 849, 855, 867, 888, 900-01, 912
 - Withdrawal of services by longshoremen at Montreal, 1006
- Laing, Hon. Arthur, the late, 532-3
- Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee
 - Expenses, special, 525, 526
 - Meeting held in camera, 1770
 - Televising of committee proceedings, 510, 513-14, 551
- Legislation, difficulty in dealing with omnibus bills, 1742
- Liberal Caucus, invitation to members of Opposition, 1868
- Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, 1338-9
 - Appointments after royal assent of bill, 1339
 - Inadequacy of remuneration, 1338
 - Members of Parliament retired to office of lieutenant governor, 1339
- Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, 1251-2, 1257-8
- Medical Care bill C-68, 2359
 - Seat belts, 2367, 2368
- Mexico, communique of Parliamentary delegation to Canada, 1874, 1887-8
- Mexico, visit of Canadian Parliamentarians, 852-3
 - Political stability, 853
 - Tariff preferences for developing countries, 852
 - Tourism, 853
 - Trade missions, 852-3
- Money bills, Senate authority to amend, 1656, 1657-8
- Montreal police force, threatened strike, 849
- Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 2068
- Narcotics, study of legislation by Senate committee, 316
- National Finance Committee, meetings during adjournment, 2048
- National Housing bill C-48, 742, 753, 755, 756
- National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto-Canada, 2161, 2191
- North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1727
 - Canada's role in NATO, 1727
 - Warsaw Pact, 1727
- Official languages, report to Parliament, 289-90
- Official languages, right of air pilots in Quebec, 2344, 2345, 2348, 2378-81
- O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, the late, 2034
- Olympic bill C-63, 1203-04
 - Expenditures, inflationary trend, 1204
 - National aspect of Olympics, 1204
 - Unjust criticisms by government alleged by Opposition members, 1204-05

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 603, 954-5
 - Motion that subject be referred to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 603, 954-5; agreed, 966
 - Cost-sharing formula, 955
 - RCMP operations in other provinces, 954
 - Subsidizing by Ontario and Quebec and other provinces, 955
- Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 982, 1002
- Political Parties, possible RCMP investigation, 2063
- Post Office, opinion of Anti-Inflation Board re settlement with Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1597
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1370, 1403, 1410, 1416-17
- Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill C-10, 599, 600
- Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to British Columbia with cabinet ministers, 1763, 1764
- Privileges and immunities of senators, proposed special committee, 1434, 1734
 - Search warrants, procedure in dealing with, 1434
- Progressive Conservative Party of Canada, leadership convention, 1778, 1813-14
- Public Service, bank's refusal to cash government cheques, 1974-5, 2003-04, 2008
- Public Service Staff Relations bill C-70, 1245, 1246
 - Board composition and term of office, 1245
- Railway bill C-48, 760-1
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1639-40, 1662, 1663, 1664
 - Effects of anti-inflation program on regional areas, 1662, 1663, 1664
 - Passage of bill, question of, 1639-40
- Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee
 - Newspaper article re Chairman Senator Forsey, 794
- Representation bill C-36, 438-9
- Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1207, 1209
- Rules of the Senate
 - Adherence to subject of debate, 599, 600
 - Minister's statement of policy, senator's comment or criticism re, 1203
 - Point of order re comment on speech of Commons member, 2416
 - Point of order re question of privilege on Air Canada service, 507
 - Point of order re remarks by government leader, 1826
 - Point of order under advisement by Speaker, 884
 - Reference of items to National Finance Committee, 1109, 1110
 - Suggestion that matter of appropriation bills being ref to com be considered by Standing Rules and Orders Committee, 736-7
 - Suspension of rule 95 re private bills, 1207, 1209
- Rules of the Senate, report of Committee on Standing Rules and Orders, 1358, 1361, 1362, 1364
- Science Policy Committee, 1246-7
- Senate
 - Adjournments, 712-13, 1107-08, 1110
 - Business, 124, 153, 222, 324-5, 713, 723, 1107, 1110, 1122, 1250, 1262-4, 1265, 1287-8, 1409, 1438, 1547, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1915, 1916, 1954, 2046, 2336
 - Criticisms by public and in press re Senate consideration of bill C-49, 647
 - Monday evening sittings, question of, 1878, 1879, 1880
 - Reform
 - Official Opposition, reinforcement of, 184
 - Suspensive veto, 184
 - Term of appointment, 184
 - Simultaneous interpretation system, 504
 - Vacancies, 1772

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 868-70
 - Adequacy of increase, question of, 868
 - Appointment of commissioners to inquire periodically into remuneration of members of Parliament, 869-70
 - Comparison to salaries of top public servants and professionals, 868
 - Cost of living index, 869
 - Expense and travel allowances, 869, 870
 - Method of awarding increase by legislation, 868
 - Parliamentarians' remuneration scale (1953-70), 869
 - Press and public reaction to salary increase, 870
 - Prime Minister, ministers and deputies, 869
 - Principles governing salary increase, 868
 - Speaker of Senate and of Commons, 869
 - Stevedores' wage demands, 868
- Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2187, 2193-5, 2196, 2203, 2204, 2205, 2207
 - Liberal Caucus support re cancellation of 7% increase, statement of Prime Minister re, 2193
 - Provincial legislatures, salary increases, 2194
 - Senior public servants, 2193-4
 - Supplementary retirement benefits, 2194
- Senate (Intersessional Authority) bill S-22, 576-7, 815-16
 - Committee work, delays due to dissolution of Parliament, 577
 - Dissolution periods 1963-74 (number of days), 576
 - Resolution re intersessional authority, 576
 - Sittings of committees between sessions, 577
 - Limitation, 577
 - Reports of committees, 577
- Sessions of Parliament, legislative program, 1902-03
- Smith, Hon. George Isaac, introduced in the Senate, 1282
- Sports, message of congratulations to Montreal Canadiens on winning of the Stanley Cup, 2129
- Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, 1437, 1442
- Statutes of Canada (to revise references to Court of Queen's Bench of Quebec) bill S-16, 291-3
- Supplementary Borrowing Authority bill C-80, 1642, 1643, 1649
 - Inclusion of borrowing authority in appropriation bills, 1642, 1643
 - Period covered by borrowing authority, 1649
 - Referral of bill to committee, question of, 1643
 - Requirement of recommendation of Governor General, 1643
- Supreme Court bill S-2, 106, 153-5
 - Applications for leave to appeal, 153-4
 - Conflict of interest, question of, 153
 - Interest on money awards, 153
 - Residence requirement for judges, registrars and deputy registrars, 153
- Tailoring service for Senate and Commons, 2167-8
- Televising of committee proceedings, 510, 513-14, 551
- Territorial Lands bill S-20, 375-7
 - Conflict of interest, 376-7
 - 'Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest', 377
 - Offshore rights and the seabed, 376, 377
- Transportation, bilingual air traffic services, Commission of Inquiry, 2322, 2335
 - Disruption of services in Canada, 2237, 2243, 2249-50, 2258-9
- Transport Minister Hon. Jean Marchand, rumour of resignation, 573
- Uranium of Canada, Limited, proposed referral of report to National Finance Committee, 1639

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Concluded

- West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 76, 78-80, 93-94
 - Conciliation commissioner, 79
 - Delay in negotiations, 78
 - Proposals for collective bargaining, prohibition against strikes, compulsory arbitration, 79-80
- West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 725-7, 730
 - Disruptions in economy due to strikes, 725-6
 - Loss of man-days in recent strikes, 725-6
- West Coast ports operations, resumption of work by longshoremen and related operations, question, 742

Food and drugs, narcotic control

- Advertising of drugs by give-away, 1018-19 ✓
- Application for withdrawal of criminal record, 1038, 1048 ✓
- CMA resolution re non-medical use of cannabis, 447
- Cannabis, 354-6, 357-8, 359-60
 - Convictions for possession of, 355-6
 - Hazards of use, 357, 359-60
 - Metabolic interactions with other drugs, 359-60
 - Persistence of THC in the body, 359
 - Tar content, 359
 - Research, 357
- Certificate of analysis, 1033 ✓
- Drug and gun control, 1015 ✓
- Drugs and alcohol, teenagers' and young children's use of, 355-6, 383-4, 453, 1048
- Drugs, Society and Personal Choice*, 361
- Drug trials cited, 1024, 1029 ✓
- Educational drawbacks as result of criminal record, 1008-09 ✓
- 'Give', 'traffic', and 'sell', definition of, 1009-11, 1015-31, 1047, 1075 ✓
- Goods for export purposes, 1066 ✓
- Healthways* magazine, excerpt from, 374
- Indian reservations, drug and alcohol problem and suicide rate, 453-4
- LeDain Commission, 354, 383
- Misunderstandings by public re purpose of legislation, 374-5, 449, 970, 1046
- National Organization for Reform of Marihuana Laws (US), 447, 449
- Onus of proof for possession or trafficking, 1008, 1010-11 ✓
- Parole or unconditional release, 969, 970, 1008, 1037, 1038 ✓
- Penalty for importing, exporting, trafficking or possession, 367, 375, 447, 1009, 1037-8, 1047-8 ✓
- Permissive society, 361-2
- Preventive detention and compulsory treatment, 1032 ✓
- Search by police, authority for, 356

Speakers: Senators

- Asselin, Martial, 402-04, 1007-11, 1074-5
- Bonnell, Lorne, 446-8, 1019, 1020, 1046, 1078-9
- Buckwold, Sidney L., 1079
- Choquette, Lionel, 1018
- Croll, David A., 1014, 1016, 1018, 1074-5
- Denis, Azellus, 1037
- Flynn, Jacques, 1014, 1015, 1016, 1019, 1020, 1025-6, 1027-8, 1029, 1030, 1075-6
- Goldenberg, Carl, 969-71, 1025, 1066, 1079
- Greene, John J., 454, 1027
- Heath, A. E. Haddon, 1018-19, 1031-3, 1076

Food and drugs, narcotic control - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators - Concluded

Hicks, Henry D., 366-8, 1017
 Laird, Keith, 1014, 1016-7
 Lawson, Edward M., 374-5
 Manning, Ernest C., 405-06, 1014-15, 1016, 1037-8
 McDonald, A. Hamilton, 1019, 1026
 McElman, Charles, 1077
 McGrand, Fred A., 404-05
 McIlraith, George, 1015-16, 1019, 1020, 1021, 1023-5, 1026, 1027
 Neiman, Joan, 354-8, 456, 1014, 1017-18, 1076-7
 Perrault, Raymond J., 1028, 1029-30
 Phillips, Orville H., 1036-7
 Prowse, J. Harper, 382-5, 1046-8
 Rowe, Frederick William, 448-54, 1048-9
 Sullivan, Joseph A., 358-62, 1079-80
 van Roggen, George C., 1048
 Williams, Guy, 453-4

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19. 1r, 300; 2r, 354-62, 366-8, 374-5, 382-5, 402-06, 446-54, 456; ref to com, 456; rep with amdts, 969-71, 983, 1007-10; m to amend com rep, 1010-11, 1014-21, 1023-30, neg, 1030-1, debate on rep cont, 1031-3, 1036-8, 1046-9, rep adopted, 1049; m for 3r, 1066; m to amend sec. 1 of bill, 1066, 1074-5, agreed, 1075; m for 3r cont, 1075-6, m that bill be not proceeded with, 1076-7, neg, 1078; m for 3r cont, 1078-80; 3r, 1080

Foreign affairs

Aid to Chile, 1438-9, 1597-8

Canada-United States relations, 66-68, 71, 227-9, 234, 1653, 1716, 1747-50; questions re, 1625-7

Canada-United States boundary, government policy re demarcation line on Dixon Entrance on Strait of Juan de Fuca, George's Bank and northwards, 2308

Canadian Defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, report in Globe and Mail, 2122-3, 2192-3, 2201

Communications between Canada and US, newspaper article re remarks attributed to Senator Davey, 2192-3, 2377-8

Club of Rome, President Peccei, visit to Senate committee, 473

Estonia, 58th anniversary of Proclamation of Independence, 1785

European Parliament, 307-13, 316-20, 329-33

Helsinki Declaration on European Security and Cooperation, 1293, 1466, 1471-5, 1791

Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Florida conference, 2221-2, 2224-33

Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Quebec conference, 1137-43, 1145-55

Inter-Parliamentary Union, Colombo, Sri Lanka conference, 984-8

Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo conference, 234-8

Italy, earthquake victims, Canadian government assistance to, 2111

Mexico, visit of Canadian Parliamentarians, 775-7, 852-3, 930-3

North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1489-94, 1513-16, 1726-8

North Atlantic Assembly, London conference, 342-7, 362-5

Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to Argentina, 1975, 2142

Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to India, 1859-60, 1869

Palestinian Liberation Organization

Position taken by Canadian delegation at United Nations, 110, 137-8

Status as participants in United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention, 1238, 1242-4, 1248-9

Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, Strasbourg conference, 1431-4

Foreign affairs - Concluded

Passports

Restrictions on special passports of MPs, article in Globe and Mail, 2262-3, 2362-4, 2443

Use of diplomatic and special passports for travel to Namibia, 2363-4, 2443-4

South Africa-Zambia relations, 229

United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson, visit to Ottawa, 473

Foreign Affairs, Standing Senate Committee

Budget, 193, 348, 1781

Canada-United States relations, committee authorized to report on, 227-9, 234; committee authorized to publish and distribute Vol.I of report, 1653; report tabled, 1716

Meetings during Senate sittings, 713, 1059, 2216

Members, 96

Reports

Canada-United States relations, 1716, 1747-50

Citizenship bill C-20, rep without amdt, 2242

Immigration bill S-12, rep without amdt, 239

Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, rep without amdt, 1874

Terms of reference, 227

Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1158-63, 1169-70, 1218-20, 1230-2, 1816

Acreage affected in Ontario, Quebec, Maritimes and Newfoundland, 1219

Bacillus thuringiensis, experiments in combatting tobacco and cabbage bugs and Spruce budworm, 1218-19

CBC announcement re spraying for budworm, 1219

Christmas tree industry, 1169

Cost-sharing of insecticide spraying, 1158-60, 1163

Damaging side effects of insecticides, 1158-63

Economic results from destruction, 1158, 1219

Excerpt from paper prepared by director of Maritime Forest Research Centre, 1158

Federal cost-sharing in aerial control programs, 1219-20, 1816

Federal responsibility, 1160-1, 1162

Lumber companies' participation in control, 1220

Maple and Birch 'dieback', 1160

New Brunswick dependence on forest industry, 1158

Newfoundland, 1161

Birch and Mountain Ash, 1162

Newspaper headlines re lack of federal assistance, 1158

Position statement prepared by Environment Department, 1230-2

Effectiveness and efficiency of chemical control, 1230-1

Possible alternatives to widespread use of chemicals, 1231-2

Scope and effectiveness of environmental monitoring, 1231

Prince Edward Island, 1162

Quebec, 1218

Smallholdings and farmers' woodlots, 1169

Statistics on NB forestry ownership, 1169

Task force report, 1220

Wildlife affected by forest conditions, 1162

Speakers: Senators

Bonnell, Lorne, 1162-3

Buckwold, Sidney L., 1169, 1170

Burchill, G. Percival, 1158-9, 1816

Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 1218-19

Flynn, Jacques, 1163

Forestry - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators - Concluded

Hicks, Henry D., 1161
 McElman, Charles, 1159-61, 1169-70
 Michaud, Herve J., 1169
 Perrault, Raymond J., 1162, 1163, 1219-20, 1230-2
 Robichaud, Louis-J., 1163
 Rowe, Frederick William, 1160, 1161-2

Forsey, Hon. Eugene A.

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 51-58
 Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1508, 1532-7
 Anticipated contravention of guidelines, 1537
 Controls by voluntary means, 1533
 Federal-provincial cooperation in enforcement of guidelines, 1508, 1536-7
 Labour unions, 1535-7
 Ontario secondary school teachers, 1536
 Public Service Alliance, 1536-7
 Over-ruling of courts of Parliament, 1534-5
 Wee Frees and Taff Vale cases cited, 1535
 Power of regulation given to Administrator of Board, 1533-4
 Progressive Conservative Party proposals, 1533
 Safeguard operations of Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 1534, 1535
 UK controls, 1533
 Anti-inflation program
 Family allowances, 1683, 1716-17, 1721
 Postal workers' contract, government rejection of Anti-Inflation Board's opinion re, 1628, 1655
 Appropriation bill No. 4, 1976 C-94, 2267-9
 British North America Acts 1867 to 1975 bill C-3, 1061-2
 Jurisdiction of Parliament in Senate appointments, 1061
 Manitoba and other provinces, Senate representation (1886), 1061
 Native representation from NWT and Yukon, 1061
 British Trade Mission offices in Canada, 206, 252
 Business of the Senate, committee meetings, 1090, 1091
 Canada Year Book, 1822
 Canadian Broadcasting Corporation
 Gerda Munsinger, presence in Canada and appearance on television program, 1034, 1073, 1239-40, 1256-7
 Question of privilege re reply to question, 1256-7; further question of privilege, 1618-19, 1625
Les Beaux Dimanches program, 1127-8
 Dubious nature of film with separatist tendencies, 1127
 National unity, deprecating of, 1127
 Report of Transport and Communications Committee re, 1127-8
 Canadian coins, reported change in design, 1937, 1955
 Canadian economy
 Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1319-26
 BC Premier's statement re temporary price freeze, 1323
 Canadian Labour Congress proposals, 1323-4
 CLC appearance before Senate committee, question of, 1326
 Constitutional validity of legislation, question of, 1320
 Canada Temperance Federation case, 1320-1
 Globe and Mail article by Prof. J. D. Morton re, 1320
 Cost-push inflation, 1321

Forsey, Hon. Eugene A. - Continued

Canadian economy - Concluded

Attack on Inflation - Concluded

Demand-pull inflation, 1321

Emergency or temporary legislation, 1320-1

Globe and Mail articles on price controls, 1323

Government expenditures, 1324-5

Bank of Canada building, 1324

Mirabel Airport, 1325

Pickering Airport, 1325

Sculptures, 1324-5

Inflation, types of, 1321

Money supply, increase in, 1323

Pensioners, 1323

Price control vs wage control, 1322

Problems of equity in temporary freeze wages and controls, 1322

Rectification of disparities between compensation for men and women, 1320

Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, powers of, 1320

Salaries of members of Parliament and executives, objections to, 1325, 1326

Senate role in attack on inflation, 1322

Social services, 1324

CNR services in Atlantic provinces, 1924, 1976

Canadian Labour Congress, political affiliation, question of privilege, 2153, 2154

Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission bill C-5, 829-32

Bell Canada applications, 831-2

Executive committee, 830

Head office location, 830

Matters pending before CTC, 830

Powers of commission, 830-1

Provincial and consumer representation on commission, question of, 831

Renaming of commission, 829

Responsibility to report to Minister of Communications, 830

Terms of appointment and qualifications of commission members, 830, 831

Candu reactors, proposed sale to Argentina and Korea, 1307, 1319

Childers, Erskine, President of Republic of Ireland, death of, 265

Christian Evangelical Centre of Canada, action of National Revenue Department re, 2183-4, 2346

Citizenship bill C-20, 2087-92, 2282-3, 2310, 2311, 2350

AIB case, 2282-3

Alien ownership of land, 2091

Appeals, 2089-90

British subject and subject of the Queen, 2088

General regulations, 2090

Landed immigrants, residence requirement, 2087-8

Language requirement, 2091

Powers and authorizations of Minister and Governor in Council, 2088-9, 2090

Security or public order risks, 2090

Constitution of Canada, correspondence between the Prime Minister of Canada and the First Ministers of the Provinces on the subject of Patriation, 2079-86

Amdts by unanimous consent of Parliament and legislatures, 2082

Draft proclamation, 2083-4

Excerpt from previous speech, 2080

Federal-provincial agreements, 2085, 2086

House of Commons, redistribution of seats, 2085-6

Letters received in opposition to patriation, 2079-80

Protection of French language and culture, 2084-5

Forsey, Hon. Eugene A. - ContinuedConstitution of Canada - Concluded

Provincial consultation in amendments, 2080-2

Senators, western provincial appointments, 2085

Unanimous consent of provinces, question of, 2081-2

Victoria formula, 2082-3

Copyright Act, Economic Review, 'Crown copyright reserved', replacement of words, 2200, 2322, 2362

Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) bill C-223, 710

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, 1897

Right of judge to infer from peace officer's evidence that disturbance has occurred, 1897

Energy resources, lighting of government buildings, 606, 1238-9

Federal government buildings, Langevin Block and Justice Building, 76-77, 137

Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 51

Foreign affairs

Aid to Chile, 1438-9, 1597-8

Canadian Defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, report in Globe and Mail, 2122-3, 2201

Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, 1641

Government Expenditures Restraint bill, date of introduction in Senate, question, 2130; further question, 2159, 2264

Helsinki Declaration on European Security and Cooperation, 1293, 1466, 1471-5

Cooperation in field of economics, science, technology and environment, 1473

Cooperation in humanitarian and other fields, 1473

Equal rights and self-determination of peoples, 1472

Exchange of observers, 1473

Improvement of working conditions for journalists, 1473

Inviolability of frontiers, 1472

London Economist article re deficiencies in Declaration, 1474-5

Matters related to giving effect to certain principles, 1473

Prior notification of major military movements, 1473

Reunification of families, 1473-4

Protest on Parliament Hill against Rumanian government, 1473

Sovereign equality, respect for rights inherent in sovereignty, 1472

Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, 1472-3

Travel for personal or professional reasons, 1474

Immigration bill S-12, 197-8

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2015

Broadcasting, 2015

Canada-US relations, 2015

Canadian advertising content, escalating percentage of requirement for, 2015

MD of Canada, 2015

Information Canada, inaccuracies in publications regarding Governors General of Canada and Prime Ministers of Canada, 1757, 2003

Meighen, Rt. Hon. Arthur, removal of portrait from Commons corridor, 53, 563

National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto Canada, 2103, 2110-11, 2160-2, 2163; inquiry dropped, 2191; see also 2267-9

Excerpts from speeches or statements re, 2160

Fiscal policy of government, departure from, 2162

Gullibility of the poor in relation to lotteries, 2162

Method of authorization for lottery, 2160-2

Regressive taxation in relation to lotteries, 2162

Nobel Peace Prize winner, refusal of USSR to permit acceptance of award, letter from Senator Forsey re, 1761

Forsey, Hon. Eugene A. – Continued

- Northwest Territories, Senate appointment, 1772
- Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to India, 1869
- Parliament Buildings, East Block renovations, 241; inquiry dropped, 279
- Parole, consideration of changes in present system, 1371
- Political affiliations, 1536
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1430, 1431
- Prerogatives of Prime Minister, orders in council re, 1349, 1355
- Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to British Columbia with cabinet ministers, 1764
- Privileges and immunities of senators, 1734
- Privileges of Parliament, commercial use of picture of Parliamentary Library, 1729, 1764-5
- Public Service Commission, new offices, interior wall decoration, 1930, 1975-6
- Public Service Employment, Staff Relations, Superannuation, Interpretation bill C-38, 466
 - Secretary to the Cabinet for Federal-Provincial Relations, 466
- Public Service, Treasury Board action in reclassification of economists, sociologists and statisticians, 2318-21
- Quebec Official Language Bill 22, 56-57, 829, 912, 924-5
 - Administrative discretion, 57
 - Constitutionality of, 56-57
 - Question re government decision on petition, 829, 912, 924-5
 - Universities, stipulations re, 57-58
- Queen Elizabeth, Her Majesty, celebration of Silver Jubilee in Canada, 1318-19, 1403
- Regulations and other statutory instruments, agreement between federal government and provincial governments, question, 2103, 2110
- Regulations and other Statutory Instruments, Standing Senate Committee
 - Duties and functions of committee, 1534, 1535
 - Expenses, 178
 - Reports
 - First report, 178, 205-6
 - Second report tabled in Commons Oct.29/74
 - Third report, 239-40, 264
 - Fourth report, 327-8, 338
 - Fifth report, 1100, 1133-4
 - Sixth report, 1479, 1487
 - Seventh report, 1638
 - Eighth report, 2045
 - Ninth report, 2307-08, 2333
 - Translation of criteria of committee, 264
 - Travel arrangements for committee outside of Canada, authority for, 1479, 1497
- Saint John, N.B., increase in bus fare, 1816
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 825-6
 - Penalty clause, 825-6
- Salaries (Lieutenant Governors) bill C-24, 1093, 1094
 - Jurisdiction and status of lieutenant governors, 1093
 - Queen of Canada, 1093
- Secrecy in government, discussion on TV program re committee involved in, 1349
- Senate and House of Commons (Supplementary Retirement Benefits) bill C-81, 2195-6
- Senate business, 2122
- Senate reform, 52-54
 - Initiation of bills, 52
 - Orders in Council and other legislation, 52-53
 - Representation from Yukon and Northwest Territories, 53
 - Suspensive veto, 54
 - Term of appointment, 54

Forsey, Hon. Eugene A. - Concluded

- South Africa-Zambia relations, 229
- Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, 1710
- Televising of committee proceedings, 511
- Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, 1830-2
- Translation of criteria of Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 264
- Transportation
 - British North America Act as it pertains to transportation, 2217-21
 - British Columbia terms re transportation service, 2218
 - Chignecto Ship Canal, 2219
 - Ferry employees, right to strike, 2218-19
 - Government policy, lack of statement re, 2218
 - Intercolonial railway, 2217-18
 - British Columbia, 2218
 - Defence aspects, 2218, 2220-1
 - New Brunswick, 2217-18
- Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1690-1, 1698, 1699, 1700, 1702, 1705, 1706
 - Persons 65 yrs. and over, 1690-1, 1698
 - Reduction in payments, regressive aspect of, 1691
 - Regional breakdown of savings due to legislation, 1700
- Victoria Memorial Museum, rumoured change of name, 1035, 1165
- West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 728

Fort-Falls Bridge Authority

- Agreement between US and Canada for reconstruction of bridge, 851-2
- Date of construction commencement, 851
- Financing and approach landings, 856
- Ownership of bridge, 856, 857
- Tourist statistics, 855-6
- Speakers: Senators
 - Everett, Douglas D., 897
 - Haig, J. Campbell, 855-6
 - Molgat, Gildas L., 851-2, 867

Fort-Falls Bridge Authority bill C-367. 1r, 781; 2r, 855-6; 3r, 867; r.a., 899

Fournier, Hon. Edgar E.

- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2409-10
 - Alternative to death by hanging, 2410
 - Prison reform, 2410

Fournier, Hon. Michel

- New Brunswick, economic conditions, 1817-20
 - Agriculture, 1818
 - Fisheries, 1818
 - Two hundred mile limit, 1818
 - Forestry, 1818-19
 - Infrastructural works, government expenditures on, 1818
 - Mining, 1819
 - Nuclear power plant, change of site, 1817
 - Primary industry and natural resources, utilization needed, 1818

Fournier, Hon. Michel - Concluded

New Brunswick - Concluded

Shipping, 1820

Tourism, 1819

Transportation, 1819

Unemployment, 1820

Fournier, Hon. Sarto

Canadian Armed Forces casualties in defence of France in World War I and World War II, 1417

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 589-90

Miscarriage of justice, 589-90

Responsibility of judge and jury, 589

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Berthier) bill C-365, 602-03

Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1741

Gouin, Hon. L. M., resignation from the Senate, 2057

Sports, message of congratulations to Montreal Canadiens on winning the Stanley Cup, 2129

Televising of committee proceedings, 509-10

United Nations resolution naming Israel as racist nation, condemnation of, 1398

France

Canada-France income tax convention, 1792, 1793-8

Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1738-41, 1849-52, 2059

Auto pact, 1849

Communist world contacts, 1850

Economic blocs, development throughout world, 1850

Economic Council of Canada, report and recommendations, 1738, 1740, 1741, 1850, 1851

GATT, 1739, 1740, 1852

Imports, competition to Canadian products, 1850

International credit and money convertibility, 1740

Keynes' theories, 1738

Multi-national corporations, 1850

Secondary industries, 1738-41, 1851-2

Employment, 1740

Import controls, 1739, 1850

Quebec, 1739

Role in economic survival of provinces, 1738-9

Speakers: Senators

Connolly, John J., 1852

Desruisseaux, Paul, 1738-41, 1851

Fournier, Sarto, 1741

Molgat, Gildas L., 1849-52

van Roggen, George C., 1741

Gelinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe (Resigned Dec. 10/75)

Tributes, 1713-14

Giguere, Hon. Louis de G.

Aircraft Registry bill S-5, 172-3

Aircraft Convention, International Recognition of Rights in, 173

Notice of interest, 173

Seizure of aircraft, 173

Signatories to convention, 173

Giguere, Hon. Louis de G. - Concluded

- Canadian Press report of statements made by Leader of the Government re matter concerning Senator Giguere, 1395-7
- Conflict of interest, allegations re Sky Shops Export Ltd., 1348

Godfrey, Hon. John M.

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 58-59
- Canada-Russia hockey series, 58-59; question of privilege re press report of speech, 98
- Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1293-4
 - Withdrawal from debate because of conflict of interest, 1294
 - Question of privilege re, 1315-16
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 575
- Criminal Law Amendment bill C-71, 1897
 - Right of judge to infer from peace officer's evidence that disturbance has occurred, 1897
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee
 - Availability to press of draft report, 1755
- Federal Business Development Bank bill C-14, 366-71
 - Counselling assistance to small enterprises, 370
 - Federated Council of Sales Finance Companies, 369
 - Industrial Development Bank, 369-70
 - Authorized capital, 370
 - Background, 369
 - Lending Policies, 369-70
 - Loans statistics, 369
 - Loss ratio, 369
 - Information service, 370-1
 - RoyNat, 369
- Immigration bill S-12, 167
- Immigration Policy Committee, third and final report, 1375, 1376-94
- Money bills, Senate authority to amend, 1656
- Public servants in $60,000 bracket, 889
- Regulations re attendance of senators, 1918-19
 - Attendance records, 1918-19
 - Official business, specifying of, 1918
- Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1208
- Rules of the Senate
 - Suspension of rule 95 re private bills, 1208
- Senate and House of Commons Act, 948-54
 - Regulations re attendance of senators, motion that Senate make regulations re attendance and deductions for absence, 948-51; m in amdt (Senator Cook) that subject matter be ref to Internal Economy, Budgets, and Administration Committee, 951-4; agreed, 954
 - Committee work of Senate, 950
 - Deductions for absence and permissible days of absence, 949-50
 - Remuneration, 949
 - Senate reform, 950-1
 - Senatorship, public and press reaction to, 949
 - Sittings of Senate and Commons, 948-9
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 870-5
 - Attendance in Parliament, Senate recording of and Commons statements re, 874
 - Comments of Senator Lapointe (1973), 871
 - Comments of Senator O'Leary (1942), 870-1
 - Committee work of Senate, 874-5
 - Conflict of interest aspect of bill, 870
 - Hours of work on Senate sitting days, 872-3

Godfrey, Hon. John M. - Concluded

- Senate and House of Commons bill C-44 - Concluded
 - Leave of absence and deductions for absence, 872, 874, 875
 - Senatorship, public and press reaction to, 870-1
 - Sittings of Senate and Commons and attendance statistics, 871-2
- Televising of committee proceedings, 547

Goldenberg, Hon. H. Carl

- Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1564
- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1330
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2092, 2349, 2350
- Conflict of interest, 2278, 2303-06
 - Code of conduct, 2306
 - Financial interests, 2305
 - Government contracts, 2304-05
 - Broadcasting licences, 2305
 - Participation in government contracts, 2304-05
 - Prohibited contracts, 2304
 - Incompatible offices, 2303-04
 - Elected public office, 2304
 - Prohibited provincial and federal offices, 2303-04
 - Sanctions and administration, 2305-06
 - Committee on Privileges, 2305-06
 - Public resource, 2305
- Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms) bill S-14, question as to progress in committee stage, 480
- Criminal law
 - Interim report of committee, 2163-6
 - Dangerous offenders, 2165
 - Firearms and other offensive weapons, 2164
 - Intercepted communication, 2164-5
 - Law Reform Commission report, excerpt from, 2164
 - National Parole Board's powers, 2166
 - Parole, 2165-6
 - Provincial parole boards, 2165
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No.2) C-84, 2448-9
 - Capital Punishment*, by Professor of Jurisprudence of Yale University, 2448
 - Deterrent aspect, 2448-9
 - Excerpt from speech of Ontario Ombudsman, 2448-9
 - Government responsibility, 2448
 - Organized crime, Montreal, 2448
 - UK Royal Commission on Capital punishment, 2448
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee
 - Sixth report tabled and printed as appendix, 1793, 1799-1812
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 969-71, 1025, 1066, 1079
 - Committee report with amdts, 969-70
 - Drugs for export purposes, 1066
 - Give, trafficking, definition of, 1025
 - Misleading press reporting of aim of bill, 970
 - Onus of proof of offence, 969
 - Parole or unconditional release, 969, 970
- Judges bill C-47, 1066

Goldenberg, Hon. H. Carl - Concluded

Justice, administration of, allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1858

Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee

Expenses, 213

Meeting held in camera, 1770

Reports

Conflict of interest, 2278, 2303-06

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, rep with amds, 1867-8, 1884-6, 1893-1900

Criminal law, interim report on bill C-83, 2119-20, 2127-9

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill C-370, rep without amdt, 555

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, rep with amds, 969-71, 983, 1007-11, 1023-33, 1036-8, 1046-9

Judges bill C-47, rep without amdt, 1066

Law Reform Commission bill C-43, rep without amdt, 759

Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, rep without amdt, 1244

Parole System in Canada, report tabled, 10

Representation bill C-36, rep without amdt, 443

Statute Revision bill S-3, rep without amdt, 243

Supreme Court bill S-2, rep without amdt, 243

Territorial Lands bill S-20, rep with amdt, 579

Televising of committee proceedings, 509, 510, 513

Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1431

Rules of the Senate, 1359

West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 80

Termination date of agreement, 80

Gouin, Hon. Leon Mercier (Resignation Mar. 18/76)

Tributes, 2057

Government annuities improvement

Auditor General's appt. as auditor, 1629

Background and statistics of annuities, 1628, 1629-30

Retroactive date, 1641

Return rate increase, 1628-30, 1640, 1641

Status of sales contracts, 1640

Speakers: Senators

Barrow, A. Irvine, 1628-9, 1630

Croll, David A., 1629-30

Flynn, Jacques, 1641

Forsey, Eugene A., 1641

Greene, John J., 1630

Grosart, Allister, 1630, 1640-1

Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75. 1r, 1618; 2r, 1628-30, 1640-1; ref to com, 1641; rep without amdt, 1649; 3r, 1706; r.a., 1712

Government expenditures, 16, 23-24, 26, 27-28, 182-3, 199-200, 349-51, 519

Bank of Canada building, 1324

Bilingualism program, 1352

Control procedures, 350

Fiscal and monetary policies of government, 23-24

Manpower requirements, 350, 1352

Mirabel Airport, 1325

Government expenditures - Concluded

- Olympic entertainment, 1352
- Pickering Airport, 1325
- St. Lawrence Islands National Park, 1549-50, 1588
- Salaries of top-level officials, 1352
- Sculptures, 1324-5
- Studies of toilet facilities, offices, industrial plants, etc., 1352
- Translation services, 1352
- See* Estimates

Government Expenditures Restraint bill, questions re date of introduction in Senate, 2130, 2159, 2264

Governor General

Deputy

- Beetz, Hon. Jean, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada
 - Royal assent, 1791-2, 2002, 2207
- de Grandpre, Hon. Louis-Philippe, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada
 - Royal assent, 2152
- Dickson, Hon. R. G. B., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada
 - Royal assent, 731, 899
- Judson, Hon. Wilfred, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada
 - Royal assent, 1281
- Laskin, Rt. Hon. Bora, P.C., His Excellency the Administrator of the Government of Canada
 - Opening of Parliament, Speech from the Throne, 2-7
 - Prorogation of Parliament, Speech from the Throne, 2453
 - Royal assent, 95, 220, 467, 581, 1095-6, 1476, 2096
- Martland, Hon. Ronald, Deputy Administrator of the Government of Canada
 - Opening of Parliament, 1-2
- Spence, Hon. Wishart F., Deputy Administrator of the Government of Canada
 - Royal assent, 313-14, 656, 740, 758, 832, 1617, 1712, 2301
- Inaccuracies in pamphlet issued by Information Canada regarding Governors General in Canada, 1757, 2003
- Royal assent by His Excellency the Governor General Rt. Hon. Jules Leger, 397, 2450

Graham, Hon. B. Alasdair

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 174-7
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 174-5
- Housing, 176
- Inflation, 175-6
 - Milk subsidy, 175-6
- Nova Scotia
 - Cape Breton coal mines, operating losses, 176; DEVCO, 176
 - Destruction of forests and residential property by fire, 2178
 - Springhill fire disaster, possibility of federal aid, 1241-2
 - Steel industry, Cansteel study of Atlantic rim, 176
 - Storm damage (1974), 135

Grain

- Grain prices, 170-1, 266
- Malting barley, 266
- Prairie grain advance payments, 583, 595-601, 614-15, 621-2, 684, 709, 731
- Subsidies on grain shipped to Eastern Canadian ports for export, 2159, 2201-02, 2211, 2376-7
- Two-price wheat, 900, 928-30, 942-4, 1088, 1090, 1095
- West Coast grain handling operations, 76-93, 95
- West Coast ports operations, 723-30, 731

Green Papers

- Immigration Policy, 584
- Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest, 373, 573-4, 580, 774, 779-81

Greene, Hon. John J., P.C.

- Agricultural Stabilization bill C-50, 1190-2, 1212
 - Commodities covered by act, 1191
 - Cost of production formula, 1191
 - Flexibility as to type of support program required, 1191
 - Grain subsidies, 1191
 - Instability of farm prices, 1190
 - Provincial and/or producer participation in program, 1191
 - Regional stabilization plans, 1191
 - Support price of 90% over 5 years, 1191
- Anti-Inflation bill (No.1) C-73, 1507, 1508, 1532, 1535
 - Federal-provincial cooperation in application of guidelines, 1507, 1508
 - Toronto high school teachers' wage settlement, 1507
 - Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, powers of, 1535
 - Wage and price controls vs wage and price freeze, 1532
- Anti-Inflation bill (No.2) C-89, 2137
 - Labour representation in Parliament, 2137
- Austin, Hon. Jacob, introduced in the Senate, 1354
- British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 133
- Broadcasting, references to Newfoundland by CTV, question of privilege, 2215-16
- Canada-US relations
 - Television broadcasts, 'electronic theft' of commercial advertising, 1626
- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1326
- CTV news report on death of Viateur Ethier and misrepresentation as member of Conservative Party, 1241
- Capital punishment, partial abolition and expiration of trial period, 1656, 1716
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2092, 2093, 2311
 - Morgan et al vs Attorney General for PEI*, 2311
- Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1296
- Crime and violence, proposed special Senate committee, 922
- Energy
 - Offshore oil and gas resources in Atlantic provinces, 2070, 2141-2
 - Statement of Policy re oil and gas, 2182
- Feeds bill S-10, 1635
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control, and Criminal Code bill S-19, 454, 1027
 - Alcoholism, 454
- Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, 1630
- Immigration bill S-12, 165
- Income Tax bill (No.3) C-58, 2325-6
 - Excerpts from Milton's Aeropagitica and Mill's Liberty, 2325
 - Freedom of speech and of publication, 2325
 - O'Leary Commission, 2326
 - 'Substantially the same', definition of, 2314
- Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., resignation from Senate, 212
- National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) bill S-23, 893-6
 - Communication between public and members of Parliament, question of, 895-6
 - Doctrine of atonement, 894
 - Excerpt from autobiography of Nathan Leopold, 895

Greene, Hon. John J., P.C. - Concluded

National Defence and Criminal Code bill S-23 - Concluded

Murder of Chicago boy, 894-5, 896

Opinions of prominent lawyers, 894

Quality of mercy, 894

Rehabilitation, 895

Royal prerogative of mercy, 894

National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto-Canada, 2162

Pan American Games, congratulations to Canadian team members, 1318

Political Parties, possible RCMP investigation, 2063

Privileges and Immunities of senators, proposed special committee, 1435

Hiring of counsel and staff, 1435

St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 822-3

Penalty clause, 823

Salaries (Lieutenant Governors) bill C-24, 1095

Saskatchewan, safety of Gardiner Dam, 2179, 2377

Senate

Television and radio coverage of Senate committee proceedings, 1365-6, 2099

Appointive nature of senators' term of office, 1366

Committees, 1366

Press reporting of Senate proceedings, 1365

Public reaction to appearance of senators on television, 1365

Relevance of Senate to constitutional procedure, 1365

Right of public to view proceedings, 1365

Senate and House of Commons Act

Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, point of order on motion re, 952, 954

Motion of privilege re omission of statement and Speaker's ruling from Minutes of Proceedings, 961

Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 874

Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2204

Senate role, 894

Sports, message of congratulations to Montreal Canadiens on winning of the Stanley Cup, 2129

Transportation

BNA Act provisions relating to transportation, 2219

United Nations Assembly resolution on Zionism, 1411, 1417

Grey Cup Game, Vancouver, 300-01

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate

Abortions, operation of Committee on Abortion Law, 1624-5, 1639

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 21-26

Adjournment from afternoon sitting to evening sitting, 1108-09, 1111-12

Aeronautics bill S-34, 2130-1

Conventions, international, 2130-1

Costs of security measures, apportioning of, 2131

Enforcement of regulations by Canada, 2130

Inadequacy of security checks, 2131

Jurisdiction over aircraft landing in Canada, 2130

Aircraft Registry bill S-5, 174

Aird, Hon. John B., resignation from the Senate, 335-6

Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1508, 1538-42, 1578

Anticipated contravention of guidelines, 1540

Audit and examination of businesses, 1540

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued*Anti-Inflation bill C-73 - Concluded*

- Bill of Rights vs powers of Administrator, 1540-2
- Constitutionality of legislation, question of, 1508
- Controls vs guidelines, 1539-40, 1542
- Enforcement of guidelines, 1539-40, 1542
 - Federal-provincial cooperation, 1542
- Judicial review of appeal, 1541-2, 1563-4
- Objections to bill from business, labour groups and teachers, 1538-9
- Penalties and appeals, 1540
- Prescription of and publication of guidelines, 1539
- Termination clause, constitutionality of, 1578
- Appropriation bill No. 3, 1974 C-31, 199-202, 204, 205
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 385-90, 391, 392, 412, 413, 414-15
- Appropriation bill No. 5, 1974 C-45, 444-5
- Appropriation bill No. 1, 1975 C-54, 705-07
- Appropriation bill No. 3, 1975 C-64, 1098
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1975 C-79, 1606-09
- Appropriation bill No. 1, 1976 C-90, 1980, 1981, 1982-4
- Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91, 1987-8, 1989, 1990, 1991
- Appropriation bill No. 3, 1976 C-93, 2286-8
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1976 C-94, 2268, 2269
- Army Benevolent Fund bill C-17, 304
- Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee
 - Engagement of counsel and technical, clerical and other personnel, 1427
- Bills, printing and distribution of, 61
- Bills received in Senate without original explanatory notes, 622
- Bourque, Hon. Romuald, the late, 11
- British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 133-4
 - Advertising of bill, 133
- British North America Acts 1867 to 1975 bill C-3, 1060-1
 - Appt. of senators for NWT and Yukon, 1061
 - Commons representation, 1060
 - Ombudsman for territories, 1060
 - Property qualification, 1060
 - Senate reform, 1061
- Broadcasting, appearance of Gerda Munsinger on CBC television program, 1619
- Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank bill S-24, 958-61
 - Assets, statistics for Canadian domestic banks, 958-60
 - Authorized capital and shares, 960
 - Branch offices, 959
 - Comparative United States and Canadian statistics relating to banking offices, 960
 - Name of bank, possible conflict re, 960
 - Risk financing, 960
 - Specialty operations, 960
- Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission bill C-5, 841-3
 - Association of Communications Regulatory Bodies, 843
 - Cable television, jurisdiction of, 842
 - Communications: Some Federal Proposals*, 842-3
 - Provincial consultations, 841
- Canadian Sovereignty Symbol bill C-373, 687
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2311-12, 2313, 2324, 2349
 - Powers of Lieutenant Governor in Council, 2313
 - Precedents in transfer of federal jurisdiction, 2312
 - Prince Edward Island Potato Marketing Board vs H. B. Willis Inc.*, 2324

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

Clerk's Scroll, 1667, 1683, 1684, 1685

Committee meetings

During Senate sittings, 827-8, 1856-7

Notices of meetings of subcommittees and steering committees, 2192

Scheduling of, 828, 829, 1091

Committee report on regulations re attendance of senators, rule re consideration of, 1782

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Delhi conference, 1644-6

India, 1645-6

Canada's aid to, 1645

Communications problem, 1645

Government, 1645

Jaipur City twinned with Calgary, 1645-6

Nuclear explosion in Rajasthan from reactor supplied by Canada, 1645

Vice-President, Hon. James Jerome, 1646

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, 1898, 1899

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2406, 2445-7

Deterrent aspect, 2446

Gallup poll, 2446

Government responsibility, 2446-7

Parolees, potential for further crime, 2444

Permissive society, 2447

Policemen's reaction to legislation, 2446

Question of privilege (Hon. Mr. Molson), 2406

Rehabilitation, 2446-7

Guelph Correctional Centre, study by Dr. Carlson, 2447

Vengeance vs justice, 2447

Criminal law, subject matter of Bill C-83 ref to com, question re, 1853

Croll, Hon. David A., role in government annuities legislation, 1630

Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 810-13, 909-11

Appeal against board ruling, 811-12

Controls system, 811

Cultural heritage vs national identity, 810-11

Determination of values, 812

Fair cash offer, 812

Permits, 811, 812

Review Board, 813, 910

Rights of individuals, 812

UNESCO convention, 813

Customs Tariff bill (No. 2) C-39, 486-9, 514-16

Anti-inflationary effects of tariff decreases, 514

Building supplies, 489

Handicrafts from developing countries, 488, 515

Housing materials, 515

Ministerial powers, 488

Preferential rates for developing countries, 515

Tourist exemptions, 488

UNESCO, 487-8, 515

Agreement for Facilitating the International Circulation of Visual and Auditory Materials of an Educational Scientific and Cultural Character, 487

Exclusion of Israel from European group, 488

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Customs Tariff bill (No. 3) C-67, 1214-15
 - Aircraft and aircraft engines, 1214
 - Gifts, 1214
 - Petroleum products, 1214
 - Polymer plates for letterpress printing, 1214
 - Religious publications, 1214
 - Tariff and excise revenues, 1214
- Distribution of document in Senate chamber, 644
- Estimates
 - Assurance that discussion on estimates does not terminate with passage of bill, question of, 193, 203, 204, 205
 - Budgetary votes and budgetary statutory items, 200
 - Canadair, government loan to, 706
 - Canadian Broadcasting Corp., 201, 1056
 - Canadian International Development Agency, 200, 1055
 - Cape Breton Development Corp., 201
 - Cheque cashing before Mar. 31, 1989, 1990
 - Crown corporations, operating deficits, 1056
 - Deferment of capital projects, 1982-3
 - Discussion on subject matter of appropriation bills remaining on Order Paper, 1783, 1784-5
 - Dollar items, 706, 1607, 1967-70, 1980, 1982-3, 1987-8
 - Lack of authority for transfers, 1607
 - Statistics (1967-70), 1967-70, 1980, 1982-3, 1987-8
 - Energy, Mines and Resources, 201-02, 1608
 - Energy policy for Canada, 2189
 - Form of supplementary estimates, lack of explanatory breakdown of expenditures, 706
 - Glassco Commission report on Financial Management and Control Study, 1967, 1982
 - Government expenditures vs GNP, 199-200, 705-06, 1054, 1085, 1607, 2187-8, 2287
 - Financial Times* article re, 2287
 - Government restraints, question of, 1054
 - Health and Welfare and other depts., 1055
 - Inclusion of main and supplementary estimates in one bill, 190-1
 - Indian and Northern Affairs, 200-01
 - Industry, Trade and Commerce, 202
 - Inflation, 2188
 - Excerpt from publication of Canadian Economic Policy Committee, 1056
 - Information Canada, 201
 - Inter-Provincial Pipe Line Ltd., 706-07
 - Loan item in supplementary estimates, question of precedent, 2255-6
 - Loto Canada, 2256-8; President, 2257
 - Medicare and hospital insurance, 1608
 - Oil equalization payments, 2188
 - Oil refiners, compensation to, 445, 1055, 1608-09
 - Old age security fund, 705, 1055-6
 - Globe and Mail* report, 705
 - Olympic Games, government policy and statement re, 2256
 - Percentage increase of supplementary estimates in relation to main estimates, 1967, 1983-4
 - Provincial government expenditures, 2189, 2190, 2288
 - Public debt, 1607-08
 - Regulations by order in council, 2257
 - Transfer items, 2190; Treasury Board statement re, 2287

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued*Estimates - Concluded*

- Unemployment insurance fund, 2188, 2190; unemployment, 2187-8
- UNESCO, 380
- Wheat, two-price system, 202
- Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/76, 1054-7, 1085
 - Supplementary (B), 1966-70
- Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/77, 2187-90
- European Community, Canada's claim for compensation re loss of preferential access of Canadian commodities to British market, 579-80, 661-2, 671
- European Parliament, 319-20, 329-30
 - Canada-US relations, 319-20, 329
 - Finished products, export of, 319, 320, 330
 - GATT, 319, 320, 329
 - Multinational corporations, 330
- Excise Tax bill C-66, 1271-3
 - Conservation, question of, 1273
 - Deficit resulting from single oil price policy, 1271, 1273
 - Exemptions, 1272
 - Federal-provincial agreement, 1272
 - Gasoline for personal use, 1272-3
 - Prices of gas and oil, 1273
 - Subsidy paid by low-income persons, 1272
 - Tax administration costs, 1272
- Export Development bill C-9, 462-4
 - Authorized capital, 462
 - Board of directors, 464
 - Interest rate, Canadian firms vs foreign firms, 463
 - Loans to countries outside OPEC, 463
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 882-4, 886, 887, 891-2
 - Point of order re proposed amendment to committee report, 882-3
 - Rejection by Commons of amdt similar to Senate proposed amdt, 892
- Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-57, 1180-4
 - Basic and additional revenues, 1183-4
 - Conditional and unconditional payments, 1182
 - Government commitment re oil and gas revenues for development and exploration, 1181
 - Medicare and hospital insurance, 1182-3
 - Protests re government phasing-out of assistance, 1183
 - Provincial equalization payments per capita, 1182
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 22
- Fiscal and monetary policies of government, 23-24
- Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, 1630, 1640-1
 - Retroactive date, 1641
 - Return rate increase, 1640, 1641
 - Status of sales contracts, 1640
- Government expenditures, 26
- Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 1962-3
- Immigration bill S-12, 197, 232, 233
 - Deportation statistics, 232, 233

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Immigration policy, unauthorized press publication of confidential draft report of Special Joint Committee, 1286
- Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 613, 634-7, 653-4, 655
 - Economic conditions, 634-5
 - Foreign accrual property income, 635
 - Petroleum and mineral resources, 635
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1956, 1958, 2395, 2396, 2398-2400
- Income Tax Conventions bill S-32, 1793-6
 - Countries with which Canada has concluded conventions, 1794
 - Federal-provincial jurisdiction, 1795-6
 - Inconsistencies between convention and any other law, 1795
 - Prohibition against discrimination, 1794
 - Taxpayer position in countries without conventions, 1794
 - Withholding tax on dividends, interest payments, royalties, 1794
 - Artistic works, 1794
- Industrial unrest, 24
- Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, 304-06, 398-9
 - Interdepartmental arrangement re access to information, 398-9
- Inflation, 23-24
- International Air Transport Association bill S-18, 302, 303
- Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee
 - Expenses, special, 525-6
 - Meetings during Senate sittings, 543
 - Televising of committee proceedings, 512, 552-3
- Loto Canada, 2111, 2163, 2256-8, 2268, 2269
- Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, 1234-5
- Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., resignation from the Senate, 209-10
- Medical Care bill C-68, 2359
- Minister invited to explain bill in Senate chamber, question of, 198
- Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 151
 - Regulations, lack of information on, 151
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 744-7, 748, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757
 - Building materials tax, 745-6
 - Government costs, 746
 - Home ownership of older homes, 745
 - Housing starts, decrease in, 744-5
 - Limited dividend program, 746
 - Mortgage insurance fund, 753, 755
 - Non-profit and cooperative housing, 745
 - Registered home owner savings plan, 746
 - Rental housing, 746
- National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1667, 1671-2, 1677, 1678, 1679-80, 1681
 - Costs of program, 1677
 - Density restrictions, 1672
 - Expenditures on interest reduction grants (1976), 1679
 - Federal funding of public housing, statistics (1970-74), 1672
 - Housing target, 1671
 - Inflationary effects of regulations, question of, 1672
 - Loan ceilings, 1671-2
 - Local limits, 1678
 - Low cost medium density housing, $1000 grants to municipalities, 1680
 - Rental accommodation, 1677

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - ContinuedNational Housing bill C-77 - Concluded

- Repayment conditions, 5-yr. clause, 1678
- Resales, 1672
- Servicing of land, 1679-80
- Special cases, 1671
- Standards, 1672
- Warranty from builder to owner, 1681

North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1493-4

- Interparliamentary Advisory Council and sub-committee, 1493
- Resolution of Internal Economy Committee to study expenses and sharing of costs of interparliamentary associations, 1494

Northland Bank bill C-1002, 1599

Northwest Territories Representation bill C-51, 622-3

- BNA Act, amdt re NWT representation, 622
- Chairman of commission for NWT, terms of appointment, 623
- Indians and Eskimos, voting franchise, 622
- Neo-colonialism in respect of Territories, 623

Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to India, 1869

Oil export tax, 1264, 1265-6

O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, the late, 2035-6

Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 963, 964

Passports

- Restrictions on special passports of MPs, article in Globe and Mail, 2262-3, 2362-3, 2443
- Use of diplomatic and special passports for travel in Namibia, 2363-4, 2443-4

Petro-Canada bill C-8, 1215-18

- Control by Governor in Council, 1218
- Crown corporations' assets, 1216
- 'Energy Policy for Canada - Phase I, Vol. I Analysis', 1216
- Equity and debt investment for Petro-Canada, 1216
- Excerpt from minister's statements re petroleum industry, 1215
- Foreign control, 1217
- Government policies detrimental to small companies, 1215, 1216
- Private sector achievements, 1215-16
- Revenues for exploration, 1217

Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 912-16

- Alberta and Saskatchewan oil production for national consumption, 914
- Consumer protection, 916
- Control of revenues to insure reinvestment for exploration and development, 914
- Federal-provincial relations and national unity in solving of problems, 915-16
- Federal-provincial temporary arrangements, controversy re, 913
- Frontier oil, 913
- Natural gas, price restraints and controls, 914
- Nuclear and other energy components, 914-15
- Political price fixing, 915
- Prices, 914
- Provincial royalties, 913
- Sarnia-Montreal pipeline, 915
- Use of petroleum products in various sectors, extent of, 913

Point of order re passage of appropriation bill, 387-8, 390

Privilege, question of, right to invoke a rule of the Senate, 198

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Continued

- Privileges and Immunities (International Organizations) bill S-25, 958
 - European Community, 958
 - Ottawa office, establishment of, 958
- Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill S-9, 128
- Public Service Employment, Staff Relations, Superannuation, Interpretation bill C-38, 465-6
 - Federal-provincial relations, Secretary to the Cabinet for, 466
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1664, 1665
- Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, functions and authority of, 515
- Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1206-09
- Rules of the Senate
 - Committee reports, reference back to com or Committee of the Whole for reconsideration, 882-3, 884
 - Debate on interrogation restricted to brief explanatory remarks, 1213
 - Forms and Proceedings, question re authority of rules, 882-3
 - Presentation of Committee report before review by senators, 1606
 - Quotations from speeches made in Commons, 1606-07
 - Reference of estimates to National Finance Com, 440-1
 - Senator speaking twice on same subject, 1513
 - Suspension of rule 95 re private bills, 1207, 1208-09, 1234-5
 - Two days' notice between 1r and 2r of bills, 1109
- Rules of the Senate, report of Standing Committee on Rules and Orders, 1425, 1462-4
 - Adjournment of debates for prolonged periods, 1464
 - Oral questions, 1462-3
 - Powers and duties of committees, 1424
 - Quotations from speeches made in Commons, 1463
 - Terms of reference of committees, 1463, 1464
 - Procedure or practice inconsistent with practices and usages of Senate, 1463
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 821-2
 - Government policy in future conciliation matters, 822
 - Inability of society to keep law and order, 822
 - Precedents of emergency legislation, 821
- St. Patrick's Day, 1902
- Science policy, 1222-4
 - Committee work in creating awareness of science futures, 1223, 1224
 - Tribute to chairman, 1224
 - Expenditures of committee, 1223-4
 - Futures branch of US Congressional Library, 1225
 - Managing the Future - A Conference on Anticipatory Institutions*, 1223
 - Predictive and normative approach in futures, 1224
 - US state commissions on futures, 1225
- Senate
 - Business, 125, 152, 153, 380-1, 482, 484, 1090, 1091, 1108-09, 1111-12, 1524, 1547, 1548, 1682, 1685-6, 1711, 1712, 1877, 1878-9, 1915, 2044, 2120-1, 2336
 - Monday evening sittings, question of, 1877, 1878-9
 - Reform, article in Globe and Mail quoting statements of Prime Minister, questions re, 32, 47
 - Role, 1578
 - Referral of bill to committee, Senate rule re, 1644
- Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2205-06
- Tax treaties or conventions with other countries, 855, 867, 925, 942
- Transportation, 25-26
- Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, 1088-9, 1090

Grosart, Hon. Allister, Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Senate - Concluded

- Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1691-3, 1697, 1698, 1699, 1700, 1701, 1702, 1703, 1704, 1705
 - Appeal procedure, 1704
 - Burden of amdts on underprivileged and older persons, 1692
 - Claimants outside Canada, 1703
 - Deficit of UI fund, 1691
 - Disentitlement, 1699
 - Persons 65 yrs. and over, 1697, 1698, 1701
 - Question of subject matter of UI problems being ref to royal commission, 1693
 - Recovery of advance payments, 1703
 - Regressive aspect of legislation, 1692
 - Sick benefits, 1700, 1702
 - Training or instruction for new employment, 1702
- United Grain Growers Limited bill S-33, 1925
- United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention, status of Palestinian Liberation Organization as participants, 1238, 1243
 - Canada's contribution to UNESCO, 1243
 - UNESCO, withdrawal of grants and exclusion of Israel from European Zone, 1243
 - Objectors to decision, 1243
- West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 85-89
 - Conciliation commissioners, Globe and Mail item re, 88
 - Costs of strike action, 87
 - Government intervention and inadequacies in dispute, 86-87
- Work Ethic in Canada, 518

Guidelines for Motions for the Production of Papers, tabled in Commons Dec. 19/74, ref to Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 467

Gun control

- Control of weapons and firearms, 193, 293-5

Habitat

- United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 1959-64, 2278-9

Haig, Hon. J. Campbell

- Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission bill C-5, 988
- Committee meetings, conflict in scheduling of, 828
- Fort-Falls Bridge Authority bill C-367, 855-6
 - Boise Cascade, ownership of bridge, 855
 - Financing and approach landings, 856
 - Tourist statistics, 855-6
- Honey Bear Brewing Corporation Limited, refund of fees on proposed bill, 1782
- Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 149-51
 - National safety trade marks, 150
 - Regulations, lack of information on, 151
- Transport and Communications, Standing Senate Committee
 - Report
 - Aeronautics bill S-34, rep without amdt, 2141

Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation

- Background of Commission formed after Halifax explosion (1917), 1717-18, 1721-2
- Blind persons, rehabilitation, 1722

Halifax Relief Commission Pension - Concluded

Pensions and allowances paid to widows and disabled persons, 1718, 1722

Inequalities of, 1722

Transfer of responsibilities and assets to Canadian Pension Commission and other organizations, 1718, 1722

Speakers: Senators

Norrie, Margaret, 1717-18

Smith, George I., 1721-3

Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation bill C-78. 1r, 1714; 2r, 1717-18, 1721-3; 3r, 1730; r.a., 1792

Hayden, Hon. Salter A.

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1573

Banking, Trade and Commerce, Standing Senate Committee

Bankruptcy and insolvency, com authorized to examine and report on subject matter of bill C-60, 911

Competition policy in Canada and the Combines Investigation Act, com authorized to examine and report on matters relating to, 109-10

Engagement of counsel and technical, clerical and other personnel, 1427

Expenses, 160

Meetings during Senate sittings, 1006, 1034

Reports

Alliance Security and Investigation, Ltd. bill S-26, rep without amdt, 1074

Anti-Inflation bill (No.1) C-73, rep without amdt but with observation re termination clause, 1573

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, rep without amdt, 2141

Bankruptcy and insolvency, rep on subject matter of Bill C-60, 1596-7, see appendix to Debates of Dec. 11/75

Canada Business Corporations bill C-29, rep with amdts, 666-71, 685

Canadian textile problems, 2055-6

Combines Investigation bill C-2, rep without amdt but with observations, 1571, 1589-95

Continental Bank of Canada, bill S-30, rep with amdts, 1367-9, 1405-06; rep referred back to com, 1406; further rep of com, 1407-08

Customs bill S-4, rep without amdt, 213

Customs Tariff bill (No. 1) C-27, rep without amdt, 280

Customs Tariff bill (No. 2) C-39, rep without amdt, 499

Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company and Central & Nova Scotia Trust Company bill S-29, rep with amdts (French text only), 1355, 1373

Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, rep without amdt but with observations re unlicensed wholesalers, 570

Excise Tax bill C-66, rep without amdt, 1278

Explosives bill S-17, rep without amdt, 280

Federal Business Development Bank bill C-14, rep without amdt, 426

Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-57, rep without amdt, 1197

Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies bill S-7, rep without amdt, 160

Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, rep without amdt, 645

Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65, rep without amdt, 1454

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, rep with amdts, 2252-5, 2269-75, 2293-2301, 2313-15, 2325-30, 2337; ref back to com, 2337-8; further rep without amdt, 2389-98, 2401-05

Income Tax Conventions bill S-32, rep without amdt, 1867

Indian Oil and Gas bill C-15, rep without amdt, 402

Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, rep with amdts, 348-9, 368

National Commercial Bank of Canada bill S-24, rep with amdts, 1057, 1062-3

Hayden, Hon. Salter A. - Continued

Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee - Concluded

Reports - Concluded

Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, rep with amds, 840, 851

Olympic bill C-63, rep without amdt, 1211

Petro-Canada bill C-8, rep without amdt, 1244

Petroleum Administration bill C-32, rep with amds, 981-2, 1002

United Grain Growers Limited bill S-33, rep without amdt, 2003

Bankruptcy and insolvency, 1596-7, see also appendix to Debates of Dec. 11/75

Bankruptcy judge, 1597

Registrar's position, reinstatement of, 1596

Rights and priorities of secured creditors, 1596

Canadian Business Corporations bill C-29, 489-93, 498, 666-71

Administrative discretion, 494

Amalgamations, 492-3; Black & Decker case, 492-3

Amending of bylaws and submitting of proposals by shareholders, 491

Business corporations incorporated for objects other than provincial, 669

Complaints re mishandling of business, 492

Failure to file documents, penalty for, 669

Form of application for corporations, 491

Inspection of records and shareholders' lists, 669

Liability of directors, 669

Pipeline construction applications, amdt re definition of 'company', 670

Proposals for a New Business Corporations Law for Canada, report of task force, 490

Registration of corporations, 490

Reorganization of corporations, 669-70

Senate committee recommendations (1970), 490

Shares and dividends, 491, 492

Voting trust agreements, 492

Witnesses from government and private industry, 670

Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1571-3, 1589-95

Air transport, control and direction of, 1572, 1591-2

Amendments, effect of, 1589

Chartered accountants and other professions, 1591

Civil damages, 1594

Constitutionality of provisions of bill, 1593-4

Due diligence re certain offences, 1590

Exemption for affiliates, 1590

Farm Products Marketing cases and Breweries case, 1592

Franchises, 1593

Inability to obtain supplies of brand name product, 1594

Institution of proceedings on summary conviction, 1593

Interim injunction, 1594

Mergers and monopolies, 1589

Penalty provisions, 1572

Recommendations of com incorporated to amds to bill, 1588-90

Refusal to deal, 1594

Regulated trades, industries and professions, 1590-1

Right of appeal from orders of Commission, 1594

Sports, 1590

Winnipeg Commodity Exchange, 1592-3

Competition policy in Canada and the Combines Investigation Act, 663-6, 675-83, 1121-2, 1135

Canadian Breweries case, 664

Civil damages, 665

Constitutional aspects, 666

'Due diligence' clause, 664

Hayden, Hon. Salter A. - Continued

- Competition policy in Canada - Concluded
 - Energy Board, 670
 - Inability to obtain supplies to carry on business, 665
 - In Re The Farm Products Marketing Act*, 664
 - Interim injunction, 665-6
 - International Air Transport Association, 1122, 1135
 - Jurisdiction of Federal Court in criminal matters, 666
 - Lawyers fees, Ontario, 664
 - Reviewable transactions, 665, 666
 - Services included in combines legislation, 663-4
 - Sports, professional and amateur, 664-5
 - Summary convictions, 666
 - Toronto Daily Star* article re committee amtds, 664
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee, unauthorized release to press of draft report, 1756
- Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, 570, 572-3
 - Unlicensed wholesalers, 570, 572-3
- Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies bill S-7, 100-03
 - Assets of federally incorporated companies in Canada, 101
 - Borrowing limit, 100, 101-02
 - Subordinated debentures, 100, 102
- Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 606-14, 635, 638-40, 645-7, 654-5
 - Canada Savings Bonds bonus, 608
 - Committee consideration of bill, items discussed and witnesses interviewed, press and public ignorance of, 645-6, 654-5
 - Construction industry, 612-13
 - Corporate tax rate on manufacturing or processing income, 612
 - Foreign accrual property income, 611-12
 - Interest and dividends, 607-08
 - Pension deductions, 608
 - Personal exemption, 607
 - Petroleum and mining industries, 609-11, 613-14, 639-40
 - Domestic oil, 610
 - Earned depletion, 610
 - Provincial royalties, 609-10, 639-40
 - Royalties payable to freeholders, 609
 - Tax rate, 610
 - Write-off of exploration expenses, 610-11
 - Registered home ownership plan, 608-09
 - Registered retirement savings plan, 612
 - Roll-over provisions re amalgamated corporations, 612
 - Transfer of age exemption to spouse, 608
- Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65, 1417-22
 - Contributions to registered parties and candidates, 1421
 - Cooperatives, 1420
 - Interest and dividends credit for man and wife, 1419, 1422
 - Investment tax credit, 1421
 - Registered retirement savings plans, 1420
 - Resource allowance in respect of oil and gas wells or mineral resources, 1417-18
 - Sharing of $1.50 price increase in barrel of oil under modified system and including Alberta's royalty reduction, 1418-19, 1422
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1862-5, 1945-6, 2252-5, 2269-75, 2389-2400, 2401-05
 - Advertisements directed to Canadian broadcasts by a foreign broadcasting undertaking, 2252
 - Advertising space in non-Canadian periodicals, exception for tax purposes, 2252, 2270

Hayden, Hon. Salter A. - *Concluded*Income Tax bill C-58 - Concluded

- Broadcasting provisions re advertising in border stations, 2252, 2270, 2272
- Canada-US relations, 2254
- Canadian Radio and Television Commission, 1863
- Competitive options, 1862
- Discussions with Leader of the Government re amdts, 2274-5
- Effective date of provisions affecting periodicals, 2253, 2272
- Limitation re advertising expense on broadcasting undertaking, 1863-4
- Mass Media Committee report, excerpts from, 1862
- MD of Canada*, 2253, 2272
- Recommendations of committee, 2254
- Retroactivity of date of bill becoming law, 2272
- 'Substantially the same', interpretation of, 2252-3, 2271
- Time and Reader's Digest*, 1862-3, 1865, 2270-1
- Toronto broadcasting stations, prime time availabilities, 1864
- Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15, 348-9
- Tributes to Senator Hayden, Chairman of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 1316-17

Hays, Hon. Harry, P.C.

Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank bill S-24, 935-6, 973-4

- Authorized capital and shares, 935
- Branch banks, 936
- Head office, 935
- Name of bank, 974
- Pension funds of crown corporations, investment of, 973-4
- Provisional directors, background of, 936
- Specialties operations, 936
- Sponsor (Boyd, Stott & McDonald Limited), 936
- 'Wholesale bank', 936, 973
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 864-5, 884-5
 - Age limit, 864-5, 884-5
 - Full-time and part-time farmers, 884
 - Responsibility of consumers to encourage food production, 864
 - Transfer of farm from father to son, 884-5
- Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 620-1
 - Coal mining, 620, 621
 - Oil industry, 620-1
 - Leduc well, 620
 - Prices, breakdown of production costs, 620, 621
 - Turner Valley Field well, 621
- Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 861-3, 934-5
 - Cost compensation, 861
 - Crude oil, overseas prices, 862
 - Domestic oil, 862
 - Administration of interprovincial trade, 862
 - Exercise of federal power, 862
 - Federal-provincial agreements, 862
 - Licences for interprovincial transactions, 862
 - Penalties for default of provisions, 862
 - Price restraints, 862
 - Natural gas, equitable pricing regime in producing and consuming provinces, 861, 862
 - Petroleum export voluntary charge payable to National Energy Board, 861-2

Health and welfare

- Abortions, 120-1, 188, 837, 838
 - 'Priorities for government action', 121
- Canada Pension Plan, 242, 249-52, 277-9, 300, 307, 314
- Children in poverty, report by National Council of Welfare, 625-6
- Connaught Laboratories testing adjacent to proposed housing development, 586, 616, 732, 902
- Environmental contaminants, 1348
- Estimates for, 190
- Insulin, production of, 100, 110-11
- Labour, the working poor in Canada, 2019-23, 2154-8
- Proprietary or patent medicine, trade marks, 47, 126-8, 155-7, 240, 245
- Senate report on poverty—poverty line updated (1974), 626
- Social welfare, distribution of income, 2144-9
- Statute Law (veterans and civilian war pensions), 242, 267-70, 272, 282, 314

Health, Welfare and Science, Standing Senate Committee

- Crime and violence, subject matter ref to com, 1659-60
- Members, 96

Reports

- Canada Pension Plan bill C-22, rep without amdt, 300
- Crime and violence in contemporary Canadian society, 2242-3
- Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, rep with amdts, 848, 908-11
- Environmental Contaminants bill C-25, rep without amdt, 1437
- Government Annuities Improvement bill C-75, rep without amdt, 1649
- Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23, rep without amdt but with observations, 1369
- Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37, rep without amdt, 1088
- Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill S-9, rep with amdt, 240, 245
- Quarantine bill S-31, rep without amdt, 1874
- Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, rep without amdt, 1211-12
- Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Pensions) bill C-4, rep without amdt, 272

Heath, Hon. A. E. Haddon

See Bell, Hon. A. E. Haddon

Helsinki Declaration on European Security and Co-operation, 1293, 1466, 1471-5, 1757-61; motion that Senate support Canadian government's position re territorial status quo in Europe, 1814; agreed to, 1814

- Cooperation in field of economics, science, technology and environment, 1473
- Disputes, peace solutions for, 1757
- Equal rights and self-determination of peoples, 1472
- Exchange of observers, 1473
- Families, uniting of, 1758
- Humanitarian and other fields, 1473
- Human rights, 1757
- Improvement of working conditions for journalists, 1474
- Inviolability of frontiers, 1472
- Journalists, visa and travel difficulties, 1758
- London Economist* article re deficiencies in Declaration, 1474-5
- Matters related to giving effect to certain principles, 1473
- Mediterranean, 1757
- Military manoeuvres, 1757
- Newspapers featuring articles on Conference, 1757-60
- New York Times* article, 1757

Helsinki Declaration on European Security and Co-operation - Concluded

- Nobel Peace Prize winner, refusal of USSR to permit acceptance of award, 1760-1
 - Letter from Senator Forsey re, 1761
- Obligation to obey international law, 1757
- Peking Review* article on USSR disregard of agreements, 1760
- Prior notification of major military movements, 1473
- Process of detente, 1757
- Reunification of families, 1473-4
 - Protest on Parliament Hill against Rumanian government, 1473
- Security, 1757
- Sovereign equality, respect for right inherent in sovereignty, 1472
- Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, 1472-3
- Statements by leaders of various nations, 1758
- Threat or use of force, 1757
- Toronto Globe and Mail* article - The Brutal Reality of Brezhnev's Policy, 1759
- Tourism, youth meetings, education and culture exchanges, 1758
- Trade, 1757
- Travel for personal or professional reasons, 1474
- USSR, 1758-61
 - Invasion of other countries, 1759
 - Military power, 1761
 - Violation of treaties and agreements, 1758-61
- Warsaw Pact, phases of strategic plan, 1759-60
 - Disunity of the West, 1759-60
 - Global democratic peace, 1760
 - Period of peace co-existence, Khrushchev's policies of de-Stalinization, 1759
 - Social change, 1759-60
- Speakers: Senators
 - Forsey, Eugene A., 1293, 1466, 1471-5
 - Yuzyk, Paul, 1757-61

Hicks, Hon. Henry D.

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 111-16
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 557-8, 559
 - Compensation to victims of crime, 557
 - Disclosure of further evidence after conviction, 558
 - Respect for law, 557, 558
 - Royal prerogative, 558, 559
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No.2) C-84, 2413, 2436
 - Deterrent aspect, 2413
 - Law and order, respect for, 2413
 - Terrorists, 2413
 - Victims of murder, 2413
- Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 765-6
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 885
 - Age limit, 885
 - Scrutiny of applications, 885
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 111
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 366-8, 1017
 - Penalties for possession or trafficking of drugs, 367
 - Summary conviction, 367
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1161
 - Damaging side effects of chemical spraying, 1161
 - Federal responsibility, 1161

Hicks, Hon. Henry D. - Concluded

- Greetings from Hon. Paul Martin, High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, 658
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2337
- Inflation, 112-13
 - Bay of Fundy power potential, 112
 - Energy costs, 112-13
 - High cost of money, 112
 - National petroleum corporation to control prices and distribution, 112
 - Trans-Canada pipeline, 112
- Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 151-2
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 744, 754
- National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto-Canada, 2168-9
 - Gullibility of the poor in relation to lotteries, 2169
 - Merits of lotteries, question of, 2169
 - Method of authorization of, 2168
 - Regressive taxation in relation to, 2169
- Representation bill C-36, 438
- Rules of the Senate, 1425
- Science policy, 113-15
 - Defence Research Board, 114-15
 - Granting agencies, 113-15
 - Inter-Council Coordinating Committee, 115
 - National Research Council, 113-14
- Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2205

Hockey

- Russia-Canada series, 58-59; Press report of speech by Senator Godfrey, 98-99

Honey Bear Brewing Corporation Limited, refund of fees on proposed bill, 1782House of Commons

- Parliamentary representatives, executive and assistants, increase in appts., 435-6
- Salaries of members of Parliament, opposition to increase in, 436
- Senate and House of Commons, salaries and parliamentary secretaries, 847, 856-61, 868-80, 899
- Senate and House of Commons, supplementary retirement benefits, 2177, 2186-7, 2193-6, 2203-07

Housing

- Interest rates, 1313, 1314, 1327-8
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 742, 743-57, 758
- National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1667-81, 1712
- See National housing

Hugessen, Hon. A. K., the late (Deceased Mar. 30/76)

- Tributes, 2007

Iceland

- Parliamentarians from Iceland, visitors to Senate, 2184

Immigration

- Criminal law amendment (Crown liability, immigration, parole), 1714, 1730-3
- Gulf Islands, British Columbia, ministerial discretion permits, 2322
- Munsinger, Gerda, presence in Canada and appearance on CBC television program, 1007, 1013, 1034, 1073, 1239-40, 1256-7
- Security, 1813, 1820, 1829-30

Immigration (Bill S-12)

- Appeal against deportation order, 166
- Deportee returning without minister's consent, 164-5, 166-7, 216-17, 230-1
- Employment of immigrants for manual or menial work, 196, 284, 286
- Haitians, 215
- Illegal activities of immigrants, 217, 232
- Ministerial power of discretion re indictment or summary conviction, 214
- Statistics on immigration and deportations, 196, 230-1, 232-3

Speakers: Senators

- Asselin, Martial, 194-5, 214, 215
- Buckwold, Sidney L., 165-6
- Croll, David A., 165, 166, 195-7, 244-5
- Forsey, Eugene A., 197-8
- Godfrey, John M., 167
- Greene, John J., 165
- Grosart, Allister, 197, 232, 244
- Laird, Keith, 164-5, 166, 230-2, 233
- Langlois, Leopold, 166, 213-19
- Perrault, Raymond J., 166-7, 197, 198
- Thompson, Andrew E., 166
- Yuzyk, Paul, 230

Immigration bill S-12. 1r, 136; 2r, 164-7, 194-8, 213-19, 222-3, 230-3; ref to com, 233; rep without amdt, 239; 3r, 244-5; Commons concurrence, 366; r.a., 397

Immigration policy

- Alcoholics, chronic, 1386
- Canada's need for immigrants, 1377
- Contagious diseases, 1386
- Crimes of moral turpitude, 1386
- Demographic factors, 1377
- Departmental organization, 1393
- Development assistance and the 'brain drain', 1379
- Drug addicts, 1386
- Economic factors, 1377
- Entry and exit controls, 1386-7
- Federal-provincial cooperation, 1393-4
- Foreign students, 1391-2
- Homosexuals, 1386
- Independent immigrants, 1382-3
- Managing immigration flows, 1380-1
- Mental illness and epilepsy, 1386
- Non-bona fide immigrants or non-immigrants, 1386-7
- Non-discrimination, 1379-80
- Prejudices regarding immigrants, 1378
- Prohibited classes, 1385
- Prostitutes, 1386
- Public charges, 1386
- Refugees, 1385
- Retardation, 1385
- Selection criteria, sponsored relatives, 1381-2
- Services for immigrants, 1392-3
- Special inquiry, appeal and deportation procedures, 1388-9
- Temporary workers, 1389-91

Immigration Policy, Special Senate Committee

Members, Senate, 643

Message from Commons, 584

Message to Commons, 592

Reports

Recommendation to extend date of submission of committee report to Oct. 31/75, 1006, 1021

Recommendation to extend date of submission of committee report to Nov. 14/75, 1306

Third report, 1375, 1376-94

Terms of reference, 584, 592

Unauthorized press release of confidential draft report of committee, 1285-6

Income tax

Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee authorized to study legislation prior to receipt of bills, 280, 298-9

Christian Evangelical Centre of Canada, action of National Revenue Department re, 2183-4, 2354-6

Income tax (Bill C-49)

Canada Savings Bonds bonus, 608

Construction industry, 612-13

Corporate tax, 612, 638

Economic conditions, 627-8, 634-5

GNP, 628, 629

Government expenditures, 628; forecast (1975-76), 628

Inflation, 628

Unemployment, 628

Foreign accrual property income, 611-12, 635

Interest and dividends, 607-08

Oil and mining industries, 609-11, 613-14, 616-20, 629-30, 635, 637, 639-40

Alberta, 617, 618, 632

BNA Act provisions re provincial natural resources, 630, 632

Coal mining, 619-20

Leduc well, 620

South African Coal, Oil and Gas Corporation, annual report, 619

Earned depletion, 610

Great Canadian Oil Sands, 619

Prices and production costs, 617-18, 620, 621

Pricing of Crude Oil: Economic and Strategic Guidelines for International Energy Policy, by Taki Rifai, 618

Royalties, 609-10, 617, 629, 632, 636-40

Tax rate, 610, 617

Withdrawal of companies from Canada, 630, 637

Write-off of exploration expenses, 610-11

Pension deductions, 608

Personal exemption, 607, 638

Reduction, effect on federal treasury, 638

Registered home ownership plan, 608-09

Registered retirement savings plan, 612

Roll-over provisions re amalgamated corporations, 612

Statistics on taxpayers, 628-9

Transfer of age exemption to spouse, 608

Income tax (Bill C-49) - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Benidickson, W.M., 613, 614
 Buckwold, Sidney L., 613
 Flynn, Jacques, 627-30, 647-9
 Grosart, Allister, 613, 634-7
 Hayden, Salter A., 606-14, 635, 638-40, 645-7, 654-5
 Hays, Harry, 620-1
 Lamontagne, Maurice, 648, 649
 Langlois, Leopold, 637-8
 Manning, Ernest C., 630-4
 Perrault, Raymond J., 649-52
 Prowse, J. Harper, 616-20, 652-3

Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49. 1r, 583; 2r, 606-14, 616-21, 627-40; ref to com, 640; rep without amdt, 645; m for 3r, 645-9, m in amdt neg, 649-56; 3r, 656; r.a., 656

Income tax (Bill C-65)

Alberta royalties, 1418-19, 1422, 1441
 Contributions to registered parties and candidates, 1421
 Cooperatives, 1420
 Interest and dividends credit for man and wife, 1419, 1422, 1440
 Investment tax credit, 1421, 1440
 Joint return for man and wife, 1422
 Registered retirement savings plans, 1420, 1440-1
 Resource allowance in respect of oil and gas wells or mineral resources, 1417-18, 1441-2
 Sharing of $1.50 price increase in barrel of oil under modified system and including Alberta's royalty reduction, 1418-19, 1422

Speakers: Senators

Hayden, Salter A., 1417-22
 Lang, Daniel, 1421, 1422
 Manning, Ernest C., 1422
 Smith, George I., 1439-42
 Walker, David J., 1418, 1420

Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65. 1r, 1403; 2r, 1417-22, 1439-42; ref to com, 1442; rep without amdt, 1454; 3r, 1459; r.a., 1467

Income tax (Bill C-58)

Advertisements directed to Canadian broadcasts by a foreign broadcasting undertaking, 2252
 Advertising revenue, 1837
 Advertising space in non-Canadian periodicals, exemption for tax purposes, 2252, 2270
 Background of legislation on foreign periodicals, 1837
 Bill C-118 (1965) providing exemption for advertising costs, 2024
 Excerpt from speech of Senator Flynn re, 2024, 2025
 Broadcasting, 1842, 1865-6, 1870, 1882, 1909, 1928, 1932, 1944, 1998-2002, 2015, 2025, 2026, 2253, 2270, 2272, 2296-7, 2298-9, 2315, 2326-9
 Advertising of prime time, survey report of Bureau of Broadcast Measurements, 2031-2
 Bellingham Station, 1872, 1882, 1928, 1944-5, 1998-2002, 2026
 Buffalo stations, presentation to committee, 2298-9
 Canadian advertising expenditures, 1870, 1928
 Canadian Association of Broadcasters' document, 1842
 CITY-TV, Toronto, 2297

Income tax (Bill C-58) - ContinuedBroadcasting. - Concluded

- CRTC, 1870, 2031-2, 2298, 2329
- GATT provisions re exemption of tax from imported products defined as services, 2027
- Global television, letter from President, 2296-7
- KVOS-TV, 2315
- Mexican border station, 2000
- Reciprocal agreements between governments, 1928
- UHF-TV, Vancouver, 2000
- Warmetco station, 1999
- Canada-US relations, 1844, 1870-1, 1872, 1883, 1909, 1929, 1932, 1944-5, 1955-6, 1958, 1994, 2000, 2005-06, 2015, 2029-30, 2254, 2327, 2328-9
- Canadian advertising in Time, 1993, 2015
- Canadian companies controlled in US, 1929
- Canadian Forum*, excerpt from article by Peter Newman, 2029
- Canadian Journal of Political Science*, excerpt from, 1839
- Canadian ownership of and advertising in periodicals, percentage stipulations, 1926, 1927, 1932, 1939
- Canadian Periodical Publishers' Association, letter from, 1944
- Chatelaine*, 1957
- Christian Science Monitor* article re Time's editorial policy, 1840
- Competitive options, 1862
- Content*, excerpt from Editor's speech on CBC Capital report, 2032
- Criteria for deduction for tax purposes, 1837
- Destruction of competition, 1844
- Detroit Free Press* article re 'magazine dispute', 1909-10
- Difficulties of small publications, 1865
- Discussions between Leader of the Government and Committee Chairman re amdts, 2274-5
- Dumping of textiles in Sherbrooke, Quebec, by American-owned subsidiary, 1942
- Economic aspects of legislation, 1844
- Effective date of provisions re periodicals, 2253, 2272
- Excerpt from committee hearings re Manning Timber Products Ltd. v Minister of National Revenue, 2293-4
- Excerpts from Milton's Aeropagitica and Mill's Liberty, 2325
- Foreign Investment Review Agency, 1909
- Foreign investments contributing to Canadian revenue, 2005
- Fredericton Gleaner* article, 1841
- Freedom of the press, interference with, 1927, 1933, 2325
- Global Television, letter from President, 2296-7
- Globe and Mail*, 1838
 - Article re Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee and Chairman, 2300
- Interest Group Tactics and the Politics of Foreign Investment: The Time-Reader's Digest Case Study, 1839
- Letter from Stephen S. LaRue, president of Time Canada, 1839
- Letter sent to Prime Minister by writers, photographers, etc., 1838
- Maclean's* magazine, 1909, 2028
 - Presentation to committee, 2295-6, letter from President, 2296
- Magazines Canada*, 2295
- Mass Media Committee report, excerpts from, 1839, 1840, 1841-3, 1862, 1865
- Mass media reaction, 1865
- MD of Canada*, 1881-2, 1926, 1957, 2004-05, 2015, 2027, 2253, 2272, 2300
- Mexican President's statement re relations with US, 1995-6
- Ministerial rulings, 1871, 1872, 1882-3, 2025
- Montreal Gazette* editorial, 2299
- Newsweek*, lack of Canadian advertising, 2027-8
- O'Leary Commission, 2326
- Potash industry, Globe and Mail article re, 1909

Income tax (Bill C-58) - Concluded

- Recommendations of committee, 2254
- Revitalizing of Canadian magazines, 1838
- Rights of Canadian broadcasters and publishers, 2295
- Rights of taxpayers to protection of court, 2294
- Saturday Night*, 2296
- Speech of Richard Roehmer, P.C., Toronto, 1841
- 'Substantially the same', definition of, 2252-3, 2271, 2293, 2301, 2314, 2329
- Telegraph-Journal*, St. John, NB, article re Canada-US border TV war, 1945
- Time and Reader's Digest*, 1837-8, 1842-5, 1862-3, 1865, 1869-70, 1871-2, 1882-3, 1909, 1927, 1932, 1938-9, 1942, 1943, 1956-7, 1993-8, 2004, 2005, 2024-7, 2270-1, 2293, 2294, 2299, 2301, 2314-15, 2328-9
- Advertising rates to Canadian advertisers, 1943, 2038
- Dumping of cost-free content, 1943
- Subscription rate, Canada-US, 1995-6, 2038
- Toronto Broadcasting stations, prime time availabilities, 1864
- Toronto Sun* article by John Slinger, 1838
- Women's magazines published in US and circulated in Canada, 1957
- Speakers: Senators
 - Austin, Jack, 2314-15, 2337
 - Beaubien, L.P., 1939
 - Buckwold, Sidney L., 2328-30
 - Carter, Chesley W., 1872
 - Cook, Eric, 1848, 2293-4
 - Davey, Keith, 1836-42, 1843, 1845, 1864, 1865, 2027-32, 2294-2301, 2327, 2328
 - Desruisseaux, Paul, 1865-6
 - Flynn, Jacques, 2024-7, 2337-8
 - Forsey, Eugene A., 2015
 - Greene, John J., 2325-6
 - Grosart, Allister, 1956, 1958, 2395, 2396, 2398-2400
 - Hayden, Salter A., 1862-5, 1945-6, 2252-5, 2269-75, 2389-2400, 2401-05
 - Hicks, Henry D., 2337
 - Laird, Keith, 1908-10
 - Manning, Ernest C., 1931-3, 2326-7, 2328
 - McElman, Charles, 1938-46
 - McIlraith, George, 1925-9
 - Paterson, Norman McL., 2301
 - Perrault, Raymond J., 1992-2002, 2274, 2337, 2396-7
 - Rowe, Frederick William, 1955-8
 - Smith, George I., 1881-3, 2395, 2397-8
 - van Roggen, George C., 1869-73
 - Walker, David J., 1842-5, 1848, 2393-5

Income Tax Bill (No. 3) C-58. 1r, 1792; 2r, 1836-45, 1848, 1862-6, 1869-73, 1881-3, 1908-10, 1925-9, 1931-3, 1938-46, 1955-8, 1992-2002, 2004-06, 2014-15, 2024-33; ref to com, 2033; rep with amdts, 2252-5, 2269-75, 2293-2301, 2313-15, 2325-30, 2337; m to ref rep back to com, 2337, agreed, 2338; further rep of com without amdt, 2389-98, 2401-05; 3r, 2398-2400; r.a., 2450

Income tax conventions

- Accruing property income, 1790
- Capital gains, 1790
- Countries with which Canada has concluded conventions, 1794
- Federal-provincial jurisdiction, 1796-7
- Prohibition against discrimination, 1790, 1797

Income tax conventions - Concluded

- Supplementary agreements, 1789
- Taxpayer position in country without convention, 1794, 1798
- Teachers' tax exemption, 1790
- Withholding tax on dividends, interest payments and royalties, 1789, 1790
 - Artistic works, 1794
- Speakers: Senators
 - Burchill, G. Percival, 1796
 - Flynn, Jacques, 1798
 - Grosart, Allister, 1793-6
 - Lang, Daniel A., 1789-90, 1796-8

Income Tax Conventions bill S-32. 1r, 1777; 2r, 1789-90, 1793-8; ref to com, 1798; rep without amdt, 1867; 3r, 1881; Commons amds, 2236-7, 2244; r.a., 1301

Indian oil and gas

- Alberta oil royalties to Indian Bands, 337
- Consultation with Indian Bands, 352, 426
- Excerpt from Commons committee proceedings, 352
- Oil prices and increased revenue from, 337-8
- Speakers: Senators
 - Choquette, Lionel, 351-2
 - Flynn, Jacques, 426
 - Laird, Keith, 426
 - McDonald, A. Hamilton, 337-8, 352-3

Indian Oil and Gas bill C-15. 1r, 325; 2r, 337-8, 351-3; ref to com, 353; rep without amdt, 402; 3r, 426; r.a., 467

Indians and Eskimos

- Alcoholism and drug addiction, 142-3
- Buffalo kill, 142
- Demonstration on Parliament Hill, 143
- Estimates for Indian economic development, 379
- Fishermen's assistance program, 142
- Great Lakes pollution, 142
- Housing rights under NHA, 751
- Indian women, loss of status on marriage to non-Indian, 898
- Land claims, 17
- Legal restrictions on former freedoms of livelihood, 142
- Manitoba Indian Brotherhood
 - Meetings with senators, 290-1
 - Request to appear before Senate committee, 315-16
- Money-poor and land-rich aspects of Indian life, 144
- Oil and gas, 325, 337-8, 351-3, 402, 426, 467
- Recruitment development program, 569
- Rights of MicMac Indians of Cross Point Reserve to fish Atlantic salmon, 2208, 2264
- Talent potential for sports, arts and Indian culture, 143
- Treaties, 142
- Voting franchise, 622

Industrial Development Bank, See Federal Business Development Bank bill C-14, 348, 368-71, 417-18, 426, 444, 467

Industry

- Construction empires, 36
- Forestry, devastation by Spruce budworm, 1158-68, 1169-70, 1218-20, 1230-2
- Labour unrest, 24, 36
- Sheet glass, 785-6
- Textile imports and effect on Canadian industry, 781-7, 791-3, 843-6, 901-02, 945-8, 975-9
- See* following items

Industry, textile and other imports affecting Canadian industry, 781-7, 791-3, 843-6, 901-02, 945-8, 975-9, 2045, 2055-6

- Anti-dumping procedures, 978
- Canadian textile problems, 2045, 2055-6

Sheet glass

- Roumanian imports, 786
- Ville St. Laurent Co., 785, 786
- World surplus of flat glass, 786

Textiles

- Canadian Textile Commission briefs presented to government by various textile organizations (1974), 782
- Competition from textile imports, 782, 785
- Disregard of agreements by textile importing countries, 844
- Dollar value of imported suits or suiting, 901
- Dominion Textile Co. closing, 783
- Dumping of foreign textiles at depressed prices, 782-3
- Excerpt from speech of Hon. Mr. Pepin re government negotiations with other countries, 792
- GATT, provisions for protection of signatories, 781-2, 785, 786, 787
- Gazette* article on The Case for Textile Protection, 781
- Government concern and study of problem, 792, 901-02, 945
- Import control list and prices, 783-5, 901, 946
- Imports per capita, 782
- International trade deficit, 782, 975-6
- International Trade in Textiles, agreement re, 947
- Polyester and cotton-mixed imports, 783, 946, 977
- Quebec textile workers, 844
 - Le Devoir* article re unemployment in Victoriaville, 844
- Representations and recommendations of union leaders, workers and producers, rejection of, 783-4
- Separatist leader's comments on CBC re government attitude towards secondary industry trade policies, 978
- Subsidies to other areas of industry, 785
- Textile and Clothing Board, role of, 946, 976-7
 - Inquiry into imports of certain fabrics and clothing, 946-7
 - Recommendations, lack of enforcement of, 845, 976-7
- Textile companies converting to import companies, 844
- Unemployment in Wellington District and other areas, 782, 786-7, 791, ~~844~~, 977-8
- USSR trading policy, 791
- Wages, Canada vs other countries, 844

Industry, textile and other imports affecting Canadian industry - *ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 843-6, 901, 971, 978-9
 Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 791-3
 Desruisseaux, Paul, 781-7, 901, 947-8, 974-8
 Perrault, Raymond J., 901-02, 945-8

Industry, Trade and Commerce Department

Authority provided under Statistics Act, 273-4
 Import analysis and examination of invoices, 273-4
 Imports, question of non-tariff barriers re, 399, 400
 Interdepartmental arrangement for access to information, 398-9
 Support services for industrial and trade development, 272-3

Speakers: Senators

Beaubien, L. P., 281
 Everett, Douglas D., 272-4, 349, 399-400
 Grosart, Allister, 304-06, 398-9
 Hayden, Salter A., 348-9

Industry, Trade and Commerce Department bill S-15. 1r, 243; 2r, 272-4, 281, 304-06; ref to com, 306; rep with amdts, 348-9, 368; 3r, 373, 398-400; r.a., 1134

Inflation, 15-16, 19, 72-74

Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, White Paper on, 1284, 1293, 1298-1303, 1319-30,
 1349-53, 1411-15
 Beef industry and prices, 122
 Cost-push inflation, 119
 Demand-pull inflation, 119
 Energy costs, 112-13
 Excerpts from paper prepared by George C. Baker, 112-13
 Food retailing industry, salaries, 879
 Food shortage and destitution in eastern countries, 117
 Government expenditures and control of, 16, 26, 27-28, 144-5, 182-3, 189-90, 199-200, 349-51, 1056
 Excerpt from publication of Canadian Economic Policy Committee, 1056
 Legislation, multiplicity and complexity of, 145
 Literature surplus, 145
 Provincial and municipal expenditures, 144-5
 Restraints, 141, 183
Windsor Star article on, 144
 High cost of money, 112
 Japan, 246, 248
 Lumber industry, New Brunswick, 122
 Milk subsidy, 175-6
 National petroleum corporation to control prices and distribution, 112
 Oil prices, 72, 116
 Population control, 72
 Public debt, 190
 Responsibility of individuals, 119-20
 Restraints and controls, 876-7
 Structural inflation, 119
 Supply of goods and services, 116-17, 121, 183
 Tariff decreases, question of anti-inflationary effects of, 514-15
 Trade balance of payments, deficit, 877
 Trends affecting export markets, 877

Inflation, - Concluded

- Wage and price controls, 145
- World economic and political outlook, 117-18
- See* Anti-inflation,
 - Canadian economy,
 - Economic conditions and prospects.

Information bill (Right to Information) C-225, ref to Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 467

Information Canada

- Inaccuracies in publication regarding Governors General and Prime Ministers, 1757, 2003

Inman, Hon. F. Elsie

- Birthday felicitations, 348
- Crime and violence, 1255
 - Crime increase, 1255
 - Firearms, police use of, 1255
 - Violence depicted in life styles, 1255
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, tribute on occasion of resignation from the Senate, 967
- International Women's Year, 1346-7
 - Background of women's role during past centuries, 1346
 - Leadership in industry, professions, arts and sciences, 1346
 - Provincial jurisdiction in matters of property laws, civil rights and education, 1346
- Kickham, Hon. Thomas J., the late, 324
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1410

Inquiries, calling the attention of the Senate to matters of national and international interest

- Aging, the anatomy of Special Senate Committee report, 146-9, 320-3, 516-18
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', 225-6, 1099, 1118-20, 1127-9
- Canadian economy, Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1284, 1293, 1298-1303, 1312-14, 1319-30, 1349-53
- Combines, planned takeover bid by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd., of Argus Corporation Ltd., inquiry dropped, 1063-4
- Competition policy in Canada and the Combines Investigation Act, 109-10, 663-6, 675-84, 1121-2, 1135
- Constitution of Canada
 - Patriation, correspondence between the Prime Minister of Canada and the First Ministers of the Provinces on the subject of, 2079-86
- Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Special Joint Committee (1967), implementation of recommendations contained in report, 238-41
- Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act, report of Ministry of Industry, Trade and Commerce, 2059-61, 2108-09
- Economy of Canada, 1012, 1067-72, 1081-2, 1113-17
- European Community, Canada's claim for compensation re loss of preferential access of Canadian commodities to British market, 579-80, 661-2, 671
- European Parliament, Strasbourg and Brussels meetings, 307-13, 316-20, 329-33
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1158-63, 1169-70, 1218-20, 1230-2, 1816
- Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1738-41
- Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 1959-64
- Industry, textile imports affecting Canadian industry, 781-7, 791-3, 843-6, 901-02, 974-9; subject matter ref to Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 979
- International Women's Year, 671-4, 836-8, 896-9

Inquiries, calling the attention of the Senate to matters of national and international interest - Concluded

- Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Florida conference, 2221-2, 2224-33
- Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Quebec City conference, 1137-43, 1145-55
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Columbo conference, 984-8
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo conference, 234-8, 245-9
- Labour, working poor in Canada, 2019-23, 2154-8
- Mexico, communique of Parliamentary delegation to Canada, 1874, 1877-8
- Mexico, visit of Canadian Parliamentarians to, 775-7, 852-3, 930-3
- National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto-Canada, 2160-3, 2168-9
- New Brunswick, economic conditions, 1750-4, 1817-20, 1821, 2009-13, 2015-18, 2033
- North Atlantic Assembly, London conference, 342-7, 362-5, 456-9
- Public Service, action of Treasury Board in reclassification of economists, sociologists and statisticians, 2318-21
- Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation for maintenance, 501-04, 537-40, 567-9, 603, 954-5, Order withdrawn, 966
- Social welfare, distribution of income, 2144-9, see also appendix of May 19/75
- Television and radio coverage of Senate and committee proceedings, 1365-6, 1483-4, 1487-8
 - Order discharged and inquiry withdrawn, 2099
- Transportation
 - British North America Act as it pertains to transportation, 2049-54, 2063-6, 2070, 2106-08, 2115-18, 2196-8, 2217-21, 2333-4
- Work Ethic in Canada, 281-8, 339-42, 474-8, 518

Inquiries, general

- British Trade Mission offices in Canada, 206, 252
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, appearance of Gerda Munsinger on television program, 1034, 1073, 1239-40, 1256-7
- Christian Evangelical Centre of Canada, action of National Revenue Department re, 2183-4, 2354-6
- Federal-provincial relations, dispute re resource revenue taxation, inquiry withdrawn, 660
- Indian and Eskimo recruitment development program, 569
- Parliament Buildings, East Block renovations, 241; inquiry dropped, 279
- See Questions*

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, Standing Senate CommitteeBudgets of Committees

- Agriculture, 348
- Banking, Trade and Commerce, 348, 524-5, 956, 1502, 1781, 2119
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, 525, 1088, 1624
- Foreign Affairs, 348, 1781
- Legal and Constitutional Affairs, 525-6, 795
- National Finance, 525, 795, 1088, 1337, 1781, 2119
- Regulations and other Statutory Instruments, 525, 795, 956, 1502
- Science Policy, 160, 348, 795, 1088, 1244, 1261, 2119
- Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1973-74), ref to com, 192
- Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1974-75), ref to com, 1005
- Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1975-76), ref to com, 2167
- Consideration of matters without reference by the Senate, 109
- Inter-Parliamentary associations, resolution re sharing of expenses of, 1493-4
- Intersessional authority, 505, 576-7, 770-3, 815-16
- Members, 96
- Orders of the Day, notification to senator of item standing in his name, 2123
- Regulations re attendance of senators, ref to com, 951-4

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, Standing Senate Committee - Concluded

Reports

- Committee budgets, 160, 348, 524-5, 795, 956, 1088, 1244, 1261, 1337, 1502, 1624, 1781
- Regulations re attendance of senators, 1781-2, 1790-1, 1911-13; m that rep be ref back to com, 1913, 1917-19, 1933-6, m neg, 2118, rep adopted, 2118
- Salary revisions, report tabled, 2261

International Air Transport Association bill S-18. 1r, 265; 2r, 301-03; ref to com, 303; rep without amdt, 373; 3r, 382; r.a., 581

International organizations

- Privileges and immunities, 934, 957-8, 973

International Women's Year, 671-4, 836-8, 896-9, 1346-7

- Abortion law, 837, 838, 898
- Agricultural activities, need for training of women in time of food crisis, 837-8
- Anti-discrimination legislation, 897
- Asia and Africa, male domination, 837
- Background of women's role during past centuries, 1346
- Honorary aide-de-camp to Governor General, Colonel Mary Vallance, 672
- Indian women, loss of status on marriage to non-Indian, 898
- Inequalities between men and women, 838, 897
 - University graduates, 898
- Leadership of women in industry, professions, arts and sciences, 1346
- Protest speech of student at public meeting contest, 673-4
- Provincial jurisdiction in matters of property laws, civil rights and education, 1346
- Royal Commission on the Status of Women, 672, 897
- Scandinavian countries, Belgium, France and Germany, role of women, 836
- Social revolution by women, 896
- Song of Equality, by Jacqueline Lemay, 673
- Speaker of the Senate, Hon. Renaude Lapointe, 671-2
- Statement of Helvi Sipilä, UN Assist. Sect. General for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs, 836, 896
- UN Charter (1945), 896
- UN conference on ways and means to end discrimination against women, 672
- UN disregard of women's rights and failure to implement ideals of founders, 672, 896
- UN resolution re International Women's Year, 672, 836, 896
- 'Why Not' campaign, 896
 - Comments of Hon. Marc Lalonde, women MPs and others, 672-3
- Women's Program, Dept. of State, 897-8
- Women's responsibility in economics, social and cultural development, worldwide friendly relations and cooperation, 836
- Women's wages in Italy, 837
- Working women, heads of families, 898
- Speakers: Senators
 - Fergusson, Muriel McQueen, 896-9
 - Inman, F. Elsie, 1346-7
 - Norrie, Margaret, 836-8
 - Quart, Josie D., 671-4

Interparliamentary Advisory Committee

- Canadian delegations to conferences, committee to study and rule on, 1490, 1494

Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Florida conference, 2221-2, 2224-33

- Agenda, 2224
- Canada-US relations, 2222
- Canadian Centennial coins, presentation to US delegates, 2222
- Committee I, 2224, 2225
 - Canadian cultural legislation and regulations, 2227
 - Eastport, 2226
 - Flathead River, 2225-6
 - Garrison Diversion project, 2225
 - Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement, 2225
 - Law of the Sea, 2226-7
 - Richelieu-Lake Champlain, 2225
 - Skagit, 2226
 - Water boundaries 2226
 - West Coast pollution, 2226
- Committee II, 2224, 2227-30
 - Ant-inflation program, 2228
 - Canada-US automotive agreement, 2227-8
 - Canadian cultural legislation and regulation, 2229-30
 - Controls on trade with Cuba, 2229
 - Extension to Canada of US restrictions on political contributions, 2230
 - Foreign Investment Review Act, 2229
 - Multi-lateral trade negotiations, 2230
 - Saskatchewan takeover of potash companies, 2228-9
 - Trans-Border economic issues, 2227
 - US dumping charges and countervailing duties, 2228
- Committee III, 2222, 2230-2
 - Agriculture, 2232
 - Energy, 2222, 2230-2
- Plenary meeting, 2232
- Speaker: Senator
 - Macnaughton, Alan A., 2221-3, 2224-33

Inter-Parliamentary Group, Canada-United States, Quebec City conference, 1137-43, 1145-55

- Committees and members of, 1138
- Delegates, 1138
- Designation of meeting places and timetables, 1138
- Energy resources, 1141-2
 - Alaska reserves, 1141
 - Coal reserves, 1141
 - Nuclear energy, 1142
 - Prices, 1141; controversy re, 1141
 - Shortfall in deliveries to US, 1141
 - Solar and geothermal energy, harnessing of tides, heat pumps, 1142
- Excerpt from speech by Prime Minister Trudeau, 1140
- Excerpt from speech by US Deputy Secretary of State, 1140
- Reform of Canadian section of Group, 1137-40
- Trans-border problems, 1139
- US Congress contacts, importance of, 1139-40
- Speakers: Senators
 - Macnaughton, Alan A., 1137-40
 - van Roggen, George C., 1140-3

Inter-Parliamentary Union, Colombo, Sri Lanka conference, 984-8

- Aid to developing countries, 985-8
 - Sri Lanka and Pakistan, 985, 986-8
 - Tarbela Dam, 987-8
- Birth control, 987, 988
- Canada's esteem in foreign countries, 985
- Disarmament, 984
- Drugs, 984-5
- Economic conditions in Canada, 985-6
- Economic cooperation, 984
- Education and training in resource development, 984, 988
- Human rights, 984
- Living standards, 985
- Population statistics, 986
- Poverty problems, 987
- Speakers: Senators
 - Buckwold, Sidney L., 988
 - Rowe, Frederick William, 984-8

Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo conference, 234-8, 245-9

- Arab-Israeli conflict, 236
- Briefing of delegates, 237
- Japan, economic expansion, 245-7; employment standards, 246-7; inflation, 246, 248
- Labour unions and strikes in Canada, effect on foreign investments, 245-6
- Middle East, 247-8; Canadian peacekeeping force, 247
- Organizational meetings on energy, iron and steel, education, environment and pollution, 235
- Population trends and economic and social development, 235-6, 237
- Resolutions presented, 235-6
- UN Conference on World Population, 236
- Speakers: Senators
 - Asselin, Martial, 245-8
 - Molgat, Gildas L., 234-8
 - Robichaud, Louis-J., 248-9

Intersessional authority of Senate, 505, 576-7, 770-3, 815-16

Investigations in Parliament, 1398-1403, 1409, 1476-9

Iraq

- Mr. Elkadi Kw Kussai, visitor to Senate, 1742

Ireland, Republic of

- President Erskine Childers, death of, 265

Israel

- Canada-Israel income tax convention, 1792, 1793-8

Italy

- Earthquake victims, Canadian government assistance to, 2111

Japan, 234-8, 245-9

- Delegation from House of Councillors, visitors to Senate, 2364
- Economic expansion, 245-7
- Employment standards, 246-7

Japan - Concluded

- Inflation, 246, 248
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo conference, 234-8, 245-9
- Ohara, Mr. Yasunaga, National Diet Library, visitor to Senate, 299

Jerome, Hon. James

- Appointment to office of Speaker of House of Commons, 2

Joint Committees, see CommitteesJudges

- Alberta, consolidation of district court divisions, 1040-1
- Annuities for judges and deceased judges' spouses, 1052
- Appts. according to provincial volume of litigation, 1042
- Canadian Judicial Council, 1052
- Fringe benefits, 1041-2
- Income tax, 1041
- Newfoundland court of appeal, 1041
- Ontario, workload of county court judges, 1041
- Pensions, 1052
- Prince Edward Island, consolidation of county and supreme courts, 1041
- Restriction on earnings from extra-judicial functions, 1041
- Salary increases, 1041, 1043, 1051-2
- Selection of judges, 1041, 1042-3, 1051
- Superior Court workload, 1052

Speakers: Senators

- Asselin, Martial, 1051-2
- Choquette, Lionel, 1080
- Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 1042
- Flynn, Jacques, 1053, 1080
- Laird, Keith, 1040-2, 1053
- Molson, Hartland de M., 1042
- Walker, David J., 1042-3

Judges bill C-47. 1r, 1005; 2r, 1040-3, 1051-3; ref to com, 1053; rep without amdt, 1066; 3r, 1080; r.a., 1095

Judson, Hon. Wilfred, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada

- Royal assent, 1281

Justice, administration of, allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1825-6, 1846-8, 1857-9, 1890-3, 1920-2, 1930-1

Kickham, Hon. Thomas J. (Deceased Dec. 1/74)

- Tributes, 324

King George V Cancer Fund

- Assets value, 1482
- Background of fund, 1481, 1482
- Payment of assets to National Cancer Institute of Canada, 1481
- Trustees of fund, 1481
- Trust fund provisions re transfer of funds, 1481-2

Speakers: Senators

- Buckwold, Sidney L., 1483
- Cottreau, Ernest G., 1481-2, 1483
- Yuzyk, Paul, 1482-3

King George V Cancer Fund Winding-Up bill C-76. 1r, 1467; 2r, 1480-3; 3r, 1486; r.a., 1617

Labour

- Air transport, flight delays due to labour dispute, 2062-3
- Basic hourly rate for grain handlers, 82; disparity in labour rates, 82
- BC strike legislation, 1326-8
 - Labour movement reaction, 1327-8
 - Supermarkets, 1327; Canada Safeway, 1327
- Canadian Labour Congress, possibility of general strike, 2130
- Canadian Labour Congress proposals re 'Attack on Inflation - a program of national action', 1323-4
- Construction empires, 36
- Construction industry in Quebec, pardon granted to Dede Desjardins, 1053, 1066
- Corporation and Labour Unions Returns Act, report of Ministry of Industry, Trade and Commerce, 2059-61
- Defiance by unions of court orders, 2237
- Essential services, proposals re collective bargaining, prohibition against strikes, and compulsory arbitration, 79-80
- Government intervention in dispute and effects of, 82
- Grain inspectors' dispute, settlement of, 336
- Industrial Inquiry Commission, 93
- Japan, employment standards, 246-7
- Labour unrest, 24, 36
- Loss of working days through conciliation delays, 81-82
- Montreal Police Force, threatened strike, 849
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1285, 1319, 1355, 1370-1, 1409-10, 1416-17, 1428-31
- Price controls vs wage controls, 1322
- Problems of equity in temporary freeze of wages and controls, 1322
- Public service, strike of general labour and trades group, 642
- St. Lawrence Ports operations, 817-27, 832
- Strike of longshoremen in Quebec, back-to-work legislation, question, 833, 838-9, 840, 846, 849, 855, 867, 888, 900-01, 912
- Trades Union Congress of Britain, statement of policy, 1328-9
- Unions and strikes, effect on foreign investment in Canada, 245-6, 600
- West Coast grain handling operations, 76, 77-94, 95
- West Coast ports operations, 723, 724-30, 731
- Withdrawal of services by longshoremen at Montreal, 1006-07
- Working poor in Canada, 2019-23, 2154-8
- See* St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-58, 817-27, 832
 - West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 76, 77-93, 95,
 - West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 723, 724-30, 731,
 - Working poor in Canada, 2019-23, 2154-8.

Lafond, Hon. Paul C.

- Canada Year Book, 1822-3
- Distribution of document in Senate chamber, question of privilege, 644
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill C-370, 527
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Bruce) bill C-228, 601
- North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1727-8
 - NATO defence, 1726, 1727
 - Canada's contribution, 1727
 - Scientific Committee, Subcommittee on Major Concerns of Modern Society, 1727

Lafond, Hon. Paul C. - Concluded

- North Atlantic Assembly, London conference, 456-9
 - Economic Committee discussions, 457-8
 - Defence budgets, 457
 - Energy supplies, 457, 458
 - Germany, inflationary problems and labour unions, 458
 - Inflation, 457
 - Multinational corporations and Atlantic Alliance, 457-8
 - Recommendations, 457
 - USSR, currency resources from exports of oil, wood, coal and weapons, 458
- Regulations respecting attendance of senators, 1791, 1933-4
 - Committee review of reasons for absence, 1791
 - Senate vacancies and workload, 1791
- Representation bill 1974 C-36, 424
- Senate business, 924

Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C. (deceased Feb. 13/75)

- Tributes, 532-4

Laird, Hon. Keith

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 144-6
- Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank bill S-24, 1062-3
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2265-6, 2280, 2289
 - Land ownership, 2265-6
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 144
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1014, 1016-17
 - 'Give', definition of, 1016-17
- Immigration bill S-12, 164-5, 166, 230-2, 233
 - Appeal against deportation order, 166, 231
 - Deportation statistics, 230-1, 233
 - Ignoring of deportation order, 164-5, 166-7, 231
 - Illegal activities, 232
 - Indictment or summary conviction, 231
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1908-10
 - Broadcasting, 1909
 - Canada-US relations, 1909
 - Detroit Free Press* article re 'magazine dispute', 1909-10
 - Foreign Investment Review Agency, 1909
 - Maclean's* magazine, 1909
 - Potash industry, Globe and Mail article re, 1909
 - Time and Reader's Digest*, 1909
- Indian Oil and Gas bill C-15, 426
- Inflation, 144-5
 - Government expenditures and control of, 144; provincial and municipal, 144-5
 - Legislation, multiplicity and complexity of, 145
 - Literature surplus, 145
 - Windsor Star* article on, 144
 - Wage and price controls, 144
- Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee
 - Budgets of committees
 - Agriculture, 348
 - Banking, Trade and Commerce, 348, 524-5, 956, 1502, 1781, 2119
 - Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, 525, 1088, 1624
 - Foreign Affairs, 384, 1781
 - Legal and Constitutional Affairs, 525, 795
 - National Finance, 525, 795, 1088, 1337, 1781, 2119

Laird, Hon. Keith - Concluded

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee - Concluded

Budgets of committees - Concluded

Regulations and other Statutory instruments, 525, 795, 956, 1502

Science Policy, 160, 348, 795, 1088, 1244, 1261, 2119

Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1973-74) ref to com, 192

Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1974-75) ref to com, 1005

Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1975-76) ref to com, 2167

Consideration of matters without reference by the Senate, 109

Reports

Regulations respecting attendance of senators, 1781-2, 1790-1, 1911-13, m that rep be ref back to com, 1911-13, 1917-18, 1933-6, 2118

Salary revisions, report tabled, 2261

Inter-Parliamentary associations, resolution re sharing of expenses of, 1493-4

Judges bill C-47, 1040-2, 1053

Alberta, consolidation of district court divisions, 1040-1

Appointments according to provincial volume of litigation, 1042

Fringe benefits, 1041-2

Income tax, 1041

Newfoundland court of appeal, 1041

Ontario, workload of county court judges, 1041

Prince Edward Island, consolidation of county and supreme courts, 1041

Restriction on earnings from extra-judicial functions, 1041

Salary increases, 1041

Selection of judges, 1041

Law Clerk and Parliamentary Counsel of the Senate

Appointment of Raymond du Plessis, Esq., Q.C., 2048-9

Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee

Reports

Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, rep without amdt, 1244

National Finance Committee

Reports

Estimates, Supplementary (B) year ending Mar. 31/76, 1937, 1948-53

Regulations and other Statutory Instruments

Newspaper article re Chairman Senator Forsey, question of privilege, 794-5

Regulations respecting attendance of senators, 1781-2, 1790-1, 2118

Absence beyond 21 days, 1790

Committee review of reasons for absence, 1791

Official business, specifying of, 1790-1

Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1208

Rules of the Senate

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, 1426

Senate speech quoted verbatim in Commons, 1359-60

Suspension of rule 95 re private bills, 1208

Senate and House of Commons Act

Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, 953

Unemployment insurance, 145

Pensioners, 145

Lalonde, Hon. Marc, Minister of Health and Welfare

Medical Care bill C-68, 2366-75

Ceiling on federal contributions, 2367, 2369-70, 2372-3

Costs (1975), 2369; provincial per capita costs, 2370-1

Federal-provincial conferences, 2367, 2373

Immigration of physicians, 2367

Lalonde, Hon. Marc, Minister of Health and Welfare - *ConcludedMedical Care bill C-68 - *Concluded

- Nursing homes, 2374
- Physicians' fees, 2372
- Provincial percentage increases (1975-76), 2368
- Psychiatrists and physiotherapists, 2368-9
- Quebec, 2358-9, 2370
- Seat belts vs accidents and medical care, 2367-8

Lamontagne, Hon. Maurice, P.C.

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, 2112-13, 2114
 - Backlog of appeals to board, 2112
 - Export levy, 2113, 2114
 - Increase in workers affected by guidelines, 2112
 - Labour leaders' influence on inflationary trends, 2112
 - Price increases vs cost-of-living adjustments, 2112
 - Small industries, 2113
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, La Presse report of alleged statement by Senator Lamontagne, question of privilege, 1165-6
- Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 761-5, 766, 908-09, 910, 911
 - Institution, definition of, 765-6
 - Prohibition of illegal exports into Canada, 764
 - Articles made by person now deceased or which have been in Canada 35 yrs. or more, 764, 765
 - UNESCO convention, 764
 - Review Board, 763-4, 908-09, 910
 - System of export control, 762-4
 - Determination of fair cash price, 762, 764
 - Financial assistance for custodial institutions, 763
 - Ministerial permits of bulk licences, 763
 - Objects of national heritage, 762
 - Permits, 762, 908, 909
 - Tax incentives for sale or donation of cultural property to custodial institutions, 763
 - Exemptions, 763
 - UK legislation, 761, 763, 765
 - Value of articles such as manuscripts, etc., determination of, 765
- Economy of Canada, 1012, 1067-72
 - Cost-push inflation, 1072
 - Countercyclical policies, 1068, 1072
 - Crude oil exports, ceiling on, 1072
 - Current account deficit, 1071
 - Employment and unemployment, 1070
 - Excerpts from speeches relating to economic conditions (1966, 1970), 1068-9
 - Exports, decline due to work stoppages, 1070
 - Finance Minister's statements re fiscal policies, 1068-9, 1071
 - Gross national product, 1070
 - Housing market, 1069
 - Interest rates, 1069
 - Provincial deficits, 1071
 - Recessions (1953-74), 1067-8
 - Trade deficits re parts and accessories of motor vehicles, 1071
 - US economic conditions, 1069, 1070
 - US production of small cars affecting auto pact, 1071-2
- Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 648, 649
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 749, 751
 - Construction industry, stabilizing of, 751

Lamontagne, Hon. Maurice, P.C. - Concluded

- Official Languages Act, rights of air pilots in Quebec, 2344-6
 - Motion re, 2344
- Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 964
- Rules of the Senate
 - Amendment to committee report after presentation to Senate, 908, 909
- Science policy
 - Commission on the Future, termination of mandate for, 1173, 1220
 - Data bank, 295
 - Excerpts from letters from Prime Minister and Deputy Secretary of the Cabinet re Institute for Research on Public Policy, 1171-2, 1221
 - Future research areas of Science Policy Committee, 1173
 - Impact of committee report on other countries, 1222
 - Information center, Futures Canada, 295
 - "Managing the Future: Conference on Anticipatory Institutions", 1171, 1221
 - Prime Minister Trudeau's speech at Duke University, 296-7
 - Recommendations to government by committee, 1222
 - Study undertaken by government into futures research and futures information, 1172-3
 - Training program in cooperation with management and schools, 295-6
- Science Policy, Special Senate Committee
 - Annual meetings, regional and national, 296
 - Appointment, 295-8
 - Club of Rome President, visit to committee, 473
 - Expenses, 160, 348, 1088, 1223-4, 1244, 1260, 1261
 - Members, 295
 - Reports
 - Quorum, 1355
 - Termination of mandate re Commission on the Future, 1164, 1171-3, 1220-6, 1246-7, 1259-60
 - Terms of reference, 295, 1171
- Senate business, 1880, 1881
- Senate and House of Commons Act
 - Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, 952
 - Senators' work in public interest outside of Senate, 952
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 878

Lang, Hon. Daniel A.

- Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing bill C-21, 1631
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974, C-42, 415
- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1446-9
 - Economic Summit Conference, Canada's absence from, 1447
 - Government expenditures, 1447-8
 - Federal budget deficit, 1447
 - Members' indemnities, 1448
 - Ontario, 1447
 - Prime Minister's statement, 1448
 - UK government budget cuts, 1448
 - Labour and management demands, 1448-9
 - Labour strike actions affecting economy, 1447
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2283
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2387-9
 - Appeals, 2389
 - Background of capital punishment legislation, 2387

Lang, Hon. Daniel A. - *ConcludedCriminal Law Amendment bill C-84 - *Concluded

- First and second degree murder, 2388-9
- Prison term, ten years or life, 2389
- Recommendation by jury, 2389
- Transitional provisions re pending matters, 2389
- Treason, 2388-9

Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-57, 1175-8

- Basic and additional revenues, 1175-6
- Equalization formula as result of revenues to oil and gas producing provinces, 1175
- Freehold oil and gas revenues, 1175
- Income tax revenue guarantee, 1175, 1177
- Personal and corporation tax, 1177
- Tax changes affecting fiscal arrangements, 1176-7
- Tax rebates on oil and gas revenue, western provinces, 1177

Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65, 1421, 1422Income Tax Conventions bill S-32, 1789-90, 1796-8; Commons amds, 2244

- Accruing property income, 1790
- Capital gains, 1790
- Conventions with France, Belgium and Israel, 1789
- Countries with which Canada has concluded conventions, 1797
- Federal-provincial jurisdiction, 1796-7
- Prohibition against discrimination, 1790, 1797
- Supplementary agreements, 1789
- Taxation by countries not under convention, 1798
- Teachers' tax exemption, 1790
- Withholding tax on dividends and interest payments and royalties, 1789, 1797

Passports, special, for MPs, restrictions on, 2262-3Remembrance Day, 257*Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances) bill C-4, 256-8

- Dependent children, 257-8
- Equality for male and female veterans, 258
- Escalation of allowances to consumer price index, 257
- Orphans, 257-8

Langlois, Hon. Leopold, Deputy Leader of the Government in the SenateAgriculture Committee

- Meetings during Senate sittings, 1045, 1196, 1639
- Membership, motion re, 591

Aircraft Registry bill S-5, 1001

- Federal-provincial conferences, lack of, 1001
- Property and civil rights of provinces, 1001
- Seizure and sale of aircraft, 1001

Alliance Security & Investigation, Ltd. bill S-26, 1053Anti-inflation policy, m to authorize com to study subject matter of Bill C-73, 1408, agreed, 1426*Appropriation bill No. 3, 1974 C-31, 192-3, 203, 204-5*Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 379, 389, 390-2, 407-11, 412, 413, 429, 431-2*Appropriation bill No. 5, 1974 C-45, 402, 424-5*Appropriation bill No. 1, 1975 C-54, 703-05, 718-19, 720-21, 722, 723, 735-6*Appropriation bill No. 2, 1975 C-55, 707-08, 738-9*Appropriation bill No. 3, 1975 C-64, 1097, 1098, 1129, 1131-2*Appropriation bill No. 4, 1975 C-79, 1602-04, 6121-14*Appropriation bill No. 1, 1976 C-90, 1971-2, 1977-80, 1981-2, 1984

Langlois, Hon. Leopold, Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

- Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91, 1972-3, 1988-91
- Appropriation bill No. 3, 1976 C-93, 2288
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1976 C-94, 2268, 2269
- Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee
 - Engagement of services of counsel and technical, clerical and other personnel, 1427-8
 - Meetings during adjournments, 2047-8
 - Meetings during Senate sittings, 373, 505, 535, 563, 1034, 1403, 1416, 1438, 1485, 1502, 1856, 2069, 2098, 2120, 2178, 2192, 2216, 2338
- Beef producers, federal assistance for, 241, 253
- British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 134
- Canada-United States relations, communications between Canada and US, newspaper article re remarks by Senator Davey, 2192-3
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation
 - Appearance of Gerda Munsinger on television program, 1619
 - Profane language used on TV programs, 1128
 - Role of CBC and CRTC administrative office, 1128
 - Saint-Jean-Baptiste Day program, 1128
 - TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', com authorized to examine and report on, 225-6; rep of com, 1127-9
 - National unity, deprecating of, 1128
- Canadian National Railways, cost of construction of tower in Toronto, 2185-6
- Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation bill S-27, 1062
 - Background of corporation, 1062
 - Change of name to 'Teleglobe Canada', 1062
 - President and chief executive officer, 1062
- Committees
 - Authorization to meet during adjournment of Senate, 2171-2
 - Meetings, co-ordinating committee to organize scheduling of, 1091
 - Notices of meetings of subcommittees and steering committees, 2192
 - Proceedings, delay in printing and distribution of, 703-04
- Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Special Joint Committee (1967), implementation of recommendations contained in report, 2239-41
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, 1730-3, 1772-6, 1884-6, 1896-7, 1899
 - Appeal from decision on summary conviction, 1732
 - Cattle theft, 1885
 - Conditional release, 1731-2
 - Conspiracy in or outside Canada, 1731
 - Criminal offence resulting in serious harm, 1732
 - Evidence of police officer, 1885, 1896-7, 1899
 - Impaired drivers, 1731, 1775
 - Jury system, 1773, 1774
 - Kidnapping, extortion, organized crime, 1775
 - Morgentaler* amendment, 1732, 1772-4, 1885-6
 - Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, survey results, 1774
 - Excerpts from notes of supreme court judges, 1773
 - Statement of Past President of Bar Association, 1773-4
 - Murder, conspiracy to commit murder, trafficking in narcotics, 1733
 - Offence against internationally protected person, 1730
 - Placing bets on behalf of others, 1731
 - Rape and other sexual offences, 1731
 - Complainants' testimony, 1731
 - Telecommunications, use of 'blackbox', 1731
 - Theft, forgery of credit cards, etc., 1884-5
 - Verdict of guilty where facts admitted and there is error in law, 1885

Langlois, Hon. Leopold, Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

Deputy Leader, reappointment, 46

Emergency sittings, authority to convene Senate during adjournments, 328

Energy

Statement of policy re oil and gas, notice of inquiry, 2150

Estimates

Agriculture, 193

Assistance to provinces, individuals or other segment of economy, 1971

Assurance that passage of bill will not prejudice further debate, 708

Auditor General's statement re government financial management, 1977

Borrowing authority, 389, 391, 708, 738-9, 1132, 1603, 1612-13, 1972-3, 1988, 1989

Budgetary and non-budgetary items, 704, 1602-03

Canadair, 719, 720

CNR deficit, 704

Cheque cashing before March 31, 1989-90

Chief Electoral Officer, 193

Correction in figure relating to supplementary estimates (D), 703

Deferment of capital projects, 1980-1, 1984

Departmental estimates, suggested method for inquiry by Senate, 1972

Discussion on subject matter of appropriation bills remaining on Order Paper, 1783

Dollar items, 379, 704-05, 719, 723, 1603, 1613-14, 1971, 1979, 1980

Statistics (1973-76), 1979, 1980

Economic development and supply, 379

Environment, 193

Federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, 704, 18-19

Globe and Mail article re Workers get shock at bank: Government cheques NSF, 1977-8

Groundfish stabilization, 704

House of Commons, program expenditures, payment to Leader of Social Credit Party, 722, 1613

Indian economic development, 379

Industry Trade and Commerce, 193

Information Canada, 193

Insurance, 193

Inter-Provincial Pipe Line Ltd., 720

Leading Cases in Constitutional Law, excerpt from decision in Edinburgh and Dalkeith Railway Company v. Wauchope, 391

Loto Canada, 2246-7

Milk subsidies, 704

Oil refiners, compensation to, 445

Old age security fund, 704, 1971-2

Deficit, 1971-2

Payments to provinces, 379

Percentage increase over 1974-75, 1971

Railways, compensation to, 379

Referral of supply bills to National Finance Committee, 736, 1131-2, 1133, 1613

Special employment measures, 1602

Spouses' allowances, 1602

Student summer employment, 1603

Transfer payments, 2288

Treasury Board, 704, 720

Unpredicted expenditures, 719

Veterans allowances, 704

Votes for grants in fiscal year, 1972

Votes for which additional sums are required, 1972

Langlois, Hon. Leopold, Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate - ContinuedEstimates - Concluded

Votes payments on calendar year basis, 1972

Wheat, two-price program, 193

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/75, ref to com, 108

Supplementary (A), 108

Supplementary (B), 300

Supplementary (C), 441-2

Supplementary (D), 586

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/76, ref to com, 555

Supplementary (A), 1409

Supplementary (B), 1824

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/77, ref to com, 1777

Export Development bill C-9, 459-62, 464

Authorized capital, 459-60

Foreign investment insurance program, 460

Interest rate, 462, 464

Short-term and medium-term credit for small businesses, 461

Feeds bill S-10, 1480, 1635-6

Commons amds, 1480, 1635-6

Penalty upon conviction for indictable offence, 1635

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, tribute upon resignation from the Senate, 967-8

Foreign Affairs

Canadian Defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, report in Globe and Mail, 2122-3

Foreign Affairs Committee

Meetings during Senate sittings, 713, 2216

Gasoline excise tax, 1100

Immigration bill S-12, 166, 213-19

Haitians, 215

Illegal activities, 217

Ministerial power of discretion re indictment or summary conviction, 214

Persons remaining in Canada by force or stealth, 216-17

Immigration Policy, Special Joint Committee

Terms of reference, 592

Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 637-8

Press report on Senate committee action, 637-8

Income Tax Conventions bill S-32, Commons amds, 2236

Information Canada, inaccuracies in publications regarding Governors General and Prime Ministers, 1757

Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration, Standing Senate Committee

Orders of the Day, notification of item standing in senator's name, 2123

Italy, earthquake victims, Canadian government assistance to, 2111

Labour, defiance by unions of court orders, 2237

Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee

Expenses (special) for fees and travelling of witnesses re examination of Bill S-19, 525, 526

Meetings during Senate sittings, 505, 542, 579, 713, 1438, 2216

Legislation, difficulty in dealing with omnibus bills, 1775-6

Loto Canada, 2103-04, 2110-11, 2246-7, 2268, 2269

Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, meeting with senators, 291

Medical Care bill C-68, 2359

Money bills, Senate authority to amend, 1657

Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, Commons amds, 2066-8

National Capital Region, Special Joint Committee, 1126

Langlois, Hon. Leopold, Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

National Finance Committee

Expenditures, supplementary budget, 1337

Meetings during adjournment, 2048

Meetings during Senate sittings, 684, 774, 795, 973

National lottery, method of proceeding with, 2103-04, 2110-11

Nova Scotia, destruction of forests and residential property by fire, 2179

Official languages, rights of air pilots in Quebec, 2381-6

O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, the late, 2034-5

Olympic bill C-63, 1202-03

Deficit forecast, 1203

Identification of gold coins content, 1203

Minister's statement re possible withdrawal of bill, 1202

National context of Games, 1203

Permanent assets from capital investments, 1203

Regattas to be held at Kingston, 1203

Olympic Games, Flame Ceremony on Parliament Hill, 2419

Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 966

Newfoundland, request for use of RCMP during labour strike, 966

Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1459, 1468

Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill S-9, 156-7

Advertising, 157

Regulations, authority for, 157

Royal patent, 156

Public bills, suspension of rules, motion withdrawn, 1292

Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1658-9

Regulations and other statutory instruments, agreements between federal government and provincial governments, 2103, 2110

Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1208

Rules of the Senate

Delay in raising of point of order, 1111

Minister invited to Senate Chamber to explain bill, precedents, 217-19

Excerpt from The Modern Senate of Canada re, 218

Minister's statement of policy, senator's comment on or criticism of, 1202

Supply bills, 721-2, 735

Borrowing authority, 722

Excerpt from Bourinot, 4th edition, 722

Forms and Proceedings, 721-3, 735

Senate role in money bills, 723

Suspension of rule 95 re private bills, 1208, 1234

Salaries (Lieutenant Governors) bill C-24, 1094

Saskatchewan, safety of Gardiner Dam, 2179

Senate

Adjournments, 712-13, 731

Motion rescinded, 731

Business, 31, 124-5, 152, 178-9, 221-2, 240, 289, 315, 325, 351, 380-1, 396, 482, 483-4, 505-06, 524, 540-1, 556, 579, 592-3, 594, 656-7, 740-1, 758, 796, 899, 923-4, 956, 988, 999, 1057, 1059, 1086, 1090, 1111, 1122, 1164-5, 1210, 1226, 1297, 1337, 1409, 1437-8, 1467-8, 1502-03, 1524, 1537-8, 1547-8, 1615, 1647-8, 1682, 1711, 1729, 1756-7, 1778, 1793, 1846, 1874-5, 1878-9, 2007-08, 2044, 2045-7, 2097-8, 2120-2, 2151-3, 2167, 2192, 2215, 2255, 2302, 2308, 2335, 2360

Emergency sittings, authority to convene Senate during adjournments, 328

Monday evening sittings, motion for, 1874-5, 1878-9, motion, as modified, agreed to, 1881

Wednesday sittings, hour of adjournment, 2097-8, motion rescinded, 2308, 2335

Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2203, 2204-05, 2206

Langlois, Hon. Leopold, Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate - Concluded

- Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, referral to Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service Committee, 1437, 1442
- Statutes of Canada (references to Court of Queen's Bench of Quebec) bill S-16, 274-7, 293
 - Ambiguous powers, citations re, 275-6
 - Appeal Court, 276
 - History of Court of Queen's Bench of Quebec, 274-5
- Supplementary Borrowing Authority bill C-80, 1641-4, 1650
 - Borrowing through issue of treasury bills and raising of new funds through bonds, 1642
 - Capital markets, 1642, 1644
 - Draftmanship of legislation, 1650
 - Inclusion of borrowing authority in appropriation bills, 1642
 - Referral of bill to committee, question of, 1643, 1644
 - Requirement of recommendation of Governor General, 1643
- Supreme Court bill S-2, 155
- Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, 1820, 1832-6
 - Deportation of person other than Canadian citizen, landed immigrants or visitors, 1820
 - Expiry date of legislation, 1833
 - Ministerial powers, 1833
 - Reasonable grounds for minister's opinion, 1834
 - Source of information, disclosure of, 1835
 - Terrorism, 1832-3
- Transportation, disruption of airline services in Canada, 2237
- Western grain stabilization, Agriculture Committee authorized to study subject matter of Bill C-41, 1615

Lapointe, Hon. Renaude, Speaker of the Senate

- Alliance Security and Investigation, Ltd., bill S-26, Commons amdt, 1261
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1581, 1583, 1587
 - Motion (Hon. Mr. Molson) to amend bill, 1581, neg, 1581
 - Motion (Hon. Mr. Phillips) to amend bill, 1583, neg, 1587
- Appointment to office of Speaker of the Senate, 1
- Budget speech, accommodation for senators in Senate gallery of Commons, 1087
- Christmas decorations, Senate, 1476
- Condolences on death of brother, 382
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee, 160
- Feeds bill S-10, Commons amdt, 1467
- Felicitations on appointment to office of Speaker of the Senate, 22, 26, 32, 37, 51, 58, 62, 72, 81, 82-83, 111, 116, 120, 138-9, 144, 167-8, 174-5, 184-5
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, speech at unveiling of portrait of, 469
- Guidelines for Motions for Production of Papers, ref to Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 467
- Immigration Policy, Special Joint Committee, 564
 - Members, Commons, 627
- Immigration Policy, unauthorized press publication of confidential draft report of Special Joint Committee, 1285-6
- Investigations in Parliament, statement re question of privilege, 1478
- Library of Parliament, commemorative dollar for 100th anniversary, 1197
- MacKenzie, Hon. Norman, visitor to Senate, 1303
- National Arts Centre, reception for artists in Speaker's Chambers, 2003
- National Capital Region, Special Joint Committee, message from Commons, 1097
- Official Languages, report of Commissioner, 757, 2003
- Opening of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament, communications from Governor General's Secretary, 1, 2
- Parliament Buildings, accommodation in East Block, 2185

Lapointe, Hon. Renaude, Speaker of the Senate - Concluded

Property qualification of members of Senate, Supplementary return tabled, 472

Prorogation of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament, communication from Governor General's Secretary, 2452; statement re prorogation, 2454

Right to Information bill C-225, subject matter ref to Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 467

Rules of the Senate

Conflict of Interest, question of privilege re reference of Green Paper to Committee, Hon. Mr. Croll, 780

New edition, 1813

Participation in debate by senator not scheduled to speak, 560

Right of senator to adjourn debate, 560

Rulings and statements

Adjournment during pleasure or to reconvene at call of bell, 1111, 1112

Debate developing during Question Period, 1784

Debate on report without amdt and motion for third reading of bill, statement re, 2395, 2396

Legal statements, Speaker's authority to give decision on, 989

Motion (Senator Godfrey) re proposed regulations respecting attendance of senators, 988-9

Point of order re motion to amend committee report, 889-90

Point of order (Senator Greene) re omission from Minutes of Proceedings, 988-9

Point of order (Senator Greene) re resolution on regulations respecting attendance of senators, 952, 953

Point of order (Senator Molson) re motion presented and seconded by senator not present, 955

Ruling on senator being allowed to continue speech, 2365

Suspension of rule 95 re private bill, 1207, 1209

Senate

Chamber renovations, 1282-3

Painting of Royal Canadian Engineers, authority to photograph for Heritage Publishing Company, 46

Photographing of precincts and of senators for distribution to Canadian embassies, 253, 255

Senators, new, introduced in the Senate

Austin, Hon. Jacob, 1354

Barrow, Hon. Augustus Irvine, 1

Cottreau, Hon. Ernest George, 1

Lucier, Hon. Paul Henry, 1395

Smith, Hon. George Isaac, 1282

Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, ref to Joint Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, 1437

Visitors

Alberta Parliamentarians, 1087

British Columbia, Mr. William Templeton, Victoria Legislative Assembly, 854

British Columbia Parliamentarians, 1087

Bulgaria, President of the General Assembly and His Excellency the Ambassador, 124

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Africa region delegates, 1087

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Secretary General Sir Robin Vanderfelt, 1966

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, former Speaker of the Senate, 1970

Icelandic Parliamentarians, 2184

Iraq, Mr. Elkadi Kw Kussai, 1742

Japan, delegation from House of Councillors, 2364

Japan, Mr. Yasunaga Ohara, 299

Polish Ambassador, His Excellency Jozef Czesak and Mrs. Czesak, 1442

Saskatchewan, Parliamentarians and wives, 262

Laskin, Rt. Hon. Bora, P.C., Chief Justice of Canada

Administrator of the Government of Canada

Opening of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament, Speech from the Throne, 2-7

Royal assent, 95, 220

Laskin, Rt. Hon. Bora, P.C., Chief Justice of Canada - Concluded

Deputy Governor General

Prorogation of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament, Speech from the Throne, 2543

Royal assent, 467, 581, 1095-6, 1476, 2096

Law Clerk and Parliamentary Counsel of the Senate

Appointment of Raymond du Plessis, Esq., Q.C., 2048-9

Law reform

Abortions, 17, 120-1, 188, 838

Drug convictions, 66

Family law, 16-17

Rape victims, 66

Law Reform Commission

Assets distributed through bankruptcy, 661

Benefits available to lower income groups, 660-1

Canadian Welfare article by Prof. Friedland on Law for the Laymen, 661

Composition of commission, 624, 625, 643, 644

Members of legal profession, 625

Part-time commissioners, 644

Quebec representation, 644

Family property and sharing of assets in event of marriage breakup, 624, 643

Judgment debtors, problems through ignorance of law, 661

Law educational system, 625

Legal profession statistics, Quebec and Ontario, 625

Objectives in field of criminal law, family law, code of sentencing and expropriation, etc., 624

Poor man's bankruptcy, 661

Studies of commission to date, 624

Speakers: Senators

Benidickson, W.M., 624-5, 660-1

Choquette, Lionel, 643-4

Law Reform Commission bill C-43. 1r, 583; 2r, 624-5, 643-4, 660-1; ref to com, 661; rep without amdt, 759; 3r, 768; r.a., 832

Lawson, Hon. Edward M.

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1582

Interest rates, 1582

Bank profits, 1582

Labour and industrial negotiations, 1582

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, 2139

Labour, failure of employers to file reports with AIB, 2139

Canadian economy

Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1326-30

BC strike legislation, 1326-7

Labour movement reaction, 1327-8

Supermarkets, 1327; Canada Safeway, 1327

Interest rates, 1327-8

Limit of increase for low-income workers, 1327

'Loopholes' alleged in program, 1329-30

Propane and butane industry employee-employer dispute and withdrawal of essential services, 1328

Trade Union Congress of Britain, statement of policy, 1328-9

US controls, 1329

Lawson, Hon. Edward M. - Concluded

- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2423-5
 - Bank robbery in BC, 'comedy of errors' re, 2424-5
 - Deterrent aspect, 2425
 - Parole violations, 2424
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 374-5
 - Healthways* magazine, excerpt from, 374
 - Misunderstandings by public re purpose of legislation, 374-5
 - Penalties for possession or trafficking of drugs, 375
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 824-5
 - Government policy in conciliation matters, 825
 - Losses to workers and producers from strike action, 825
 - Penalty provision, 824
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 859-61
 - British Columbia salary increases in governmental areas, 860
 - Expense and travel allowances, 860
 - Parliamentary restaurant charges vs tradesmen's free meals, 860
 - Press reaction to parliamentary increases, 859-60
 - Public servants in $60,000 bracket, 860, see 889
 - Retroactive clause, 860
 - Salary scale of judges, reporters, editors, teachers, tradesmen, 857-61
 - Working hours of senators, unjust criticisms of, 860

Leader of the Government in the Senate, Hon. Raymond J. Perrault, P.C.

Deputy, Hon. Léopold Langlois

Leader of the Opposition in the Senate, Hon. Jacques Flynn, P.C.

Deputy, Hon. Allister Grosart

Lefrançois, Hon. J. Eugène

- Boucher, Hon. William A., the late, 2251
- Bourque, Hon. Romuald, the late, 11-12

Legal and Constitutional Affairs, Standing Senate Committee

- Criminal law, subject matter of Bill C-83, an act for the better protection of Canadian society against perpetrators of violent and other crime, ref to com, 1852-3
- Expenses, 213, 525-6, 795
- Meeting in camera, 1770-1
- Meetings during Senate sittings, 505, 542-3, 579, 713, 758, 2216
- Members, 96
- Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest, Green Paper on, ref to com, 774
 - Question of privilege re, 779-81
- Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, motion that financial compensation by federal government be considered by com, 954-5, 962-6; agreed, 966
- Reports
 - Conflict of interest (Members of Parliament), Green Paper on, 2278, 2303-06
 - Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, rep with amdt, 1867-8, 1884-6, 1893-1900
 - Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-83, 2119-20, 2127-8, 2163-6
 - Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill C-370, rep without amdt, 555
 - Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, rep with amdts, 969-71, 983, 1007-21, 1023-33, 1036-8, 1046-9
 - Judges bill C-47, rep without amdt, 1066
 - Law Reform Commission bill C-43, rep without amdt, 759
 - Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001, rep without amdt, 1244

Legal and Constitutional Affairs, Standing Senate Committee - *ConcludedReports - *Concluded

- Parole system in Canada, report tabled, 10
- Representation bill C-36, rep without amdt, 443
- Statute Revision bill S-3, rep without amdt, 243
- Supreme Court bill S-2, rep without amdt, 243
- Territorial Lands bill S-20, rep with amdt, 579
- Televising of committee proceedings, 509-14, 521-3, 543-54
- Motion to approve decision of com, 512-14, 521-3, 543-6; m in amdt, 546-54; m as amended agreed, 554

Leger, Rt. Hon. Jules, His Excellency the Governor General of Canada

- Royal assent, 397, 2450

Liberal Caucus, invitation to members of Opposition, question, 1868Library of Parliament, Joint Committee

- Commemorative dollar for 100th anniversary, 1197
- Commercial use of picture of Parliamentary Library, question, 1729, 1764-5
- Members
 - Commons, 60
 - Senate, 109
- Report of Librarian, First Session of 30th Parliament, 12
- Report of Librarian (1974-75), 2062
- Research staff, 146, 516

Lieutenant governors superannuation

- Appointments after royal assent of bill, 1339
- Contribution rate, 1338
- Inadequacy of remuneration, 1338
- Lieutenant governors not included, 1338
- Members of Parliament retired to office of lieutenant governor, 1339
- Pension at 65 years of age or upon becoming disabled, 1338
- Speakers: Senators
 - Bourget, Maurice, 1337-8, 1339-40
 - Carter, Chesley W., 1339
 - Choquette, Lionel, 1340
 - Flynn, Jacques, 1338-9

Lieutenant Governors Superannuation bill C-23. 1r, 1304; 2r, 1337-40; ref to com, 1340; rep without amdt but with observations, 1369; 3r, 1370; r.a., 1476Loan companies

- Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies, 47, 100-03, 107, 160, 180, 314

Loto Canada, 2160-3, 2168-9, 2191, 2234-5, 2267-9

- Chairman of Board of Directors, 2234
- Crediting of revenues to National Lottery Account and distribution to:
 - Olympic Games deficit, 2234, 2235
 - Physical Fitness, Amateur Sports and Recreation programs, 2234
 - Provincial governments, 2234
- Establishment of Loto Canada by supplementary estimate, question of, 2234-5
 - Federal-provincial consultations, 2235
 - Restriction to 13 draws, 2234
 - Shares, government control, 2234
 - Tabling of annual report, 2234
 - Variations in payments requiring item in estimates, 2234

Lotteries

Loto Canada, 2160-3, 2168-9, 2191, 2234-5, 2267-9
See National lottery, 2163, 2168-9, 2191, 2234-5, 2267-9

Lucier, Hon. Paul Henry

Introduced in the Senate (Nov. 12/75), 1395

Macdonald, Hon. John M., Chief Opposition Whip in the Senate

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 138-42
 Agricultural Products Cooperative Marketing bill C-21, 1631
 Deficiencies in drafting of legislation, 1631
 Agricultural Stabilization bill C-50, 1192-4
 Controlled production, 1193
 Production costs, 1192-3
 Production to alleviate world hunger, 1193
 Stop loss level, 1193
 Support price of 90% over 5 years, 1192
 Top loading, 1193-4
 Alberta-British Columbia Boundary bill S-13, 225
 Anti-Inflation program, National Defence cutbacks in Nova Scotia, 1683, 1716
 Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 406-07
 Bond issue by government, depreciation in value, 140
 Canada Pension Plan bill C-22, 277-8
 Applications and payments, retroactive clause, 277-8
 Assignment or attachment of benefits, 278
 Religious sects, exemption for, 278
 CNR services, Atlantic Provinces, 1924, 1976
 Christian Evangelical Centre of Canada, action of National Revenue Department re, 2354-6
 Citizenship bill C-20, 2092-4, 2323
 Armed forces personnel, 2093
 Land Holding Disclosure Act, NS and Cape Breton Island, 2323
 Language requirement, 2093
 Oath of allegiance and oath of citizenship, 2094
 Reinstatement of citizenship, 2093
 Residency requirement, 2093
 Students, 2093
 Compensation for Former Prisoners of War bill C-92, 2040-1
 Compensation to be not more than 100% disability pension, 2041
 Three months limitation, 2041
 Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30, 1345
 Criminal Law Amendment bill (No.2) C-84, 2410-11
 British law, 2410
 Deterrent aspect, 2410-11
 Medical means as replacement for hanging, 2411
 Montreal statistics on murders, 2411
 Victims of murder, 2411
 Explosives bill S-17, 271-2
 Authorized explosives, 271
 Factories licensed to manufacture explosives, 271
 Offences, 272

Macdonald, Hon. John M., Chief Opposition Whip in the Senate - Continued

- Farm Credit bill C-34, 796-7, 864, 880
 - Age limit, 797, 880
 - Availability of farm land, 797
 - Financial obligation of borrowers, 797
 - Loan statistics, 795
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 138-9
- Inflation, 140-1
 - Government 'restraints', 141
- National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) bill S-23, 833-5
 - Acts deemed traitorous or cowardly exacting death penalty, 834
 - Canadian Catholic Conference, statement issued by, 835
 - Deterrent aspect, 834-5
 - National security, 834
 - Policemen and prison guards, 835
 - Theology and the Death Penalty*, paper issued by Task Force for Abolition of Capital Punishment, 835
 - Violence in administration of justice, 835
- National Housing bill (No.2) C-77, 1676, 1678, 1679, 1680
 - Appraisal of housing costs in various areas, 1678
 - Cooperatives, 1679
 - House price limits, 1676
 - Servicing of land, 1679
- Newfoundland
 - Anniversary of entry into Confederation, 139
 - Transportation, 139-40
 - Inter-city passenger routes, Canadian Press article re, 139-40
 - North Sydney-Cape Breton-Port aux Basques, 139
 - Passenger trains, eastern Canada, 140
- Nova Scotia
 - Destruction of forests and residential property by fire, 2178-9
 - Springhill fire disaster, federal aid for community, 1242
 - Storm damage, 136
- Olympic bill C-63, 1198-1200
 - Deficit forecast, 1199
 - Federal government responsibility for Games, 1199-1200
 - Profit potential from sale of gold coins, 1199
 - Programs of government assistance for Games, 1199
 - Security costs, 1199
 - Trade marks and copyrights, 1199
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1429, 1430, 1431
- Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill S-9, 157
- Public Service Staff Relations bill C-70, 1245
 - Authority of Chairman to appoint outside arbitrator, 1245
 - Backlog of work of board, 1245
 - Term of office of board members, 1245
- Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances) bill C-4, 268-9
- Statute Law (Veterans and Returned Soldiers' Insurance) Amendment bill C-86, 1910-11
- Supreme Court bill S-2, 162
 - Residence requirement for judges, registrars and deputy registrars, 162

Macdonald, Hon. John M., Chief Opposition Whip in the Senate - Concluded

Transportation

BNA Act provisions relating to transportation, 2196-8

Newfoundland ferry service, 2197-8

Newfoundland and Ontario Steamship Ltd., 2198

Shipping, charter rates, 2198

Prince Edward Island, 2196-7

CNR facilities, deterioration of, 2197

Strikes and unemployment, 2197-8

Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, 942-3

Canadian Wheat Board report, excerpt from, 943

Lack of escalator clause, 943

Subsidy for Spring and Durum wheat, 943

Unemployment, 141

Working poor, 141

Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1689-90, 1698, 1701-02, 1703, 1704

Application forms for UI, 1703

Failure of government in economic policies, 1689

Minimum benefit, 1702

Notice of interview, 1702

Persons 65 yrs. and over, 1689-90, 1698

Prison or institutional inmates, 1703

Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C. (Deceased May 28/76)

Tributes, 2176-7

Macnaughton, Hon. Alan A., P.C.

Army Benevolent Fund bill C-17, 303-04

Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Florida meeting, 2221-2, 2224-33

Agenda, 2224

Canada-US relations, 2222

Canadian Centennial coins, presentation to US delegates, 2222

Committee I, 2224-7

Canadian cultural legislation and regulations, 2227

Eastport, 2226

Flathead River, 2225-6

Garrison Diversion project, 2225

Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement, 2225

Law of the Sea, 2226-7

Richelieu-Lake Champlain, 2225

Skagit, 2226

Water boundaries, 2226

West Coast pollution, 2226

Committee II, 2224, 2227-30

Anti-inflation program, 2228

Canada-US automotive agreement, 2227-8

Canadian cultural legislation and regulations, 2229-30

Controls on trade with Cuba, 2229

Extension to Canada of US restrictions on political contributions, 2230

Foreign Investment Review Act, 2229

Multilateral trade negotiations, 2230

Saskatchewan takeover of potash companies, 2228-9

Trans-Border economic issues, 2227

US dumping charges and countervailing duties, 2228

Committee III, 2222, 2224-5, 2230-2

Agriculture, 2232

Energy, 2222, 2230-2

Plenary meeting, 2232

Macnaughton, Hon. Alan A., P.C. - Continued

- Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Quebec meeting, 1137-40, 1145-55
 - Committees and members, 1138
 - Delegates, 1138
 - Designation of meeting places and timetables, 1138
 - Excerpt from speech by Prime Minister Trudeau, 1140
 - Excerpt from speech by US Deputy Secretary of State, 1140
 - Reform of Canadian section of Group, 1137-40
 - Trans-border problems, 1139
 - US Congress contacts, importance of, 1139-40
- Canadian textile problems, 2045, 2055-6
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2280-1
 - Real Property, evidence of Canadian Bar Association, 2280-1
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2418-19
 - Deterrent aspect, 2418
 - Human error in judgment, 2418
 - Montreal Gazette* article re capital punishment, 2418
 - Taking of life, question of right re, 2418
- Environmental Contaminants bill C-25, 1371-2
 - Chemical contamination from industry, 1372
 - Federal-provincial consultations, 1372
 - Major provisions of bill, 1371-2
- Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, 499-501
 - Air transportation, 500
 - Articles for handicapped persons, 500, 501
 - Building materials and water distribution equipment, 500, 501
 - Clothing and footwear, 499, 501
 - Day care centers, 501
 - Liquor, wine, tobacco, 500
 - Transportation equipment, 500, 501
 - Vehicles of high-energy-consuming category, 500
- Excise Tax bill C-66, 1267-71, 1278
 - Air transportation, 1268, 1271
 - Building insulation materials, 1268
 - Businesses and persons eligible for refund, 1267-8
 - Deficit resulting from single oil price policy, 1269
 - Gasoline for personal use and for travel to and from place of business, 1267, 1268, 1269
 - Income tax refunds, 1270-1
 - Method for filing of claims and administration of refunds, 1270
 - Records of gasoline purchases, 1268
 - Wines, 1268
- International Air Transport Association bill S-18, 301-03
- Japan, delegation from House of Councillors, visitors to Senate, 2364
- Martin, Hon. Paul, resignation from the Senate, 210
- National Commercial Bank of Canada bill S-24, 1057
- National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77 (Chairman, Committee of the Whole), 1673-81
- Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37, 1038-40
 - Courts of criminal jurisdiction, 1040
 - Detainment, seizure or forfeiture of ships and aircraft, 1039-40
 - Dumping by aircraft over land, 1040
 - Exceptional circumstances involving safety of human life, 1039
 - London Convention on ocean dumping control, 1038-9
 - Oslo Convention, 1039

Macnaughton, Hon. Alan A., P.C. - Concluded

Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37 - Concluded

Penalties for contravention of act, 1039

Permits for dumping, 1039

Times, rates of disposal, etc., compatible with protection of marine environment, 1039

Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 981-2

Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1601

Commercial production deadline, 1601

Grants, repayable grants, loan guarantees, 1601

Program statistics, 1601

Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, (Chairman of Committee of the Whole), 2203-07

Speaker pro tem, 239

Unemployment Insurance bill C-69 (Chairman, Committee of the Whole), 1695-1706

Manitoba

Indian Brotherhood, meeting with senators, 290-1

Request to appear before Senate committee, 315-16

Manning, Hon. Ernest C., P.C.

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 68-71

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1579

Canadian economy

Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1303, 1349-53

Credibility of government program, question of, 1350-1

Demands vs productivity, 1350

Government expenditures, federal and provincial, 1351-2

Bilingualism program, 1352

Olympic entertainment, 1352

Salaries of top-level officials, 1352

Studies of toilet facilities, offices, industrial plants, etc., 1352

Translation services, 1352

Work force, 1352

Government role in inflationary trend, 1350

Psychological reactions to controls, 1350, 1352-3

Solving of inflation by

Lessening of external pressures involving trading partners, 1353

Productivity, 1353

Self-discipline, 1353

Temporary aspect of controls, 1350

Unsatisfactory results of wage and price controls, 1351; US publication re, 1351

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 530-1

Distinction between punishment for murders of policemen and others, 529

Royal prerogative, 529-30

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2413-15

Alternatives to death by hanging, 2414

Deterrent aspect, 2415

Permissive society, 2414

Premeditated murder, 2414

Principle of justice, abandonment of, 2414

Prison term, 2414

Responsibility of members of Parliament, 2414

Sanctity of human life, 2414

Drury, Hon. Charles Mills, resignation offer and rejection by Prime Minister, 1891

Manning, Hon, Ernest C., P.C. - Continued

- Economic conditions and prospects, 69-71
 - Arab nations monopoly in oil industry, 69-70
 - Athabasca Tar Sands and Mackenzie River pipeline, 70-71
 - Canada-US trade relations, 70
 - Commodity price determination, 69; transportation costs, 70
 - Energy resources and establishment of Petro-Canada, 69
 - Financial Times* of Canada editorial, 69
 - Oil prices, 69-70, 71
- Energy
 - Government policy re Canadian ownership of companies developing oil and gas on crown lands, 2159-60, 2210
- Excise Tax and Excise bill C-40, 573
 - Unlicensed wholesalers, 573
- Federal-provincial relations, dispute re resource revenue taxation, inquiry withdrawn, 660
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 405-06, 1014-15, 1016, 1037-8
 - Application for withdrawal of criminal record, 1038
 - Drug control vs gun control, 1015
 - Drug subculture, dangers to youth, 1016
 - 'Give', definition of, 1015, 1016
 - Parole or pardon, 1038
 - Penalty for trafficking, 1015
- Gasoline excise tax, 1112
- Immigration, presence in Canada of Xaviera Hollander and Gerda Munsinger, 1013
- Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 630-4
 - Oil industry, 631-2
 - Alberta oil royalties, 632
 - Natural Resources Transfer Agreements, 632, 633
 - Political price determination, 631-2
 - Syncrude project, 633-4
- Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65, 1422
 - Alberta royalties on resources, 1422
 - Interest and dividends credit for man and wife, 1422
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1931-3, 2326-7, 2328
 - Broadcasting, 1932, 2326, 2327, 2328
 - Canada-US relations, 1932
 - Canada-US treaty negotiations, question of, 1933
 - Canadian ownership of and advertising in periodicals, percentage stipulations, 1932
 - Canadian publication, definition of, 2326
 - MD of Canada*, 1933
 - Time*, 1932
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 744
- Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to Argentina, 1975, 2142
- Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to India, 1859-60, 1869, 1975
- Olympic bill C-63, 1201, 1202
 - Regional aspect of Games location, 1201
 - Western attitude towards potential deficit, 1201
- Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 568-9, 965-6
 - Alberta, 965, 966
 - British Columbia, 965
 - Federal-provincial negotiations re RCMP, 569, 965
 - Newfoundland, request for use of RCMP during labour strike, 965-6
 - Option of provinces, 965
 - Police forces in metropolitan centers, 966

Manning, Hon, Ernest C., P.C. - Concluded

- Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 902-06, 907
 - Consumer protection, 903
 - Control of profits to insure reinvestment in exploration and development, 905-06
 - Crude oil prices, 903, 904
 - Dwindling of irreplaceable resources, 903
 - Elements creating instability and uncertainty in oil exploration, 904-05
 - Exchange of energy between US and Canada in certain regions, 905
 - Federal-provincial relations and national unity in solving of problems, 903-04
 - Political price fixing, 902-06
 - Tax on exports to US, 903
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1410
- Senate
 - Monday evening sittings, question of, 1877-8
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 875-8
 - Commons members, suggestion for graduated increase on re-election, 875
 - Comparison with news editors, entertainers, athletes, etc., 877
 - Cost of living index and industrial composite index, 877-8
 - Inflationary trends and restraints, 876-7
 - Leadership of members of Parliament in crisis of wage demands and of prices, 877
 - Press reaction and unjustified reports to proposed salary increases, 876
 - Public servants in $60,000 bracket, 876, see 889
 - Senators, members of Commons, provincial premiers, comparison of workload and remuneration, 878
 - Service to the public, primary importance of, 876
 - Suggestion for automatic fixed-dollar salary increase, 875, 876, 878
- Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2205
- Televising of committee proceedings, 548
- Trade
 - Balance of payments, deficit, 877
 - Inflationary trends affecting export markets, 877
- Transportation, 70
- United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention, status of Palestinian Liberation Organization as participants, 1166
- West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 80-81
 - Termination date of agreement, 80-81

Manpower and Immigration Department

- Manpower Division, motion to authorize com to examine and report on estimates for, 400-01, 419-20; agreed, 420
 - Questions of National Finance Committee, 401
 - Responsibilities and functions of Manpower Division, 400-01
 - West Germany economic development, report on, 419-20; unemployment and inflation plans re, 419

Marine safety

- Air and sea rescue, request for location of unit in Newfoundland, 1860
- British Columbia fisheries, 1814-15, 1860

Maritimes

- See* Atlantic provinces and names of individual provinces

Marriage Law Exemption (Richard Fritz and Marianne Strass) bill C-1001. 1r, 1233; 2r, 1233-4; ref to com, 1234; suspension of rule 95, 1234-5; rep without amdt, 1244; 3r, 1251-2, 1257-9; r.a., 1281

Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., former Leader of the Government in the Senate (Resigned Oct. 30/74)
Farewell speech to Parliament on appointment to office of High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, 207-08
Tributes, 208-12

Martland, Hon. Ronald, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court
Deputy Administrator of the Government of Canada, 1-2

Matheson, Hon. Alexander W., the late, former Premier of Prince Edward Island, 1861-3

McDonald, Hon. A. Hamilton

Aeronautics bill S-34, 2125
Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1580-1
Food prices, 1587
Termination clause, constitutionality of, 1580-1
Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91, 1986
Boucher, Hon. William A., the late, 2251
Canadian economy
Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1326
Citizenship bill C-20, 2283-4
Alien ownership of land, Saskatchewan, 2283, 2284
Powers of Lieutenant Governor in Council, 2283
Compensation for Former Prisoners of War bill C-92, 2041-2
Evaders and escapees, 2042
Three months' limitation, 2042
Widows' allowances, 2042
Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2427-8
Defensive attitude of society, 2428
Deterrent aspect, 2428
Escapees from Manitoba institution and aftermath of crime, 2428
"Santa Claus" murders, 2428
Electoral Boundaries Readjustment (Bruce) bill C-228, 601
Estimates
Lockheed long-range patrol aircraft, 1986
Farm Credit bill C-34, 788-91, 806-07, 863, 864
Age limit, 788, 789, 807, 863
Agriculture investments, 790
Availability of farm land, 806-07
Capital fund of corporation, 789, 790, 807
Full-time and part-time farming, 789
Interest rate, 789, 791
Loans in relation to mortgage capacity or productivity of real estate, 789, 790-1
Maximum loan, 788
Repayment record, 788
Security, 791
Statistics on persons involved in farming, 864
Western farming, 864
Feeds bill S-10, 158-9
Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 81

McDonald, Hon. A. Hamilton - Continued

- Fire Losses Replacement Account bill C-18, 338
 - Yukon and Northwest Territories, insurable properties and premiums, 338
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1019, 1026
 - Advertising of drugs by means of give-away, 1019
 - 'Give', definition of, 1019
- Indian Oil and Gas bill C-15, 337-8, 352-3
 - Alberta oil, royalties to Indian Bands, 337-8
 - Consultation with Indian Bands, 362
 - Oil prices and increased revenue from 337-8
- Interparliamentary conferences, delegations to, 1490
 - Interparliamentary Advisory Committee to study and rule on, 1490, 1494
- Marine safety, British Columbia fisheries, 1815, 1860
- North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1489-94
 - Armed forces in Europe, 1489-93
 - Canadian troops, 1491-2, 1493; newspaper article re, 1493
 - Central Europe and Warsaw Pact countries, 1491
 - Equipment statistics, various countries, 1490-2; aircraft, Lockheed P-3 Orion, 1492, tanks, Leopard and Centurion, 1492, 1494
 - Nuclear power, 1490-1
 - Reserves, 1494
 - US military bases in Spain, 1493
 - Canada's defence policy, 1493
 - Canadian delegation, 1490
 - Energy resources, protection of, 1492-3
- North Atlantic Assembly, London conference, 342-7
 - Canadian delegation, 344
 - Canadian troops in Lahr and Baden, and equipment for, 345-6
 - Defence of the Western European Union, 348
 - Mutual and balanced force reductions, 344-5
 - NATO, 342-5
 - Oil crisis, 344
 - Problems in Cyprus, Greece, Turkey and Middle East, 345
 - Replacement of aircraft, 345
 - USSR maritime forces, 345
 - USSR territorial gains as result of World War II, 342-3
- Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10, 595-7, 621-2
 - Corporate farms, partnerships, cooperatives or farming enterprise, 596
 - Elevator companies, question of commission for, 596
 - Increase in advance payment to $15,000, 595
 - Investment of cash advance payments, 622
 - Option to deliver on quota system or offboard sales, 596
- Rules of the Senate
 - Reference of items to National Finance Committee, 1109
 - Televising of committee proceedings, 553-4
- Transportation
 - BNA Act provisions re transportation, 2220, 2221, 2333-4
- Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, 1089
- West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 81-82
 - Basic hourly rate for grain handlers, 82; disparity in labour rates, 82
 - Farmers' payments for grain, 82
 - Government intervention in dispute and effects of, 82
 - Loss of working days through conciliation delays, 81-82

McDonald, Hon. A. Hamilton - Concluded

- Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41, 1723-6, 1737-8, 1766
 - Administration of act, 1725, 1737
 - Advisory committee, 1725
 - Branch offices, question of, 1737
 - Crop insurance, 1737
 - Depreciation costs, 1737
 - Eligibility to participate, 1724-5
 - Instability of agricultural income, 1723
 - Payments vs contributions, 1723-4
 - Production costs, 1724
 - Retirement of farmer or sale of operation, 1724, 1725
 - Tax reductions and payments, 1724, 1726
 - Voluntary participation in plan, 1724
- Wheat Board bill (No. 2) C-88, 2315-17, 2333
 - Advisory committee
 - Election of new committee, 2316
 - Members, 2315, 2316
 - Payments to members, 2316
 - Costs of pooling account, 2316
 - Malting barley, 2315-16, 2333
 - Provision for further pools by order in council, 2317

McElman, Hon. Charles

- Broadcasting, appearance of Gerda Munsinger on CBC television program, 1618, 1619
- Crime and violence, 1646-7
 - Motion that subject matter be ref to Health, Welfare and Science Committee, 1647
 - Terms of reference of proposed committee, question of, 1647
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 688-92
 - Administration of law, objections of sponsor of bill, 688-9
 - Clemency recommendation, 688
 - Constitutionality of bill, question of, 688
 - Federal government process of enacting law, 691-2
 - Fredericton meeting of students at University of NB, 690
 - Liberal Party convention decision on capital punishment, 689
 - Miscarriage of justice, 691
 - Moncton meeting of parliamentarians, law enforcement officers and others, 689-90
 - Murders of recent date of police officers, 689
 - Pre-sentence report, 691
 - Responsibility of jury, 690-1
 - Royal prerogative of mercy, 690
 - Treason and sea piracy, 688
 - US judicial system, 691, 692; Canadian Press report published in Saint John Telegraph Journal, 692
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, tribute on occasion of resignation from the Senate, 968
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1077
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1159-61, 1169-70
 - Cost-sharing of insecticide spraying, 1159-60
 - Cropping of affected areas, 1161
 - Damaging side effects of DDT and other chemicals, 1160
 - Federal-responsibility, 1160-1
 - Maple and Birch 'dieback', 1160
 - New Brunswick dependence on forest industry, 1158
 - Provincial efforts to combat problem, 1169-70

McElman, Hon. Charles - Concluded

- Income tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1938-46
 - Bill C-118 (1965), excerpts from debate on, 1938-9, 1940, 1943
 - Broadcasting, 1944
 - Bellingham station, 1944-5
 - Canadian advertising on US stations, expenditures on, 1944
 - Canada-US relations, 1944-5
 - Canadian ownership of and advertising in periodicals, percentage stipulations, 1939
 - Canadian Periodical Publishers' Association*, letter from, 1944
 - 'Dumping' of textiles in Sherbrooke, Quebec, by American-owned subsidiary, 1942
 - O'Leary Royal Commission, excerpt from report, 1939-40
 - Statements by
 - Hon. Grattan O'Leary, 1939-41
 - Hon. Salter Hayden, 1941-2
 - Right Hon. John G. Diefenbaker, 1938-9
 - Telegraph-Journal*, St. John, NB, article re Canada-US border TV war, 1945
 - Time Canada* and Reader's Digest, 1938-9, 1942, 1943
 - Advertising rates to Canadian advertisers, 1943
 - Dumping of cost-free content, 1943
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 742, 743-4
- Senate business, 1916
- Televising of committee proceedings, 509, 510-11, 512, 513, 543-6

McGrand, Hon. Fred A.

- Animal Contagious Diseases bill C-28, 1632-3
 - Artificial insemination centres, 1632-3
 - Compensation for diseased animals, 1632
 - Export health certification, 1632, 1633
 - Foreign meats arriving in Canadian waters, 1633
 - Garbage feeding, 1633
 - Maintenance of deadyards and rendering plants, 1632
 - Quarantine, 1634
 - Transportation and care of animals, 1633
 - Tuberculosis, brucellosis, hog cholera, 1632
- Crime and violence, special Senate committee proposed, 916-22
 - Abortion, 917
 - Anatomy of Human Aggression*, by Eric Fromm, 917
 - Capital punishment, 917
 - Child abuse, 918-19
 - Murderers who have suffered parental cruelty, 918
 - UK investigations, 918
 - Crime and Punishment as ritual of life*, excerpt from article by Dr. Carl Menninger, 920
 - Enuresis, Fire Setting and Cruelty to Animals: a Triad Predictive of Adult Crime*, 919
 - Guns, freedom of purchase, 920-1
 - Human Aggression*, by Dr. Anthony Storr, 917
 - 'Jungle made by humans for humans', 917
 - New Zealand, low crime rate, 920
 - Penal system failure, 921
 - Physical punishment and loss of freedom, 917-18
 - Psychopathic Personality, Sociopathic Personality and Character Neurosis, excerpt from address by Prof. James McHorter, 919-20
 - Rehabilitation of convicted murderers, 921
 - Religious sects in pacifist role, 917
 - Society's ignorance of causes of crime, 921
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 404-05

McGrand, Hon. Fred A. - Concluded

- Quarantine bill S-31, 1778-80
 - Cleansing or removal of infested or contaminated conveyance, 1779
 - Detention by quarantine officer or permission to proceed, 1779
 - Referral of detention order to superior court judge, 1779
 - Extension of provisions to include other dangerous diseases, 1779
 - Medical examination, 1779-80

McIlraith, Hon. George J., P.C.

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1577
 - Termination clause, 1577
- British North America Acts 1867 to 1975 bill C-3, 1054
 - Appointment of senators from NWT and Yukon, 1054
 - Residence requirement, 1054
- Canada-United States relations, 228-9
- Canadian Film Industry, academy award to Crawley Films Ltd., of Ottawa, 2003
- Clerk's Scroll, 1667, 1685
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2430, 2433-6, 2439
 - Commutations, 2434
 - Deterrent aspect, 2434-5
 - Excerpt from speech of Opposition leader, 2434
 - First degree murder, 2435
 - Responsibility of members of Parliament to electors, 2435, 2439
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 880-4, 885
 - Motion to amend com rep, 880-2, 883
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1011, 1015-16, 1019, 1020, 1021, 1023-5, 1026, 1027
 - Conditional or unconditional pardon, 1023-4
 - Drug trials cited, 1024, 1026, 1027
 - 'Give', and 'traffic', definition of, 1015, 1020, 1024-5, 1027
 - Legal and illegal distribution of drugs, 1020
 - Onus of proof for possession or trafficking, 1011
 - Penalty, 1015, 1023
 - Possession of cannabis, trafficking, importing or exporting, 1023
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1925-9
 - Broadcasting, 1928
 - Bellingham station, 1928
 - Canadian advertising in US market, 1928
 - Reciprocal agreements between governments, 1928
 - Canadian ownership of and advertising in periodicals, percentage stipulations, 1926, 1927
 - Freedom of the press, interference with, 1927
 - MD of Canada*, 1926
 - 'Substantially the same as', question of interpretation of phrase, 1926-7
 - Excerpt from Commons Debates re, 1927
 - Time and Reader's Digest*, 1927
- National Capital Region, proposed study by joint committee, 229
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 742, 743-4
 - Forgiveness provision for municipalities, 744
 - Housing starts, decrease in, 742
 - New homes, mortgage provisions, 743
 - Non-profit and cooperative housing, 743
 - Rentals, 743
 - Sewage treatment grants, 743-4
 - Statutory limits for making and insuring loans, 744

McIlraith, Hon. George J., P.C. - Concluded

- National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1667-9, 1671, 1672-3
 - Assisted home ownership restrictions, 1668
 - Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., 1669
 - Grants to municipalities, 1669
 - Housing target, 1673
 - Interest-free loans, 1668
 - Investment in public and private residential construction, annual, 1668
 - Servicing of land, 1668-9
- Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 963-5
 - Coordination and cooperation of various police forces, 964
 - Financial obligation of province to pay for provincial force, 964
 - Newfoundland, request of use of RCMP during labour problems, 965
 - RCMP work in matters under federal jurisdiction, 964-5
- Public Service Employment, Staff Relations, Superannuation, Interpretation bill C-38, 464-5, 466
 - Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet, 465, 466; responsibilities, 466
 - Privy Council functions, 465
- Rules of the Senate
 - Committee reports, referral back to com or to Committee of the Whole for reconsideration 883-4
 - Precedents cited in excerpts from Senate Journals, 883
- Rules of the Senate, report of Committee on Standing Rules and Orders, 1360-3, 1423, 1424, 1425, 1426, 1464
 - Adoption of report, motion for, 1360
 - Forms and proceedings, 1360
 - Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee, 1423, 1424, 1426
 - Parliamentary reform, 1360
 - Powers and duties of committees, 1423-4
 - Principle of bill, debating of at second reading, 1361, 1363
 - Printing of rules as appendix to current debate, 1361
 - 'Question' or 'matter', definition of, 1361, 1363
 - Quotations of speeches made in Commons, 1360, 1464
 - Standing Rules and Orders Committee, 1424
 - Terms of reference of committees, 1361-2
 - Unanimous consent, 1362
- Senate business, 221, 222
- Speaker pro tem, 833
- West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 730

Medical care

- Ceiling on federal payments, 2317-18, 2338, 2340-1, 2365, 2367, 2369-70, 2372-3
- Costs (1975), 2369; provincial per capital costs, 2370-1
- Excerpt from speeches of Hon. Mr. MacEachen (1966), 2339-40
- Expenditures, anti-inflation program effect on, 2365
- Federal-provincial conferences, 2342-3, 2367, 2373
- Immigration of physicians, 2367
- New Brunswick refusal to participate in program, 2357
- Nursing homes, 2358-9, 2366, 2374; NB, 2358-9
- Physicians' fees, 2372
- Provincial percentage increases (1975-76), 2368
- Provincial reactions to legislation, 2341-2
- Provincial responsibilities, 2365
- Psychiatrists and physiotherapists, 2368-9
- Quebec, 2358-9, 2370
- Seat belts vs accidents and medical care, 2367-8
- Statement of Hon. Mr. Macnaughton, 2341

Medical care - Concluded

Statement of Hon. Mr. Robarts (1966), 2339
 Statistics on accidents and medical care, 2368
 Victoria conference of provincial health ministers, 2342

Speakers: Senators

Burchill, G. Percival, 2358-9
 Denis, Azellus, 2317-18
 Flynn, Jacques, 2359
 Grosart, Allister, 2359
 Langlois, Leopold, 2359
 Phillips, Orville H., 2357-8
 Smith, G. I., 2338-44
 Sullivan, Joseph A., 2339

also

Lalonde, Hon. Marc, Minister of Health and Welfare, 2236-75

Medical Care bill C-68. 1r, 2307; 2r, 2317-18, 2338-44, 2356-9, 2364-6; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Hon. Alan A. Macnaughton in the Chair, Hon. Marc Lalonde, Minister of Health and Welfare, taking part in debate, 2366-75; rep without amdt, 2375; 3r, 2378; r.a., 2450

Meighen, Rt. Hon. Arthur, the late, question re removal of portrait from Commons corridor, 53, 564

Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest, Green Paper on, 373, 573-4, 580, 774, 779-81

Ref to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 774

Question of privilege re, 779-81

Mexico, communique of Parliamentary delegation to Canada, 1874, 1887-8

Delegation members, Mexico and Canada, 1887-8

Economic Rights and Duties of States, Charter of, 1887

Tour agenda, 1887

Trade negotiations, 1887

Two hundred mile economic zone ('Patrimonial Sea'), 1887

Mexico, visit of Canadian Parliamentarians, 775-7, 852-3, 930-3

Agriculture, 931, 932

Banff School of Advanced Management, visits to other countries, 930-1

Canadians retired in Mexico, 776-7

Exchange of cultural exhibitions, 776-7

Exchange of visits of parliamentarians and businessmen, 932-3

Housing, 931

Industrial development, 931, 932

Influence in international policies, 775

Joint ministerial meetings, Canada-Mexico, 775

Political system, 776, 853

Chamber of Deputies, 776

Institutional Revolutionary Party and other parties, 776

President, 776

Seasonal agricultural workers in Canada, 777

Standard of living, Canada-Mexico, 775

Tariff preferences for developing countries, 852

Tourism, 853, 931-2

Trade, Canada-Mexico, 776-7, 852-3

Mexico, visit of Canadian Parliamentarians - Concluded

- Women, status of
 - Chamber of Deputies, 776
 - Equality before law and in all aspects of life, legislation for, 777
 - National programs for family planning, etc., 777
 - Social improvement, 777
- Speakers: Senators
 - Cameron, Donald, 930-3
 - Fergusson, Muriel McQueen, 775-7
 - Flynn, Jacques, 852-3

Michaud, Hon. Herve J.

- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 580-1
 - Deterrent aspect, 581
 - Organized crime society, 581
 - Television portrayals of violence, 580-1
- Crop insurance programs, 1622-3
 - Maritimes crop insurance, 1622-3
 - Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, 1622
 - Spot loss insurance, 1622-3
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 803-05
 - Agricultural production, worldwide need, 803-04
 - French language literature in regard to legislation, 805
 - Full-time and part-time farmers, 803
 - Security requirements, 804
 - Small farms development, 804-05
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1160
 - Christmas tree industry, 1169
 - Smallholdings and farmers' woodlots, 1169
 - Statistics on NB forestry ownership, 1169
- New Brunswick economic conditions, 1750-4
 - Acadian heritage, 1753-4
 - Statement of Antonine Maillet, authoress, 1754
 - Agricultural problems, 1751
 - Agronomy students at Laval and Moncton Universities, 1753
 - Inquiry of Senate Agriculture Committee, 1751
 - Meeting of Senate Agriculture Committee and results of, 1753
 - Prospects for young people in farming profession, 1752
 - Statements of Prime Minister and of Agriculture Minister re, 1751
 - Bilingualism, lack of, 1752
 - Globe and Mail* article, 'NB Credit Unions show different approach of French and English', 1752
 - Improvement project in northeastern NB, Evangeline article re, 1753
 - Memramcook Institute as training centre, recommendation re, 1752
 - RC clergy declaration in support of northeast area, 1750-1
- Small Farms Development Program
 - Farm management consultants, 2079
 - Number of loans approved for provinces, 1197-8, 1213

Migratory bird sanctuaries

- Warden services for sanctuaries in the Maritime provinces, contracts for, 279

Ministers of House of Commons taking part in Senate proceedings

- Andras, Hon. Robert K., Minister of Manpower and Immigration
 - Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1695-1706
- Danson, Hon. Barnett, P.C., Minister of State for Urban Affairs
 - National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 748-57
 - National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1673-81
- Lalonde, Hon. Marc, Minister of Health and Welfare
 - Medical Care bill C-68, 2366-75

Molgat, Hon. Gildas L.

- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill C-370, 526-8, 536-7
 - Commissions, members and powers of, 526-7, 536-7
 - Geographic considerations in establishing constituencies, 527, 536
 - Rural and northern constituencies, 527
- Estimates, year ending Mar.31/77, 2190
- Fort-Falls Bridge Authority bill C-367, 851-2
 - Agreement between governments of US and Canada for reconstruction of bridge, 851-2
 - Date of commencement, 851
- Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1849-52
 - Auto pact, 1849
 - Communist world contracts, 1850
 - Economic blocs, development throughout world, 1850
 - Economic Council of Canada report, 1850, 1851
 - Imports, competition to Canadian products, 1850
 - Multi-national corporations, 1850
 - Textile and other manufacturing, problems of, 1851-2
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo conference, 234-8
 - Arab-Israeli conflict, 236
 - Briefing of delegates, 237
 - Organizational meetings on energy, iron and steel, education, environment and pollution, 235
 - Population trends and economic and social development, 235-6, 237
 - Resolutions presented, 235-6
 - UN Conference on World Population, 236
- New Brunswick economic conditions, 2033
- Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No.2) C-53, 1156-7, 1167-8
 - Damp or tough grain, 1156
 - Date of coming into force, 1157
 - Limitation to wheat, oats and barley, 1167
 - Offboard sales, 1156-7
 - Provisions re initial price, interest, deliveries, etc., 1156
 - Unharvested grain, 1156
- Regulations re attendance of senators, 1934-5
 - Travel distance, 1934
- Two-Price Wheat bill C-19, 928
 - Bread prices, 928
 - Price of wheat for consumption in Canada, 928
 - Production costs, 928
 - Subsidy to producers and consumers, 928
- Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1687-9, 1694-5
 - Advance payment, 1688
 - Background of unemployment insurance, 1687
 - Dependency reduction from 75% to 66 $\frac{2}{3}$ %, 1694
 - Extension of qualifying period, 1688
 - Leaving employment voluntarily, 1687
 - Overlap between unemployment insurance and other social security measures, 1687, 1694

Molgat, Hon. Gildas L. - *Concluded*Unemployment Insurance bill C-69 - Concluded

Persons 65 yrs. and over, 1688, 1694

Retirement benefit, 1688

Sharing of costs between employees, employers and government, 1688-9, 1695

Sick benefits, 1688

Social insurance number, 1688

Social security measures, increase in benefits (1971-74), 1694-5

Termination of claim, 1688

United Grain Growers Limited bill S-33, 1924-5, 1930

Molson, Hon. Hartland de M.

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1573-4

Government expenditures, 1574

Termination clause, constitutionality of, 1574

Motion for amdt re, 1574

Construction industry in Quebec, pardon granted to Dede Desjardins, 1035, 1066

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2406, 2436-8, 2444

Deterrent aspect, 2436

Organized crime, Montreal, 2436-7

Policemen, possible attitudes of self-preservation, 2437-8

Prison reform, 2437

Prison term, 2438

Question of privilege re press report, 2406

Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee

Unauthorized release to press of draft report, 1755-6

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/77, 2190-1

Fisheries

Extension to 200-mile coastal jurisdiction, 2208, 2377

Rights of MicMac Indians of Cross Point Reserve to fish Atlantic salmon, 2208, 2264

Gelinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe, the late, 1714

Immigration, presence in Canada of Xaviera Hollander and Gerda Munsinger, 1007, 1013

Judges bill C-47, 1042

Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, meeting with senators, 291

Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., resignation from the Senate, 212

Palestinian Liberation Organization, position taken by Canadian delegation at United Nations meeting, 110, 137-8

Parliament Buildings, use of Senate rooms by members of House of Commons and others, 110

Parole, consideration of changes in present system, 1371

Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to Paris, news report re accompanying officials, 161, 180

Public Works, Langevin Building, costs of renovations under headings of structural, mechanical, decoration and communications, 2243

Rules and Orders Committee

Appointment of chairman, 577

Authority to reprint rules, 1537

Commencement date of amendments contained in report, 1537; order rescinded, new date authorized, 1720

Rules of the Senate

Point of order re motion presented and seconded by senators not present, 944

Rules of the Senate, report of Committee on Standing Rules and Orders, 1317-18, 1331-6, 1355-64, 1423, 1424, 1425, 1426, 1464-6

Absence of senators, 1359

Adjournment of debate for prolonged period, 1465-6

Adoption of report, one day's notice of motion, 1357

Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, terms of reference, 1357

Molson, Hon. Hartland de M. - *ConcludedRules of the Senate - *Concluded

- Bilingual form of bills originating in Senate, 1357, 1360
- Committee of the Whole, procedure for discussion in, 1362
- Declaration of property qualification, 1359
- Ex officio* members of committees, 1358
- Forms and proceedings of the Parliament of Canada, 1356, 1362-3
- Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee, 1357, 1364, 1424, 1464-5
- Joint Committee on Library of Parliament and Other Shared Services, 1359
- Limitation of senator speaking only once in any debate, 1356
- Motion to refer matters to committee, 1357-8, 1363-4
- Motions during debate, 1356
- Motions for which no notice is required (matters of urgent public importance), 1357, 1363
- Oral questions, 1356, 1465
- Organization of committees, 1358
- Powers and duties of committees, 1424
- Preservation of order and decorum in Senate, 1356
- Previous question, 1357
- Principle of bill, debating of at second reading, 1363, 1464-5
- Private bills
 - Deposit of bill and fees, 1359
 - Substantial amendments, notice of, 1359
- Procedure when Speaker leaves the chamber, 1356
- 'Question', or 'matter', definition of, 1363
- Quorum of committees, 1358, 1465
- Quotations from speeches made in Commons, 1356, 1359, 1360, 1363, 1465
- Recalling of Senate earlier than set forth in motion for adjournment, 1356
- Reports from committees, 1359
- Select committees, 1357
- Senator's final reply to inquiry on second reading of bill, 1356
- Speaker addressing house, 1357
- Special procedure or practice in committee, approval of Senate for, 1358, 1364
- Time of daily sittings, 1364
- St. Lawrence Islands National Park, government expenditures on, 1549-50, 1588
- Senate and House of Commons Act
 - Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, 951
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 874
- Senate business, 482, 484
- Televising of committee proceedings, 509, 512-13

Money bills

- Senate authority to amend, 1656-9
- See* Appropriation bills,
- Estimates.

Morgentaler, Dr. Henry

- Abortion charges, 1036, 1732, 1742-6, 1767-8
 - Admission of facts but denial of guilt, 1745, 1746
 - Canadian Institute of Public Opinion*, survey results, 1767, 1774
 - Excerpts from notes of supreme court judges, 1773
 - Jury decision, reversal by court of appeal, 1767-8
 - Statement of Past President of Bar Association, 1773-4

Motor vehicle tire safety

Maintaining and enforcing standards, 126
 National tire safety mark, 126, 150
 Regulations, lack of information on, 150-1
 Replacement tires, 125

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 2069
 Haig, J. Campbell, 149-51
 Hicks, Henry D., 151-2
 Langlois, Leopold, 2066-8
 Neiman, Joan, 125-6, 152
 Perrault, Raymond J., 150, 151

Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8. 1r, 47; 2r, 125-6, 149-52; 3r, 161; Commons amdts, 1048, 2066-8; r.a., 2096

Multiculturalism

Ministry of State, organization and budget, 742, 849, 866

Narcotics

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code, 300, 354-62, 366-8, 374-5, 382-5, 402-06, 446-54, 456, 969-71, 983, 1007-11, 1014-21, 1023-33, 1036-8, 1046-9, 1066, 1074-80
 Study of legislation by Senate committee, question re, 316

National Arts Centre

Reception for English- and French-speaking artists in Speaker's Chambers, 2003

National Capital Region, Special Joint Committee

Members

Commons, 1174
 Senate, 1133

Message from Commons, 1097

Message to Commons, 1126

Reports

First report, Committee quorum, 1237
 Second report, services of advisers and staff, 1914

Terms of reference, 1097, 1126

National Commercial Bank of Canada

Assets of Canadian domestic banks, statistics re, 959-60
 Authorized capital and shares, 935, 960
 Branch offices, 936, 959, 961
 Comparative United States and Canadian banking statistics, 959
 Head office, 935
 Name of bank, possible conflict re, 960, 974
 Pension funds of crown corporations, investment of, 973-4
 Provisional directors and shareholders, background of, 936, 961-2
 Risk financing, 960
 Specialty operations, 936, 960
 Sponsor (Boyd, Stott & McDonald Limited), 936
 Term deposits, 961
 'Wholesale bank', 936, 973

National Commercial Bank - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Everett, Douglas D., 961-2
 Flynn, Jacques, 973-4
 Grosart, Allister, 958-61
 Hays, Harry, 935-6, 974
 Laird, Keith, 1062-3

National Commercial Bank of Canada (Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank) bill S-24. 1r, 923; 2r, 935-6, 958-62, 973-4; ref to com, 974; rep with amdts, 1057, 1062-3; 3r, 1063; r.a., 1281

National Defence

Defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, report in Globe and Mail, 2122-3

National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment)

Acts deemed traitorous or cowardly exacting death penalty, 834
 Canadian Catholic Conference, statement issued by, 835
 Communication between public and members of Parliament, question of, 895-6
 Crime increase, 835-6
 Montreal kidnappings, 835
 Violation of parole conditions, 836
 Deterrent aspect, 800, 834-5, 840
 Doctrine of atonement, 894
 Government attitude towards total abolition of death sentence, 800
 Law and order, tyrannical use of phrase throughout history, 840-1
 Murder of Chicago boy, 894-5, 896
 Excerpt from autobiography of Nathan Leopold, convicted killer, 895
 Murders of Toronto policemen cited, 800, 801
 National security, 834
 Occupational hazards vs loss of life, 801
 Opinions of prominent lawyers, 894
 Parole or leave of absence records, 801
 Policemen and prison guards, 835
 Quality of mercy, 894
 Rehabilitation, 895
 Royal prerogative of mercy, 894
 Statistics on killings of policemen, 801
Theology and the Death Penalty, paper issued by Task Force for Abolition of Capital Punishment, 835
 UK Royal Commission on Capital Punishment, conclusion of, 841
 Violence in administration of justice, 835

Speakers: Senators

Argue, Hazen, 800-02, 1459
 Beaubien, L.P., 835-6
 Carter, Chesley W., 893
 Greene, John J., 893-6
 Macdonald, John M., 833-5
 O'Leary, M. Grattan, 840-1

National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) bill S-23. 1r, 643; 2r, 800-02, 833-6, 840-1, 893-6, Order stands, 1168, 1297-8, 1459, 1816-18, 1836, 1848-9

National Finance, Standing Senate Committee

Auditor General of Canada, report of Independent Review Committee, question of referral to com, 796
 Authority to publish and distribute report on Manpower Division estimates, 2208

National Finance, Standing Senate Committee - Concluded

Budget for expenditure re study of legislation, 525, 795, 1088, 1337, 2119

Counsel and staff, engagement of, 351

Estimates, authority to examine and report on

Year ending Mar. 31/75, 108

Supplementary (A), 108

Supplementary (B), 300

Supplementary (C), 441-2

Supplementary (D), 586

Year ending Mar. 31/76, 555

Supplementary (A), 1409

Supplementary (B), 1824

Year ending Mar. 31/77, 1777

Supplementary (A), 2178

Manpower and Immigration Dept., Manpower Division, com authorized to examine and report on, 400-01, 418-20

Meetings during adjournment, 2048

Meetings during Senate sittings, 684, 774, 795, 973

Members, 96

Reports

Estimates

Year ending Mar. 31/75, 136-7, 189-90

Supplementary (A), 136-7, 189-90

Supplementary (B), 349-51, 372

Supplementary (C), 444

Supplementary (D), 693-4, 695-702

Year ending Mar. 31/76, 971-3, 983-4, 1054-7, 1082-6

Supplementary (A), 1549, 1565-70, 1602

Supplementary (B), 1937, 1948-53, 1966-70

Year ending Mar. 31/77, 2182-3, 2187-91, 2212-14

Supplementary (A), 2223, 2234-5

Supplementary Borrowing Authority bill C-80, rep without amdt, 1649

National Flag of Canada

Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada), 710-11, 714-15, 740

National Forestry Week, 2076National housing (Bill C-46)

Advisory council, 756

Building materials tax, 745-6, 747-8

Forgiveness provisions for municipalities, 744, 747

Government costs, 746

Handicapped persons, 753

Housing starts, decrease in, 742, 744-5, 747, 749

Indians, 751

Inspection of projects, 746, 751

Interest charges, 747

Mortgage insurance plan, 753, 754, 755

Newfoundland, deterioration of buildings after lease expiry, 755-6

New homes, mortgage provisions, 743

Non-profit and cooperative housing, 743, 745, 750

Older homes, 745

Registered home ownership program, 746, 747

National housing (Bill C-46) - Concluded

Rental housing projects, 743, 746, 754
 Senior citizens, 749, 750
 Sewage treatment plants and trunk storm sewer systems, 744, 747, 756
 Statutory limits for making and insuring loans, 744, 756
 Veterans, 750
 US program for income tax deductions of interest and municipal taxes, 748

Speakers: Senators

Buckwold, Sidney L., 747-8, 749, 754, 755
 Carter, Chesley W., 750, 751, 752, 755
 Cook, Eric, 755-6
 Flynn, Jacques, 742, 753, 755, 756
 Grosart, Allister, 744-7, 748, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757
 Hicks, Henry D., 744, 754
 Lamontagne, Maurice, 749, 751
 Manning, Ernest C., 744
 McIlraith, George, 742, 743-4
 Neiman, Joan, 752-3
 Riley, Daniel, 749
 Williams, Guy, 751
also

Danson, Hon. Barnett, Minister of State for Urban Affairs, 748-57

National Housing bill (No.1) C-46. 1r, 742; 2r, 743-8; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Senator Bourget in the Chair, Minister of State for Urban Affairs Hon. Barnett Danson taking part in debate, 748-57; rep without amdt, 757; 3r, 757; r.a., 758

National housing (Bill C-77)

Abuses of legislation privileges, 1678
 AHOP, 1673-4, 1676, 1678
 Appraisal of housing costs in various areas, 1678
 Continuity of program and target, 1676
 Cooperatives, 1679
 Costs of program, 1677
 Critical areas of housing, 1674
 Density, 1674
 Design, 1674
 Expenditures of interest reduction grants (1976), 1679
 House price limits, 1676
 Housing standards and construction quality, 1673, 1675, 1676-7
 Inflationary effect of new regulations, question of, 1673
 Land assembly programs of municipalities, 1675
 Loans and grants, 1674
 Low cost medium density housing, $1000 grants to municipalities, 1680
 New Brunswick semi-detached homes under AHOP, 1673-4
 Private funding, 1675
 Refinancing of mortgage, 1676
 Rental accommodation, 1677
 Repayment conditions, five-year clause, 1678
 Servicing of land, 1675
 Single parent family, 1676
 Two-person families, 1674
 Warranty from builder to owner, 1681

National housing (Bill C-77) - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Grosart, Allister, 1667, 1671-2, 1677, 1678, 1679-80, 1681
 Macdonald, John M., 1676, 1678, 1679, 1680
 Macnaughton, Alan (Chairman, Committee of the Whole), 1673-81
 McIlraith, George, 1667-9, 1671, 1672-3
 Perrault, Raymond J., 1667, 1671
 Phillips, Orville H., 1669-71, 1675, 1676
 Williams, Guy, 1678

also

Danson, Hon. Barnett, Minister of State for Urban Affairs, 1673-81

National Housing bill (No.2) C-77. 1r, 1667; 2r, 1667-73; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Senator Macnaughton in the Chair, Minister of Urban Affairs Hon. Barnett Danson taking part in debate, 1673-81; rep without amdt, 1681; 3r, 1681; r.a., 1712

National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto-Canada, 2103-04, 2110-11, 2160-3, 2168-9, 2191

Excerpt from speeches or statements re, 2160
 Excerpt from speech of Treasury Board President, 2162-3
 Gullibility of the poor in relation to lotteries, 2162, 2169
 Method of authorization for, 2103-04, 2110-11, 2160-3, 2168-9
 Policy of government in fiscal matters, departure from, 2162
 Regressive taxation, 2162, 2169
 Religious attitudes towards gambling, 2169

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 2161
 Forsey, Eugene A., 2103-04, 2110-11, 2160-2, 2163
 Grosart, Allister, 2163
 Hicks, Henry D., 2168-9
 Perrault, Raymond J., 2161, 2162-3
 Rowe, Frederick William, 2169

National Museums

Storage of Canadiana, 2209
 Artisanship of John D. Howe, 2217

National Press Gallery

Invitation to reception issued to members of Parliament, question, 61-62

National unity

National interests and unity, 28-30
 TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', separatist tendencies, 1127-8

Natural resources

Resource development, 38
See Energy resources

Neiman, Hon. Joan

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 14-18
 Capital punishment, expiration of trial period of partial abolition, 1656, 1716
 Criminal Code (Commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 937-40, m that subject matter be ref to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 940-1
 Cabinet decisions re commutation of death sentence, 940
 Petition of Right Act, 939

Neiman, Hon. Joan - Concluded

- Criminal Code bill S-21 - Concluded
 - Remission Service of Justice Dept., Fauteux Commission on, excerpt from report, 937
 - Responsibility of judge and jury, 940
 - Royal prerogative, 937-40
 - Statistics on death sentences, 940
 - Statutory power of clemency, 937-8
 - Treatise on the Laws, Privileges, Proceedings and Usages of Parliament*, excerpt from, 938-9
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No.1) C-71, 1898, 1907
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No.2) C-84, 2421-3
 - Challenge to identify violent and anti-social behaviour, 2421
 - Disparities in treatment of accused persons, 2422
 - Excerpt from proceedings of Commons Justice and Legal Affairs Committee, 2423
 - Parole, 2423
 - Prison term, 2423
 - Professional criminals, resources of, 2422
 - Toronto Sun* article re sex offender, 2421-2
- Economic conditions, 15-16
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee
 - First report, 255
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 354-8, 456, 1017-18, 1076-7
 - Cannabis, 354-6, 357-8
 - Convictions for possession of, 355-6, 1017-18
 - Effects of, 357
 - Research on, 357
 - Drugs and alcohol, use by teenagers, 355-6
 - LeDain Commission, 354
 - Search by police, authority for, 356
 - 'Sell', 'traffic', 'give', definition of, 1017-18
- Government expenditures, 16
- Inflation, 15-16
- Law reform, 16-17; family law, 16-17; abortions, 17
- Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 125-6
 - Maintaining and enforcing of standards, 126
 - Replacement tires, 125
- National Housing bill (No.1) C-46, 752-3
 - Handicapped persons, 753
 - Senior citizens, 753
- Native people, 17
- Oil crisis, 15
- Parliamentary reform, 17
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 820
- Social security, 16
- Status of women, 16-17
- Televising of committee proceedings, 547
- Transportation, 16

New Brunswick

- Bay of Fundy power potential, 112
- Bilingualism
 - Agricultural representatives, 121-2
 - Globe and Mail* article, 'NB Credit Unions show different approach of French and English', 1752
- Court of Appeal decision re K.C. Irving, Ltd., 1023, 1045-6
- Economic conditions, 1750-4, 1817-20, 1821, 1854-5, 2009-13, 2015-18, 2033
- Ferries operating between Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, possible increase in fares, 1815

New Brunswick - Concluded

Forestry, devastation by Spruce budworm, 1158-63, 1169-70, 1218-20, 1230-2, 1816
 Kent County, report of Agriculture Committee, 2308, 2334
 Lumber industry, effect of inflation on, 122
 Saint John, increase in bus fares, 1815-16
 Storm damage, possibility of federal aid, 1720-1, 1729-30

New Brunswick economic conditions, 1750-4, 1817-20, 1821, 1854-5, 2009-13, 2015-18, 2033

Acadian heritage, 1753-4, 2009-12, 2016-17
 Acadian Village, 2012
 Statement of Antonine Maillet, authoress, 1754
 Advertisement of Regional Economic Expansion Dept. entitled The New Approach, 2012
 Agricultural problems, 1751, 1818, 2009-10
 Agronomy students at Laval and Moncton Universities, 1753
 Meeting of Senate Agricultural Committee and results of, 1751, 1753
 Prospects for young people in farming profession, 1752
 Statements of Prime Minister and of Agriculture Minister re, 1751
 Artists and musicians from NB, 2018
 Bilingualism, lack of, 1752
 Globe and Mail article, 'NB Credit Unions show different approach of French and English', 1752
 Fisheries, 1818-19
 Gloucester County, 2012
 Highways, Route 11, 2012
 Improvement project in northeastern NB, Evangeline article re, 1753
 Infrastructural works, government expenditures on, 1818
 Memramcook Institute as training centre, recommendation re, 1752
 Mineral resources, 2019
 Mining, 1819
 New Brunswick Psychological Association, letter to Premier of NB., copy to Prime Minister, 2010-11
 Nuclear power plant, change of site, 1817
 Relocation of workers, 2011
 RC clergy declaration in support of northeast area, 1750-1
 Recommendation re farmlands, 1751
Saint John Telegraph-Journal article re Northeast New Brunswick, 2012
 Shipping, 1820
 Social equality program, 2017-18
 Tourism, 1819
 Transportation, 1819
 Unemployment, 1820
Speakers: Senators
 Fournier, Michel, 1817-20
 Michaud, Herve J., 1750-4
 Molgat, Gildas L., 2033
 Riley, Daniel, 2009-13
 Robichaud, Louis-J., 2015-18

Newfoundland and Labrador

Anniversary of entry into Confederation, 139
 CNR services in Newfoundland, 1868, 1903
 Come-By-Chance refinery, financial assistance for, 1826-7, 1860
 Curling, congratulations to Newfoundland Rink on winning of Canadian Men's Championship, 1889
Education and Culture in Newfoundland, by Hon. Frederick William Rowe, 2308-09
 Fisheries, ice conditions, 117; foreign fishermen inside limit, 117
 Judges, 1005, 1040-3, 1051-3, 1066, 1080, 1095

Newfoundland and Labrador - Concluded

- Marine safety, request for location of air and sea rescue units in Newfoundland, 1860
- Offshore gas and oil, negotiations between federal government and producing provinces, 2070, 2142
- RCMP, request for use of during labour strike, 965-6
- Trans-Canada highway, maintenance cost subsidies, 1903, 1922
- Transportation
 - Air Canada service St. John's-Ottawa, 506-08
 - Inter-city passenger routes, Canadian Press article re, 139-40
 - North Sydney-Cape Breton-Port aux Basques, 139
 - Passenger trains, eastern Canada, 52, 140
 - Strait of Belle Isle, 64
 - Trans-Canada Highway, 63-64

Newspapers, periodicals, speeches, interviews, etc., excerpts from

- Abortion, article in Status of Women News, 120-1
- Anatomy of Human Aggression, 917, 1289
- Articles on Senate by Senator Rowe, press account of, question of privilege, 480
- Autobiography of Nathan Leopold, convicted killer, 895
- Business Corporations Law for Canada, report of Task Force, 490
- Canadian armed forces in Europe, article re, 1493
- Canadian Pacific: A Brief History, by J. L. McDougall, 40-41
- Canadian Pacific Railway - A Century of Corporate Welfare, by Robert Chodos, 38-39, 40
- Canadian Press
 - Article entitled "Senior civil servants bitter over Ottawa's wage example", 1351
 - Article quoting statement of Hon. Mr. Pepin, 1576
 - Article re CNR estimates and plans, 139-40
 - Report of statements made by Leader of the Government re matter concerning Senator Giguere, 1395-7
- Canadian Transportation and Distribution, statement by Transport Minister re transportation policy, 42-43
- Capital punishment, statement issued by Canadian Catholic Conference, 835
- Communications: Some Federal Proposals, 850
- Crime Against Internationally Protected Persons: Prevention and Punishment - an Analysis of the UN Convention, 1769
- Crime and Punishment as Ritual of Life, excerpt from article by Dr. Carl Menningers, 920
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, question of privilege re newspaper article, 2406
- Drug epidemic, excerpt from Healthways Magazine, 374
- Economic prospects, excerpts from speeches by Minister of Finance and by Senator Lamontagne, 168-9
- Education and Culture in Newfoundland, by Hon. Frederick William Rowe, 2308-09
- Energy Policy for Canada - Phase I, Vol. I, Analysis, 1216
- Equal rights, statement of Helvi Sipila, UN Assistant Secretary General for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs, 836, 896
- Excerpts from Prime Minister's speeches re anti-inflation legislation, 1454-5
- Financial Post: Transportation costs, 43
- Financial Times: 'Canada left out - Crucial oil meeting next month', 605
- Financial Times survey re percentages of wage settlements, 2105
- Globe and Mail:
 - Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, article by Prof. J. D. Morton re constitutional problems of White Paper, 1320
 - Canadian Defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, 2122-3
 - Canadian Pacific Railway, article re, 43, 44
 - Equal opportunities for women, article re, 187
 - Price controls, 1323
 - Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee Chairman Senator Forsey, article re, 794-5
 - Sarnia-Montreal pipeline, statement by President of Interprovincial Pipelines, 112
 - Senate reform, statements by Prime Minister, 32

Newspapers, periodicals, speeches, interviews, etc., - ContinuedGlobe and Mail - Concluded

- Time magazine, article by J. Carruthers re, 582-3
- Whittling Down a Freedom, editorial re, 582, 641-2
- Government expenditures, effect on inflation, excerpt from report of Canadian Economic Policy Committee, 1056
- Helsinki Declaration, statements by leaders of various nations re, 1758
- Housing, excerpt from speech by Hon. Mr. Danson, 1457
- Income Security for Canadians, White Paper on, 250
- Inequalities between men and women, UN publication re, 838
- La Presse report of alleged statement re CBC by Senator Lamontagne, 1165-6
- Leading Cases in Constitutional Law, excerpt from decision in 'Edinburgh and Dalkeith Railway Company v. Wauchope', 391
- Managing the Future: Conference on Anticipatory Institutions, 1171, 1221
- May's Parliamentary Practice, 'Queen's Consent to Bills', 566
- Ministry of State for Science and Technology, paper re National Research Council functions, 114
- Modern Senate of Canada, The, excerpt re Minister explaining bills in the Senate, 218
- National Flag, speech by Governor General on initial raising of, 710
- National Research Council, financial assistance for, excerpt from paper of Ministry of State for Science and Technology, 114
- Newspapers featuring articles on Helsinki Conference, 1757, 1759-60
- Newsweek article on drug control, 1451
- Nobel Peace Prize winner, refusal of USSR to permit acceptance of award, letter from Senator Forsey re, 1761
- Ottawa Citizen article titled 'Carpets escape the axe', 1585
- Ottawa Journal article re comments of President of Time Canada before Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 2140
- Ottawa Journal article re Nova Scotia storm damage, 1766
- Palestinian Liberation Organization, attendance at UN General Assembly, statement re position taken by Canadian delegation, 110, 137-8
- Peking Review article on USSR disregard of agreements, 1760
- Police Costs - Where are all those Millions?, booklet issued by Quebec Justice Dept., 538
- Poverty in Canada, report of Senate Special Committee, updated, 282
- Pricing of Crude Oil: Economic and Strategic Guidelines for International Energy Policy by Taki Rifai, 618
- Prime Minister's speeches re government policies on controls, 1443
- Psychopathic personality, sociopathic personality and character neurosis, excerpt from address by Prof. James MeHorter, 919-20
- Regional development incentives, Halifax-Chronicle Herald article re, 1620
- Remission Service, excerpt from report of Fauteux Commission, 935
- Science policy, excerpts from speeches of and letters from Prime Minister and from Deputy Secretary of Cabinet re Institute for Research on Public Policy, 296-7, 1171-2, 1221
- Secondary industry trade policies, Separatist leader's comments re government attitude, 978
- Social Security in Canada, Working Paper on, 250
- Song of Equality for International Women's Year, by Jacqueline Lemay, 673
- Status of women, Le Devoir editorial re, 1103
- Textile industry, Gazette articles re, 781-2
- Theology and the Death Penalty, paper issued by Task Force for Abolition of Capital Punishment, 835
- Tidal power, Bay of Fundy, excerpt from paper by George Baker, P.Eng., 112-13
- Toronto Globe and Mail article 'The Brutal Reality of Brezhnev's Policy', 1759
- Treatise on the Laws, Privileges, Proceedings and Usages of Parliament, 938-9
- Unemployment in Victoriaville clothing industry, Le Devoir article re, 844
- US judicial system, Canadian Press report in Saint John Telegraph Journal, 692
- US Police: A New Image?, excerpt from Christian Science Monitor, 1254-5

Newspapers, periodicals, speeches, interviews, etc., - Concluded

- Wage and price controls, US publication by C. J. Grayson, Chairman of Prices Commission re unsatisfactory results of, 1351
- Wall Street Journal article by Claire Boothe Luce re permissive society, 1290-1
- Whatever Became of Sin?, by Carl Menninger, 1291
- 'Why Not' campaign, comments of Hon. Marc Lalonde, women MPs and others, 672-3

Norrie, Hon. Margaret

- Abortion, 120-1
 - Priorities for Government Action, 121
- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 120-2
- Air Canada service Ottawa-Halifax, question of privilege, 1479-80
- Animal Contagious Diseases bill C-28, 1632-3
- Bilingualism, agricultural representatives, New Brunswick, 121-2
- Compensation for Former Prisoners of War bill C-92, 2039
- Crime and violence, 1252-5
 - Basic principles for prevention of crime, 1253
 - Statement of Henry Fielding, founder of crime prevention organization, 1253
- Netherlands crime reform, 1253-4
 - Communication between prisoners and personnel, 1254
 - 'Land Without Prisons', Newsweek article, 1253
 - Penal system, 1253
 - Prison population, comparisons, 1253-4
 - Rehabilitation, 1253
- US Police: A New Image?, excerpt from Christian Science Monitor, 1254-5
- Youth training, 1253
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 863-4
 - Age limit, 863
 - Maritime farmers, problems of, 863-4
- Feed grains, assistance to Atlantic provinces, 1035
- Feeds bill S-10, 161-2
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 120
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, tribute on occasion of resignation from the Senate, 968
- Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 2099-2102
- Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation bill C-78, 1717-18
 - Background of Commission formed after Halifax explosion, 1717-18
 - Pensions and allowances paid to widows and disabled persons, 1718
 - Transfer of responsibilities and assets to Canadian Pension Commission, 1718
- Inflation, 121-2
 - Beef industry and prices, 122
 - Supply of goods and services, 121
- International Women's Year, 836-8
 - Abortion law, 837, 838
 - Asia and Africa, male domination, 837
 - Inequality of wages for men and women in Canada, 838
 - Statement of Helvi Sipilä, UN Assist. Sect. General for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs, 836
 - UN Charter, 836
 - Women's responsibility in economics, social and cultural development, worldwide friendly relations and cooperation, 836
 - Women's wages in Italy, 837
- Televising of committee proceedings, 550

Norrie, Hon. Margaret - Concluded

Transportation

BNA Act as it pertains to transportation, 2211-12

Atlantic provinces, 2211-12

Halifax container pier, 2212

Halifax and Saint John, 'Gateway to Eastern North America', 2211-12

Passenger rail service, 2212

Sea-Wings cargo business, 2212

Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1703

North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1489-94, 1513-16, 1726-8

Armed forces in Europe, 1489-93, 1494, 1726, 1727

Canadian troops, 1491-2, 1493; newspaper article re, 1493

Central Europe and Warsaw Pact countries, 1491

Equipment statistics, various countries, 1490-2; aircraft, Lockheed P-3 Orion, 1492, tanks, Leopard and

Centurion, 1491, 1492, 1494

Nuclear power, 1490-1

Reserves, 1492, 1494

US military bases in Spain, 1493

Canada's role in NATO, 1490, 1727-8

Canada's community of interests, 1727-8

Senate representation, 1490

Defence policy, 1493, 1726, 1727

Canada's contribution, 1727

Education, Cultural Affairs and Information Committee, 1515, 1517

Energy resources, protection of, 1492-3

Helsinki Agreement, 1515

Interparliamentary advisory Council and sub-committee, 1493-4

Political Committee, 1514

Recommendations and Resolutions adopted at Copenhagen Session, 1514-15, 1517-23

Challenges of Modern Society Committee, 1520

Eastern Mediterranean, 1515, 1518, 1522-3

East-West relations, 1515, 1519

Economic aid to Portugal, Greece and Turkey, 1520

Energy supplies within the Atlantic Alliance, 1521

Eurogroup activities, 1521

International Policy for raw materials, 1523

Middle East, 1514, 1522

National economic policies, 1517

National energy policies, 1521

Nuclear energy, 1523

Portugal, 1514, 1522

Rationalization of defence resources within Alliance, 1518-19

Restructuring of NATO forces, 1517-18

Science Committee budget, 1519-20

Spain, 1514, 1522

United States arms embargo on Turkey, 1521-2

World economic order, 1520

World monetary reform, 1520-1

Soviet Union, armed forces and equipment, 1515-16

Warsaw Pact, 1727-8

Speakers: Senators

Carter, Chesley W., 1494

Grosart, Allister, 1493-4

Lafond, Paul, 1726-7

North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference - *ConcludedSpeakers: Senators - *Concluded

McDonald, A. Hamilton, 1489-94
Perrault, Raymond J., 1727-8
Yuzyk, Paul, 1514-16

North Atlantic Assembly, London conference, 342-7, 362-5, 456-9

Canadian delegation, 344, 364-5
Canadian troops in Lahr and Baden, and equipment for, 345-6
Defence of Western European Union, 345
Economic Committee discussions, 457-8
 Defence budgets, 457
 Energy supplies, 457, 458
 Inflation, 457
 Recommendations, 457
Education, cultural affairs and communications, 362
Mutual and balanced force reductions, 344-5
NATO, 342-7, 362
 Information service, 364
Oil crisis, 344
Political differences, 362
Problems in Cyprus, Greece, Turkey and Middle East, 345
Replacement of aircraft, 345
Security and cooperation in Europe, 362-3
Ukrainian historian Valentyn Moroz, confined in Vladimir prison, 363-4
US amendment to trade bill, 363
USSR, 342-3, 345, 363-4, 458
 Economic conditions and trade prospects, 458
 Maritime forces, 345
 Territorial gains as result of World War II, 342-3
 Treatment of dissidents, 363-4
Speakers: Senators
 Lafond, Paul C., 456-9
 McDonald, A. Hamilton, 342-7
 Yuzyk, Paul, 362-5

North Atlantic Treaty Organization

See North Atlantic Assembly, 342-7, 362-5, 456-9

Northern Canada Power Commission

Commission members, functions and jurisdiction, 808, 813, 814
Construction of transmission network, 808
Employment of native people, 808
Expenditures over $50,000, approval of Governor in Council for, 814, 815
Financial records and procedures, maintenance of, 809
Lack of authority of Yukon and NWT councils, 814
Meetings of Commission, 840, 851
Operating budget, 808, 809
Ownership of northern generating power, 808
Power rates, 814
Speakers: Senators
 Bourget, Maurice, 807-09, 814-15
 Choquette, Lionel, 813-14
 Connolly, John J., 840, 851
 Smith, Donald, 815

Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13. 1r, 795; 2r, 807-09, 813-15; ref to com, 815; rep with amdts, 840, 851; 3r, 855; Commons concurrence in Senate amdts, 1005; r.a., 1095

Northland Bank bill C-1002. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1598-1600; ref to com, 1600; suspension of rule 95, 1601; rep without amdt, 1602; 3r, 1619; r.a., 1712

Northwest Territories

Appointment of senators to represent Territories, 1005, 1054, 1060-2, 1081, 1095
Fire losses replacement account, 325, 338, 353, 366, 397
Northern Canada Power Commission, 807-09, 814-16, 840, 855, 1005, 1095
Northwest Territories representation in Commons, 583, 594-5, 622-3, 642, 656
Senate appointment, question, 1772

Northwest Territories representation

Boundaries of constituency, 594-5
BNA Act, amdt re NWT representation, 622
Chairman of Commission, terms of appt., 623
Indians and Eskimos, voting franchise, 622
Neo-colonialism in respect of Territories, 623
Population statistics, 595
Speakers: Senators
Grosart, Allister, 622-3
Prowse, J. Harper, 594-5

Northwest Territories Representation bill C-51. 1r, 583; 2r, 594-5, 622-3; 3r, 642; r.a., 656

Nova Scotia

Cape Breton coal mines, operating losses, 176; DEVCO, 176
Destruction of forests and residential property by fire, 2178-9
Halifax Relief Commission pension continuation, 1714, 1717-18, 1721-3
National Defence cutbacks as result of anti-inflation program, 1683, 1716
Springhill fire disaster, possibility of federal aid, 1241-2
Steel industry, Cansteel study of Atlantic rim, 176
Storm damage, 135-6, 1765-6

Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to India and to Argentina, 1859-60, 1869, 1975, 2142

Ocean dumping control

Alternate disposal in controls of dumping, 1050
Appeal agency, 1050-1
Conference on Law of the Sea, Geneva, 1050
Courts of criminal jurisdiction, 1040
Deliberate or accidental dumping, 1051
Detainment, seizure or forfeiture of ships and aircraft, 1039-40
Dumping by aircraft over land, 1040
Exceptional circumstances involving safety of human life, 1039
Federal-provincial consultation, 1050
London Convention on ocean dumping control, 1038-9, 1050
Ontario, pollution of lakes and rivers, 1050
Oslo Convention, 1039
Penalties for contravention of act, 1039
Permits for dumping, 1039, 1050
Times, rates of disposal, etc., compatible with protection of marine environment, 1039

Ocean dumping control - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Belisle, Rheal, 1049-51

Connolly, John J., 1040

Macnaughton Alan A., 1038-40, 1051

Ocean Dumping Control bill C-37. 1r, 1005; 2r, 1038-40, 1049-51; ref to com, 1051; rep without amdt, 1088; 3r, 1088; r.a., 1096

Official languages

Implementation of resolution re, report to Parliament tabled, 289-90

Language rights of air pilots in Quebec, 2344-8, 2378-86

Quebec official language, 54-58, 829, 912

Report of Commissioner for fiscal year ended Mar. 31/74, tabled, 757

Report of Commissioner for fiscal year ended Mar. 31/75, tabled, 2003

See Bilingualism and biculturalismOfficial languages

Motion that Senate support language rights of air pilots in Quebec (Hon. Maurice Lamontagne), 2344-8, 2378-86

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 2344, 2345, 2348, 2378-81

Lamontagne, Maurice, 2344-6

Langlois, Leopold, 2381-6

Perrault, Raymond J., 2386

Walker, David, 2346-8

Oil

Income tax, 583, 606-14, 616-21, 627-40, 645-56

Indian oil and gas, 325, 337-8, 351-3, 402, 426, 467

International conference of oil-producing and oil-consuming countries, 605-06, 744-5

See Energy resourcesOld age security

Absence from Canada, 1103

Calculation of income, 1102

Discrimination reflecting on Bill of Rights, 1124

Federal-provincial responsibilities in social security, 1101

Guaranteed income supplement, 1101-02

Inflation and cost of living, 1123

Joint application, 1124, 1125

Married or common-law status, 1124, 1125

Means test, 1102

Overpayments, 1103

Statistics on recipients and benefits, 1123-4

Suspension of allowance, 1102

Termination of allowance upon husband's death, 1124, 1125

Universality vs selectivity, 1025

White Paper on Income Security for Canadians, 1101

Working Paper on Social Security in Canada, 1101

Speakers: Senators

Carter, Chesley W., 1101-03, 1125-6

Choquette, Lionel, 1126

Phillips, Orville H., 1123-5

Old Age Security, Old Age Assistance bill C-62. 1r, 1087; 2r, 1101-03, 1123-6; 3r, 1126; r.a., 1134

O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan (Deceased Apr. 7/76)

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 48-51

Alberta-British Columbia Boundary bill S-13, 223-4

Boundary Commission, composition of, 223-4

Cultural Property Export and Import bill C-33, 768-70

Book of Kells, Ireland, 770

Bureaucracy in discretionary powers of minister, 768

Canadian identity and nationalism, 769

Freedoms of thought and action, elimination of in over-protection by government, 768, 770

Preservation of muniments, excerpt from statement of Hon. Joseph Howe, 770

European Parliament, 316-19

Canada-US relations, 317-19

Finished products, export of, 317

Treaty of Rome, 316, 317

Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 58

National Defence and Criminal Code (total abolition of capital punishment) bill S-23, 840-1

Deterrent aspect, 840

Law and order, tyrannical use of phrase throughout history, 840-1

UK Royal Commission on Capital Punishment, conclusion of, 841

Representation bill C-36, 435-6

Increase in parliamentary representatives, executives and assistants, opposition to, 435-6

Salary increases of members, 436

Senate reform, 49-51

Appointments, 50-51

Committees, 50

Initiation of bills, 49

Investigation of provincial rights, 49-50

Suspensive veto, 49

Tributes, 2034-6

United Nations Peacekeeping Force, pension benefits for dependants of Canadian soldier killed in Cyprus, 760, 768

Olympic bill C-63. 1r, 1174; 2r, 1188-90, 1198-1205; ref to com, 1205; rep without amdt, 1211; 3r, 1211; r.a., 1281

Olympics

Coin-selling program to include gold coins, 1188-9

Cost according to market price of gold, 1189

Deficit forecast, 1199, 1200, 1201, 1203

Expenditures, inflationary trend, 1204

Federal government responsibility for Games, 1199-1201

Gold content of coins, 1204-05

Statement of Postmaster General, 1204-05

Gold requirements for program, 1198

Limit on coins to be issued, 1189

Location of Games, regional and national aspects, 1201-03

Lottery receipts, 1188

Minister's statement re possible withdrawal of Bill C-63, 1202, 1204-05

Permanent assets from capital investments, 1203

Olympics - Concluded

- Profit potential from sale of gold coins, 1199
- Programs of government assistance for Games, 1189-90, 1199
- Security costs, 1199
- Trade marks and copyrights, 1189
- Western Canada attitude towards expenditures undertaken for Games, 1201-02
- Western Canada projects sponsored by federal government, 1202

Speakers: Senators

- Argue, Hazen, 1201-02
- Asselin, Martial, 1200-01
- Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 1188-90, 1198, 1204-05
- Flynn Jacques, 1203-04
- Langlois, Leopold, 1202-03
- Macdonald, John M., 1198-1200
- Manning, Ernest C., 1201, 1202

Olympic Games, flame ceremony on Parliament Hill, 2419

Ontario

- Corporations Act, 493, 495, 496
- Legal profession statistics, 625
- Police force, claim for compensation for maintenance, 501-3, 568
 - Costs of administration of force, 568
 - Financial implications of RCMP provincial operations, 501, 502
 - RCMP contracts, letter from Solicitor General re, 503
- Pollution of lakes and rivers, 1050

Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police

- Motion that matter of compensation by federal government be referred to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 954-5, 962-6, agreed, 966
 - Advantages to contracting provinces in use of RCMP, 962-3
 - Alberta, 965, 966
 - British Columbia, 965
 - Coordination and cooperation of various police forces, 964
 - Cost-sharing formula, 955
 - Federal-provincial negotiations re RCMP, 963, 965
 - Financial obligation of province to pay for provincial force, 964
 - Newfoundland, request for use of RCMP during labour strike, 965-6
 - Option of provinces, 965
 - Police forces in metropolitan centers, 966
 - RCMP operations in Ontario and Quebec, 963; in other provinces, 954
 - RCMP work in matters under federal jurisdiction, 964-5
 - Subsidizing by Ontario and Quebec and other provinces, 955

Speakers: Senators

- Carter, Chesley W., 966
- Grosart, Allister, 964
- Manning, Ernest C., 965-6
- McIlraith, George, 963-5
- Perrault, Raymond J., 962-3

See Quebec Provincial Police

Opening of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament

Communications from Governor General's Secretary, 1, 2
 Speech from the Throne, 2-7
See Address in reply to Speech from the Throne

Orders in Council dealing with prerogatives of Prime Minister, 1349, 1355

Ouellet, Hon. Andre, Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs

Announcement of resignation because of pending contempt of court appeal, 1890-3, 1920-3

Pacific Western Airlines, possible move of head office to Calgary, 1824-5, 1859, 2376, 2444

Palestinian Liberation Organization, status as participants at United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and position taken by Canadian delegation, 137-8, 1238, 1242-4, 1248-9
 Current discord at international conferences, 1238
 Resolution adopted by General Assembly inviting PLO to attend Congress, 1238
 Statement of Secretary of State for External Affairs re government decision to request postponement of meeting, 1248-9

Parliament

Sessions of Parliament, legislative program, 1902-03

Parliamentary immunity

Question of privilege, 1398-1403
 Statement by Leader of the Government, 1409

Parliamentary reform, 17, 28-29

Conflict of interest, 28, 153, 163, 373, 573-4, 580, 774, 779-81
 Senate reform, 32, 49-53, 62-63, 74-75, 184

Parliamentary secretaries

Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries, 847, 856-61, 868-80, 889, 899

Parliament Buildings

Centre Block, inaccuracies in commercial use of pictures of, 1765, 1777
 East Block accommodation, 2185
 Advisory Commission on Parliamentary Accommodation, 2185
 Letter from Commons Speaker to Prime Minister, tabled, 2185
 East Block, cost of proposed renovations, and preservation of Privy Council Chamber, 241, 279
 East Block, Senate use of rooms, proposal, 110
 Identity cards for senators, 179-80
Ottawa Citizen article re question of privilege of Senator F. W. Rowe, 1777
 Senate, use of rooms by Commons members and others, 110
 Use of picture in commercial advertising of Guaranty Trust, 556, 564, 956-7

Parole

Consideration of changes in present system, question, 1371
 Criminal Law Amendment (Crown liability, immigration, parole) bill C-71, 1714, 1730-3
 Parole in Canada, report of Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, tabled, 10

Passports

Passport Office refusal to accept $50 and $100 in Canadian currency, 2037, 2077
 Restrictions on special passports of MPs, article in Globe and Mail, 2262-3, 2362-3, 2443
 Use of diplomatic and special passports for travel to Namibia, 2363-4, 2443-4

Paterson, Hon. Norman McL.

- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2448
 - Murder of Moncton policemen, 2448
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2005-06, 2301
 - Canada-US relations, 2005-06
 - Foreign investments contributing to Canadian revenue, 2005
 - Reader's Digest* article, 2005
- United Grain Growers Limited bill S-33, 1925
- Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41, 1766

Penitentiaries

- Action taken to implement principal recommendations of Special Joint Committee, 2200
- Proposed construction of medium security prison in Saint John, 1916-17, 1922-3

Pensions

- Lieutenant governors, 1304, 1337-40
- Pension Plan, Canada, 242, 249-52, 277-9, 300, 307, 314

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate

- Abortions
 - Study of procedure for obtaining therapeutic abortions, committee on, 1428, 1624-5, 1639, 1654-5
- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 26-30
- Air Canada service Fredericton-Ottawa, 855, 867
- Aird, Hon. John B., resignation from the Senate, 334
- Air Transport, flight delays due to labour dispute, 2062-3, 2168
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1503-08, 1511, 1512-13, 1559-64, 1575-7, 1579, 1580, 1582, 1586, 1587
 - Agriculture and support programs, 1563
 - Anti-Inflation Board, 1506, 1511
 - Functions and powers of Board and Administrator, 1506, 1560, 1562
 - Regulations of Governor In Council, 1506, 1511, 1561
 - Bank interest rates, 1582
 - Compensation, fringe benefits, etc., 1504, 1505
 - Constitutionality of bill, 1561
 - Cost inflation, wage and price controls to counteract, 1503
 - Energy, food and housing supplies, 1504
 - Enforcement provisions, 1505-06, 1508
 - Existing contractual arrangements, 1505
 - Export profits, 1504
 - Federal-provincial cooperation in application of guidelines, 1507-08, 1512-13, 1561, 1586
 - Toronto high school teachers, 1507, 1508
 - Fish and farm products, exemption from guidelines, 1504
 - Government expenditures, 1504, 1507
 - Human rights, protection of, 1560
 - Judicial review of decisions of Appeal Tribunal, 1563-4
 - Labour leaders' attempts to defeat program, 1505
 - Low-income groups, 1504-05
 - Maintaining of balance of fiscal and monetary policies, 1504
 - Penalty for contravention of guidelines, 1505
 - Appeals to Tribunal, 1506, 1560; costs, 1562
 - Postal workers, 1587

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - ContinuedAnti-Inflation bill C-73 - Concluded

- Prices and incomes policies, 1504, 1508, 1562
- Productivity and compensation for, 1508-09
- Professional compliance, 1504
- Public reaction and result of polls, 1560
- Statement of Hon. Mr. Pepin, Canadian Press article re, 1576
- Three-year period of program, 1505, 1562-3, 1575-7, 1586
- US-Canada wage demands and productivity, 1507

Anti-inflation program, questions

- Budget reduction in Regional Economic Expansion Dept., 1683
- Family allowances, 1683, 1716, 1721
- Government rejection of Board's opinion re postal workers' contract, 1627-8, 1655
- Judges' salaries, 1662, 1681
- Meeting of Minister of Finance and provincial representatives re implementation of guidelines, 1549
- National Defence cutbacks in Nova Scotia, 1682, 1716-17
- New Brunswick, increase in bus fares in Saint John, 1846
- Wage guidelines, 1683

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 416

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1975 C-79, 1615

Auditor General of Canada, report of Independent Review Committee, question of referral to com, 796

Austin, Hon. Jacob, introduced in the Senate, 1354

Bills, printing and distribution of, 61

Bills, public and private, dealt with during session, 1286-7

Boucher, Hon. William A., the late, 2251

Bourque, Hon. Romuald, the late, 11

British Columbia Telephone Company bill S-11, 133

Advertising of bill, 133

British Columbia Women's Basketball Team, 1889

British Trade Mission offices, 252

Budget, date of presentation, 161

Canada-United States boundary, government policy re demarcation line on Dixon Entrance on Strait of Juan de Fuca, George's Bank and northwards, 2308

Canada-United States relations, 1626-7

BC provincial election, question re comments of US ambassador, 1627

Canadian Radio and Television Commission, policy re commercial content of cable systems, 1626-7

Communications between Canada and US, newspaper article re, 2192-3, 2377-8

Report of Foreign Relations Committee tabled, 1716

Unofficial meeting of US Ambassador with media representatives in Ottawa, 1626

Canadian Armed Forces casualties in defence of France in World War I and World War II, 1417

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation

Munsinger, Gerda, presence in Canada and appearance on television program, 1034, 1073, 1239-40, 1257, 1618-19, 1625

Canadian coins, reported change in design, 1937, 1955

Canadian economy

Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1293, 1298-1303, 1319

Anti-Inflation Board, functions and powers, 1301-2

Consultations with provincial finance and labour ministers, 1303

Dollar value (1946-75), 1298, 1319

Energy, raising of costs by OPEC nations and effect on Canada's economy, 1299

Guidelines of attack on inflation, 1300

Housing needs, 1301

Labour and industry, wage settlements affecting international trade, 1300

Maximum increase allowable to wage earners and other income groups, 1301

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation - Concluded
 - Parliamentary and other governmental restraints, 1301
 - Powerful groups to be affected, 1300
 - Professional groups, 1301
- Canadian Labour Congress
 - Political affiliation, 2153-4
 - Possibility of general strike, newspaper report re meeting and proposals for liberal corporatism, 2130
 - Salary increases for officers, 2159, 2209-10
- Canadian National Railway
 - Cost of construction of tower in Toronto, 2185-6, 2263-4
 - Services in Atlantic provinces, 1923-4, 1976
- Canadian Press* report of statements made by Leader of the Government re matter concerning Senator Giguere, 1396-7
- CTV news report on death of Viateur Ethier and misrepresentation as member of Conservative Party, 1241
- Candu reactors, proposed sale to Argentina and Korea, 1307, 1319
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2311, 2312, 2324, 2336-7, 2348-9, 2362, 2444
 - Federal-provincial conferences, 2284-5
 - McGill Law Journal* article 'The Central Fallacy of Canadian Constitutional Law', 2348
 - Powers of Lieutenant Governor in Council, 2312
 - Referral of clause 33 to Supreme Court, question of, 2348-9, 2362, 2444
- Clerk's Scroll, 1667, 1684-5
- Combines investigation, New Brunswick court of appeal decision re K. C. Irving, Ltd., 1023, 1045-6
- Combines, planned takeover bid by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd., of Argus Corporation, 1064
- Committee meetings, co-ordinating committee to arrange scheduling, 828-9, 1091
- Committee meetings during Senate sittings, 1856-7
- Committees, implementation of new schedule of meetings, 1937-8
- Committees, sub-committee meeting, 1931
- Committees work during session, 1287-8
- Conflict of Interest, Green Paper, 28, 774
 - Question of privilege re referral to com, Hon. Mr. Croll, 574, 580, 779-80
- Connaught Laboratories testing adjacent to proposed housing development, 616, 732, 902
- Construction industry in Quebec, pardon granted to Dede Desjardins, 1035, 1066
- Copyright Act, Economic Review, 'Crown copyright reserved', replacement of words, 2200, 2322-3, 2362
- Crerar, Hon. Thomas A., P.C., the late, 779
- Criminal Code
 - Abortions, Dr. Henry Morgentaler's acquittal of charges, 1036
 - Control of weapons and firearms, question as to progress of bill in committee stage, 479
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2309, 2387, 2406, 2428-33, 2440
 - Alternatives to death by hanging, 2430
 - Background of convicted killers, psychological effects of, 2429-30
 - Commutations, 2430
 - Date of introduction in Senate, question, 2309
 - Deterrent aspect, 2429, 2431, 2432
 - Parole, 2430
 - Psychological and moral aspects, 2432
 - Question of privilege (Hon. Mr. Molson), 2406
 - Recidivist percentages, 2429
 - Unequal aspects of implementing penalties, 2432
 - Vengeful reactions towards violence, 2428-9
 - Wilson, Prof. James Q., study on criminal behaviour, 2431, 2432
- Criminal law, subject matter of Bill C-83 ref to com, 1852-3
- Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate, reappointment of Hon. Leopold Langlois, 46
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee, 188-9

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

Energy resources

- Conservation of fuel, car awaiting Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, 2209, 2443
- Construction of Arctic gas pipeline, supply of Arctic gas to southern Canada, 2037-8, 2069-70
- Development of tidal power in Bay of Fundy, 2070, 2142
- Government policy re Canadian ownership of companies developing oil and gas on crown lands, 1259-60
- International conference of oil-producing and oil-consuming countries, 605-06, 774-5
- Lighting of government buildings, 606, 1238-9
- Offshore oil and gas resources in Atlantic Provinces, 2070, 2141-2, 2143
- Oil and gas reserves, negotiations between federal government and governments of producing provinces, 2070
- Passamaquoddy-Cobscook Bay, US Corps of Engineers report on, 2210-11
- Prices for crude oil and natural gas, announcement of minister re, 2142-3
- Proposed construction of pipeline from Prince Rupert to Edmonton, 2037
- Proposed pipeline treaty between Canada and United States, 2037

Energy, Statement of Policy, Proposed Petroleum and Natural Gas Act and New Canada Oil and Gas Land Regulations, 2169-71

- Background of Statement of Policy, 2171
- Crude oil and natural gas prices, 2169, 2170
- Dependency on imported oil, 2170
- Discretionary powers under new regulations, 2171
- Domestic energy, increase in prices, 2170
- Exploration and development in frontier regions of Canada, 2170, 2171
- Export prices of natural gas, 2170
- Freeze period on petroleum products prices, 2170
- Government decisions re crude oil and natural gas prices, 2170
- National energy strategy for Canada, 2169-70
- Reduction in average use of energy, 2170
- Self-reliance on natural gas, 2170

Environment, protection of coastal waters from radio-active pollution, 889, 924

Estimates

- Family allowances, 1084
- Government restraints, 1083
- Loto Canada, 2247-9
- Oil subsidies, 1084
- Purchases of goods and services, 1084, 1085
- Recommendation of Canadian Economic Policy Committee, 1084
- Transfer payments to provinces, 1084
- Unemployment insurance, 1083

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/76, rep of National Finance Committee, 1082-5, 1086

European Community, Canada's claim for compensation re loss of preferential access of Canadian commodities to British market, 579-80, 662, 671

- Cheddar cheese, Canadian, 671
- Concessions of interest to Canada, 671
- Negotiations leading to agreements between various countries, 671
- Wheat and barley, 671

Excise Tax bill C-66, 1275-6, 1280

- Building insulation materials, 1277
- Export and import oil commitments, 1275
- Gasoline for personal use and for travel to and from place of business, 1276-7
- Gasoline tax in other countries, 1280
- Nova Scotia home heating costs, 1275
- Subsidy paid by low-income persons, 1276
- Worldwide oil crisis, 1275

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

- External Affairs Department, Passport Office, refusal to accept $50 and $100 denominations, 2037, 2077
- Farm Credit bill C-34, 886, 887, 890
 - Rejection by Commons of amdt similar to Senate proposed amdt, 890
- Federal government buildings, Langevin Block and Justice Building, 137
- Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-57, 1186-7
 - Medicare, government concern and reassessment of programs, 1186-7
 - Home care and clinical supervision, 1186
 - Remote areas, problems of, 1187
 - Shortage of persons in medical profession, 1187
 - UK health services, unsatisfactory operation of, 1186
- Feed grains, freight assistance to Atlantic provinces, 1035
- Felicitations to Hon. Renaude Lapointe, Hon. Paul Martin and others, 26
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, speech at unveiling of portrait of, 469
- Ferries operating between Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, 1815, 1860, 1861
- Ferry service between North Sydney and Port Aux Basques, possible increase in fares, 1861
- Fisheries
 - Extension of 200 mile coastal jurisdiction, 2208, 2377
 - Rights of MicMac Indians of Cross Point Reserve to fish Atlantic salmon, 2208, 2264
- Florida land deals, involvement of Canadians in alleged swindle, 1012, 1198
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1028, 1029-30
 - Absolute or unconditional pardon, 1030
 - 'Give', 'trafficking', definition of, 1028-30
 - Regina vs Christiansen*, case cited, 1029
- Foreign affairs
 - Aid to Chile, 1438-9, 1597-8
 - Canadian Defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, report in Globe and Mail, 2122-3, 2192-3, 2201
 - Special passports of MPs, restrictions on, 2263, 2362-3
- Forestry, devastation by Spruce budworm, 1162, 1163, 1219-20, 1230-2
 - Acreage affected in Ontario, Quebec, Maritimes and Newfoundland, 1219
 - Economic results from destruction, 1219
 - Federal cost-sharing in aerial control programs, 1219-20
 - Lumber companies participation in control, 1220
 - Position statement prepared by Environment Department, 1230-2
 - Effectiveness and efficiency of chemical control, 1230-1
 - Possible alternatives to widespread use of chemicals, 1231-2
 - Scope and effectiveness of environmental monitoring, 1231
 - Task force report, 1220
- Gasoline excise tax, 1101, 1112-13
- Gelinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe, the late, 1713
- Gouin, Hon. L.M., retirement from the Senate, 2057
- Government expenditures, 27-28
- Government Expenditures Restraint bill, questions re date of introduction in Senate, 2130, 2159, 2264
- Government Whip in the Senate, appointment of Hon. William J. Petten, 46
- Grain inspectors' dispute, settlement of, 336
- Grain subsidies paid on shipments to Eastern Canadian ports for export, 2156, 2201-02, 2211, 2376-7
- Grey Cup Game, Vancouver, 301
- Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 1963, 2199-2200, 2278-9
- Helsinki Declaration on European Security and Co-operation, 1293
- Identity cards for senators, 180

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

Immigration

- Gulf Islands, British Columbia, ministerial discretion permits, 2322
- Presence in Canada of Xavier Hollander and Gerda Munsinger, 1007, 1013

Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 649-52

- Energy resources, 649-52
 - Alberta, incremental royalty, 650
 - Corporate tax reduction, 652
 - Exploration expenditures write-off, 652
 - Federal-provincial agreements, 649-51
 - Government revenue loss, 651, 652
 - Prices, 650

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1992-2002, 2274, 2337, 2396-7

- British law re purchase of advertising on foreign stations, 1994

Broadcasting, 1998-2002

- Bellingham station, 1998-2002
- Mexican border stations, 2000-01
- UHF TV, Vancouver, 2000
- Warmetco station, 1999

Canada-US relations, 1994, 2000

Canadian advertising in Time, 1993

Discussions with Committee Chairman re amdts, 2274

Freedom of advertising, 1993

Mexican President's statement re relations with US, 1995-6

Time and Reader's Digest, 1993-8

Advertising revenue, 1994

Subscription rate, Canada and US, 1995-6

Indians and Eskimos

- Manitoba Brotherhood, request to appear before Senate committee, 316

Recruitment development program, 569

Industry, textile imports affecting Canadian industry, 901-02, 945-8

Dollar value of imported suits or suiting, 901

Government concern and study of problem, 901-02, 945-6

Import control list, 946

International Trade in Textiles, agreement re, 947

Polyester-cotton fabrics, sources of imports and processing of, 946

Polyester filament yarn, duty surtax on, 946

Restraints to be implemented on imports of men's suits, acrylic yarn, knit fabrics and nylon, 901

Textile and Clothing Board, role of, 946

Inquiry into imports of certain fabrics and clothing, 946-7

Inflation, 27 (See Canadian economy)

Inman, Hon. Elsie F., illness of, 1931

Insulin, production of, 110-11

Justice, administration of, allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1825-6, 1846-8, 1857-9, 1920-2, 1930-1

Drury, Hon. Charles Mills, resignation offer and rejection by Prime Minister, 1890-3, 1920-2

Ouellet, Hon. Andre, resignation because of pending contempt of court appeal, 1890-3, 1920-2

Kickham, Hon. Thomas J., the late, 324

Labour conditions

Montreal Police Force, threatened strike, 849

Strike of longshoremen in Quebec, back-to-work legislation, 833, 838-9, 840, 846, 849, 855, 867, 888, 900-01, 912

Withdrawal of services by longshoremen at Montreal, 1006-07

Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C., the late, 532

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

- Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee
 - Expenses, 526
 - Meetings during Senate sittings, 543
- Liberal Caucus, invitation to members of Opposition, 1868
- MacKay, Hon. John, Lieutenant Governor of Prince Edward Island, the late, 135
- MacKenzie, Hon. Norman, visitor to Senate, 1303
- Marine safety, British Columbia fisheries, 1814-15, 1860
- Marine safety, request for air and sea rescue unit in Newfoundland, 1860
- Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., resignation from the Senate, 208-09
- Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur, the late, portrait of, 564
- Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest, Green Paper on, 574, 580
 - Subject-matter ref to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 774, 779-80
- Money bills, Senate authority to amend, 1656
- Montreal police force, threatened strike, 849
- Motor Vehicle Tire Safety bill S-8, 150, 151
- Multiculturalism, Ministry of State, organization and budget, 849, 866
- Narcotics, study of legislation by Senate committee, 316
- National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1667, 1671
- National interests and unity, 28-30
- National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto-Canada, 2161, 2162-3
 - Excerpt from speech of Treasury Board President, 2162-3
 - Method of authorization for lottery, 2163
- National museums, storage of Canadiana, 2209; artisanship by John D. Howe, 2217
- National Press Gallery, invitation to reception, 61
- New Brunswick storm damage, possibility of federal aid, 1720-1, 1729-30
- Newfoundland, CNR services, 1868, 1903
- Newfoundland, financial assistance for Come-By-Chance refinery, 1860
- North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1727-8
 - Canada's community of interests, 1727-8
 - Warsaw Pact, 1727-8
- Northwest Territories, Senate appointment, 1772, 1778
- Nova Scotia, storm damage, 135-6, 1766
- Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to Argentina, 1975, 2142
- Nuclear reactors, sale by Canada to India, 1869, 1975
- Official languages
 - Implementation of resolution re, report to Parliament tabled, 289-90
 - Language rights of air pilots in Quebec, 2386
- Oil export tax, 1264, 1265-6
- O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, the late, 2034
- Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police, financial compensation by federal government, 962-3
 - Advantages to contracting provinces in use of RCMP, 962-3
 - Federal-provincial negotiations, 963
 - RCMP operations in Ontario and Quebec, 963
- Pacific Western Airlines, possible move of head office to Calgary, 1824-5, 1859, 1868-9, 2376, 2444
- Palestinian Liberation Organization, position taken by Canadian delegation at United Nations meeting, 110, 137-8
- Parliamentary reform, 28-29
- Parliament Buildings
 - Commercial use of Centre Block picture on Christmas cards, 1765
 - Commercial use of Parliamentary Library picture by The Publishers Clearing House, 1764-5
 - East Block, use of rooms by senators, proposal, 110
 - Senate, use of rooms by members of Commons and others, 110

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

Parole, consideration of changes in present system, 1371

Passports

Restrictions on special passports of MPs, article in Globe and Mail, 2262-3, 2362-3, 2443

Use of diplomatic and special passports for travel to Namibia, 2363-4, 2443-4

Penitentiaries, proposed construction of medium security prison in Saint John, 1916-17, 1922-3

Penitentiaries, recommendations of Special Joint Committee, implementation of, 2200, 2249

Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 906-07

Alberta-Ontario-Quebec prices, 907

'Political price fixing', 906

Prices vs international political price fixing, 906

Provincial royalties, 907

Provisions to achieve uniform price, consumer and producer protection, 906-07

Political Parties, possible RCMP investigation, 2063

Post Office, opinion of Anti-Inflation Board re settlement with Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1597

Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1285, 1319, 1355, 1370-1, 1403, 1409-10, 1416-17, 1428, 1429, 1430, 1439, 1459, 1468

Prerogatives of Prime Minister, orders in council re, 1349, 1355

Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to British Columbia with cabinet ministers, 1763, 1764

Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to Paris, news report re accompanying officials, 161, 180

Privileges and immunities of senators, motion for appointment of special committee, 1434-6; Order discharged and motion withdrawn, 1733-4

Hiring of counsel and staff, 1435

Terms of reference, 1433

Privileges of Parliament

Parliamentary Library, commercial use of picture of, 1729, 1764-5

Progressive Conservative Party of Canada, leadership convention, 1778, 1813

Public Service

Bank's refusal to cash government cheques, 1974-5, 2003-04, 2008

Commission, new offices, interior wall decoration, 1930, 1975-6

Salary bracket of $60,000, 889

Strike of general labour and trades group, 642

Public Works

Langevin Building, costs of renovations under headings of structural, mechanical, decoration and communications, 2243

Quebec Official Language Act, decision of federal government on petition, 912, 924-5

Queen Elizabeth, celebration of Silver Jubilee in Canada, 1318-19, 1403

Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1639-40, 1662-3, 1664, 1665-6

Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, newspaper article re Chairman Senator Forsey, 794

Representation bill, 1974 C-36, 420-3, 437-8, 439-40

Quebec, 421

Representation by population, 421

Statistics of provincial representations, 422-3, 437, 439, 440

Restaurant of Parliament, source of meat supplies, 1007, 1012-13

Rowe, Hon. Frederick William, publication of book, Education and Culture in Newfoundland, 2308-09

Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1209

Rules of the Senate

Initiation of money bills, 887

Point of order, amending of money bills, 886

Excerpts from Commons Standing Orders and from Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms re, 886

Referral of items to National Finance Committee, 1109, 1110

Suspension of rule 95 re private bills, 1209

Use of unparliamentary language, 1109

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Continued

- Saint John, N.B., increase in bus fares, 1815, 1816, 1846
- St. John the Baptist Day, 2259
- St. Lawrence Islands National Park, government expenditures on, 1549-50, 1588
- St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59, 817-18, 821, 826-7
 - Government policy in conciliation matters, 826
 - Grain supplies in Quebec, 826
 - Injunctions obtained by private interests, 827
 - Maritime Employers Assoc. and International Longshoremen's Assoc., 817, 818
 - Mediator Charles Poirier (1975), 817
 - Mediator Judge Alan Gold (1974), 817
 - Parliamentary responsibility in settlement of dispute, 817
 - Penalty clause, 827
 - Rate of pay, 818
- St. Patrick's Day, 1902
- Saskatchewan, safety of Gardiner Dam, 2179, 2377
- Science Policy Committee, 1259
- Senate
 - Adjournment from afternoon to evening sitting, 1108, 1110
 - Adjournment, summer, 1280
 - Business, 31, 60-61, 222, 255-6, 454-5, 713, 714, 723, 848-9, 878-9, 1091, 1107, 1111, 1250, 1261-4, 1265, 1286-7, 1653-4, 1661, 1682, 1686, 1712, 1717, 1718-19, 1875-6, 1879, 1880, 1914-16, 1954-5, 1966, 2356
 - Committees, work of, 28-29
 - 'Consecutive sitting days', 31
 - Monday evening sittings, question of, 1879, 1880
 - Photographing of precincts and of senators for distribution to Canadian embassies, 473
 - Protective staff, summer uniforms, 1156, 1213-14
 - Reform, article in Globe and Mail quoting statements of Prime Minister, 47
 - Role of, 28-29
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 856-9, 879-80
 - Commissioners to be appointed by Governor in Council for annual inquiry into allowances, 858
 - Comparisons with newspaper reporters and editors, 857
 - Economic problems of members of Parliament, 879
 - Expenses and travel allowances, 858
 - Food retailing industry, salaries, 879
 - Indemnities and allowances, adjustment of, 857, 859
 - Industrial composite index (1970-74), 857
 - Opposition members, 858
 - Provincial legislature allowances, 858
 - Senate and Commons, sitting days and hours of work, 880
 - Service to the public, importance of, 879-80
- Senate (Intersessional Authority) bill S-22, 770-1
 - Administration of internal economy of Senate between sessions, 771
 - BNA Act provisions re privileges, immunities and powers of Senate, 771
 - Committee meetings between sessions, 772
 - Intersessional authority, question of money bill concept, 771
 - Royal prerogative, necessity of, 771
- Sessions of Parliament, 1903
- Small Farms Development Program
 - Farm management consultants, 2079
 - Number of loans approved for provinces, 1197-8
- Smith, Hon. George Isaac, introduced in the Senate, 1282
- Spain, King Juan Carlos I, attendance at coronation of, 1485

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - ContinuedSports

Congratulations to Montreal Canadiens on winning of the Stanley Cup, 2199

Congratulations to Newfoundland Rink on winning of the Canadian Men's Curling Championship, 1889

Springhill, N.S., fire disaster, possibility of federal aid, 1242

Tailoring service for Senate and Commons, 2167

Tax treaties or conventions with other countries, 855, 867, 925, 942

Televising of committee proceedings, 509, 510, 513, 548-9

Television commercial advertising of Guaranty Trust, use of picture of Parliament Buildings, 556, 564, 959-7

Transportation

Bilingual air traffic services, Commission of Inquiry, 2261-2, 2322, 2335, 2352-3

Crowsnest Pass freight rates, 889, 924

Disruption of airline services in Canada, 2237, 2243, 2249-50, 2258-9

Memorandum of Understanding between the Minister of Transport and the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, 2276-7

Trans-Canada highway, maintenance cost subsidies, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, 1903, 1922

Transport Minister Hon. Jean Marchand, rumour of resignation, 573

Unemployment Insurance bill C-69, 1693, 1694

Opposition criticisms of bill, 1693-4

Persons 65 years and over, 1694

Studies of systems in other countries, 1693

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, invitation to send Canadian Parliamentarians to Russia, 1250-1, 1257

United Kingdom Prime Minister Harold Wilson, visit to Ottawa, 473, 480

United Nations Assembly resolution re Zionism, 1411, 1417, 1439

United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention, status of Palestinian Liberation Organization as participants, 1166, 1238, 1242-4, 1248-9

Canada's participation in refugee relief, peacekeeping and ceasefire missions, 1244

Current discord at international conferences, 1238

Resolution adopted by General Assembly inviting PLO to attend, 1238

South Africa, exclusion from UN, 1243-4

Statement of Secretary of State for External Affairs re government decision, 1248-9

United Nations Peacekeeping Force, pension benefits for dependants of Canadian soldier killed in Cyprus, 768

Uranium of Canada, Limited, proposed referral of report to National Finance Committee, 1639

Victoria Memorial Museum, rumoured change of name, 1035, 1165

Visitors to Parliament, abatement of noise in precincts, 1012

Welfare ministers' conference, statement by Minister of NHW re federal policy in social welfare field, 556, 564

West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12, 77-78, 80, 89-93, 94

Basic hourly rate, 78, 92

Conciliation commissioner, Dr. Neil Perry, recommendations of, 77-78, 89-90, 91-92

Consultations between government representatives and company officials in Saskatoon, 91

Cost-of-living and pension proposals, 94

Industrial Inquiry Commission, proposal of Labour minister, 78

Legislative proposals, 78

Term of collective agreement, 78, 80, 89

West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 724-5, 728-30

Collective agreement provisions, 725

Disruption to economy due to strike, 724, 725

Mediator W. Kelly, Labour Assist. Deputy Minister for Industrial Relations, 724

Perrault, Hon. Raymond J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate - Concluded

- West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56 - Concluded
 - Negotiations process, 724
 - Non-supervisory and supervisory longshoremen, 724
 - Penalty for failure to comply with legislation, 729-30
 - Stevedoring companies and ship and dock foremen, 724
 - Time limit on proceedings of arbitrator, 728
- Wheat Board
 - Adjustment payments to grain producers, 1297
 - Annual report, 732-3

Petro-Canada

- Authorized capital, 1178
- Control by Governor in Council, 1218
- Crown corporations's assets, 1216
- "Energy Policy for Canada - Phase I, Vol. I, Analysis", 1216
- Equity and debt investment for Petro-Canada, 1216
- Establishment of national petroleum company as crown corporation, 1178, 1215
- Excerpt from minister's statements re petroleum industry, 1215
- Foreign control, 1217
- Government policies detrimental to small companies, 1215, 1216
- Private sector achievements, 1215-16
- Revenues for exploration, 1217
- Sale of government interest in Panarctic Oils, 1178
- Scope of activities, 1178-9
- Speakers: Senators
 - Cook, Eric, 1178-9, 1218
 - Grosart, Allister, 1215-18

Petro-Canada bill C-8. 1r, 1174; 2r, 1178-9, 1215-18; ref to com, 1218; rep without amdt, 1244; 3r, 1251; r.a., 1281

Petroleum administration

- Alberta Energy Board, 926
- Alberta-Ontario-Quebec prices, 907
- Alberta-Saskatchewan-British Columbia, oil production for national consumption, 914, 925
- Consumer and producer protection, 903, 906-07, 916
- Control of profits to ensure reinvestment in exploration and development, 905-06, 914
- Cost compensation, 851
- Crude oil prices, 851, 903, 904
- Domestic oil, 862
 - Administration of interprovincial trade, 862
 - Exercise of federal power, 862
 - Federal-provincial agreements, 862
 - Licences for interprovincial transactions, 862
 - Penalties for default of provisions, 862
 - Price restraints, 862
- Dwindling of irreplaceable resources, 903, 926
- Elements creating instability and uncertainty in oil exploration, 904-05
- Exchange of energy between US and Canada in certain regions, 905
- Federal-provincial relations and national unity in solving of problems, 903-04, 915-16
- Federal-provincial temporary arrangements, controversy re, 913
- Frontier oil, 913
- Natural gas, price restraints and controls, 914

Petroleum administration - Concluded

- Nuclear and other energy components, control of, 914-15
- Petroleum export voluntary charge payable to National Energy Board, 861-2
- Political price-fixing, 902-07, 915
- Prices, 906, 914, 925-6
- Pricing of Crude Oil*, by Taki Rifai, 926-7
- Production costs, 926
- Provincial royalties, 907, 913
- Sarnia-Montreal pipeline, 915
- Use of petroleum products in various sectors, extent of, 913

Speakers: Senators

- Flynn, Jacques, 982, 1002
- Grosart, Allister, 912-16
- Hays, Harry, 861-3, 934-5
- Macnaughton, Alan A., 981-2
- Manning, Ernest C., 902-06, 907
- Perrault, Raymond J., 906-07
- Prowse, J. Harper, 925-7

Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 1r, 847; 2r, 861-3, 902-07, 912-16, 925-7, 934-5; ref to com, 936; rep with amdts, 981-2, 1002; motion to amend French version, 1013; 3r, 1013; Commons concurrence in Senate amdts, 1034; r.a., 1095

Petten, Hon. William J., Chief Government Whip in the Senate

- Agriculture Committee, meetings during Senate sittings, 1022
- Appointment to office of Government Whip, 46
- Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, meetings during Senate sittings, 1006
- Committee meetings, schedule of, 828
- Investigations in Parliament, 1479
- National Finance Committee, meetings during Senate sittings, 774, 827
- Senate business, 774, 828, 1022, 1036

Phillips, Hon. Orville H.

- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1575, 1583-4
 - Appeals, 1583
 - Motion for amdt, 1583
 - Regulations, 1583
 - Termination clause, 1575
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, 2104-05
 - Appeal Tribunal members, 2106
 - Backlog of appeals to board, 2105
 - Financial Times survey re percentages of wage settlements, 2105
 - Government spending, 2105
 - Inflationary effects of high interest rates, food, fuel and transportation costs, 2104
 - Maritime wage settlements, 2104, 2106
 - Money supply, 2105
 - Women's professional and business groups, 2104
- Anti-inflation program
 - Budget reduction in Regional Economic Expansion Dept., 1683
 - Government rejection of Board's opinion re postal workers' contract, 1627, 1655
 - Wage guidelines, 1683
- Appropriation bill No. 2, 1976 C-91, 1984-6

Phillips, Hon. Orville H. - Continued

Canadian economy

- Attack on Inflation – a program of national action, 1284, 1293, 1298-1303, 1312-14

- Anti-Inflation Board, 1314

- CBC News Magazine* commentary re financial operations of business groups, 1314

- Conferences with provincial finance and labour ministers, 1312

- Cost-of-living index (1970-75), 1312-13

- Deputy ministers' salaries, 1314

- Government expenditures, 1313-14

- Interest rates, 1313, 1314

- Low income groups, 1313, 1314

- Mirabel Airport, 1314

- No-interest loans to foreign countries, 1314

- Parliamentary and other governmental restraints, 1313

- Regional disparities, 1313

- Voluntary restraints, 1313

- Canadian Labour Congress, salary increases for officers, 2159, 2209-10

- Compensation for Former Prisoners of War bill C-92, 2039-40

- Carleton University award of Rip Van Winkle award to Veterans Affairs Minister, 2039-40

- Evaders and escapees, 2040

- Prisoners of war held at Dieppe, 2040

- Prisoners of war held by Japanese, 2040

- Widows' allowances, 2040

Energy resources

- Prices for crude oil and natural gas, announcement by minister re, 2142

- Energy, statement of policy re oil and gas, 2179-81

- Berger inquiry, 2180

- Canada-US relations, 2179

- Development of frontier resources, 2180

- Electricity costs, Atlantic provinces, 2181

- Energy conservation, gas and oil, 2179-80

- Exploration regulations, 2181

- Hydroelectric power generation, statement of Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, 2180

- Nuclear energy, 2180

- Oil prices, 2181

- Petro-Canada, 2181-2

- Provincial exports of energy, 2180

Estimates

- Bilingualism, 1986

- Housing grants, 1986

- Lockheed long-range patrol aircraft, 1984-5

- Nova Scotia heating costs, 1985

- Oil subsidies to Ottawa Valley line, 1985

- Olympic Games deficit, 1985, 1986

- Percentage increase in government expenditures, 1984

- Transport Department reductions, 1985-6

- Two-price wheat system, 1985

- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1036-7

- Fingerprinting, 1037

- Parole or pardon, 1037

- Summary conviction or conviction upon indictment, 1036

- Medical Care bill C-68, 2357-8

- Federal-provincial conferences, 2357, 2358

- New Brunswick refusal to participate in medicare program, 2357

- Nursing homes, 2358

Phillips, Hon. Orville H. - Concluded

- National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1669-71, 1675, 1676
 - AHOP, 1676
 - Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., 1670
 - First purchase, question of, 1676
 - Grants and repayable loans, 1670
 - Housing costs, 1669
 - Mortgage arrangements, 1670
 - Mortgage funds, diversion to low and moderately-priced housing, 1669
 - Processing of applications, 1670
 - Refinancing of mortgage, 1676
 - Rental accommodation, 1670
 - Servicing of land, 1669
 - Single parent family, 1670, 1676
 - Standards, 1669-70, 1675
- Old Age Security bill C-62, 1123-5
 - Discrimination reflecting on Bill of Rights, 1124
 - Inflation and cost of living, 1123
 - Joint application, 1124
 - Married or common-law status, 1124
 - Statistics on recipients and benefits, 1123-4
 - Termination of allowance upon husband's death, 1124
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1370, 1371
- Proprietary or Patent Medicine and Trade Marks bill S-35, 2132
- Quarantine bill S-31, 1785-6
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1663, 1666
- Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28, 1205-06
 - Assets or property, branch holdings, 1206
 - Closing of small branches due to membership drop, 1205-06
 - Legion background, 1205
 - War veterans allowance, 1205
 - Youth programs, 1205
- Transportation, BNA Act as it pertains to, 2063-6
- Transportation, flight delays due to labour dispute, 2062-3, 2168

Point of order

- Adjournment from afternoon to evening sitting, 1110
- Amending of money bills, 886-8
 - Excerpt from The Modern Senate of Canada, 887
 - Precedents of amdt's by the Senate, 887
 - Rights of Senate in Matters of Financial Legislation, report of special committee, 887-8
- Appropriation bill, 387-8, 390
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill, discussion on amdt, 1015
- Initiation of money bills, 887
- Investigations in Parliament, 1477-8
- Minister speaking on behalf of government, 1202
- Motion presented and seconded by senators not present, 944
 - Speaker's statement re, 944
- Question of privilege re Air Canada service, 506-07
- Question of privilege re Green Paper on Conflict of Interest, 779-81
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1666
- Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, motion re, 952
- Senate reform, discussion out of order, 1578-9
- Unscheduled speakers taking part in debate, 560
- See* Privilege, question of

Police forces

- Montreal police, threatened strike, 849
- Murder of Moncton policemen, 529, 561
- Ontario and Quebec provincial police, financial compensation for maintenance, 501-04, 537-40, 567-9, 603
- Motion for referral to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 954-5, 962-6, agreed, 966

Polish Ambassador, His Excellency Jozef Czesak and Mrs. Czesak, visitors to Senate, 1442

Political Parties, possible RCMP investigation, 2063

Post Office

- Anti-Inflation Board's opinion re settlement with Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1597
- Government rejection of Anti-Inflation Board's opinion re contract settlement, 1627-8
- Strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1285, 1319, 1355, 1370-1, 1409-10, 1416-17, 1428-31, 1454, 1459, 1468

Poverty in Canada

- Children in poverty, report by National Council of Welfare, 625-6
- Real and fraudulent poverty, 241
- Report of Special Senate Committee, updated, 281-2, 626
- Unequal distribution of wealth, 475
- Work ethic in Canada, 281-8, 339-42, 474-8, 518
- Working poor, 283

Prairie grain advance payments (Bill C-10)

- Abuses of cash advances, question of, 615
- Corporate farms, partnerships, cooperatives or farming enterprises, 596, 614
- Crownsnest Pass Agreement, 598
- DREE, 599
- Elevator companies, question of commission for, 596, 597, 615
- Flax, 597-8
- Grants and subsidies to railways, 599
- Increase in advance payment to $15,000, 595, 614
- Instigation of Act by Conservative government, 614
- Investment of cash advance payments, 615, 622
- Labour problems and effect on wheat and farm industry, 600
- Loans in relation to land values, 596-7
- Option to deliver on quota system or by offboard sales, 596
- Prices and production costs, 615
- Railway branch lines, proposed removal of, 598-9
- Repayment record, 615

Speakers: Senators

- Argue, Hazen, 597-9, 600, 602
- Benidickson, W. M., 615
- Buckwold, Sidney L., 599, 600
- Flynn, Jacques, 599, 600
- McDonald, A. Hamilton, 595-7, 615, 621-2
- Sparrow, Herbert O., 598, 599
- Yuzyk, Paul, 614-15

Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10. 1r, 583; 2r, 595-601, 614-15, 621-2; ref to com, 622; rep without amdt, 684; 3r, 709; r.a., 731

Prairie grain advance payments (Bill C-53)

Damp or tough or unthreshed grain, 1156, 1166, 1167

Date of coming into force of act, 1157

Offboard sales, 1156-7

Persons authorized to purchase grain for board, 1166

Provisions re initial price, interest, deliveries, etc., 1156

Repayment statistics and defaults, 1156, 1167

Speakers: Senators

Molgat, Gildas L., 1156-7, 1167-8

Yuzyk, Paul, 1157, 1166-7

Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 2) C-53. 1r, 1136; 2r, 1156-7, 1166-8; ref to com, 1168; rep without amdt, 1180; 3r, 1198; r.a., 1281

Prime Minister of Canada

Inaccuracies in pamphlet issued by Information Canada regarding Prime Ministers of Canada, 1757

Orders in Council concerning prerogatives of Prime Minister, 1349, 1355

Visit to British Columbia with cabinet ministers, 1763-4

Visit to Paris, news report re accompanying officials, 161, 180

See Trudeau, Right Hon. Pierre Elliott, P.C., Prime Minister of Canada

Prince Edward Island

Ferries operating between Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, possible increase in fares, 1815

Judges, 1005, 1040-3, 1051-3, 1066, 1080, 1095

MacKay, Hon. John, Lieutenant Governor, the late, 135

Matheson, Hon. Alexander W., the late, former Premier, 1861-2

Trans-Canada highway, maintenance cost subsidies, 1903, 1922

Transportation, 73

Tuna fishing and revenue from, 74

Unemployment insurance for rural residents, 74

Printing of Parliament, Joint Committee

Members

Commons, 60

Senate, 109

Printing and distribution of bills, question, 61

Private bills

See Bills, general data,

Bills, Private, Commons,

Bills, Private, Senate.

Privilege, question of Air Canada service

Ottawa-Halifax, 1479-80

Point of order re, 506-07

Allegations of conflict of interest re Sky Shops Export Ltd. (Senator Giguère), 1348

Privilege, question of - Concluded

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation

Appearance of Gerda Munsinger on TV program, answer to inquiry, 1256-7, 1618-19

La Presse report of statement by Senator Lamontagne, 1165-6

Canadian Labour Congress, political affiliation, 2153, 2154

Canadian Press report of statements made by Leader of the Government re matter concerning Senator Giguère, 1395-7

CTV News report on death of Viateur Ethier and misrepresentation as Conservative member of Parliament, 1241

Comment of government leader re remarks of Senator Croll, 198

Conflict of Interest, Green Paper on, Senator Croll, 779-81

Conflict of interest, interpretation of, 1308-09

Conflict of interest re withdrawal of senator from debate on Combines Investigation bill C-2, 1315-16

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, press article re passage of, 2406

Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee

Unauthorized release to press of draft report, 1755-6

Immigration policy, unauthorized press publication of draft report of Special Joint Committee, 1285-6

Investigations in Parliament, 1476-9

Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, meeting in camera, 1770-1

National Defence and Criminal Code bill S-23, adjournment of Orders of the Day for second reading, 1459

Newfoundland, CTV references to, 2215-16

Omission of motion and of Speaker's ruling from Minutes of Proceedings, 961

Parliamentary immunity, 1398-1403

Statement by Leader of the Government, 1409

Parliamentary Library, commercial use of picture of, 1729, 1764-5

Publishing industry, letter from Hon. Mr. Davey to Globe and Mail re editorial entitled 'Whittling Down a Freedom', 582, 641-2

Right to invoke any rule of the Senate, 198

Senate, articles by Senator Rowe, press report of, 480

Team Canada, press report of speech by Senator Godfrey, 98-99

Third reading of Bill C-58, absence of Hon. Mr. Davey, 2450

See Point of order

Privileges and immunities (international organizations)

European Community, 957-8

Comprehensive economic cooperation agreement, 957

Ottawa office, establishment of, 957-8

Recommendations of Foreign Affairs Committee, 957

Visit of Prime Minister to Community, 957

Speakers: Senators

Grosart, Allister, 958

van Roggen, George C., 957-8

Privileges and Immunities (International Organizations) bill S-25. 1r, 934; 2r, 957-8; 3r, 973; r.a., 1281

Privileges and immunities of senators, 1395-7, 1398-1403, 1409, 1434-6

Motion for appointment of special committee, 1434-6; Order stands, 1458

Hiring of counsel and staff, 1435

Search warrants, procedure for dealing with, 1434

Sky Shops Export Limited, alleged conflict of interest (Senator Giguere), 1348, 1395-7, 1398-1403, 1434-6

Terms of reference, 1434

Privileges of Parliament

Ottawa Citizen article re comments of Senator F. W. Rowe, 1777

See also Inquiries,
Privilege, Question of,
Questions.

Privy Council

Clerk of the Privy Council, 465

Secretary to the Cabinet for Federal-Provincial Relations, 465-6

Progressive Conservative Party of Canada

Best wishes for successful leadership convention, 1778

Congratulations on election of leader, 1813-14

Property qualification of senators

Return presented, 242

Supplementary return authorized, 242; supplementary return tabled, 472

Proprietary or patent medicine and trade marks (Bill S-9)

Authority for making regulations, 128, 157

Certificates for registration, 127

Continuous scientific review of medicine, 156

Herbal medicinals, 156

Listing of ingredients, 157

Proprietary division of food and drug regulations, 127

Quality, manufacture, safety and effectiveness of proprietary medicines, regulations re, 127, 157

Royal patent, 156

TV advertising, detrimental aspects, 128, 156, 157

Speakers: Senators

Bonnell, M. Lorne, 126-7, 128

Buckwold, Sidney L., 127, 128

Grosart, Allister, 128

Langlois, Leopold, 156-7

Macdonald, John M., 157

Sullivan, Joseph A., 155-6, 157

Proprietary or Patent Medicine and Trade Marks bill S-9. 1r, 47; 2r, 126-8, 155-7; ref to com, 157; rep with amdt, 240, 245; 3r, 253; r.a., 832

Proprietary or patent medicine and trade marks (Bill S-35)

Excerpt from speech by Hon. Marc Lalonde, 2126

Federal-provincial consultation, 2126

Self-medication, 2126

Speakers: Senators

Cottreau, Ernest G., 2125-6

Phillips, Orville H., 2132

Proprietary or Patent Medicine and Trade Marks bill S-35. 1r, 2103; 2r, 2125-6, 2132; 3r, 2144; r.a., 2207

Prorogation of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament

Speech from the Throne, Rt. Hon. Bora Laskin, P.C., 2453

Prowse, Hon. J. Harper (Deceased Sept. 28/76)

- Alberta-British Columbia Boundary bill S-13, 219, 225
 - Boundary Commission, composition of, 219, 225
 - Federal-provincial agreement on boundary lines, 225
 - Strip-mining operations, effects on boundary lines, 219, 225
- Appropriation bill No. 4, 1974 C-42, 388
- Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 560-2, 589
 - Deterrent aspects, 562
 - Excerpt from Code re responsibility for carrying out sentence, 560-1
 - Jury and judge responsibility in sentence of death, 562
 - Louis Riel case* cited, 561
 - Murder of Moncton policemen, 561
 - Nuremberg* trials, 561, 562
 - Royal prerogative, 562
 - Vengeance vs justice, 561-2
- Distribution of document in Senate chamber, 644
- Excise Tax bill C-66, 1271, 1277-8
 - Gasoline for personal use, 1278
 - Prices, 1277
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 382-5, 1048-9
 - Convictions for possession, 1047
 - 'Give', definition of, 1047
 - LeDain Commission, 383
 - Parole or pardon, 1048
 - Penalty for trafficking or possession, 1047-8
 - Teenagers use of drugs, 383-4
- Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 616-20, 652-3
 - Coal, 619-20
 - Annual report of South African Coal, Oil and Gas Corp., 619
 - Oil industry, 616-20
 - Alberta, 617-19; oil and gas conservation board, 618
 - Export tax, 617
 - Great Canadian Oil Sands, 619
 - Prices, 617, 618, 619, 652
 - Pricing of Crude Oil, Economic and Strategic Guidelines for International Energy Policy*, by Taki Rifai, 618
 - Production costs, 618
 - Royalties, 617
 - Tar Sands, 619, 620
- Northwest Territories Representation bill S-22, 594-5
- Parliamentary immunity, question of privilege, 1398-1401, 1402
- Petroleum Administration bill C-32, 925-7
 - Alberta Energy Board, 926
 - Alberta-Saskatchewan-British Columbia, oil production for national consumption, 925
 - Depletion of natural resources, 926
 - Prices, 925-6
 - Pricing of Crude Oil*, by Taki Rifai, 926-7
 - Production costs, 926
- Senate and House of Commons
 - Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, 953
- Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 878-9
 - Provincial government remuneration, 878-9
- Senate business, 484

Prowse, Hon. J. Harper - Concluded

Senate (Intersessional Authority) bill S-22, 772-3

Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, difficulties encountered between sessions because of impending election, 722

Sittings of Senate committees during election periods, question of feasibility of, 772

Televising of committee proceedings, 509

West Coast Ports Operations bill C-56, 727

Labour unions and management, irresponsibility in not reaching agreement, 727

Right to strike, 727

Public bills

See Bills, general data,

Bills, Public, Commons,

Bills, Public, Senate.

Public Service

Bank's refusal to cash government cheques, 1974-5, 2003-04, 2008

Civil Service insurance, 712, 766-7, 770, 775, 832

Commission, new offices, interior wall decoration, 1930, 1975-6

Employees in $60,000 bracket, 876, 889

Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Senate Committee, 160, 188-9, 1545-7

Reclassification of economists, sociologists and statisticians, Treasury Board action re, 2318-21

Recommendation to establish permanent Staff Relations Board, 998

Strikes of general labour and trades group, 642

Workload of present board, 999

See Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Special Joint Committee

Public Service employment, staff relations, superannuation

Federal-provincial relations, 465, 466

Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet, 465, 466; responsibilities, 466

Privy Council functions, 465

Speakers: Senators

Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 466

Forsey, Eugene A., 466

McIlraith, George, 464-5, 466

Public Service Employment, Staff Relations, Superannuation, Interpretation bill C-38. 1r, 464; 2r, 464-6; 3r, 466-7; r.a., 467

Public Service staff relations

Apolitical aspect of board appointments, 1236

Authority of chairman to appoint outside arbitrator, 1237, 1245

Backlog of work of board, 1236-7, 1245

Board composition and responsibilities, 1236-7, 1246-7

Term of office, 1245, 1246-7

Finkleman report, 1235-6

Topics involving committee recommendations, 1235

Speakers: Senators

Buckwold, Sidney L., 1235-7, 1245-6

Flynn, Jacques, 1245, 1246

Macdonald, John M., 1245

Public Service Staff Relations bill C-70. 1r, 1235; 2r, 1235-7, 1244-6; 3r, 1251; r.a., 1281

Public Works

Langevin Building, costs of renovations under headings of structural, mechanical, decoration and communications, 2243

Publishing industry, 62, 556, 564, 582-3

Globe and Mail article by J. Carruthers re Time magazine, 582-3

Letter from Senator Davey to Globe and Mail re editorial entitled 'Whittling Down a Freedom', 582

Television commercial advertising of Guaranty Trust, use of picture of Parliament Buildings, 556, 564, 956-7

Time and Reader's Digest magazines, tax concessions in advertising, 582

Time magazine, brief presented to members of Commons, 62

Quarantine

Black death of Europe and London plague, 1786

Cleansing or removal of infested or contaminated conveyance, 1779

Detention by quarantine officer or permission to proceed, 1779

Extension of provisions to include other dangerous diseases, 1779

Immigration (1847) causing ship-fever, typhus and cholera, 1786

Grosse Isle monument to victims, 1786

Medical examination, 1779-80

Research scientists, tribute to, 1786-7

Pasteur, Fleming and Snow, 1787

Speakers: Senators

Connolly, John J., 1786-7

McGrand, Fred A., 1778-80

Phillips, Orville H., 1785-6

Quarantine bill S-31. 1r, 1763; 2r, 1778-80, 1785-7, 1788; ref to com, 1788; rep without amdt, 1874; 3r, 1893; r.a., 2096

Quart, Hon. Josie D.

Canadian Sovereignty Symbol bill C-373, 687, 709

Importation of beavers from US for Grey Owl film, 709

Environmental Contaminants bill C-25, 1404-05

DDT and other chemicals, dangerous effects of, 1404

Federal-provincial consultations, 1404

Government authority to obtain information re environment and manufactured substances, 1404

Habitat, United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, 1964

International Women's Year, 671-4

Honorary aide-de-camp to Governor General, Colonel Mary Vallance, 672

Protest speech of student at public meeting contest, 673-4

Royal Commission on the Status of Women, 672

Song of Equality, by Jacqueline Lemay, 673

Speaker of the Senate, Hon. Renaude Lapointe, 671-3

Symbol of Why Not buttons, comments of Hon. Marc Lalonde, women MPs and others, 672-3

UN conference on ways and means to end discrimination against women, 672

UN disregard of women's rights in appointments to principal positions, 672

UN resolution re International Women's Year, 672

Quebec

- Bill 22 on use of French language, 54-58
 - Administrative discretion, 57
 - Constitutionality of, 56-57
 - Universities, 57-58
- Construction industry, pardon granted to Dede Desjardins, 1035, 1066
- Labour conditions, strike of longshoremen, 833, 838-9, 840, 846, 849, 855, 867, 888, 912
- Legal profession statistics, 625
- Official Language Act, question re government decision on petition, 829, 912
- Provincial police, 501-04, 537-40, 567-9, 603, 954-5, 962-6
- St. Lawrence ports operations, 817-27, 832
- Statutes of Canada (references to Court of Queen's Bench of Quebec) 243, 274-7, 291-3, 301, 467

Quebec and Ontario Provincial Police

- Motion to authorize Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee to consider financial compensation by federal government, 954-5, 962-6, agreed, 966

Quebec Provincial Police financial compensation for maintenance, 501-04, 537-40, 567-9, 603, 954-5, order withdrawn, 966

- Agreements between federal-provincial governments for services of RCMP, 501
 - Financial implications, 501, 502, 538
- Compensation claims, 501
- Conferences and correspondence between Quebec Justice Minister and Solicitor General, 503, 538-9
- Constitutional jurisdiction of provinces over police matters, 539
- Opting-out formula, 539
- Police administration costs, 503-04, 568
- Police Costs - Where are all those Millions?*, booklet issued by Quebec Justice Dept., 538
- Separatism, danger of upsurge as result of federal-provincial differences on subject, 540
- Staff and equipment, lack of facilities in Quebec to fight organized crime, 538
- Speakers: Senators
 - Asselin, Martial, 537-40
 - Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 501-04
 - Desruisseaux, Paul, 567-8
 - Flynn, Jacques, 603
 - Manning, Ernest C., 568-9

Queen Elizabeth, Her Majesty, celebration of Silver Jubilee in Canada, 1318-19, 1403Question of Privilege, 98-99, 198, 480, 506-07, 582, 641-2, 779-81, 961, 1165-6, 1241, 1256-7, 1285-6, 1308-09, 1315-16, 1348, 1395-7, 1398-1403, 1409, 1459, 1479-80, 1618-19, 1729, 1764-5, 1770-1, 2215-16, 2450

See Privilege, Question of

Questions

- Abortions, study of procedure for obtaining therapeutic abortions, 1428, 1624-5, 1639, 1654-5
- Air Canada service Fredericton-Ottawa, 854-5, 867
- Air transport, flight delays due to labour dispute, 2062-3
- Anti-inflation program
 - Budget reduction in Regional Economic Expansion Dept., 1683
 - Family allowances, 1683, 1716, 1721
 - Judges' salaries, 1662, 1681
 - Meeting of Minister of Finance and provincial representatives re implementation of guidelines, 1549
 - National Defence cutbacks in Nova Scotia, effect of, 1683, 1716

Questions - ContinuedAnti-inflation program - Concluded

Postal workers' contract, government rejection of Board's opinion on, 1627-8, 1655

Saint John, N.B., increase in bus fare, 1815-16, 1846

Wage guidelines, 1683

Auditor General of Canada, report of Independent Review Committee, 796

Beef producers, federal assistance for, 240-1, 253

Bilingual air traffic services, Commission of Inquiry, 2322, 2335, 2352-3

Letters from Air Traffic Control Assoc. and Air Line Pilots' Assoc., and to Minister of Transport, 2352-3

Budget, date of presentation, 161

Canada-United States boundary, government policy re demarcation line on Dixon Entrance on Strait of Juan de Fuca, George's Bank and northwards, 2308

Canada-United States relations, 1625-7

Canada-United States relations, communications between Canada and US, newspaper article re remarks by American Ambassador, 2122-3, 2192-3, 2201, 2377-8

Canada Year Book, 1788, 1821-3

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation

Gerda Munsinger, presence in Canada and appearance on CBC television program, 1034, 1073, 1239-40, 1256-7, 1618-19, 1625

Canadian coins, reported change in design, 1937, 1955

Canadian economy, statement by Prime Minister re anti-inflation legislation, 1293

Canadian Labour Congress, political affiliation, 2153-4

Canadian Labour Congress, possibility of general strike, newspaper report re meeting and proposals for liberal corporatism, 2130

Canadian Labour Congress, salary increases for officers, 2159, 2209-10

Canadian National Railway services in Atlantic provinces, 1923-4, 1976

Canadian National Railways, cost of construction of tower in Toronto, 2185-6, 2263-4

CTV news report of death of Viateur Ethier and misrepresentation as member of Conservative Party, 1241

Canadian Wheat Board, adjustment payments to grain producers, 1297

Candu reactors, proposed sale to Argentina and Korea, 1307, 1319

Capital punishment

Commutation of sentences of accused murderers and kidnappers, 400

Partial abolition and expiration of trial period, 1656

Childers, Erskine, President of Republic of Ireland, death of, 265

Citizenship bill, suggested referral of Clause 33 to Supreme Court, 2362, 2444

Clerk's Scroll, 1667, 1683-5

Combines investigation, New Brunswick court of appeal decision re K. C. Irving, Ltd., 1023, 1045-6

Combines, takeover bid by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd. of Argus Corporation Ltd. reference of matter to Senate committee, inquiry dropped, 1063-4

Connaught Laboratories Ltd., testing operations adjacent to proposed housing development, 586, 616, 732, 902

Construction industry in Quebec, pardon granted to Dede Desjardins, 1035, 1066

Copyright Act, Economic Review, 'Crown copyright reserved', replacement of words, 2200, 2322-3, 2362

Criminal Code (control of weapons and firearms) bill S-14, progress of bill in committee stage, 479-80

Criminal Code, illegal abortions, Dr. Henry Morgentaler, acquittal of charges, 1036

Crowsnest Pass freight rates, 889, 924

Distribution of document in Senate chamber, 644

Energy resources

Atlantic provinces, development of tidal power in Bay of Fundy, 2070, 2142, 2210

Atlantic provinces, offshore oil and gas resources, 2070, 2141-2, 2143

Conservation of fuel, car awaiting Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, 2209, 2443

Construction of Arctic gas pipeline, supply of Arctic gas to southern Canada, 2037-8, 2069-70

Government policy re Canadian ownership of companies developing oil and gas on crown lands, 2159-60, 2210

Questions - ContinuedEnergy resources - Concluded

- International conference of oil-consuming and oil-producing countries, exclusion of Canada, 605-06, 774-5
- Lighting of government buildings, 606, 1238-9
- Oil and gas reserves, negotiations between federal government and governments of producing provinces, 2070
- Passamaquoddy-Cobscook Bay, US Corps of Engineers report on, 2210-11
- Proposed construction of pipeline from Prince Rupert to Edmonton, 2037
- Proposed pipeline treaty between Canada and United States, 2037
- Environmental affairs, protection of coastal waters from radio-active pollution, 889, 924
- Estimates, fiscal year ending Mar. 31/77, removal of item from order paper, 1782-5
- European Economic Community, Canada's claim for compensation, 579-80, 661-2, 671
- External Affairs Department, Passport Office, refusal to accept Canadian currency of $50 and $100 denominations, 2037, 2077
- Federal government buildings, Langevin Block and Justice Building, 76-77, 137
- Feed grains, freight assistance to Atlantic provinces, 1035
- Ferry service
 - Between North Sydney and Port Aux Basques, 1861
 - Between Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, 1815, 1860, 1861
- Fisheries
 - Extension of 200 mile coastal jurisdiction, 2208, 2377
 - Rights of MicMac Indians of Cross Point Reserve to fish Atlantic salmon, 2208, 2264
- Florida land deals, involvement of Canadians in alleged swindle, 1012, 1198
- Foreign affairs
 - Aid to Chile, 1438-9, 1597-8
 - Canadian Defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, report in Globe and Mail, 2122-3, 2201
 - Special passports for MPs, restrictions on, 2263, 2362-3
- Gasoline excise tax, 1100-01, 1112-13
- Government Expenditures Restraint bill, date of introduction in Senate, 2130, 2159, 2264
- Grain subsidies paid on shipments to Eastern Canadian ports for export, 2156,
- Helsinki Declaration on European Security and Co-operation, 1293, 1466
- Identity cards for senators, 179-80
- Immigration, Gulf Islands, British Columbia, ministerial discretion permits, 2322
- Immigration, presence in Canada of Xaviera Hollander and Gerda Munsinger, 1007, 1013, 1034, 1249-40
- Indians, Manitoba Brotherhood, request to appear before Senate Committee, 315-16
- Information Canada, inaccuracies in publications regarding Governors General and Prime Ministers, 1757, 2003
- Insulin, production of, 100, 110-11
- Italy, earthquake victims, Canadian government assistance to, 2111
- Justice, administration of, allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1825-6, 1846-8, 1857-9, 1890-2, 1930-2
- Labour
 - Defiance by unions of court orders, 2237
 - Strike of longshoremen in Quebec, back to work legislation, 833, 838-9, 840, 846, 849, 855, 867, 888, 912
 - Withdrawal of services by longshoremen at Montreal, 1006-07
- Liberal Caucus, invitation to members of Opposition, 1868
- Marine safety, British Columbia fisheries, 1815, 1860
- Marine safety, request for location of air and sea rescue unit in Newfoundland, 1860
- Meighen, Rt. Hon. Arthur, the late, portrait of, 53, 563
- Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest, Green Paper on, ref to Commons com, 373, 573, 580
- Money bills, Senate authority to amend, 1656-9
- Montreal police force, threatened strike, 849

Questions - Continued

- Multiculturalism, Ministry of State, organization and budget, 742, 849, 866
- Narcotics, study of legislation by Senate committee, 316
- National Capital Region, proposed study by joint committee, 229
- National lottery, method of proceeding with, 2103-04, 2110-11
- National Museums, storage of Canadiana, 2209; artisanship of John D. Howe, 2217
- National Press Gallery, invitation to reception, 61-62
- New Brunswick storm damage, possibility of federal aid, 1720-1, 1729-30
- Newfoundland
 - CNR services, 1868, 1903
 - Financial assistance for Come-By-Chance refinery, 1826-7, 1860
 - Trans-Canada highway, maintenance cost subsidies, 1903, 1922
- Nova Scotia storm damage, possibility of federal aid, 135-6
- Nuclear reactors
 - Sale by Canada to Argentina, 1975, 2142
 - Sale by Canada to India, 1859-60; further questions, 1975
- Oil export tax, 1264, 1265-6
- Pacific Western Airlines, possible move of head office to Calgary, 1824-5, 1859, 1868-9, 2376, 2444
- Palestinian Liberation Organization attendance at United Nations General Assembly, position taken by
 - Canadian delegation, 110, 137-8, 1238
- Parliament Buildings
 - East Block, use of rooms by senators, proposal, 110
 - Senate, use of rooms by members of House of Commons and others, 110
- Parole, consideration by government of changes in present system, 1371
- Passports
 - Restrictions on special passports of MPs, article in Globe and Mail, 2262-3, 2362-3, 2443
 - Use of diplomatic and special passports for travel to Namibia, 2363-4, 2443-4
- Penitentiaries
 - Proposed construction of medium security prison in Saint John, 1916-17, 1922-3
 - Recommendations of Special Joint Committee, implementation of, 2200
- Political Parties, possible RCMP investigation, 2063
- Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1285, 1319, 1370-1, 1403, 1409-10, 1416-17, 1428-31, 1439, 1454, 1459, 1468
 - Opinion of Anti-Inflation Board re settlement of wage dispute, 1597
- Prerogatives of Prime Minister, orders in council re, 1349
- Prime Minister of Canada
 - Visit to British Columbia with cabinet ministers, 1763-4
 - Visit to Paris, news report re accompanying officials, 161, 180
- Prince Edward Island, trans-Canada highway, maintenance cost subsidies, 1903, 1922
- Privileges of Parliament, commercial use of picture of Parliamentary Library, 1729, 1764-5
- Public Service
 - Bank's refusal to cash government cheques, 1974-5, 2003-04, 2008
 - Commission, new offices, interior wall decoration, 1930, 1975-6
 - Salary bracket of $60,000, 889
 - Strike of general labour and trades group, 642
- Public Works, renovation of Langevin Building, costs under headings of structural, mechanical, decoration and communications, 2243
- Quebec Official Language Act, question re government decision on petition, 829, 912, 924-5
- Queen Elizabeth, celebration of Silver Jubilee in Canada, 1318-19, 1403
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, passage of, 1639-40
- Regulations and other statutory instruments, agreements between federal government and provincial governments, 2103, 2110
- Restaurant of Parliament, source of meat supplies, 1007, 1012-13
- Saint John, N.B., increase in bus fares, 1815-16

Questions - Concluded

- St. Lawrence Islands National Park, government expenditures on, 1549-50, 1588
- Saskatchewan, safety of Gardiner Dam, 2179, 2377
- Secrecy in government, discussion of TV program re committee involved in, 1349
- Senate
 - Amplification and simultaneous interpretation system, 13-14
 - Northwest Territories Senate representation, 1772, 1778
 - Protective staff, summer uniforms, 1156
 - Reform of Senate, article in Globe and Mail quoting statements of Prime Minister, 32, 47
 - Seating arrangements for senators on ceremonial occasions, 13
- Sessions of Parliament, legislative program, 1902-03
- Small Farms Development Program
 - Farm management consultants, 2079
 - Number of loans approved for provinces, 1197-8, 1213
- Tailoring service for Senate and Commons, 2167-8, 2209
- Tax treaties or conventions with other countries, 855, 867, 925, 942
- Television commercial advertising by Guaranty Trust, use of picture of Parliament Buildings, 556, 564, 956-7
- Time* magazine, brief presented to members of Commons, 62
- Transportation
 - Crowsnest Pass freight rates, 889, 924
 - Disruption of airline services in Canada, 2237, 2243, 2249-50, 2258-9
 - Pacific Western Airlines, 1824-5, 1859, 1868-9, 2376, 2444
- Transport Minister Hon. Jean Marchand, rumour of resignation, 573
- Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, invitation to Canadian Parliamentarians to visit Russia, 1250-1, 1257
- United Kingdom Prime Minister Harold Wilson, visit to Ottawa, 473
- United Nations
 - Assembly resolution re Zionism, limitation on contributions as result of, 1411, 1439
 - Congress on Crime Prevention, status of Palestinian Liberation Organization as participants at, 1166, 1238
 - Peacekeeping Force, pension benefits for dependants of Canadian soldier killed in Cyprus, 760, 768
- Victoria Memorial Museum, rumoured change of name, 1035, 1165
- Visitors to Parliament, abatement of noise in precincts, 1012
- Voting procedure on Bill C-84, 2444
- Watergate tapes, reference to Prime Minister Trudeau by former U.S. President Nixon, 179
- Welfare ministers' conference, statement by Minister of NHW re federal policy in social welfare field, 556, 564
- West Coast ports operations, resumption of work by longshoremen and related operations, 742
- Wheat Board annual report, 685, 732
- See also* Inquiries,
 - Privilege, Question of,
 - Privileges of Parliament.

Radio and television

- Canadian radio-television and telecommunications, 803, 829-32, 841-3, 849-51, 998, 1007, 1095
- See* Broadcasting

Railway bill C-48. 1r, 712; 2r, 760-1; ref to com, 761; rep without amdt, 795; 3r, 803; r.a., 832

Railways (Bill C-48)

- Compliance by companies to regulations, 760
- Disclosure of financial operations, 760
- Ministerial powers, 760
- Western Economic Opportunities Conference, 760

Railways (Bill C-48) - ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Cook, Eric, 760

Flynn, Jacques, 760-1

Railways

Abandonment of lines and effect on municipal property tax assessments, 44-45

Atlantic provinces, CNR services, 1922, 1923-4, 1976

Branch lines, Western Canada, proposed removal of, 698-9

Canadian Pacific Railway, 38-45

Canadian Pacific: A Brief History, by J. L. McDougall, 40-41

Canadian Transportation and Distribution, excerpt from magazine re freight policy, 43

Crowsnest Pass, 41-42, 889, 924

Globe and Mail articles re CPR, 43, 44

Hudson's Bay Company, 39

Income from oil, gas and other minerals, 41

Income from real estate and related operations, 40

Integration of CNR and CPR, 43-44

Land grants and sales, 39-42

Marathon Realty, CPR subsidiary, 39

Tax and land concessions, 38-39

The CPR: A Century of Corporate Welfare, by Robert Chodos, 38-39, 40Railways bill S-1 (pro forma). 1r, 7*Reform of the Senate

Appointments, 50-51

Committee work, 74-75

Initiation of bills, 49, 52

Investigation of provincial rights 49-50

Official Opposition, reinforcement of, 184

Orders in Council and other legislation, 52-53

Prime Minister's comments, 32, 62-63, 184

Representation from Yukon and Northwest Territories, 53

Suspensive veto, 49, 54

Term of appointment, 54, 75, 184

Refund of fees

Honey Bear Brewing Corporation Limited, 1782

Regional development incentives

Commercial operations, 1621

Abenaki Motor Inn, 1621

Commercial production deadline, 1601

Disparity in allocation of grants or loans, 1620

Five-year extension of program, 1620

Grants, repayable grants, loan guarantees, 1601

Per capita income, 1620

Program statistics, 1601

Question re passage of bill, 1639-40

Slow-growth areas, 1620, 1621

Time lapse in application for grant and approval of, 1620-1

Halifax Chronicle Herald article re, 1620

Regional development incentives - Concluded

Unemployment statistics, 1620

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 1658

Belisle, Rheel, 1665

Forsey, Eugene A., 1666

Grosart, Allister, 1664, 1665

Langlois, Leopold, 1658-9

Macnaughton, Alan, 1601

Perrault, Raymond J., 1639-40, 1662-3, 1665-6

Phillips, Orville H., 1666

Smith, George I., 1620-2, 1664, 1666

Regional Development Incentives bill C-74. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1601-02, 1619-22; ref to com, 1622; rep without amdt, 1639; 3r, 1658-9; r.a., 1712

Regulations and other statutory instruments

Agreements between federal government and provincial governments, 2103, 2110

Regulations and other Statutory Instruments, Standing Joint Committee

Budget, 178, 205-06, 525, 795, 956, 1502

Duties and functions of committee, 515, 1534, 1535

Guidelines for Motions for Production of Papers, ref to com, 467

Members

Commons, 60

Senate, 109

Newspaper article re Chairman Senator Forsey, question of privilege, 794-5

Reports

First report, 178, 205-6

Second report tabled in Commons Oct. 29/74

Third report, 239-40, 264

Fourth report, 327-8, 338

Fifth report, 1100, 1133-4

Sixth report, 1479, 1487

Seventh report, 1638

Eighth report, 2045

Ninth report, 2307-09, 2333

Right to Information bill C-225, ref to com, 467

Secrecy in government, subject matter ref to com, 1349

Terms of reference, see Minutes of the Proceedings of the Senate Oct. 24/74

Travel arrangements for committee outside of Canada, authority for, 1479

Regulations regarding attendance of senators, 1781-2, 1790-1, 1911-13, 1917-18, 1933-6

Absence beyond 21 days, 1790, 1917-19

Attendance records, 1912, 1918-19

Committee review of reasons for absence, 1791, 1917-18

Official business, specifying of, 1790-1, 1912, 1917-18

Senate vacancies and workload, 1934

Travel distance, 1934-5

Remembrance Day

CBC program, 257

Thirtieth anniversary ceremonies held in France, 258-9

Representation (Bill C-36)

- Amalgamation formula, 423-4
- Quebec, 421
- Representation by population, 421
- Statistics of provincial representations, 422-3, 437, 439, 440

Speakers: Senators

- Buckwold, Sidney L., 438
- Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 436, 437
- Flynn, Jacques, 438-9
- Hicks, Henry D., 438
- Lafond, Paul C., 424
- O'Leary, M. Grattan, 435-6
- Perrault, Raymond J., 420-3, 437-8, 439-40

Representation bill 1974 C-36. 1r, 402; 2r, 420-4, 435-40; ref to com, 440; rep without amdt, 443; 3r, 443; r.a., 467

Research staff

- Parliamentary Library, 146, 516
- Senate, 321, 516

Restaurant of Parliament, Standing Joint Committee

- Meat supplies, question re, 1007, 1012-13
- Members
 - Commons, 60
 - Senate, 109

Riel, Hon. Maurice

- Immigration Policy, Special Joint Committee
- Reports
 - First report, 1006, 1021
 - Second report, 1306
 - Third and final report, 1375, 1376-94
- Unauthorized press publication of confidential draft report of committee, 1285, 1286

Right to Information bill C-225, subject matter ref to Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, 467

Riley, Hon. Daniel

- Capital punishment, commutation of sentences of accused murderers and kidnappers, 400
- Energy resources
 - Development of tidal power in Bay of Fundy, 2142, 2210
 - Passamaquoddy Bay, US Corps of Engineers report on, 2210-11
- National Housing bill C-48, 749
- National Museums, storage of Canadiana, 2209; artisanship by John D. Howe, 2217
- New Brunswick, economic conditions, 2009-13
 - Acadians, 2009-13
 - Acadian Village, 2012
 - Culture of, 2011
 - Advertisement of Regional Economic Expansion Dept. entitled The New Approach, 2012
 - Agriculture, 2009-10
 - Fisheries, 2010
 - Gloucester County, 2012
 - Highways, Route 11, 2012

Riley, Hon. Daniel - *Concluded*New Brunswick economic conditions - Concluded

New Brunswick Psychological Association, letter to Premier of N.B., copy to Prime Minister, 2010-11

Relocation of workers, 2011

Saint John Telegraph-Journal article re Northeast New Brunswick, 2012

Unemployment, 2010

New Brunswick storm damage, possibility of federal aid, 1720, 1729-30

Northwest Territories Senate representation, 1778

Parliamentary Library, commercial use of picture of, 1764-5

Penitentiaries, proposed construction of medium security prison in Saint John, 1916-17, 1922-3

Prince Edward Island, CNR services, 1924, 1976

Saint John, N.B., increase in bus fares, 1815, 1816

Televising of committee proceedings, 510, 511-12, 521

Transportation, BNA Act as it pertains to, 2221

Robichaud, Hon. Louis-J., P.C.

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1578-9

Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 528-30, 1733

Acquittals and convictions in murders of police officers (1967-73), 529

Atlantic Provinces Policemen's Assoc., meeting in Moncton, 530

Royal prerogative in commutation of death sentence, 529, 530

Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2411-13

Deterrent aspect, 2412

Incorrigibles, 2412

Statistics, 2412

United States, 2412

Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1163

Cost-sharing of insecticide spraying, 1163

Damaging side effects of insecticides, 1163

Inter-Parliamentary Union, Tokyo conference, 248-9

Canadian delegation, 248

Inflation problems in Japan, 248

Labour unions in other countries, 248

National Forestry Week, 2076

New Brunswick, economic conditions, 2015-18

Acadians, 2016-17

Artists and musicians from NB, 2018

Mineral resources, 2019

Social equality program, 2017-18

Regulations re attendance of senators, 1917-18

Absence of 21 days, 1917

Committee review of reasons for absence, 1917-18

Official business, specifying of, 1917

Senate and House of Commons Act

Objection to motion for referral of subject matter to com, 953

Regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, 953, 954

Senators' work in public interest outside of Senate, 953

Senate role, 1578-9

Rowe, Hon. Frederick William

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 62-68, 71

Alberta - British Columbia Boundary bill S-13, 224

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, appearance of Gerda Munsinger on television program, 1619, 1625

Rowe, Hon. Frederick William - Continued

- Crime and violence, 1449-53
 - Crime increase and demands on protective resources, 1449-50
 - Drug control, Newsweek article re, 1451
 - Good Housekeeping* article by Art Linkletter entitled 'What I've learned about drugs since my daughter's death', 1451-2
 - Gun control, 1452
 - Marihuana convictions of young people, 1451-2
 - Prison population per capita, 1451
 - Royal Canadian Mounted Police duties, 1450
 - Sex deviates, 1451
 - Training of police in psychology, pathological conduct and behaviour, 1450
 - Unnecessary activities of police, 1450
 - Vice squads, 1450
 - Vulnerability of democratic society, 1452-3
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, 1746, 1899
- Education and Culture in Newfoundland*, by Hon. Frederick William Rowe, 2308-09
- Energy
 - Offshore oil and gas resources in Atlantic provinces, 2143
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 62
- Ferry service between North Sydney and Port Aux Basques, possible increase in fares, 1861
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control, and Criminal Code bill S-19, 448-54, 1048-9
 - Long-standing effects from use of marihuana, 450, 451
 - Misunderstandings re legislation, 449
 - National Organization for Reform of Marihuana Laws (US), 449
 - Penalties for drug convictions, 447
 - Tobacco and alcohol, use by children, 453, 1048
- Forestry, devastation in Eastern Canada by Spruce budworm, 1161-2
 - Damaging side effects of insecticides, 1162
 - Federal responsibility in control, 1162
 - Newfoundland, 1161-2
 - Birch and Mountain Ash, 1162
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1955-8
 - Canada-US relations, 1955-6, 1958
 - Freedom of the press, question of, 1957-8
 - MD of Canada*, 1957
 - Time Canada*, 1956-7
 - Women's magazines published in US and circulated in Canada, 1957
- Inter-Parliamentary Union, Colombo, Sri Lanka conference, 984-8
 - Aid to developing countries, 985, 986, 987-8; Sri Lanka and Pakistan, 985, 986
 - Tarbela Dam, 987-8
 - Birth control, 987
 - Canada's esteem in foreign countries, 985
 - Disarmament, 984
 - Drugs, 984-5
 - Economic conditions in Canada, 985-6
 - Economic cooperation, 984
 - Education, scientific techniques for promotion of, 984
 - Human rights, 984
 - Living standards, 985
 - Population statistics, 986
 - Poverty problems, 987
- Labour, the working poor in Canada, 2019-23
- Labrador hydro development, 64-65
- Law reform, 66; rape victims, 66; drug convictions, 66

Rowe, Hon. Frederick William - Concluded

- National lottery, proposed incorporation of Loto-Canada, 2169
 - Method of authorization for, 2169
 - Religious aspects of gambling, 2169
- Privileges of Parliament
 - Library of Parliament and Centre Block, commercial use of pictures of, 1765
 - Ottawa Citizen* article re comments of Senator F. W. Rowe, 1777
- Rules of the Senate, 1359
- Senate
 - Chamber seating arrangements for senators on ceremonial occasions, 13
 - Reform, 62-63
 - Televising of committee proceedings, 547-8
- Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, 1829
- Transportation, 63-65, 506-08
 - Newfoundland, 63-65; Air Canada service St. John's-Ottawa, 506-08; Strait of Belle Isle, 64-65; Trans-Canada Highway, 63-64
- Transportation, British North America Act as it pertains to transportation, 2106-08, 2064
 - Newfoundland, 2106-08
 - Disruption of tourist trade and general welfare because of labour strike, 2108
 - Terms of Union re transportation services, 2108
 - Trans-Canada Highway, 2106-07
 - Provincial disparities, 2106-07
- United States, Canada's relations with, 66-68

Royal assent

- Beetz, Hon. Jean, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, 1791-2, 2002, 2207
- de Grandpre, Hon. Louis-Philippe, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, 2152
- Dickson, Hon. R. G. B., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, 731, 899
- Judson, Hon. Wilfred, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, 1281
- Laskin, Rt. Hon. Bora, Chief Justice of Canada, 95, 220, 467, 581, 1095-6, 1476, 2096
- Leger, Rt. Hon. Jules, His Excellency the Governor General, 397, 2450
- Spence, Hon. Wishart F., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, 313-14, 656, 740, 832, 1134, 1617, 1712, 2301

Royal Canadian Legion

- Assets or property, branch holdings, 1195, 1206
- Branch agreements to amdts to act, 1206-07
- British Commonwealth and Empire, deletion of words from act, 1195
- Closing of small branches due to membership drop, 1205-06
- Department to assist or advise ex-servicemen's clubs, 1196
- Filing date of petition, 1212
- Legion background, 1194, 1205
- Senior citizen housing sponsored by Legion, 1195
- War veterans allowance, 1194, 1205
- Youth sports training programs, 1195, 1205, 1206

Speakers: Senators

- Carter, Chesley W., 1194-6, 1206, 1207, 1209
- Flynn, Jacques, 1207, 1209
- Grosart, Allister, 1206-09
- Langlois, Leopold, 1208
- Perrault, Raymond J., 1209
- Phillips, Orville H., 1205-06

Royal Canadian Legion bill S-28. 1r, 1180; 2r, 1194-6, 1205-07; ref to com, 1207; suspension of rule 95, 1207-09; rep without amdt, 1211-12; 3r, 1212; r.a., 1281

Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Federal-provincial agreements with provinces re RCMP personnel, 501, 568-9
Financial implications of provincial operations, 501, 502
Quebec and Ontario, claims for compensation, 501-04, 537-40, 567-9, 603
Subject matter referred to Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 954-5, 962-6

Rules and Orders, Standing Senate Committee

Chairman, appointment of Hon. Hartland de M. Molson, 557
Members, 96
Report, 1317-18, 1331-6, 1355-64, 1422-6, 1460-6
Sub-committee for co-ordination of meetings, 828-9, 1091
Members, 924
Terms of reference, 526, 537-8

Rules of the Senate

Amendment to committee report after report presented to the Senate, 908, 909
Appropriation bills, 721-2, 735-7
Borrowing authority, 722
Excerpt from Bourinot, 4th edition, re supply bills, 722
Forms and Proceedings, 721-3, 735
Senate role in consideration of money bills, 723
Suggestion that matter of bills being ref to com be considered by Standing Rules and Orders Committee, 736-7
Comment on speech of Commons member, 2416
Committee budgets, special expenses, 525-6
Committee report on regulations re attendance of senators, rule re consideration of, 1781-2, 1790-1
Committee reports, ref back to com or to Committee of the Whole for reconsideration, 882-4
Precedents cited in excerpts from Senate Journals, 883
Speaker's ruling reserved, 882-8; Speaker's ruling, 890
Debate on com rep without amdt and motion for third reading, Speaker's statement re, 2395, 2396
Debate on interrogation restricted to brief explanatory remarks, 1213
Delay in raising of point of order, 1111
Forms and Proceedings, question of authority of rules, 882-3
Initiation of money bills, 887
Minister invited to Senate Chamber to explain bill, precedents, 197-8, 217-19
Excerpt from The Modern Senate of Canada re, 218
Minister's statement of policy, senator's comment on or criticism of, 1202, 1203
Motion to amend committee report, 882-3; point of order re Speaker's statement, 890
Point of order, 387-8, 390, 506-07, 560, 779-81, 882-3, 886-8, 944, 952, 1015, 1110, 1202
Amending of supply bills, 886-8
Excerpt from The Modern Senate of Canada, 887
Precedents of supply bills amendments by the Senate, 887
Rights of Senate in Matters of Financial Legislation, report of Senate special committee, 887-8
Presentation of committee reports before review by senators, 1606
Private bills, suspension of rule 95, 1207-09, 1601
Privilege, question of, 98-99, 198, 480, 506-07, 582, 641-2, 779-81, 961, 1165-6, 1241
Reference of Green Paper on Conflict of Interest to committee, 779-81
Referral of annuities bill to committee, 1643-4
Referral of estimates and other matters to National Finance Committee, 440-1, 1109-10

Rules of the Senate - Concluded

- Senator speaking twice on same subject, 1513
- Televising of committee proceedings, 509-14, 521-3, 543-54
- Two days' notice between 1r and 2r, 1109
- Unscheduled speakers taking part in debate, 560
- Use of unparliamentary language in debates, 562, 1109

Rules of the Senate, report of Standing Committee on Standing Rules and Orders, 1317-18, 1331-6, 1355-64, 1422-6, 1460-6, 1537, 1813

- Absence of senators, 1359
- Adjournment of debates for prolonged periods, 1460-2, 1464, 1465-6
- Adopting of report, one day's notice of motion, 1357, 1360
- Authority to reprint rules, 1537
- Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, terms of reference, 1357
- Bilingual form of bills originating in Senate, 1357, 1360
- Bills, explanation of content at initial presentation of, 1464
- Commencement date of amendments contained in report, 1537; order rescinded, new date authorized, 1720
- Committee of the Whole, procedure for discussion in, 1362
- Declaration of property qualification, 1359
- Ex officio* members of committees, 1358
- Forms and proceedings of the Parliament of Canada, 1356, 1360, 1362-3
- Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee, 1357, 1364, 1423-6, 1462, 1464-5
- Joint Committee on Library of Parliament and Other Shared Services, 1359
- Limitation of senator speaking only once in any debate, 1356
- Motions during debate, 1356
- Motions for which no notice is required (matters of urgent public importance), 1357, 1363
- Motion to refer matters to committee, 1357-8, 1363-4
- Oral questions, 1356, 1460, 1462-3, 1465
- Organization of committees, 1358
- Parliamentary reform, 1360
- Powers and duties of committees, 1423-4, 1425
- Preservation of order and decorum in Senate, 1356
- Previous question, 1357
- Principle of bill, debating of at second reading, 1361, 1363
- Printing of rules as appendix to current debate, 1361
- Private bills, deposit of bill and fees, 1359
 - Substantial amendments, notice of, 1359
- Procedure when Speaker leaves the chamber, 1356
- 'Question' or 'matter', definition of, 1361, 1363
- Quorum of committees, 1358, 1460, 1465
- Quotations from speeches made in Commons, 1356, 1359, 1360, 1363, 1460, 1464, 1465
- Recalling of Senate earlier than set forth in motion for adjournment, 1356
- Reports of committees, 1359
- Select committees, 1357
- Senate speech quoted verbatim in Commons, 1359-60
- Senator's final reply to inquiry on second reading of bill, 1356
- Speaker addressing house, 1357
- Special procedure or practice in committee, approval of Senate for, 1358, 1364, 1461, 1463
- Standing Rules and Orders Committee, 1424

Rules of the Senate, report of Standing Committee on Standing Orders - Concluded

Terms of reference of committees, 1361-2, 1461, 1463, 1464

Procedure or practice inconsistent with practices and usages of Senate, 1461, 1463

Time of daily sittings, 1364

Unanimous consent, 1362

Speakers: Senators

Argue, Hazen, 1460-2

Benidickson, W. M., 1364

Bourget, Maurice, 1425

Croll, David A., 1364, 1422-3, 1425-6

Grosart, Allister, 1425, 1462-4

Laird, Keith, 1359-60, 1426

McIlraith, George, 1360-3, 1423, 1424, 1425, 1426, 1464

Molson, Hartland de M., 1317-18, 1331-6, 1355-64, 1424-6, 1464-6, 1537

Rulings by the Speaker

See Lapointe, Hon. Renaude, Speaker of the Senate

St. John the Baptist Day, 2259St. Lawrence Islands National Park

Government expenditures on, 1549-50, 1588

St. Lawrence ports operations

Bankruptcy of livestock breeders, 820

Deterioration of supplies in storage, 819, 826

Inability of society to maintain law and order, 822

Injunctions granted to manufacturers and millers, 819, 827

Labour unrest, 823-4

Losses to workers and producers, 825

Maritime Employers Assoc. and International Longshoremen's Assoc., 817, 818

Mediator Charles Poirier (1975), 817

Mediator Judge Alan Gold (1974), 817

Parliamentary responsibility in settlement of dispute, 817

Penalty clause, 824, 826, 827

Precedents in emergency legislation, 819, 821

Wage and job security demands and controls, 819, 824

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 818-20

Buckwold, Sidney L., 823-4

Connolly, John J., 826

Forsey, Eugene A., 825-6

Greene, John J., 822-3

Grosart, Allister, 821-2

Lawson, Edward M., 824-5

Neiman, Joan, 820

Perrault, Raymond J., 817-18, 821, 826-7

St. Lawrence Ports Operations bill C-59. 1r, 817; 2r, 817-27; 3r, 827; r.a., 832

St. Patrick's Day, 1902

Salaries (Lieutenant Governors)

Comparison to salaries of other officials, 1092
 Former provincial levels of salaries, 1081
 Jurisdiction of lieutenant governors, 1093
 Non-accountable allowances and other benefits, 1081
 Pensions, 1092-3, 1094
 Special fund for expenses incurred outside provincial capitals, 1095
 Status of lieutenant governors, 1091-4
 Tax benefits, 1095

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 1091-3, 1094
 Benidickson, W. M., 1095
 Connolly, John J., 1081, 1094, 1095
 Forsey, Eugene A., 1093, 1094
 Greene, John J., 1095
 Langlois, Leopold, 1094

Salaries (Lieutenant Governors) bill C-24. 1r, 1065; 2r, 1081, 1091-5; 3r, 1095; r.a., 1096

Saskatchewan

Parliamentarians and wives, visitors to Senate, 262
 Safety of Gardiner Dam, question, 2179, 2377

Science policy

Budget, 1261, 2119
 Commission on the Future, termination of committee mandate for, 1173, 1220
 Committee work in creating awareness of science futures, 1223, 1224
 Tribute to chairman, 1224
 Data Bank, 295
 Defence Research Board, 114-15
 Excerpts from letters from Prime Minister and from Deputy Secretary of Cabinet re Institute for Research on Public Policy, 1171-2, 1221
 Expenditures of committee, 160, 348, 1088, 1223-4, 1244, 1260
 Futures branch of US Congressional Library, 1225
 Futures research areas of Science Policy Committee, 1173
 Granting agencies, 113-15
 Impact of committee report on other countries, 1222
 Information centre, Futures Canada, 295
 Institute for Research on Public Policy, 1221, 1222, 1225
 Inter-Council Coordinating Committee, 115
Managing the Future: Conference on Anticipatory Institutions, 1171, 1221, 1223
 National Research Council, 113-14
 'Need for an Overall Science Policy', excerpt from committee reports (1970-73), 1225
 Predictive and normative approach in future, 1224
 Prime Minister Trudeau's speech at Duke University, 296-7
 Recommendations to government, 1222
 Research and development programs, lack of coordination, 1225-6
 Research in government laboratories and in industry, comparison, 1226
 Other countries, 1226

Science policy - Concluded

Study undertaken by government into futures research and futures information, 1172-3
 Training program in cooperation with management and schools, 295-6
 US state commissions on futures, 1225

Speakers: Senators

Carter, Chesley W., 1225-6
 Grosart, Allister, 1222-4
 Lamontagne, Maurice, 1164, 1171-3, 1220-2

Science Policy, Special Senate Committee

Annual meetings, regional and national, 296
 Appointment, 295-8
 Budget tabled, 1261
 Club of Rome President, visit to committee, 473
 Commission on the Future, authority to hold conference re, 295-8
 Termination of mandate re, 1171-3
 Expenses, 160, 348, 1088, 1223-4, 1244, 1260, 1261
 Members, 295
 Reports
 Quorum, 1355
 Termination of mandate re Commission on the Future, 1164, 1171-3, 1220-6, 1246-7, 1259-60
 Terms of reference, 295, 1173

Secrecy in government, discussion on TV program re committee involved in, 1349

Selection Committee

Appointment, 7
 Reports
 Standing committees, members, 76, 96-97

Senate

Adjournments, 712-13, 741, 1280
 Summer adjournment, 1280
 Amplification system and simultaneous interpretation system, 13-14, 504, 1092
 Bills, printing and distribution of, 61
 Business, 31, 60-61, 124-5, 152-3, 178-9, 221-2, 240, 255-6, 289, 315, 325, 351, 380-1, 454-5, 482, 483-4, 505-06, 524, 540-1, 556, 579, 592-3, 594, 656, 713-14, 723, 740-1, 758, 774, 796, 816, 828-9, 848-9, 899, 923-4, 956, 999, 1022, 1036, 1057, 1086, 1090-1, 1107-12, 1122, 1164-5, 1210, 1226, 1250, 1261-4, 1265, 1286-8, 1297, 1337, 1370, 1409, 1437-8, 1467-8, 1502-03, 1524, 1537-8, 1547-8, 1615, 1647-8, 1653-4, 1660, 1661, 1682, 1686, 1711-12, 1717, 1718-19, 1729, 1756-7, 1778, 1793, 1846, 1874-81, 1914-16, 1954-5, 1966, 2007-08, 2044, 2045-7, 2069, 2097-8, 2120-2, 2151-2, 2192, 2215, 2255, 2302, 2308, 2335-6, 2356, 2360
 Chamber renovations, 1282-3
 Christmas decorations, 1476
 Clerestory of the Senate Chamber, Special Senate Committee, 480-2
 Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1973-74), 192
 Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1974-75), 1005
 Clerk's accounts, receipts and disbursements (1975-76), 2167
 Clerk's Scroll, 1667, 1683-5
 Comments re Senate, Hon. Grattan O'Leary (1942), 870-1
 Comments re Senate, Hon. Renaude Lapointe (1973), 871

Senate - Continued

Committees

Scheduling of meetings, 828-9, 923-4

Science Policy Committee, work of, 1164, 1171-3, 1220-6, 1246-7, 1259-60

Sittings of committees when Parliament is adjourned, 951-3

Work of, 28-29, 74-75, 945, 951-3

Conflict of interest, report of Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 2278, 2303-06

Consecutive sitting days, 31

Criticisms by public and in press re Senate consideration of Bill C-49, 645-7

Process of Senate consideration of bill, items discussed and witnesses interviewed, 645-7

Distribution of document in Senate chamber, 644

Deputy Leader of the Government, reappointment of Hon. Léopold Langlois, 46

Emergency sittings, authority to convene Senate during adjournments, 328

Government Whip, appointment of Hon. William J. Petten, 46

Identity cards for senators, 179-80

Intersessional authority, Bill S-22, 505, 576-7, 815-16

Minutes of the Proceedings of the Senate, No. 96, correction, 1036

Monday evening sittings, question of, 1874-81

Newspaper account of articles on the Senate by Senator Rowe, question of privilege re, 480

Northwest Territories Senate representation, 1772, 1778

Painting of Royal Canadian Engineers, authority to photograph for purposes of Heritage Publishing Company, 46

Parliamentary immunity, 1476-9

Question of privilege, 1398-1403

Statement by Leader of the Government, 1409

Photographing of precincts and of senators for distribution to Canadian embassies, 253, 255, 473

Privileges and immunities of senators, 1395-7, 1398-1403, 1409, 1434-6, 1458, 1718, 1721, 1726

Property qualification of senators, return presented, 242; supplementary return authorized, 242; supplementary return tabled, 427

Protective staff, summer uniforms, 1156, 1213-14

Reform

Appointments, 50-51

Committee work, 74-75

Initiation of bills, 49, 52

Investigation of provincial rights, 49-50

Official Opposition, reinforcement of, 184

Orders in Council and other legislation, 52-53

Prime Minister's comments, 32, 62-63, 184

Representation from Yukon and Northwest Territories, 53

Suspensive veto, 49, 54

Term of appointment, 54, 75, 184

Regulations respecting attendance of senators, 1781-2, 1790-1, 1911-13, 1917-18, 1933-6, 2118

Research staff, 146, 321, 516

Resume of Senate work Oct.21-Dec.20/75, 1717

Role of, 28-29, 74-75, 148-9

Salaries and expense allowances of members, 847, 856-61, 868-80

Public and press reaction to, 847, 856-61, 868-80, 889, 899

Seating arrangements for senators on ceremonial occasions, 13

Senate and House of Commons Act, regulations respecting senators' attendance and deductions for absence, 948-54

Senators' work in public interest outside of Senate, 952, 953

Tailoring service for Senate and Commons, 2167-8, 2209

Televising of committee proceedings, 509-14, 521-3, 543-54

Senate - Concluded

- Television and radio coverage of Senate Committees, 1365-6, 1483, 1484, 1487-8; Order stands, 1817
 - Controls, 1483, 1484, 1488
 - Other countries, 1483
 - Press reporting of Senate proceedings, 1365
 - Public reaction to appearance of senators on television, 1365
 - Relevance of Senate to constitutional procedure, 1365
 - Resolution adopted by Commons, 1483, 1487
 - Right of public to view proceedings, 1365
- Unreformed Senate of Canada, The*, excerpt re senatorship, 870, 872; vacancies, 945
- Wednesday sittings, hour of adjournment, 2097-8; motion rescinded, 2308, 2335
- See Rules of the Senate,
 - Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 847, 856-61, 868-80,
 - Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81, 2177, 2186-7, 2193-6, 2203-07.

Senate and House of Commons

- Regulations respecting attendance of senators, 948-54; motion that Senate make regulations re attendance of senators and deductions for absence, 948-51; motion in amdt that subject matter be ref to Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration Committee, 951-4, agreed, 954
- Committee work, 950; meetings while Parliament is adjourned, 951-3
- Deduction for member's absence, 948
- Reform, 950-1
- Remuneration, 949
- Resolution affecting balance of national accounts, question of, 952
- Senatorship, public and press reaction to, 949
- Sittings of Senate and Commons, statistics on, 948-9

Speakers: Senators

- Carter, Chesley W., 952-3
- Cook, Eric, 951
- Croll, David A., 951-2, 953, 954
- Godfrey, John M., 948-51
- Greene, John J., 952, 954, 961
- Laird, Keith, 953
- Lamontagne, Maurice, 952
- Molson, Hartland de M., 951
- Prowse, J. Harper, 953
- Robichaud, L. J., 953

Senate and House of Commons, salaries and parliamentary secretaries

- Adequacy of increase, question of, 868
- Attendance in Parliament, Senate recording of and Commons statements re, 874
 - Statistics on attendance, 871-2, 879, 880
- Commissioners to be appointed for annual inquiry into remuneration of members of Parliament, 858, 869-70
- Committee work of senators, 874-5
- Commons members, suggestion for graduated increase on re-election, 875
- Conflict of interest aspect of bill, 870
- Cost of living index and industrial composite index, 869, 877-8
- Economic problems of members of Parliament, 879
- Expenses and travel allowances, 858, 860, 869, 870
- Hours of work on Senate sitting days, 872-3
- Income ranges affecting investments or borrowings, 876
- Increase for woodworkers, plumbers, teachers, labourers, 859
- Indemnities, suggestion for automatic fixed-dollar increase, 875, 876, 878
- Industrial composite index (1970-74), 857

Senate and House of Commons, salaries and parliamentary secretaries - Concluded

Inflationary trends and restraints, 876-7
 Labour demands and union settlements, 860
 Leadership of members of Parliament in crisis of wage demands and of prices, 877
 Leave of absence and deduction for, 872, 874, 875
 Opposition members, 858
 Parliamentarians' remuneration, scale of, (1953-70), 857, 859, 869
 Parliamentary restaurant charges vs tradesmen's free meals, 860
 Press reaction and adverse reports re proposed salary increase, 859, 860, 870, 876
 Prime Minister, ministers and deputies, 869
 Principles governing salary increase, 868
 Provincial legislature allowances, 858, 876, 878-9
 Public servants in $60,000 bracket, 860, 876, 889
 Remuneration of senators and Commons members vs salaries in other business and professional areas, 857, 859-61, 868, 877, 879
 Retroactive clause, 860
 Senate rejection of bill suggested, 878
 Senatorship, public and press reaction to, 870-1
 Sittings of Senate and Commons, statistics, 871-2, 879, 880
 Speakers of Senate and of Commons, remuneration, 869
 Working hours, unjust criticisms of, 860

Speakers: Senators

Carter, Chesley W., 874
 Croll, David A., 874
 Flynn, Jacques, 868-70
 Godfrey, John M., 870-5
 Greene, John J., 874
 Lamontagne, Maurice, 878
 Lawson, Edward M., 859-61
 Manning, Ernest C., 875-8
 Molson, Hartland de M., 874
 Perrault, Raymond J., 856-9, 879-80
 Prowse, J. Harper, 878-9
 Walker, David J., 874, 875

Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44. 1r, 847; 2r, 856-61, 868-80; 3r, 889; r.a., 899

Senate and House of Commons, supplementary retirement benefits

Freeze on salaries of members of Parliament, 2186
 Liberal caucus support re cancellation of 7% increase, statement of Prime Minister re, 2193
 Press criticism of members of Parliament, 2195
 Provincial legislatures, salary increases, 2194
 Saskatchewan legislature, salary increases, 2195
 Senior public servants, 2193-4
 Sessional expenses and other allowances, 2186
 Supplementary retirement benefits, 2186-7, 2194, 2196

Speakers: Senators

Argue, Hazen, 2195, 2204
 Carter, Chesley W., 2186-7, 2196
 Denis, Azellus, 2195
 Flynn, Jacques, 2187, 2193-5, 2196, 2203, 2204, 2205, 2207
 Forsey, Eugene A., 2195-6
 Greene, John J., 2204

Senate and House of Commons, supplementary retirement benefits - *ConcludedSpeakers: Senators - *Concluded

Grosart, Allister, 2205-06
 Hicks, Henry D., 2205
 Langlois, Leopold, 2203, 2204-05, 2206
 Macnaughton, Alan A., Chairman, Committee of the Whole, 2203-07
 Manning, Ernest C., 2205

Senate and House of Commons, Supplementary Retirement Benefits bill C-81. 1r, 2177; 2r, 2186-7, 2193-6; ref to Committee of the Whole, 2196; considered in Committee of the Whole, 2203-07; rep without amdt, 2207; 3r, 2207; r.a., 2207

Senate (intersessional authority)

Administration of internal economy of Senate between sessions, 771
 BNA Act provisions re privileges, immunities and powers of Senate, 771
 Committee meetings between sessions, 577, 772
 Limitations encountered, 577
 Reports, preparation of, 577
 Committee work, delays due to dissolution of Parliaments, 577
 Dissolution periods 1963-74 (number of days), 576
 Informal arrangements previously used, 772-3
 Intersessional authority bill, question of money bill concept, 771
 Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, difficulties encountered because of impending election, 772
 Resolution re intersessional authority, 576
 Royal prerogative, necessity of, 771

Speakers: Senators

Connolly, John J., 771-2
 Flynn, Jacques, 576-7, 815-16
 Perrault, Raymond J., 770-1
 Prowse, J. Harper, 772-3

Senate (Intersessional Authority) bill S-22. 1r, 505; 2r, 576-7, 815-16; ref to com, 816

Senators, deceased

Boucher, Hon. William A. (June 23/76), 2251-2
 Bourque, Hon. Romuald (Aug. 14/74), 11-12
 Crerar, Hon. Thomas A., P.C. (Apr. 11/75), 778-9
 Gelinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe (Jan. 1/76), 1713-14
 Hugessen, Hon. A. K. (Mar. 30/76), 2007
 Kickham, Hon. Thomas J. (Dec. 1/74), 324
 Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C. (Feb. 13/75), 532-4
 Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C. (May 28/76), 2176-7
 O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan (Apr. 7/76), 2034-6
 Prowse, Hon. J. Harper (Sept. 28/76)
 Smith, Hon. Sydney J. (July 15/76)

Senators, new

Austin, Hon. Jacob (Nov. 5/75), 1354
 Barrow, Hon. Augustus Irvine (Sept. 30/74), 1
 Cottreau, Hon. Ernest George (Sept. 30/74), 1
 Lucier, Hon. Paul Henry (Nov. 12/75), 1395
 Smith, Hon. George Isaac (Oct. 21/75), 1282

Senators, resignations

Aird, Hon. John B. (Nov. 28/74), 334-6
 Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, P.C. (May 25/75), 967-8

Senators, resignations - Concluded

Gélinas, Hon. Louis P. (Dec. 10/75), 1713-14
 Gouin, Hon. Leon Mercier (Mar. 18/76), 2057
 Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C. (Oct. 30/74), 207-12

Senators, retirements

Welch, Hon. Frank C. (July 14/75)

Sessions of Parliament

Legislative program, government policy re, question, 1902-03

Sky Shops Export Limited, Dorval Airport, alleged conflict of interest (Senator Giguere), 1348, 1395-1403, 1434-6

Small farms development program

Consultants assigned to individual provinces, 2079
 Consultants serving NB, NS and PEI, 2079
 Loans approved provincially Sept. 21/72 to June 30/75, 1197-8, 1213
 British Columbia, 1198
 New Brunswick, 1213
 Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec, 1198

Smith, Hon. Donald

Migratory bird sanctuaries, warden services in Maritime provinces, contracts for, 279
 Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, 815

Smith, Hon. George Isaac (Introduced in the Senate Oct. 21/75)

Anti-Inflation bill C-73, 1508, 1509, 1528-32, 1537, 1580
 Professional categories under provincial jurisdiction, 1508, 1509
 Anti-inflation program, government rejection of Board's opinion re postal workers' contract, 1627-8
 Cabinet ministers, rejection of resignations by Prime Minister, 1892-3
 Citizenship bill C-20, 2281-2, 2286, 2350
 International law, question of, 2281
 Land ownership, 2281-2
 Certification of title, 2282
 Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 1) C-71, 1893-6, 1898, 1899, 1907-08
 Morgentaler amendment, 1907-08
 Right of judge to infer from peace officer's evidence that disturbance has occurred, 1894-6
 Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2438, 2439-42
 Parole, 2440
 Prison term, 2440
 Sanctity of life, 2440
 Senate responsibility, 2438-9
 Statistics, inadequacy of, 2440, 2441
 Victims of crime, 2440
 Energy, development of tidal power in Bay of Fundy, 2070
 Grain subsidies paid on shipments to Eastern Canadian ports for export, 2156, 2201-02, 2211, 2376-7
 Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation bill C-78, 1721-3
 Background of Commission formed after Halifax explosion (1917), 1721-2
 Blind persons rehabilitation, 1722
 Payments to be within credit of account, 1722
 Pensions and allowances paid to widows and disabled persons, 1718
 Inequalities of, 1722
 Transfer of funds to provincial or municipal organization, 1722

Smith, Hon. George Isaac - Concluded

- Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65, 1439-42
 - Alberta royalty reduction, 1441
 - Interest and dividends credit for man and wife, 1440
 - Investment tax credit, 1440
 - Registered retirement savings plans, 1440-1
 - Resource allowance, 1441-2
- Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1881-3, 2395, 2396
 - Broadcasting, 1882
 - Bellingham station, 1882
 - Canada-US relations, 1883
 - MD of Canada*, 1881-2
 - Ministerial rulings, 1882-3
 - Time and Reader's Digest*, 1882-3
- Justice, administration of, allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1858
- Medical Care bill C-68, 2339
 - Ceiling on federal payments, 2338, 2340-1
 - Excerpt from speeches of Hon. Mr. MacEachen (1966), 2339-40
 - Federal-provincial consultations, 2342-3
 - Provincial reactions to legislation, 2341-2
 - Statement of Hon. Mr. Macnaughton, 2341
 - Statement of Hon. Mr. Robarts (1966) 2339
 - Victoria conference of provincial health ministers, 2342
- Regional Development Incentives bill C-74, 1620-2, 1664, 1666
 - Commercial operations, 1621
 - Abenaki Motor Inn, 1621
 - Disparity in allocation of grants or loans, 1620
 - Five-year extension of program, 1620
 - Per capita income, 1620
 - Slow-growth areas, 1620, 1621
 - Time lapse in application for grant and approval of, 1620-1
 - Halifax Chronicle-Herald* article re, 1620
 - Unemployment statistics, 1620
- Senate
 - Monday evening sittings, question of, 1877
- Supplementary Borrowing Authority bill C-80, 1644
- Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, 1827-30, 1831, 1832, 1833-4
 - Appeals, 1827-9
 - Certificates submitting opinion of minister and Solicitor General, 1828
 - Improvements suggested:
 - Certificate giving opinion re national interest, 1829
 - Expiration date of effect of legislation, 1829
 - Reasonable grounds for minister's opinion, 1828-9
 - Ministerial powers, 1827-8, 1834
 - Retaining of powers after expiration date of Games, 1828, 1829-30

Smith, Hon. Sydney J., Former Speaker of the Senate, retired

Deceased July 15/76

Social security

Old age security, 1101-3, 1123-6, 1134

Social welfare, distribution of income, 2144-9

Distribution of income by quintiles, 2145

Forms required of welfare recipients, 2144, see also appendix to Debates of May 19/76

Social welfare - Concluded

Income redistribution through government intervention (1970), 2145-6

Myths concerning welfare, 2144

Report of study of government expenditures on welfare, 2147-8

Subsidies to businesses, 2147, 2149; CNR and CPR, 2149

Universality of welfare programs, 2146-7

Speaker: Senator

Croll, David A., 2144-9

Spain

King Juan Carlos I of Spain, attendance of Senator Perrault at Coronation, 1485

Sparrow, Hon. Herbert O.

Canadian Wheat Board, adjustment payments to grain producers, 1297

Continental Bank of Canada bill S-30, 1345

Estimates, discussion on subject matter of appropriation bills remaining on Order Paper, 1784

Estimates, fiscal year ending Mar. 31/75, Supplementary (C), 441-2

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/76, rep of National Finance Committee, 971-3, 983-4

CIDA, authority to carry funds from year to year, 973

Employees in the government, statistics, 972

Expenditures and GNP, 972, 983

Growth of budgetary expenditures in various depts., 972, 983

Increases in statutory items and non-statutory items, 972-3, 983

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/76, Supplementary (A), rep of National Finance Committee, 1549, 1565-70, 1602

Budgetary expenditures, various departments, 1565

Dollar items, 1565-70

Agriculture, 1569

Energy, Mines and Resources, 1566

External Affairs, 1568

Finance, 1569

Industry, Trade and Commerce, 1566

National Health and Welfare, 1566, 1568

Public Works, 1566-7

Regional Economic Expansion, 1570

Science and Technology, 1567

Secretary of State, 1567, 1568-9, 1570

Solicitor General, 1569

Transport, 1567, 1568, 1569

Urban Affairs, 1568

Veterans Affairs, 1567-8, 1569

Yearly estimates totals (1969-76), 1565

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/76, Supplementary (B), 1937, 1948-53, 1958-9

Dollar items, 1948-53

Percentage increase of supplementary estimates in relation to main estimates, 1948, 1959

Estimates, year ending Mar. 31/77, rep of National Finance Committee, 2167, 2173-5

External Affairs Department, Passport Office, refusal to accept Canadian currency of $50 and $100 denominations, 2037, 2077

National Finance Committee

Meetings during adjournment, 2038

Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10, 598, 599

Crowsnest Pass Agreement, 598

Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41, 1725

Speaker of the House of Commons

Commission appointing Hon. James Jerome to office of Speaker of the House of Commons, 2

Speaker of the Senate

Commission appointing Hon. Renaude Lapointe to office of Speaker of the Senate, 1

Former Speaker Hon. Muriel McQueen Fergusson, speeches at unveiling of portrait in Senate foyer, 469-71

Pro tem

Bourget, Hon. Maurice, 382, 396, 1395, 2176, 2361

Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, 1781

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, 582, 803

Macnaughton, Hon. Alan A., 239

McIlraith, Hon. George J., 833

Statement at Opening of Session, 1

See Lapointe, Hon. Renaude

Special Committees, see CommitteesSpeech from the Throne at Opening of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament, 2-7

Consideration date, 7

Laskin, Rt. Hon. Bora, His Excellency the Administrator of the Government of Canada, Opening of Parliament, 2-7

Termination date of Address in reply, 13

See Address in reply to Speech from the Thron

Speech from the Throne at Prorogation of First Session of Thirtieth Parliament

Laskin, Rt. Hon. Bora, 2453

Spence, Hon. Wishart F., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court

Deputy Administrator of the Government of Canada, 313-14

Royal assent, 313-14

Deputy Governor General

Royal assent, 656, 740, 758, 832, 1134, 1617, 1712

Sports

British Columbia Women's Basketball Team, congratulations on winning of championship, 1889

Canadian Men's Curling Championship, congratulations to Newfoundland rink, 1889

Message of congratulations to Montreal Canadiens on winning of the Stanley Cup, 2129

Pan American Games, congratulations to Canadian team members, 1318

Russia-Canada hockey series, 58-59; Press report of speech by Senator Godfrey, 98-99

Stanbury, Hon. Richard J.

Anti-inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, 2098, 2137-9

Appeals, 2098

Compensation cases, 2098

Increases in compensation in excess of guidelines, 2098

Right of notification to an appeal board, 2098

Authority of Administrator, 2098

Compensation in Quebec industry, 2098

Gross National Product, 2138-9

Right to freedom, 2137-8

US economy, 2138-9

Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, 542

Brotherhood Week, 542

Indian and non-Indian children, wilderness camping, 542

Labour-management conferences, 542

Religious dialogue, 542

Student exchange, 542

Stanbury, Hon. Richard J. - Concluded

- Canadian economy
 - Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1373-5
 - Domestic savings, 1374
 - Federal-provincial leadership, 1374-5
 - Labour demands, 1374
 - Trade strategies, 1374
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2408-09
 - Deterrent aspect, 2408
 - Gallup poll, 2408, 2409
 - Media coverage of subject and effects of, 2409
 - Responsibility of members of Parliament, 2409
- Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, Joint Committee
 - Rep with amds, Bill C-52 (Superannuation), 1545-7
- Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, 1707-08, 1710-11
 - Benefits payable on cessation of employment, 1707
 - Common-law spouse, 1710
 - Continuation of employment beyond December, 1707
 - Continuation of pension entitlement on job change, 1707
 - Equalization of benefits to male and female employees, 1707, 1710
 - Interest rate on return of contributions, 1710, 1711
 - Transfer of pension credits, 1707
 - Widower's benefit, 1707, 1710
- Statute Revision bill S-3, 128-9
 - Indexing of statutes and regulations, 129
 - Loose-leaf editions, 129
 - Omission of federal and private acts from earlier revisions, 129
 - Powers of commission, 129

Status of women, 16-17, 187-8

- International Women's Year, 188, 671-4, 836-8, 896-9
- Statute Law (status of women) 1065, 1103-07, 1122-3, 1136, 1281
- See Women, status of

Statute law relating to income tax, 583, 606-14, 616-21, 627-40, 645-56, 1403, 1417-22, 1439-42, 1454, 1459, 1476Statute law (status of women)

- Acts amended, 1104, 1107
 - Civilian war pensions and allowances, 1104
 - Criminal Code, 1104
 - Elections, 1104
 - Immigration, 1104
 - National defence, 1104
 - Pensions, 1104
 - Public Service employment, 1104
 - Unemployment insurance, 1107
- Cadet organizations, 1106
- Education, 1105
- Excerpt from Le Devoir editorial, 1103
- Female staff of the Senate, 1103-04
- Labour force discriminations, 1105
- Pension inequalities, 1106

Statute law (status of women) - Concluded

Political status, 1105

Recommendations of Royal Commission on the Status of Women, 1104

Speakers of the Senate, 1105, 1107

Speakers: Senators

Belisle, Rheal, 1104-07

Denis, Azellus, 1103-04, 1107

Statute Law (Status of Women) 1974 bill C-16. 1r, 1065; 2r, 1103-07; m for amdt to French version, 1122, agreed, 1123; 3r, 1123; Commons concurrence in Senate amdt, 1136; r.a., 1281

Statute law (superannuation)

Benefits payable on cessation of employment, 1707

Common-law spouse, 1708, 1710

Continuation of employment beyond December, 1707

Continuation of pension entitlement on job change, 1707

Equalization of benefits to male and female employees, 1707, 1708, 1710

Interest rate on return of contributions, 1708-09, 1710, 1711

Members of Parliament, 1709

Transfer of pension credits, 1707

Widower's benefit, 1707, 1710

Widows of senators, 1710-11

Speakers: Senators

Bélisle, Rhéal, 1708-09, 1710

Choquette, Lionel, 1709-10

Forsey, Eugene A., 1710

Stanbury, Richard J., 1707-08, 1710-11

Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52. 1r, 1706; 2r, 1706-11; 3r, 1711; r.a., 1712

Statute law (veterans and civilian war allowances)

Common-law wife, 260, 261

Dependent children, 257-8, 260, 267-8, 269

Discrimination affecting those under age of 65 yrs., 268

Escalation of allowances to consumer price index, 268

Means test, 268

Orphans, 257-8

Qualification of 365 days overseas, 268, 269

Residence requirement, 268

Widowers of female veterans attaining age of 60 yrs., 261

Speakers: Senators

Bélisle, Rhéal, 258-62

Benidickson, W. M., 269-70

Carter, Chesley W., 267-8

Lang, Daniel, 256-8

Macdonald, John M., 268-9

Statute Law (Veterans and Civilian War Allowances) Amendment bill C-4. 1r, 242; 2r, 267-70; ref to com, 270; rep without amdt, 272; 3r, 281; r.a., 314

Statute law (veterans and returned soldiers' insurance)

Common-law spouse, 1884

Death benefit limitation, 1884

Statute law (veterans and returned soldiers insurance) - *ConcludedSpeakers: Senators

Carter, Chesley W., 1883-4

Macdonald, John M., 1910-11

Statute Law (Veterans and Returned Soldiers' Insurance) bill C-86. 1r, 1856; 2r, 1883-4, 1910-11; 3r, 1917; r.a., 2002Statute revision

Indexing of statutes and regulations, 129

Loose-leaf editions, 129

Omission of federal and private acts from earlier revisions, 129

Powers of commission, 129

Speakers: Senators

Choquette, Lionel, 159

Stanbury, Richard J., 128-9

Statute Revision bill S-3. 1r, 12; 2r, 128-9, 159; ref to com, 159; rep without amdt, 243; 3r, 253; r.a., 467Statutes of Canada

Ambiguous powers, citations re, 275-6

Appeal Court, 276

History of Court of Queen's Bench of Quebec, 274-5

Speakers: Senators

Flynn, Jacques, 291-3

Langlois, Leopold, 274-7, 293

Statutes of Canada (to revise references to Court of Queen's Bench of Quebec) bill S-16. 1r, 243; 2r, 274-7, 291-3; 3r, 301; r.a., 467Sullivan, Hon. Joseph A.

Abortions, study of procedure for obtaining therapeutic abortions, question re committee on, 1428, 1624-5, 1639, 1654-5

Connaught Laboratories Ltd., sale of land and laboratory testing adjacent to proposed housing development, 586, 616, 732

Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 358-62, 1079-80

'Drugs, Society and Personal Choice', 361

Hazards of use of cannabis, 359-60

Effect on learning ability, 359-60

Metabolic interactions with other drugs, 359-60

Persistence of THC in the body, 359

Tar content, 359

Legal aspects, 360

Permissive society, 361-2

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2004-05

MD of Canada, 2004-05*Time and Reader's Digest*, 2004

Medical Care bill C-68, 2339

Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bill S-9, 155-6, 157

Herbal medicinals, 156

Listing of ingredients, 157

Safety and effectiveness of proprietary medicines, 156

Scientific review of medicines, 156

TV advertising, detrimental aspects, 156

Sullivan, Hon. Joseph A. - Concluded

Sports

Montreal Canadiens, message of congratulations on winning of the Stanley Cup, 2129
Team Canada, 98-99

Superannuation

Statute Law (Superannuation) bill C-52, 1706-11, 1712
Subject matter of Bill C-52 ref to Committee on Employer-Employee Relations in the Public Service, 1437; rep with amds, 1545-7

Supplementary borrowing authority

Borrowing through issue of treasury bills and raising of new funds through bonds, 1642, 1649-50
Capital markets, 1642, 1644
Draftmanship of legislation, 1650
Inclusion of borrowing authority in appropriation bills, 1642
Referral of bill to committee, question of, 1643, 1644
Requirement of recommendation of Governor General, 1643
Retroactivity of authority, 1650

Speakers: Senators

Everett, Douglas D., 1649-50
Flynn, Jacques, 1642, 1643, 1649
Grosart, Allister, 1643-4
Langlois, Leopold, 1641-4, 1650
Smith, George I., 1644

Supplementary Borrowing Authority bill C-80. 1r, 1638; 2r, 1641-4; ref to com, 1644; rep without amdt, 1649;
3r, 1649-50; r.a., 1712

Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act

Senate and House of Commons, 2177, 2186-7, 2193-6

Supply bills

See Appropriation bills,
Estimates.

Supreme Court

Appeals as of right, 163
Appeals, restriction to Supreme Court, 103-04, 153-4
Case overload and delays in hearings, committee on, 104-05
Conflict of interest, 163
Interest on judgments, 103, 153, 163
Judges, 1005, 1040-3, 1051-3, 1066, 1080, 1095
Jurisprudence, 163
Quorum, 163-4
Residence requirement for judges, registrars and deputy registrars, 103, 153, 162-3

Speakers: Senators

Connolly, John J., 103-06, 162-4
Flynn, Jacques, 106, 153-5
Macdonald, John M., 162

Supreme Court bill S-2. 1r, 12; 2r, 103-06, 153-5, 162-4; ref to com, 164; rep without amdt, 243; 3r, 253; r.a., 467

Supreme Courts of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island

See Judges bill C-47, 1005, 1040-3, 1051-3, 1066, 1080, 1095.

Tailoring service for Senate and Commons, question, 2167-8, 2209

Tax treaties

Countries with which Canada has concluded tax treaties or conventions, 855, 867, 925, 942

Team Canada, 58-59, 98-99

Telecommunications

Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission, 803, 829-32, 841-3, 849-51, 998, 1007, 1095

Telelobe Canada

Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation, 1034, 1062, 1067, 1080

Telegraphs Act

Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission, 803, 829-32, 841-3, 849-51, 998, 1107, 1095

Televising of proceedings of Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee, 509-14, 521-3, 543-54

Committee decision re, 509-14

Authority of committee, question, 509-12

Motion to approve decision of committee, 512-14, 521-3, 543-54; agreed, 554

Television and radio coverage of Senate and committee proceedings, 1365-6, 1483, 1484, 1487-8, Order discharged and inquiry withdrawn, 2099

Controls, 1483, 1484, 1488

Decisions of other countries re broadcasting of parliamentary proceedings, 1483

Public reaction, 1487-8

Resolution adopted by Commons re broadcasting of proceedings, 1483, 1487

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 1487-8

Croll, David A., 1483, 1484

Greene, John J., 1365-6, 2099

Temporary immigration security

Appeals against minister's decision, 1827-9

Certificates submitting opinion of minister and Solicitor General, 1828, 1829

Expiry date of legislation, 1829, 1833

'Reasonable grounds' for minister's opinion, 1831

Source of information, disclosure of, 1835

Speakers: Senators

Buckwold, Sidney L., 1831, 1832

Connolly, John J., 1830

Forsey, Eugene A., 1830-2

Langlois, Leopold, 1820, 1832-6

Rowe, Frederick William, 1829

Smith, George I., 1827-30, 1832, 1833-4

Temporary Immigration security bill C-85. 1r, 1813; 2r, 1820, 1827-36; ref to com, 1836; rep without amdt, 1874; 3r, 1893; r.a., 2002

Territorial lands

Conflict of interest, 372, 376
 'Members of Parliament and Conflict of Interest', 377
 Offshore rights and the seabed, 376, 377
Speakers: Senators
 Buckwold, Sidney L., 371-2
 Flynn, Jacques, 375-7

Territorial Lands bill S-20. 1r, 326; 2r, 371-2, 375-7; ref to com, 377; rep with amdt, 579; 3r, 579; r.a., 1095

Textile industry

See Industry, Canadian textile problems, 781-7, 791-3, 843-6, 901-02, 945-8, 975-9

Thompson, Hon. Andrew

Aeronautics bill S-34, 2124-5, 2131-2
 Authorization re instituting of security measures, 2125
 Canadian air carriers landing in foreign countries, 2125
 Conventions, international, 2124, 2125
 Landing of foreign air carriers without being subjected to security measures, 2125
 Security measures for civil aircraft of foreign air carriers, 2124, 2131
 Immigration bill S-12, 166
 Italy, earthquake victims, Canadian government assistance to, 2111

Time and Reader's Digest magazines, 582-3, 641-2

See Income Tax bill C-58
 Publishing industry.

Trade

Balance of payments, deficit, 877
 Canada's claim for compensation re loss of preferential access of Canadian commodities to British market, 579-80, 661-2, 671
 Canada-United States relations, 227-9
 European Community, 307-13, 316-20, 329-33, 515, 579-80, 661-2, 671
 Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1738-41, 1849-52, 2059
 Inflationary trends affecting export markets, 877
 Japan, 234-5, 245-9
 Mexico, 775-7, 852-3
 Preferential rates for developing countries, 485, 515
 United Nations Trade and Development Conference, 515

Trade Marks Act

Proprietary or Patent Medicine, Trade Marks bills S-9 and S-35

Translations

Criteria of Regulations and other Statutory Instruments Committee, correction of, 264

Transport and Communications, Standing Senate Committee

Members, 96
 Reports
 Aeronautics bill S-34, rep without amdt, 2141

Transport and Communications, Standing Senate Committee - ConcludedReports - Concluded

- Aircraft Registry bill S-5, rep with recommendation that bill be not proceeded with 980-1, 990-7, 999-1002
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation TV program 'Les Beaux Dimanches', 1099, 1118-20, 1127-9
- Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission bill C-5, rep without amdt, 998
- International Air Transport Association bill S-18, rep without amdt, 373
- Railway bill C-48, rep without amdt, 795

Transport Minister Hon. Jean Marchand, rumour of resignation, 573

TransportationAir service

- Disruption of services (bilingualism), 2237, 2243, 2249-50, 2258-9
- Eastern Canada, 73
- Fredericton-Ottawa, 854-5, 867
- Halifax-Ottawa, 1479-80
- St. John's-Ottawa, 506-08
- Air service, flight delays due to labour disputes, 2062-3, 2168
- Bilingual air traffic services, Commission of Inquiry, 2322
 - Letters from Canadian Air Traffic Control Assoc. and Air Line Pilots' Assoc., and to Minister of Transport, 2335, 2352-3
- Crowsnest Pass freight rates, 41-42, 598, 889, 924
- Feed grains, freight assistance to Atlantic provinces, 1035
- Ferries operating between Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, possible increase in fares, 1815
- Memorandum of Understanding between Minister of Transport and the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, 2276-7
- Newfoundland
 - Air service, 506-08
 - Inter-city passenger routes, Canadian Press article re, 139-40
 - North Sydney-Cape Breton-Port aux Basques, 139
 - Strait of Belle Isle, 64-65
 - Trans-Canada Highway, 63-64
- Nova Scotia, 20
- Official Languages Act, language rights of air pilots in Quebec, 2344-8, 2378-86
- Prince Edward Island, 73
- Railways
 - Abandonment of lines and effect on municipal property tax assessments, 44-45
 - Canadian Pacific Railway, 38-45; land grants and sales, 39-42; mineral rights and revenue from, 40-42; Trail copper smelter, 42: Crowsnest Pass, 42
 - Freight rates, 43
 - Passenger trains, 43-45, 52, 140
- Resumption of airline services in Canada, appointment of Commission of Inquiry, 2261-2, 2276-7

Transportation

- British North America Act as it pertains to transportation, 2049-54, 2070, 2106-08, 2115-18, 2196-8, 2217-21; motion to refer subject matter to Transport and Communications Committee, 2221, 2333-4
- British Columbia terms re transportation services, 2218
- Chignecto Ship Canal, 2219
- Ferry employees right to strike, 2197, 2218-19
- Government policy, lack of statement re, 2218
- Halifax and Saint John, 'Gateway to Eastern North America', 2211-12
- Halifax container pier, 2212

Transportation - Concluded

British North America Act as it pertains to transportation - Concluded

Intercolonial railway, 1117-18

British Columbia, 2218

New Brunswick, 2217-18

Newfoundland, 2106-08, 2115-18

CNR operations, 2115-18

Abandonment of passenger service, 2115-16

Elimination of freight trains, 2116

Limited 'train consist', 2115-16

Overcharges on freight, 2117

Shipment delays, 2116

Ferry service, 2197-8

Newfoundland & Ontario Steamship Ltd., 2198

Road cruiser service, 2116

Bus fares, 2117

Bus purchases, questions re, 2116

Shipping, charter rates, 2198

Terms of Union re transportation services, 2108, 2117, 2118

Trans-Canada Highway, 2106-07

Provincial disparities, 2106-07

Passenger rail service, 2212

Prince Edward Island

Background of ferry services to PEI, NB and NS, 2050-1

CNR and Canadian Brotherhood of Transport and General Workers, labour disputes, 2053-4

CNR facilities, deterioration of, 2197

Charlottetown Guardian article re statement of Highways Minister, 2053

Excerpt from BNA Act re provisions relating to PEI services to be assumed by federal government, 2049-50

Ferry services of Albert, Northern Light and Stanley, 2150

Marine East Coast Co-ordinating Committee, 2050, 2054

National transportation policy, 2053

Potatoes, transportation by truck and resulting highway and marketing costs, 2052

Railway traffic provisions, 2051-2

CNR discontinuance of passenger service, 2052

Transportation rates on passengers, vehicles and freight, 2051

Federal government responsibility for increase, 2051

Saskatchewan, inquiry re rail abandonment, 2220

Sea-Wings cargo business, Atlantic provinces, 2212

Unemployment, 2198

Speakers: Senators

Bonnell, M. Lorne, 2049-54, 2070

Buckwold, Sidney L., 2219, 2220

Burchill, G. Percival, 2221

Carter, Chesley W., 2220

Duggan, James, 2115-18

Forsey, Eugene A., 2217-21

Greene, John J., 2219

MacDonald, John M., 2196-8

McDonald, A. Hamilton, 2220, 2221, 2333-4

Norrie, Margaret F., 2211-12

Phillips, Orville H., 2063-6, 2220

Riley, Daniel A., 2221

Rowe, Frederick William, 2106-08, 2064

Treaties

Countries with which Canada has concluded tax treaties or conventions, 855, 867, 925

See Agreements, conventions, treaties

Tributes

- Aird, Hon. John B., resignation from the Senate, 334-6
- Bourque, Hon. Romuald, the late, 11-12
- Crerar, Hon. Thomas A., P.C., the late, 778-9
- Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, P.C.
 - Resignation from the Senate, 967-8
 - Unveiling of portrait in Senate foyer, 469-71
- Gelinas, Hon. Louis-Philippe, the late, 1713-14
- Gouin, Hon. Leon Mercier, resignation from the Senate, 2057
- Hugessen, Hon. A. K., the late, 2007
- Kickham, Hon. Thomas J., the late, 324
- Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C., the late, 534-2
- Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C., the late, 2176-7
- MacKay, Hon. John, Lieutenant Governor of Prince Edward Island, the late, 135
- Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., resignation from the Senate and appointment to office of High Commissioner to United Kingdom, 208-12
- Matheson, Hon. Alexander W., the late, former Premier of Prince Edward Island, 1861-2
- O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, the late, 2034-6
- See Felicitations*

Trudeau, Rt. Hon. Pierre Elliott, P.C., Prime Minister of Canada

- Orders in Council concerning prerogatives of Prime Minister, 1349, 1355
- Visit to British Columbia with cabinet ministers, 1763-4
- Visit to Paris, news report on accompanying officials, 161, 180
- Watergate tapes, reference to Prime Minister by former US President Nixon, 179

Trust companies

- Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies bill S-7, 47, 100-03, 107, 160, 180, 314

Two-price wheat

- Bread prices, 928, 929
- Canadian Wheat Board report, excerpt re two-price system, 943
- Escalator clause, lack of, 929-30, 943
- Price of wheat for consumption in Canada, 928, 929-30
- Production costs, 928, 929-30
- Statements to Commons committee re floor price;
 - Canadian Federation of Agriculture, 929
 - National Farmers Union, 929
 - Ontario Wheat Producers' Marketing Board, 930
 - Palliser Wheat Growers Assoc., 930
- Subsidy to producers and consumers, 928, 929
- Speakers: Senators
 - Argue, Hazen, 928-30, 1088, 1089
 - Macdonald, John M., 942-3
 - Molgat, Gildas L., 928

Two-Price Wheat bill C-19. 1r, 900; 2r, 928-30, 942-4; ref to com, 944; rep without amdt but with recommendation, 1088-90; 3r, 1090; r.a., 1095

Unemployment

- Community employment, 283
- Importation of farm labourers, 284, 287
- Loss of working days through strikes, 81-82
- Manpower centres, functions of, 400-01
- Prince Edward Island, transportation problems of employable persons, 84
- Textile workers, 782, 784, 786-7, 791
- Unemployment insurance for pensioners, 145
- Welfare and unemployment insurance vs wages, 283, 284, 287
- Work ethic in Canada, 281-8, 339-42, 474-8, 518
- Working poor, 141

Unemployment insurance

- Amdts to be proclaimed in Jan/76, 1700
- Appeal procedure, 1704
 - Statistics on appeals, 1704
- Application form for insurance, 1704
- Claimants outside Canada, 1703
- Dependency reduction from 75% to 66 $\frac{2}{3}$ %, 1696, 1697
- Disentitlement, 1699
- Escalation in unemployment insurance payments, 1697
- Leaving employment voluntarily and refusal of suitable employment, 1702
- Minimum benefit, 1702
- Persons 65 yrs. and over, 1696, 1697, 1698
 - OAS and GIS benefits, 1696, 1698
 - Refunds, 1701
 - Retirement benefits, 1702
 - Statistics, 1698, 1701
- Prison or institutional inmate, 1703
- Qualifying time, extension of, 1700
- Recovery of advance payments, 1703
- Regional breakdown of savings, 1700
- Self-employed persons or partnership, 1699
- Sharing of costs between employees, employers and government, 1697
- Sick benefits, 1700-01, 1702
- Social insurance number, 1705
- Social security measures, increase in benefits, 1696
- Students returning to school, 1700
- Suitable employment, defining of, 1703
- Training or instruction for new employment, 1702-03
- Unemployment statistics (1974), 1697

Speakers: Senators

- Forsey, Eugene A., 1690-1, 1698, 1699, 1700, 1702, 1705, 1706
- Fournier, Sarto, 1705-06
- Grosart, Allister, 1671-3, 1697, 1698, 1699, 1700, 1701, 1702, 1703, 1704, 1705
- Macdonald, John M., 1689-90, 1698, 1701-02, 1703, 1704
- Macnaughton, Alan, 1695-1706
- Molgat, Gildas L., 1687-9, 1694-5
- Perrault, Raymond J., 1693, 1694

also

Andras, Hon. Robert K., Minister of Manpower and Immigration, 1695-1706

Unemployment Insurance bill C-69. 1r, 1686; 2r, 1686-95; bill committed to Committee of the Whole, Senator Macnaughton in the Chair, Minister of Manpower and Immigration Hon. Robert K. Andras taking part in debate, 1695-1700, m to amend clause 6 not carried, 1700, debate cont, 1700-06; 3r, 1706; r.a., 1712

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics

Canada-Russia hockey series, 58-59, 98-99
 Economic conditions and trade prospects, 458
 Invasion of other countries, 1759
 Invitation to Canadian Parliamentary delegation to visit Russia, 1250-1, 1257
 Maritime forces, 345
 Military power, 1761
 Nobel Peace Prize winner, refusal of USSR to permit acceptance of award, 1760-1
 Territorial gains as result of World War II, 342-3
 Violation of treaties and agreements, 1758-61
 Warsaw Pact, 1759-60

United Grain Growers Limited bill S-33. 1r, 1914; 2r, 1924-5, 1930, 1946-7; ref to com, 1947; rep without amdt, 2003; 3r, 2009; r.a., 2207

United Kingdom

Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., High Commissioner to UK, farewell speech to the Canadian Parliament on appointment to position, 207-08; tributes, 208-12
 Trades Union Congress of Britain, statement of policy, 1328-9
 Wilson, Rt. Hon. Harold, Prime Minister, visit to Parliament, 473, 480

United Nations

Canada's participation in refugee relief, peacekeeping and ceasefire missions, 1243, 1244
 Crime Prevention, status of Palestinian Liberation Organization as participants in UN Congress, 1238, 1242-4, 1248-9
 Current discord at international conferences, 1238
 Resolution adopted by General Assembly inviting PLO to attend Congress, 1238
 Statement of Secretary of State for External Affairs re government decision to request postponement of meeting, 1248-9
 Crimes Against Internationally Protected Persons; Prevention and Punishment - An Analysis of the UN Convention, 1769
 Habitat, Conference on Human Settlements, report of Canadian National Committee, 1959-64, 2099-2102, 2199-2200, 2278-9
 Pension benefits for dependants of Canadian soldier killed in Cyprus, 760, 768
 Resolution naming Israel as racist nation, motion re condemnation of, Senator Croll, 1397-8
 Limitation on contributions as result of resolution, question, Senator Greene, 1411, 1417
 South Africa, exclusion from UN, 1243-4
 UNESCO, 487-8, 515, 1243
 Agreement for Facilitating International Circulation of Visual and Auditory Materials of Educational, Scientific and Cultural Character, 4-7
 Convention, 515
 Excerpt from Montreal Star re, 487-8
 Withdrawal of grants and exclusion of Israel from European Zone, 488, 1243
 Objectors to UNESCO decision, 1243
 World population, conference on, 236
 Zionism, Assembly resolution re and limitation on Canada's contributions as result of, 1411, 1419

United States

- Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Florida meeting, 2221-2, 2224-33
- Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, Quebec City meeting, 1137-43, 1144-55, 1625-7
- Canada-United States relations, 66-68, 71, 227-9, 234, 1653, 1716, 1747-50
 - Foreign Affairs Committee authorized to report on, 227-9, 234; com authorized to publish and distribute Vol. I of report, 1653; report tabled, 1716
 - Committee report, 1747-50
 - Questions re, 1625-7
- Canadian defence spending, remarks by United States Ambassador, report in Globe and Mail, 2122-3, 2201
- Watergate tapes, reference to Prime Minister by former US President Nixon, 179
- See Canada-US relations

Uranium Canada, Limited, proposed referral of report of National Finance Committee, 1639

Urban affairs

- National housing, 742, 743-57, 758

van Roggen, Hon. George C.

- Aird, Hon. John B., resignation from the Senate, 334-5
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1577, 1581
- Anti-Inflation bill (No. 2) C-89, 2113-15
 - Export levy, effect on resource industries, 2113-14
 - New plants and equipment, 2114
- Austin, Hon. Jacob, introduced in the Senate, 1354
- Canada-United States Inter-Parliamentary Group, 1140-3, see also 1145-55
 - Energy resources, 1141-2
 - Alaska reserves, 1141
 - Athabaska tar sands and Colorado oil shale, 1141
 - Coal reserves, 1141
 - Nuclear energy, 1142
 - Prices, 1141; controversy re, 1141
 - Shortfall in deliveries to US, 1142
 - Solar and geothermal energy, harnessing of tides, heat pumps, 1142
 - Excerpts from speeches made in Quebec City, 1140-1, 1143
- European Parliament, 307-14
 - Brussels meetings, 309-10
 - Canadian delegation, 308-09
 - Canadian relations with European Community, excerpt from Senate Committee report on, 310
 - Economic situation, 311
 - Energy resources, 312-13
 - Exchange meetings in Ottawa, 308
 - Ottawa office, establishment of, 308
 - Prime Minister's visit to the Community, 308
 - United Kingdom, 312
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1048
 - Application for withdrawal of criminal record, 1048
 - Unconditional pardon, 1048
- Foreign affairs
 - Canada-United States relations, 1747-50
 - Changing concepts of the relationship, 1748
 - Current problems, 1748
 - Information program, 1749
 - Inter-Parliamentary Group meetings, 1749
 - Legislative channels and contacts, 1748-9

van Roggen, Hon. George C. - *Concluded*Foreign affairs - *Concluded*Canada-United States relations - Concluded

Statistical comparisons on trade, 1749

'The Institutional Framework for the Relationship', foreword of Vol. I of report, 1747-8

Trade relations, 1748

Tributes to committee members, witnesses and staff, 1750

Foreign Affairs Committee

Canada-United States relations, committee authorized to report on, 227-9, 234; committee authorized to publish and distribute Vol. I of report, 1653

Reports

Canada-United States Relations, 1747-50

Temporary Immigration Security bill C-85, rep without amdt, 1874

Free trade, an economic consideration for Canada, 1741

Immigration bill C-12, 239

Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1869-73

Broadcasting, 1870

Bellingham station, 1872

Canada-US negotiations, 1870-1, 1872

Canadian advertising expenditures, 1870

CRTC recommendations, 1871, 1872

Ministerial rulings, 1870

Time and Reader's Digest, 1869-70, 1871-2

Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C., the late, 534

National Press Gallery, invitation to reception, 61-62

Oil industry, Canada-US relations re, 71

Privileges and Immunities (International Organization) bill S-25, 957-8

Comprehensive economic cooperation agreement, 957

European Community, recommendation for establishment of Ottawa office, 957-8

Recommendations of Foreign Affairs Committee, 957

Visit of Prime Minister to Community, 957

Regulations re attendance of senators, 1935-6

Travel distance, 1935

Veterans

Compensation for former prisoners of war, 2014, 2038-43

Royal Canadian Legion, 1180, 1194-6, 1205-09, 1211-12, 1281

Statute Law (veterans and civilian war allowances), 242, 267-70, 272, 281, 314

Veterans and returned soldiers' insurance, 1856Victoria Museum, rumoured change of name, question, 1035, 1165*Visitors

Alberta parliamentarians, 1087

Baltic Nations, Consuls of Estonia and Latvia, 1867

British Columbia, Mr. William Templeton, Victoria Legislative Assembly, 854

British Columbia parliamentarians, 1087

Bulgaria, President of the General Assembly and His Excellency the Ambassador, 124

Club of Rome President, Dr. Peccei, 473

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, African region delegation, 1087

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Secretary General Sir Robin Vanderfelt, 1966

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQueen, former Speaker of the Senate, 1970

Icelandic parliamentarians, 2184

Iraq, Mr. Elkadi Kw Kussai, 1742

Japan, delegation from House of Councillors, 2364

Visitors - Concluded

Japan, Mr. Yasunaga Ohara, National Diet Library, 299
 MacKenzie, Hon. Norman, 1303
 Mexico, Parliamentary delegation, 1874, 1877-8
 Polish Ambassador, His Excellency Jozef Czesak and Mrs. Czesak, 1442
 Saskatchewan, parliamentarians and wives, 262
 Senior citizens from March Township and Kanata, 555
 United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson, 473

Vote

Anti-Inflation bill (No. 1) C-73, 1581, 1587
 Appropriation bill No. 5, 1974 C-45, 417
 Citizenship bill C-20, 2290
 Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2450
 Question re voting procedure, 2444
 Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 1030-1, 1078
 Income Tax bill (No. 1) C-49, 655-6
 Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 2032

Walker, Hon. David J., P.C.

Aird, Hon. John B., resignation from the Senate, 335
 Canada Business Corporations bill C-29, 494-7
 Administrative discretion, 494
 Complaints re mishandling of business, 496-7
 Directors, 496
 Ontario Corporations Act, 494, 495, 496
 Shares and dividends, 496
 Criminal Code (commutation of death sentence) bill S-21, 558-9
 Deterrent aspect, 558, 559
 Increase in murder crimes, 559
 Federal Trust Companies and Loan Companies bill S-7, 103
 Gasoline excise tax, 1101
 Income Tax bill (No. 2) C-65, 1418, 1420
 Income Tax bill (No. 3) C-58, 1842-5, 1848, 2393-5
 Canada-United States relations, 1844
 Destruction of competition, 1844
 Economic aspects of legislation, 1844
 Mass Media Committee, 1842-3
 Time Magazine and Reader's Digest, 1842-5
 Judges bill C-47, 1042-3
 Salary increases, 1043
 Selection of judges, 1042-3
 Justice, administration of, allegations of interference by cabinet ministers, 1825-6, 1847, 1848
 Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C., the late, 2176-7
 Martin, Hon. Paul, P.C., resignation from the Senate, 210-12
 Official Languages Act, language rights of air pilots in Quebec, 2346-8
 Parliamentary immunity, 1399
 Post Office, strike of Canadian Union of Postal Workers, 1429, 1430-1
 Restaurant of Parliament, source of meat supplies, 1007, 1012-13
 Rules of the Senate
 Conflict of Interest, Green Paper, question of privilege re reference to committee, Hon. Mr. Croll, 780
 Senate and House of Commons, Salaries and Parliamentary Secretaries bill C-44, 874, 875
 Televising of committee proceedings, 522
 Tributes to Senator Hayden, Chairman of Banking, Trade and Commerce Committee, 1317

War veterans

- Dependent children, 257-8, 260
- Discrimination affecting those under age of 65 yrs., 268
- Eligibility for pension benefits, 259
- Equality for male and female veterans, 258, 260, 261
- Escalatory clause, 257, 268
- Orphans, 257-8
- Remembrance Day, 257, 258-9
- Royal Canadian Legion, 1180, 1194-6, 1205-09, 1211-12, 1281
- Statute Law (veterans and civilian war allowances) 242, 267-70, 272, 281, 314
- Widowers attaining age of 60 yrs., 216

Watergate tapes

- Reference to Prime Minister Trudeau by former US President Nixon, 179

Weapons and firearms

- Control of weapons and firearms, 193, 293-5

Welch, Hon. Frank C.

- Retired from the Senate, July 14/75

Welfare

- Community employment, 283
- Poverty in Canada - report of Special Senate Committee, 281-2
- Unemployment insurance vs welfare, 283, 284, 287
- Welfare ministers' conference, statement by Minister of NHW re federal policy in social welfare field, 556
- Work Ethic in Canada, 281-8, 339-42, 474-8, 518
- Working poor, 283

West Coast grain handling operations

- Agriculture policies, improvement in, 84-85
- Basic hourly rate for grain handlers, 78, 82, 92; disparity in labour rates, 82
- Conciliation commissioners, Globe and Mail item on, 88
- Consultations between government representatives and company officials in Saskatoon, 91
- Cost-of-living and pension proposals, 94
- Costs of strike action, 87
- Essential services, proposals for collective bargaining, prohibition against strikes, compulsory arbitration, 79-80
- Government intervention and inadequacies in dispute, 82, 86-87
- Grain prices, 85
- Industrial Inquiry Commission, proposal of Labour minister, 78
- Loss of working days through conciliation delays, 81-82
- Prairie farmers and grain handlers reaction to Perry report, 84
- Recommendations of conciliation commissioner, 77-78, 79, 89-90, 91-92
- Termination date of agreement, 78, 80-81, 89

Speakers: Senators

- Argue, Hazen, 82-85
- Flynn, Jacques, 78-80
- Grosart, Allister, 85-89
- Manning, Ernest C., 80-81
- McDonald, A. Hamilton, 81-82
- Perrault, Raymond J., 77-78, 80, 89-93, 94

West Coast Grain Handling Operations bill C-12. 1r, 76; 2r, 77-93; 3r, 93-94; r.a., 95

West Coast ports operations

Collective agreement provisions, 725
 Disruptions in economy due to strikes, 725-7
 Labour unions and management, irresponsibility in not reaching agreement, 727
 Mediator W. Kelly, Labour Assist. Deputy Minister for Industrial Relations, 724
 Non-supervisory longshoremen, 724
 Penalty for failure to comply with legislation, 729-30
 Resumption of work by longshoremen and related operations, question, 742
 Right to strike, 727
 Stevedoring companies and ship and dock foremen, 724
 Time limit on proceedings of arbitrator, 728
 Western farmers, difficulties of communication with government, 727-8

Speakers: Senators

Argue, Hazen, 727-8
 Flynn, Jacques, 725-7, 730
 Forsey, Eugene A., 728
 McIlraith, George, 730
 Perrault, Raymond J., 724-5, 728-30
 Prowse, J. Harper, 727

West Coast Ports Operations bill 1975 C-56. 1r, 723; 2r, 724-30; 3r, 730; r.a., 731

Western grain stabilization, Agriculture Committee authorized to study subject matter of Bill C-41, 1615

Western grain stabilization

Administration of act, 1725, 1737
 Advisory committee, 1725
 Branch offices, question of, 1736, 1737
 Crop insurance, 1736, 1737
 Eligibility to participate, 1724-5
 Instability of agricultural income, 1723, 1735
 Payments vs contributions, 1724
 Production costs, 1724, 1736-7
 Prolonged hardship, 1736-7
 Retirement of farmer or sale of operation, 1724, 1725
 Tax deductions, 1724, 1726
 Voluntary participation in plan, 1724, 1736
 Western Agricultural Conference, 1736
 Wheat Board, role of, 1736, 1737

Speakers: Senators

Bell, A. E. Haddon, 1725
 Buckwold, Sidney L., 1725, 1726
 McDonald, A. Hamilton, 1723-6, 1737-8
 Sparrow, Herbert O., 1725
 Yuzyk, Paul, 1725, 1735-7

Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41. 1r, 1714; 2r, 1723-6, 1735-8; ref to com, 1738; rep without amdt, 1756; 3r, 1766; r.a., 1792

Wheat

Two-price wheat policy, 900, 928-30, 942-4, 1088, 1090, 1095
 West Coast grain handling operations, 76, 77-94, 95

Wheat - Concluded

- West Coast ports operations, 723, 724-30, 731
- Wheat Board, 12, 106-07, 169-72, 255, 265-7, 656
 - Annual report, 685, 732
- Wheat Board (Bill C-88), 2260
- Wheat Board (Bill S-6), 12, 106-07, 169-72, 255, 265-7, 656

Wheat Board (Bill S-6)

- Cash advances, 267
- Excerpts from press release by Senator Argue, 171
- Final payment, 170
- Grain prices, 170-2
- Initial price, 172
- Malting barley, 266
- Operations of Board, 170, 172
- Speakers: Senators
 - Argue, Hazen, 170-2, 266-7
 - Buckwold, Sidney L., 106-07
 - Yuzyk, Paul, 169-70

Wheat Board bill (No. 1) S-6. 1r, 12; 2r, 106-07, 169-72; ref to com, 172; rep without amdt, 255; 3r, 265-7; r.a., 656

Wheat Board (Bill C-88)

- Advisory Committee
 - Election of new committee, 2316
 - Functions, 2330
 - Members, 2315, 2316
 - Payments to members, 2316
 - Producers as members, question of, 2330
- Costs of pooling account, 2316
- Kent County can be saved*, study of NB district, 2330
- Malting barley, 2315-16, 2330-3
 - Grainview* article entitled Why Alberta barley growers are suing CWB, 2331
- Provision for further pools by order in council, 2317
- Wheat grading, 2332
- Speakers: Senators
 - Argue, Hazen, 2331-3
 - McDonald, A. Hamilton, 2315-17, 2333
 - Yuzyk, Paul, 2330-1

Wheat Board bill (No. 2) C-88. 1r, 2260; 2r, 2315-17, 2330-3; ref to com, 2333; rep without amdt, 2356; 3r, 2356-7; r.a., 2450

Whips

- Chief Government Whip in the Senate, Hon. William J. Petten
- Chief Opposition Whip in the Senate, Hon. John M. Macdonald

White Papers

- Attack on Inflation - a program of national action, 1284, 1293, 1298-1303, 1312-14, 1319-30, 1349-53

Williams, Hon. Guy

- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 142-4
- Criminal Law Amendment bill (No. 2) C-84, 2417
 - Organized crime, 2417
 - Public viewpoint, 2417
 - Self-preservation, possible attitude of police and guards, 2417
- Felicitations to Madam Speaker and others, 142
- Food and Drugs, Narcotic Control and Criminal Code bill S-19, 453-4
- Indians of Canada, 142-4, 453-4
 - Alcoholism and drug addiction, 142-3, 453-4
 - Buffalo kill, 142
 - Demonstration on Parliament Hill, 143
 - Fishermen's assistance program, 142
 - Great Lakes pollution, 142
 - Money-poor and land-rich aspects of Indian life, 144
 - Restrictions on former freedoms of livelihood, 142
 - Talent potential for sports, arts and Indian culture, 143
 - Treaties, 142
- Laing, Hon. Arthur, P.C., the late, 534
- National Housing bill (No. 1) C-46, 751
 - Indians, 751
- National Housing bill (No. 2) C-77, 1678
 - Construction quality, 1676

Wilson, Rt. Hon. Harold, Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, visit to Ottawa, 473, 480

Women, status of, 16-17, 187-8

- Abortion, 120-1, 188, 837, 917, 1036
- Advisory Council on the Status of Women, priorities cited, 187-8
- Canada Labour Code amdt, 187
- Canada Pension Plan, inclusion of homemakers, 187
- Divorce or dissolution of marriage, 187
- Equitable employment of women to federal government positions and boards, commissions and crown corporations, 187
 - Superannuation Act amdts, 187
- Indian women, loss of status on marriage to non-Indian, 898
- International Women's Year, 188, 671-4, 836-8, 896-9
- Status of Women News, statement issued by National Action Committee, 120-1
- Statute Law (Status of Women) bill C-16, 1065, 1103-07, 1122-3, 1136, 1281

Work Ethic in Canada, special Senate committee proposed, 281-8, 339-42, 474-8, 518

- Changes due to economic environment, 474
- Community employment, 283
- Definition of work ethic, 474-5, 477
- Evaluation of services performed for society, 476
- Guaranteed annual income, 281, 339-40
- Immigrants employed for farm work and menial jobs, 284, 286, 476
- Loss of working days because of strikes, 286
- Management-labour relations, 284
- Market orientation concept of work, 477
- Poverty in Canada - Report of Special Senate Committee, 281-2
 - Report updated, 282

Work Ethic in Canada - Concluded

Provincial needs for workers, 284
 Real and fraudulent poverty, 241
 Right to work, unions or employers denial of, 476
 Social security programs, 477
 Social status vs job status, 475
 Teachers and public servants under contract, 477
 Unemployment insurance, 283, 284, 286, 477
 Unequal distribution of wealth, 475
 Waste and duplication in social security programs, 340
 Working poor, 283

Speakers: Senators

Asselin, Martial, 339-42
 Carter, Chesley W., 474-8
 Croll, David A., 281-8, 518
 Grosart, Allister, 518

Working poor in Canada, 2019-23, 2154-8

Benefits for those under 65 yrs., 2157
 Canada Pension Plan, 2157
 Employment, provincial statistics, 2019
 Excerpt from speech of Prime Minister of Canadiana Conference, 2158
 Expansion of money supply and redistribution of resources, 2155
 Gallup poll results re income statistics, 2155
 Minimum wage, 2019-22
 Provincially, 2019, 2022
 Rates for experienced adult workers (legislated as of Dec. 31, 1974), 2021
 Vs welfare, 2021-2
 Misallocation of human and physical resources, 2155
 Old age security, 2156-7
 Poverty line, 2022
 Responsibility to work, 2156
 Social security review (1973), 2156
 Specified areas of working poor, 2019
 Supplementary income as work incentive, 2022
 Union workers, 2022
 Welfare expenditures (1966-76), 2157
 Women in the labour force, 2157

Speakers: Senators

Austin, Jack, 2154-8
 Croll, David A., 2019-23

Yukon Territory

British North America Acts 1867 to 1975, appointment of senators to represent Territories, 1005, 1054, 1060-2, 1081, 1095
 Fire losses replacement account, 325, 338, 353, 366, 393
 Northern Canada Power Commission, 807-09, 814-16, 840, 851, 855, 1005, 1095

Yuzyk, Hon. Paul

- Alaska Boundary Treaty of 1825, 100th anniversary of establishment of Canada's western boundaries, 578
- Citizenship bill C-20, 2077-9
 - Citizenship certificates, 2077
 - Eligibility age, 2078
 - Judges of citizenship courts, 2078
 - Landed immigrants, residency requirements and qualifications of, 2078
 - Pledge appended to Bill of Rights, 2078-9
- Criminal Code (the National Flag of Canada) bill C-233, 740
 - Implications of penalty, 740
 - Motion that bill be ref to com after m for 3r, 740; agreed, 740
- Estonia, 58th anniversary of Proclamation of Independence, 1785
 - Tribute to Estonians, 1785
 - US Resolution re foreign policy of non-recognition of annexation of Baltic States by USSR, 1785
- Feeds bill S-10, 157-8
 - Bureaucratic control over regulations, 158
 - Whole seeds or grains free of deleterious substances, 158
- Helsinki Conference on Security and Co-operation, 1757-61
 - Disputes, peace solutions for, 1757
 - Families, uniting of, 1758
 - Human rights, 1757
 - Journalists, visa and travel difficulties, 1758
 - Mediterranean, 1757
 - Military manoeuvres, 1757
 - Newspapers featuring articles on Conference, 1757-60
 - New York Times* article, 1757
 - Nobel Peace Prize winner, refusal of USSR to permit acceptance of award, 1760-1
 - Letter from Senator Forsey re, 1761
 - Obligation to obey international law, 1757
 - Peking Review* article on USSR disregard of agreements, 1760
 - Process of detente, 1757
 - Security, 1757
 - Statements by leaders of various nations, 1758
 - Toronto Globe and Mail* article - The Brutal Reality of Brezhnev's Policy, 1759
 - Tourism, youth meetings, education and culture exchanges, 1758
 - Trade, 1757
 - USSR, 1758-61
 - Invasion of other countries, 1759
 - Military power, 1761
 - Violaton of treaties and agreements, 1758-61
 - Warsaw Pact, phases of strategic plan, 1759-60
 - Disunity of the West, 1759-60
 - Global democratic peace, 1760
 - Period of peaceful co-existence, Khrushchev's policies of de-Stalinization, 1759
 - Social change, 1759-60
- King George V Cancer Fund Winding-Up bill C-76, 1482-3
 - Background of fund, 1482
 - Trustees of fund, 1482
- Multiculturalism, Ministry of State, organization and budget, 742, 849, 866
- North Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference, 1514-16
 - Canadian delegation, 1514
 - East-West relations, 1515
 - Education, Cultural Affairs and Information Committee, 1515
 - Helsinki Agreement, 1515
 - Political Committee, 1514

Yuzyk, Hon. Paul - *ConcludedNorth Atlantic Assembly, Copenhagen conference - *Concluded

Resolutions adopted re

Middle East, 1514

Portugal, 1514

Southeastern section of Alliance, 1515

Spain, 1514

Soviet Union, armed forces and equipment, 1515-16

North Atlantic Assembly, London conference, 362-5

Canadian delegation, 364-5

Education, cultural affairs and communications, 362

NATO, 362, 364

Information service, 364

Political differences, 362

Security and cooperation in Europe, 362-3

Ukrainian historian Valentyne Moroz, prisoner in Vladimir prison, 363-4

US amendment to trade bill, 363

USSR, treatment of dissidents, 363-4

Northern Canada Power Commission bill C-13, 807-09, 814-16Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 1) C-10, 614-15

Abuses of cash advances, question of, 615

Corporate farms, partnerships, cooperatives of farming enterprises, 614

Elevator companies, question of commission for, 615

Increase in advance payment to $15,000, 614

Instigation of act during Conservative government, 614

Option to deliver on quota system or offboard sales, 615

Prices and production costs, 615

Repayment record, 615

Prairie Grain Advance Payments bill (No. 2) C-53, 1157, 1166-7

Damp or tough or unthreshed grain, 1166, 1167

Defaults in repayments, 1167

Limitation to wheat, oats and barley, 1166

Persons authorized to purchase grain for board, 1166

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, invitation to Canadian Parliamentarians to visit Russia, 1250-1, 1257United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson, visit to Ottawa, 480*Visitors from Baltic Nations, Consuls of Estonia and Latvia, 1867*Western Grain Stabilization bill C-41, 1725, 1735-7

Branch offices, question of, 1736

Crop insurance, 1736

Instability of agricultural income, 1735

Production costs, 1736-7

Prolonged periods of hardship, 1736-7

Voluntary participation in plan, 1736

Western Agricultural Conference, 1736

Wheat Board, role of, 1736

Wheat Board bill (No. 1) S-6, 169-70Wheat Board bill (No. 2) C-88, 2330-1

Advisory Committee members, 2330

Functions, 2330

Producers as members, question of, 2330

Kent County can be saved, study of NB district, 2330

Malting barley, 2330-1

Grainview article entitled 'Why Alberta barley growers are suing CWB', 2331

Zionism

UN resolution naming Israel as racist nation, 1397-8, 1411, 1417

Limitation on contributions as result of resolution, question, Senator Greene, 1411, 1417

Motion re condemnation of, Senator Croll, 1397-8

Government
Publications

